"The other reason, and perhaps the principal one, is that the farmers of lower Michigan do not have good enough roads to get their apples to the shipping stations at prices that compete with the fruit hauled from New York, hence only the finest fruit they produce can stand the shipping charges and we of the north do not have the benefit we should of being of part of Michigan.

"Given good roads from the farms to the state trunk lines and the railway stations, and decent treatment by rail companies, the well on to a half million people up here would pay less for goods, while the farmers and fruit men in the lower part of the state would secure better prices, and all Michigan would benefit.

"On the road proposition, the solution is more and better lasting roads. The present state road plans are being pursued with that aim in view. Poor cement in the past, poorer road finishing material, lack of knowledge of the wearing qualities of the different classes of rock, is mainly responsible for the destruction of millions of dollars' worth of roads built years ago, and the consequent dissatisfaction of the lower Michigan producers.

"If they had the material for roads that we have up here in such unlimited quantities, their troubles would be solved, and we verily believe for all time. And it will pay them to investigate, even if some statesmen (?) from our north country, knock the proposition for selfish or personal reasons.

"The Creator has been wonderfully kind to lower Michigan, in its remarkably rich farm lands. He has been correspondingly kind to us up here, in furnishing road material that has no counterpart in the lower part of the state and when sectional and factional differences are forgotten, the entire people of the state will be the beneficiaries, and that day will come when our lower peninsula friends honestly investigate what we have."

SEALS TO HELP TB CAMPAIGN

PUT ONE ON EVERY LETTER MAILED THIS MONTH

A Great Variety of Things to Be Sold For This Laudable Purpose—Do Your Bit

Almost every letter and package mailed this month in the state of Michigan can be Christmas Sealed, says the Michigan Tuberculosis Association in speaking for itself and county organizations. Forty-two million Christmas seals have passed through the Lansing office of the association in preparation for what is expected to be the largest Christmas seal sale in the history of the state.

Five cents per capita is the goal that has been set for the 1923 sale. In 1922 the state averaged 4.2 cents per person Alpena county leading all its rivals with a record of 8.4 cents for every person in the county. Other counties that exceeded the five cent mark last year were Kent, Washtenaw, Wayne, Alger, Macomb, Muskegon and Ingham. Midland county registered the largest gain over 1922 by increasing its per capita sale 1.54 cents. Five cents per capita is the aim of the nation as well as of the state in the coming Christmas Seal sale.

In preparation for the sale great quantities of supplies have been prepared by the Michigan Tuberculosis Association and its affiliated organizations both of which carry on the anti-tuberculosis program financed by the seal sale. In addition to the 43,000,000 seals, more than 150,000 Christmas seal letters have been prepared and 125,000 fact folders, telling what has been done and what remains to do in the struggle against the "White Plague," have been printed. Ten thousand pamphlets, 5000 report blanks, 4,000 poster stories, hundreds of theatre slides, moving picture trailers, and quantities of large and small bill board posters have been distributed through the state.

"Buy Christmas Seals, Give Health," is the slogan of the coming campaign. A Christmas seal adds a Christmasy touch to letters and packages and helps fight tuberculosis.

HARBOR SPRINGS SUED FOR $5,000

Neighboring City May Lose Suit When Tried

Suit for $5,000 damages for the death of her husband, who was electrocuted there, has been started against the village of Harbor Springs by Mrs. Ernest Haynes of Chicago through her attorneys, J. T. & T. F. McAllister, Grand Rapids.

Mr. Haynes, who was an inspector attached to the government weather bureau, Chicago, came there July 26, 1922, to inspect the local signal station. It is said he went to the tower alone and, starting up the ladder to examine the lights, came in contact with a live wire and was killed instantly.

The defense will undertake to show the tower should not have been constructed so close to the wires and that a man could not climb the ladder without coming in contact with the wires.

SEWERING INTO LAKES TO CEASE

PROPERTY OWNERS MUST MAKE PROPER CONNECTIONS.

Council's Resolution Provides Thirty Day Limit to Complete Changes.

A resolution adopted by the common council of the City of Charlevoix at its last regular session on December 3rd, relative to the disposition of sewage, while immediately affecting only certain property owners, is a matter which should interest all of us, as it contemplates the eventual ridding of the waters of Round Lake and the channel from the disgusting filth which has been continually pouring into it from a number of sources.

The resolution in effect is a step to compel the 15 property owners named therein to connect their private waste pipes with the nearest public sewer within 30 days of their receipt of a written formal notice from the city, or, in case where this is not practicable, to install septic tanks at or near the outlet of their private sewers within the time above specified.

All of the designated property owners, whose names and locations of their offending properties appear at length in the council proceedings printed on another page in this issue, are at present sewerage into either Round Lake direct, or the channel: some from Bridge street and others from Belvedere and Dixon avenues. The measures taken by the council at this time are designed to eradicate this distressing situation and to forestall the ultimate interference of the state health department which undoubtedly would before long compel the city to see that its sewage was properly disposed of.

In the course of time, it will become necessary for property owners all over the city, whether sewerage into the lake waters or into private cesspools of the old type, to make the proper connections with the public sewers or install septic tanks. If any of our readers are owners of property not now properly connected with the public sewer system, it would be a wise thing for them to find out the location of the nearest main sewer and proceed to have this work done at once, rather than to wait until it becomes compulsory and everybody is hustling to comply with the law inside of the specified time limit, when it will be difficult to secure the necessary labor to do the job.

We might also state that this is nothing to become peeved over. It is for the general good and no one will benefit more by compliance with the sanitary regulations than the persons who are forced to put their sewage disposal on a modern and sanitary basis. One month of typhoid fever epidemic such as might result from neglect of proper precautionary measures would far more than counter-balance, in the loss of valuable lives and loss of business, the entire expense of changing over every defective installation in town. Other towns in this state and all over the country have been and are being forced to clean up and we should be no exception. In fact, the necessity of so doing is even greater in our case than in that of the average town, as we are entertaining thousands of people from outside every summer and are obligated in every way and from every standpoint to give them clean and livable conditions.

Floyd Wagner, wife and two sons, Frederick and Forrest went to Char-

The Thanksgiving community dinner at the town hall was well attended considering the amount of chicken pies and other good eats that were consumed and a very sociable and enjoyable time was had by all.

There was a lady in Norwood Monday, who was demonstrating "The Farmer's Wife." We seem to be pretty well supplied hereabouts, although there's Jim, George, Adolph and a few others who might be interested.

The Misses Orlovski and some lady friends, motored out from Charlevoix Monday afternoon and commented us on our elegant roads, especially from the Hilton school to Antrim City. They gave us an urgent invitation to attend the next road meeting.

The school entertainment at the town hall, Tuesday, November 27th, was very well attended, and was the very best that Norwood has had for some time. Some of the numbers deserve special mention. The colored sketch, entitled, "How Rastus was Saved," by Iva and Joe Hull, Marjorie Richardson and Stuart Sorasin, their splendid acting was a credit to themselves and their teacher. The drill and plays by the little folks was so nicely rendered, Mrs. Willis is to be congratulated for her good work. The school netted nearly ten dollars.

TIME IS HERE PLANT TREES

DON'T PUT OFF UNTIL RUSH OF SPRING

A Few Trees or Shrubs Properly Placed Will Greatly Beautify Your Home

Those evergreens that you have been planning for such a long time to set out around the house—why not plant them now instead of leaving them until the rush of spring work will again prevent your getting at it?

A few evergreens, even so few as a half dozen, will quite transform the appearance of your place especially during the winter. To prepare the holes for, and to set out a half a dozen trees, is perhaps an hour's pleasant work—and the returns, even this first winter, will more than pay the slight trouble and the moderate expense involved. Don't let your home go without at least a few evergreens for another year.

You know, if you have ever traveled through sections of the country where evergreens grew wild, that they will thrive under almost any conditions. Once established, they need no pampering or nursing, but will "dig for themselves," and without any assistance from the hand of man, will live for generations and will grow into beautiful trees, making the house around which they happen to be planted, known as a beautiful home for miles around.

The evergreens compared to any other trees that grow have many distinct advantages.

Even on the smallest of places there will be room enough for a few of them. Among the many things that evergreens will give us which other trees will not, is first of all color and cheer throughout the winter.

Of course for forming a screen to hide unsightly buildings and to afford privacy from the streets or from neighboring places, no other trees can begin to compare with the evergreens. Aside from their many particular advantages, they serve as points of accent in any scheme of planting which may be used to make the home site more beautiful.

Among the many special purposes for which evergreens may be used, are the planting of single specimens for ornament; the planting of hedges either for privacy or to serve as a shelter to the grounds from cold winds in winter; "foundation planting" around the base of the house; and for screens of the various sorts.

As single specimens, no other trees are quite so effective. Almost any of the evergreens lend themselves to this purpose, but particularly good are the various firs and spruces. Among these, Nordman's Fir and Koster's Blue Spruce are particularly good. The Nordman's Fir is particularly hardy and so dense growing that even its natural growth gives the effect of having been pruned or sheared. Koster's Blue Spruce is one of the best known of all ornamental trees. Its characteristic, a distinct blue color, makes it stand out distinctly in any position and at the same time its color harmonizes with the foliage of other evergreens and ornamental trees. One or two specimens of this variety may be used with advantage in almost any landscape grouping.

The Pines also make excellent trees. The best known of these is the ordinary White Pine, but in sections where there is danger of the blister rust, one of the other pines such as Red or Norway Pine or the Austrian Pine should be used in its place. The dwarf or Mugho Pine there is no room for one of the tall growing varieties. It is very hardy and while making a low mound-like growth, the distinct upright new growth which is formed each year gives it the characteristic beauty of the pine family.

The Cedars are particularly effective as single specimens where a slender columnar effect is wanted in the landscape or to harmonize with the architecture of the house.

One of the finest of all evergreens for hedges or windbreaks is the Hemlock. This may be planted close and sheared to any form desired or a most naturalistic and graceful hedge may be had by planting the trees at some distance apart so that they will touch as they grow.

Arbor Vitae is also largely used for hedges and windbreaks and is excellent for this purpose because of its hardness, long life and the exceedingly dense growth which it makes.

For foundation plantings, of course, the tall growing evergreens are objectionable because, after a few years, they either must be cut back which spoils their natural beauty or else will grow out of all proportion for the purpose for which they are being used. For foundation planting, select some of the dwarf varieties such as the Mugho Pine, which has already been mentioned or dwarf or spreading Cypress and Yews.

For screens practically any of the evergreens may be used. The variety to be selected will depend on the conditions to be met—how tall the screen may be wanted, whether dense enough to serve as a windbreak or merely to screen the view, etc. The Hemlocks and Pines, most varieties of which are rapid growing, are particularly good for this purpose as they keep their branches down close to the ground.

In former years before modern methods of packing and shipping were in general use, the season during which evergreens could be successfully set out was very much more limited than it is at present.

Where's the Man or Boy who doesn't want a Bang-up Knife for Christmas

THERE'S something about a fine, sturdy pocket knife that reaches right down into the heart of man and boy alike. But it has to be a real knife—make no mistake about that!

Here are shown a dozen Remington pocket knives—as Christmas suggestions. Every one is a practical cutting tool. The blades are sharp and will cut. The handles hold on. The springs keep their strength. Your dealer can show you these Remington Knives—and many others in all combinations of blades and handles in a wide range of prices—50¢ to $10.

Probably when you see them you'll decide to give him more than one. One for his pocket or watch-chain—and another perhaps for working around the car. Or a Remington Camper's Knife if he loves camping, hiking, or fishing.

Anyhow, before you decide look at all the different kinds of Remington Pocket Knives at the store. Be sure to see the Official Knife—Boy Scouts of America.

THE AUTHORITY IN FIRE ARMS, AMMUNITION AND CUTLERY

With the "B. and B.", or "ball and burlap" system of shipping, transplanting can be successfully done throughout the fall. This makes it possible to enjoy the advantages of evergreens the first season after the new house or bungalow is finished; or when the rest of harvesting is over on the farm.

Strangers are always welcome. Make it possible for the pastor to meet and greet you and shake your hand next Sunday.

MR. BOK'S PEACE PLAN PRIZE

Today the entries for the Bok Peace Prize close. Being a free-for-all, with a $100,000 purse hung up, a large and eager field is to be anticipated. No handicaps are provided. The statesman with a lifetime of experience in international negotiations, the financier in touch with the money markets of the world, the journalist long trained in observation far afield, meet in competition with the dreamer and idealist. Perhaps in the competition the latter has the advantage, for to him peace is real, normal, actual substance. To some of a wider and more practical experience, peace, enduring peace, seems, as honesty in politics appeared to Senator Ingalls, an iridescent dream. But cynicism is not the atmosphere in which either truth or right is to be found. As health, not disease, is the normal physical state of man, and honesty, not craft, his normal mental characteristic, so peace, not war, is the normal state of nations. With a sigh of relief the United States turned "back to normalcy" after the nightmare of the World War. Now the problem is to maintain the state thus attained.

The Christian Science Monitor has offered to the committee on awards of the Bok plan no plan for the abolition of war and the futherance of peace. Yet we yield to no one precedence in devotion of these ends. We pledge, in advance, respectful attention to any plan which this committee shall declare entitled to the prize offered by Mr. Bok. Whether the final end of peace shall be attained by even the universal acceptance of any plan which may now be formulated is perhaps debatable. But discussion will in itself make for a wider comprehension of the evils which disturb peace, and help in the creation of such a social mind that war shall be unthinkable. Such a mental attitude on the part of nations is in no way unattainable. It is possessed already by individuals. Every man, in his relation of his fellows, encounters now and then disputes and aggressions quite as important and irritating to him as most quarrels which lead to war are to nations. But the individual thinks in terms of order, self-restraint, mutual forbearance, or—at the worst—legal redress. His mind at the moment of some seemingly unjustifiable aggression does not fly to thoughts of fisticuffs or of murder. So the average man, after the boyhood age, passes through life without experience of violence. The average nation is organized with violence for one of its primary functions. It was not without significance that in the organization of the infant government of the United States the War Department was created at the moment the Constitution was adopted, and the Navy Department was the next to be established. Defense was, of course, the purpose, but the idea that the infant nation, though far removed from turbulent Europe, could by any chance escape aggression never entered the minds of the Founders.—Christian Science Weekly.

MISS VINCENT BECOMES MRS. C. ROE

Ceremony Performed At Petoskey Last Wednesday Evening

On account of the sudden illness of Miss Kathryn Gaskin, of Northwestern University, the original plans for the marriage of Doris J. Vincent and Cleveland Roe of this city were entirely altered the day previous to the wedding. That being the state of affairs, no definite or accurate account of the affair was available for last week's press.

The young couple were married last Wednesday at seven o'clock at the Presbyterian-parsonage, Petoskey, by the Rev. Albert and were attended by C. E. Altenburg and Miss Olive Richardson, who are teachers in our local schools.

The bride was attired in a beautiful gown of crepe de chene and carried a pretty shower bouquet of tea roses. The bridesmaid wore a dress to match that of the bride which was ornamented with an elaborate bouquet of flowers. The ring ceremony was used.

Immediately following the ceremony, the foursome party motored to the southern part of the state, stopping in Cadillac, Big Rapids, Lansing, Jackson, Ypsilanti, Ann Arbor and Detroit, the greater part of the time being spent in the latter city and Ann Arbor. They returned home Sunday night.

Mrs. Roe was born in Norway, Michigan, where she received her high school education. She later graduated from the Cleary College and the Michigan State Normal College at Ypsilanti. She is now engaged as the commercial instructor in our local high school. Mr. Roe's former home was in Sault Ste. Marie. He was graduated from its high school in 1918, later attending the Northern State Normal college where he received his training.

Many friends have already called upon the newlyweds at their comfortable apartments in the eastern half of the Shanahan residence. They extend a cordial welcome to those who have not as yet visited the new home. Many valuable gifts have been received, among which might be mentioned two one hundred dollar checks.

UNCLE SAM WARNS THE XMAS SHOPPER

Address Your Packages and Letters Correctly.

Now that the Christmas season is approaching, employees of the post office department are looking forward to their busiest and most trying period of the year with no great thrills of joy. Their burden, however, may be greatly lightened by a little care on the part of the mailing public.

Do your Christmas shopping now and mail early. Parcels may be marked "Not to be opened until Christmas," or with a similar direction.

Wrap and address properly. The post office department would call the public's attention to the fact that during 1922 there were two hundred million pieces of mail deposited in the post offices of the country of which about seventeen million pieces found their way into the dead letter office. In this dead letter mail, thus poorly addressed, were found more than $100,000 in cash.

In preparing any matter for mailing, the following precautions should be observed:

1. Print or write legibly.
2. Avoid abbreviations.
3. Put on return address in upper left hand corner.
4. If not sure of address, use descriptive words, as name of occupation of addressee or name of person or persons living near him who might be able to transmit his mail to him.
5. Show on envelope, "Transient," or "General Delivery" in cases where addressee is traveling from place to place.

THE best footing your car can get on rain-swept streets and slippery hills is the gripping All-Weather Tread of a Goodyear Tire. The high, thick, sharp-edged blocks of that famous tread take a slipless hold and hang on with a wedgelike action that prevents side-slip or skidding.

As Goodyear Service Station Dealers we sell and recommend the new Goodyear Cord with the beveled All-Weather Tread and back them up with standard Goodyear Service.

Local TELEPHONE SERVICE Is Not All

YOU use your telephone to call local friend, store or office—that is local service. But that is not the full telephone service offered you.

The Telephone Company has built, at very great expense, mile upon mile of lines that lead, through storm and fair weather, to 70,000 cities, towns and hamlets, and over which is offered a greater service.

These lines make close neighbors of persons miles apart—loved ones, friends, business acquaintances.

Distance cuts the miles to messages of business, friendship—pathy—and places the world at your elbow.

Capture of Robbers Would Have Been An Easy Task Had They Made Appearance

When Mrs. Evert VanDerArk living on main street was awakened about three o'clock last Sunday morning by a persistent hammering interspersed by an occasional sound resembling the discharge of a light load of dynamite, her mind instantly connected the sound with store robberies and especially the Klooster and VanDerArk store which was robbed last winter. She immediately sent a messenger to the home of her son, Henry, a member of the Klooster & VanDerArk firm, to acquaint him with her suspicions.

Mr. VanDerArk at once armed himself and went to the Koo Klooster home. Mr. Klooster with great presence of mind, called the central phone office, where the operator, Harry Nash, sent out a general riot call, and at the same time called out the reserves. Five minutes after the first alarm a party of about fifteen men, led by the deputy sheriff and all armed to the teeth, were on their way to the scene of the crime.

"All night long" through the village street, Sounded the tread of the marching feet!"

Arriving at the Klooster & VanDerArk store, a skirmish line was thrown out and W. V. Coeling, J. H. Elzinga and the Rev. Stanley Lawrence, armed with pitch forks, advanced to the front door as shock troops. Alas, the store was empty. No trace of midnight marauders was discovered and after the relief expedition had foraged for a short time on crackers and cheese, Mr. Nash found a tin horn and sounded retreat, which was conducted in good order and without the loss of a man.

"Not as the conqueror comes. They, the true hearted came; Not, to the roll of the stirring drums, Nor the trumpet that sings of fame."

And with visions of Carnegie medals fading in the distance the members of the Loyal Legion hit the hay after restoring guns to their racks and butcher knives and cleavers to the pantry.

Now just a word as to the cause of the disturbance. A certain young man living northwest of town was having trouble with his Overland, being stalled near the farmer's warehouse, and the backfire of the machine gave rise to the idea that some one was using giant powder.

BOOSTER MEETING IS NOT WELL ATTENDED

Murray Speaks Again at Commercial Club Dinner.

The booster meeting at the court house last Friday evening was not as well attended as it might have been, owing to the fact that a number of other events occupied the same evening.

S. B. Murray of Chicago, field representative of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, gave one of the most interesting talks and presented the most tangible and feasible propositions that have ever been put before the citizens of Charlevoix. He came well equipped with statistics and figures to show the number of tourists who annually visit this state, the amount of money they spend and the comparative numbers of those who stay at the hotels, at the cottages and at the tourist camps.

Owing to the fact that a representative crowd were not present to hear Mr. Murray on last Friday evening, he has been prevailed upon to speak again at a dinner to the members of the Charlevoix Association of Commerce and their friends to be held at the Hotel Charlevoix on Tuesday, subsequent to the writing of this article, but which we will endeavor to report in detail elsewhere in these columns.

Ceremony Took Place Thanksgiving Day At Bride's Home

Walnut Hill, the farm home of Mr. and Mrs. Levi Metz of the Rock Elm district, near East Jordan was the scene of gaiety when Cora, their third daughter was united in marriage to Lawrence, the third son of Mr. and Mrs. G. Jensen of Orchard Hill, on last Thanksgiving day.

At twelve o'clock, as the strains of the Wedding March from Wagner's Lohengrin was being played by Mrs. Ben Smatts, the bride came in, beautifully gowned in white silk canton crepe and pearls, carrying a shower bouquet of white carnations and smilax and leaning on the arm of her father. Awaiting her at the altar, which was draped with ferns and flowers, was the maid of honor, Miss Sadie Metz, dressed in dove grey canton crepe; the best man Norman Jensen and the groom. Following the bride were the little girls, Jean and Gertrude Barnhisle in blue crepe de chene, carrying the ring which was hidden in a yellow chrysanthemum.

Rev. Hackett, who forty-two years ago married the father and mother of the bride and who was also present at the golden anniversary of her grandfather and grandmother, Mr. and Mrs. George Whitfield, performed the ceremony.

After the marriage service, a bounteous course dinner was served with twenty-five relatives and guests present. The bride and groom received many beautiful gifts, showing the high esteem in which the young couple were held by their many friends in the community where they grew up together to manhood and womanhood.

The happy pair left immediately for their new home in Detroit, accompanied by the best wishes of their friends and relations for prosperity and happiness in their voyage through life.

The Rebekahs will hold their annual carnival in the I. O. O. F. Hall, Thursday, December 13. Everybody come.—48t2.

AT THE MOVIES

Every scenario writer strives for something in every picture—something without it a picture is an absolute failure. In so far as interest is concerned, Clara Beranger has succeeded. In "Grumpy," William de Mille's production featuring Theodore Roberts, May McAvoy and Conrad Nagel, which comes to the Palace Theatre Saturday and Sunday, she has begun the suspense with the first scene and it ends only when the final scene is shown.

The central situation of "Grumpy" is the mysterious disappearance of a diamond valued at $500,000, which is stolen from Ernest Heron (Conrad Nagel) and recovered by "Grumpy," a lovable, though irascible, old character played by Mr. Roberts. The suspense starts with the opening scene, when the crooks are plotting the theft of the jewel. It builds up bigger and bigger to the climax and does not finally end until the last scene, when the crook is brought to justice, the sole clue to his identity being a gardenia with a woman's hair wrapped around its stem.

William Dougherty Passed Away At Frankfort Thursday

William Dougherty, former resident of this city, died last Thursday, November 29th, at Frankfort, Mich., following an illness of some four years.

Mr. Dougherty was born on August 12, 1848, in Antrim County Ireland and came with his parents to this country at the age of three years, settling in Canada. In 1873 he was married to Miss Mary Whitely, in Bracebridge, Canada and in 1882 came to Charlevoix to live and resided here until 1917, when he removed to Frankfort, which was his home at the time of his death.

Besides his widow eight children survive Mr. Dougherty—five daughters and three sons: James of Mason, Mich.; William of Detroit; John of Frankfort; Mrs. Albert Lemieur of Detroit; Mrs. Belle Natzel of Frankfort; Mrs. Max Major of Grand Rapids; Mrs. Guy Bruce of Detroit and Mrs. Charles Hipp of Frankfort. There are nine grandchildren and one great-grandchild. The deceased also had two living sisters: Mrs. R. Bogart of Kingsley, Mich., and Mrs. John Miller of this city.

The remains were brought to Charlevoix from Frankfort last Friday afternoon and the funeral held Monday of this week from the M. E. church at 2:00 p. m. with interment at Brookside.

Will the United States stop building motor cars, close up its factories and return to horse-drawn vehicles?

Absurd question! Yet there is only one alternative; if we are not to lose the economic and social benefits of motor transportation, we must supply roads upon which the power vehicle may run.

It is impossible to separate the water from the wave, the gold from the bracelet or the track from the locomotive. It is equally impossible to separate the road from the truck, or the passenger car from the highway. They are halves of a whole; transportation is never vehicle alone, or highway alone; it is both together. Our roads were planned and built for a means of transportation which is gone. The earliest highways were for horse riders, the stagecoach came next, after which we had the buggy and the wagon. The narrow road, the steep grade, the soft surface were all admissible for the swift and powerful motor.

We have "improved" our highways—some of them—and widened a few, but we still build a road with the idea that it will "last" but a few years, and need "constant repairs." We still build in widths predicated upon slow-moving vehicles; and we still wind our highways up hill and down dale and around devious curves because it is "easiest" and "cheapest" so to do.

That era is gone! The new one is fairly here. We must either build our roads for our modern vehicles, or scrap motor transportation. As the latter is unthinkable, it seems logical to believe that the era of the wide, expensive, permanent, hard surface road is here.

A quiet home wedding was solemnized at the home of the bride, 204 Antrim street, this city last Thanksgiving day, at eleven thirty a. m. when Mrs. Jennie Parrish became the bride of Robert Withers in the presence of a few immediate friends. INTERESTING BITS OF INFORMATION CLIPPED FROM OUR EXCHANGES

A Menominee trapper reports that thieves stole three coyotes from his traps. It may comfort him a little to know that the coyotes were thoroughly ashamed, at being stolen by such a man.

It is believed that the absence of snow on the ground in the upper peninsula during deer season will relieve a great many hunters of the necessity of hunting a different excuse.

That Michigan winters are no longer what they used to be is conclusively shown in Kent county, where all road construction work has been completed and the season will open without a single detour.

A Dowagiac motorist has just recovered his car which was stolen more than a year ago. When a car has been stolen more than a year, the best way to make everything square is to give the thief $5 and tell him to keep the car.

HATCHERY NOW A BUSY PLACE

FORCE OF TWELVE TAKE CARE
OF 127,000,000 EGGS.

Unusual Weather Conditions Make More Work for Uncle Sam's Fish Nurserymen.

News of the installation last Saturday of a new Worthington pump, capable of producing 600 to 1100 gallons of water per minute, at the local government fish hatchery reminds us that there is one busy spot in town most of us seldom see or hear of in the midst of our pre-Christmas activities.

Superintendent H. D. Dean, (formerly of the Bozeman, Montana, hatchery,) who assumed charge of the local station on November 7th, tells us that upwards of 54,000,000 lake trout eggs and 73,000,000 whitefish eggs were gathered and delivered at the hatchery in Charlevoix so far during the fall. Of the whitefish eggs, 53,000,000 came from Lake Erie and the balance from the waters of Lake Michigan, near Cheboygan, St. Ignace and the Beavers. 1,500,000 of the trout eggs came from Grand Traverse Bay, near Traverse City and the balance from our adjacent waters.

The work of the hatchery is not only most interesting to the layman but is of the utmost importance to commerce, as on it the maintenance and prosperity of our fisheries depend. The fish are gathered by representatives of the Bureau of Fisheries who go out on the fish tugs equipped with the proper containers and other apparatus for collecting the spawn. The fishermen are glad to cooperate in this work, as according to agreement they are thus enabled to fish during the closed season, keeping their catch while the hatchery gets the spawn. The bureau's tug, Fulmar, under the command of Capt. Sam Rose, is also engaged in the collection of spawn. The spawning fish are found in comparatively shallow water, usually on reefs or bars, where the water is deep, of course, but not as compared to the general lake depth. As Nature is seemingly wasteful in this one respect and but a small proportion of the eggs are rendered fertile by natural means, the greater proportion being consumed by the fish themselves or those of other species who regularly feed on spawn, this process must be accomplished by artificial methods, after the spawn are gathered, by the men on the tugs.

When the eggs are brought to the hatchery, they are first sorted on wire trays or screens, partly submerged in running water, and all poor specimens or those affected with the peculiar fungus growth that attacks the spawn are thrown out. These parasitic growths develop more rapidly when the water is comparatively warm, especially so this fall when weather conditions have been somewhat abnormal. This calls for more careful sorting and consequently entails a greater amount of work.

A CHINAMAN CHANTS
"Though 'East may be East
And West may be West,
And never the twain may meet'
Said Ho Hing Wung
In his native tongue,
'I fear we must be discreet!'"

"American folks
In their efforts to hoax
Take advantage of fancy gone fust
Then even cash in
And make lots of tin
On our simplest Chink repast, chop-suey."

"Why in marking the day
Of their freedom, they say,
By my great father's pig-tail and lac-quers,
That not even then
Do they trade in their yen
For their own, but for OUR firecrackers!"

"By my opium gum,
I swear that on rum
And poker the Yanks got along
For their gambling games
Till some sight seeing dame
Saw us playing our game of Mah Jongg."

"Ah, me!" sighed Ho Wung
From his innermost lung,
As he plaited his pig-tail in twos,
"We folks must take care
For the Yanks, I do swear Play pool, just imagine, with queues!"

The wire trays or screens containing the good eggs remaining after the sorting process is completed are packed in tiers of twelve screens each in deep troughs and a stream of fresh water kept constantly running over them and down through the meshes of the screens. When the fish hatch out, they are about an inch in length and are then removed from the screens and placed in cans ready for planting. This process takes place only in the case of the trout eggs. The whitefish eggs, which are much smaller, are placed in glass jars arranged in tiers along high steel racks which occupy a considerable portion of the big main room of the hatchery. These jars have an inlet at the top and an outlet at the bottom, the latter being kept closed by a screen or filter until it is desired to draw off the newly hatched fish. Fresh water runs through these jars in a continuous stream, fed in through a rubber tube leading to the bottom of each jar from its inlet at the top. When the embryo whitefish break the shell of the egg and emerge as fish proper they are allowed to run out with the water into long, wide

JULIUS C. BIRGE DIES AT AGE 85

RESORTED ON BELVEDERE FOR TWENTY-FIVE YEARS.

Prominent Business Man, Author and "Forty-Niner"—Will be Sadly Missed.

W. H. Miller, secretary of the Charlevoix Summer Home Association, received a telegram last Monday morning from St. Louis, Missouri, stating that Julius C. Birge, well known Belvedere resortor and St. Louis business man, died at his home in that city last Saturday evening. Mr. Birge, who was about 85 years of age, was taken ill shortly after his return to St. Louis from Charlevoix last fall and never recovered.

Julius C. Birge was the first white child born in Whitewater, Wisconsin, 85 years ago, and of late years in making the trip to Charlevoix by automobile has never failed to come by way of his old home which he has thus revisited each year. He began coming to the Belvedere Hotel some 25 years ago until a few years ago when he purchased a lot on the Summer Home Association grounds and built himself a fine cottage. He was early elected a trustee of the Summer Home Association and served as its president for several years. He was very much devoted to Charlevoix and gave of his time, energy and money freely to the upbuilding of the resort and the development of the community in which he made his summer residence; the churches, library and the new hospital coming in for a share of his beneficence.

In the business world Mr. Birge occupied an important position as president of the Ames Shovel & Tool Company of St. Louis. He was also financially interested in several other large industries in Indiana and Pennsylvania. He was one of the "Forty-Niners" and made the trip to California by way of the pioneer trail in the great rush for gold. The book which came from his pen in commemoration of this event, "The Awakening of the Desert," has had a wide circulation and presents a very interesting picture of the early development of the west.

The deceased leaves to mourn their loss a widow, four sons and one daughter. Each of his sons is manager of one of the branches of his extensive business. A golden jubilee was held on the grounds of the Belvedere resort last summer, marking the 50th anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Birge's marriage, at which all of his children and seventeen grandchildren were present.

Mr. Birge was a fine old gentleman of commanding presence and genial disposition and will be sadly missed by his many friends in the town as well as among the members of the Summer Home Association.

The funeral was held at St. Louis last Monday afternoon, at 2:00 o'clock.

The ladies of St. Mary's Altar Society will give a baked goods sale on December 15th, in the Benj. Brown building.—50t1.

CUTS HIS SCALP OPEN IN ACCIDENT

Philo Mascho of Phelps Receives Axe Wound.

Philo Mascho of Phelps, the father of Mrs. Alfred Smith of this city, while splitting kindling in his woodshed last Friday afternoon, received a serious scalp wound which is likely to lay him up for some time as the old gentleman is around 80 years of age.

The roof of his shed is quite low and in raising the axe it struck low roof and rebounded, cutting a gash about three inches long in Mr. Mascho's head and stunning him. He was removed immediately to the home of his daughter, Mrs. H. L. Francisco and Dr. Armstrong was summoned. The injured man lost about a quart to a quart and a half of blood before the wound could be staunched, according to the doctor, who had to take several stitches in the scalp. If no complications set in, the doctor believes he will get along all right.

GIVE VIEWS ON STATE ISSUES

FARMERS' CLUBS STATE WHAT THEY WANT

Speak Very Plainly in Demanding Representative Government and Tax Reform

Delegates to the 31st annual convention of the State Association of Farmers' Clubs meeting at the Michigan Agricultural College, December 4-5, adopted strong resolutions favoring a two cent gasoline tax with a 60c per hundred weight tax for highway financing purposes, favored a state income tax in lieu of the general property tax, and endorsed the stand of the State Board of Agriculture in its battle against the State Administrative Board in defense of its constitutional control of the Agricultural College and its agricultural extension work in the counties.

The support given the State Board of Agriculture was vigorously worded and gave notice that the Associated Farmers' Clubs demand that the constitutional boards elected by the people for the purpose of directing the affairs of our educational institutions such as the Agricultural College, the University and other schools shall be permitted to do so "without dictation or interference from the executive branch" of the state government. The Agricultural Board's suit to compel the State Administrative Board to cease its interference with financial and administrative affairs of the Agricultural college is now resting with the State Supreme Court for a decision.

The action of the Farmers' Clubs makes Michigan farmers' organizations unanimous on the above questions. The Michigan State Grange and the Michigan Potato Growers Exchange in state convention have adopted similar resolutions. The State Farm Bureau in its annual meeting last February supported all the issues except the agricultural board matter, which had not come up at that time. Since then, however the State Farm Bureau directors and hundreds of local and county Farm Bureaus have left no doubt regarding their positive opinions in the matter.

The Association of Farmers' Clubs also recommend that re-apportionment of the senatorial and representative districts be postponed until the constitutional convention of 1926.

The Farmers' Club convention was well attended. All sessions were held at the Agricultural college. Secretary Halladay of the college invited the Association to hold all future sessions there. The delegates at their banquet December 4, given at the Home Economics building at the college and served by the Domestic Science department, spoke of the splendid hospitality accorded them by the college and the interest that the college departments and employees have for every farmer visitor.

All speakers at the banquet commented upon the happy fact that all Michigan farm organizations are working together in complete harmony. President Nobles of the Farmers' Clubs spoke of the need for more improved machinery to do away with farm drudgeries, difficult housework, etc., and said that he believed electrification of the farm was the solution therefor. He advised farmers to keep close to their educational institutions and support them. Speaking of the progress of marketing, he said that since the Farm Bureau came into being farmers have progressed further with their marketing problems in the past four years than they had in twenty years prior to that time.

Toastmaster N. P. Hull took occasion to point out that the farm outlook is brighter today than any time for three years and that the trend to the cities will automatically solve our overproduction problems, also that migration is proceeding at the rate of 2,500,000 to 3,000,000 persons per year and the time can not be far distant when the price balance will be favorable to farmers again.

Secretary C. L. Brady of the State Farm Bureau summed up the really remarkable progress Michigan farmers are making in business organization and pointed out that since the organization farmer has gone out and hired the best brains available for his business enterprises, he is enjoying the same measure of success that business is, and is constantly on the gain.

W. S. Cutler of Grass Lake, vice president of the Farmers' Clubs was elected president, Mrs. I. R. Rushton was re-elected secretary.

HOLDS UP LI- CENSE ISSUE

SECRETARY OF STATE AWAITS LEGISLATURE'S DECISION.

Whether Gas Tax or Weight Tax—Direct Titles, Not Assigned,
Will Be Accepted.

Since County Clerk Charles H. Emrey reported the State Bulletin that 1924 license plates would be issued early in December, the secretary of state has sent out a revised order to all branch managers to withhold the sale of license plates until the state legislature convenes and disposes of, or adopts plans, for collecting the revenue under a gas tax or readjusted weight tax.

The secretary of state informs us that all branch offices throughout the state and the main office at Lansing will be sufficiently enlightened of any action that the legislature may take about December 20th, and the issuing of 1924 plates will begin on or about the 20th of December.

The state department has also issued a statement relative to assigned certificates of title and a copy of the statement is hereunder published:

November 28, 1923.

To All Branch Managers:
It is very evident that there are thousands of motor vehicle title holders in this state who have an idea that a certificate of title transferred from the original owner to the present holder, under Rule 2 of the set of rules promulgated by the department last year, entitles them to purchase 1924 license plates.

This is an error, and to avoid confusion when these assigned titles are presented for 1924 license plates, we believe your local papers, in the public interests, will be very glad to give publicity to substantiate the following information:

That license plates cannot, under the law, be issued to the class of title owners above referred to until they have secured from the secretary of state office at Lansing, a certificate of title in their own name. This means that all assigned titles must be mailed to Lansing within ten days with a statutory fee of one dollar ($1.00), whereupon a title will be issued, and on presentation of this new title, license plates may be issued by any branch manager.

You will at once realize the importance of all publicity on this subject, as it will save you much time and avoid great confusion during the rush days of the license season to come.

Boiled right down to brass tacks, the above means that no license plate will be issued by the state of Michigan for 1924 until a title, not an assigned title, is presented with the owner's application for registration, except on new cars purchased from a dealer within ten days of presentation of application.

Very respectfully,
Charles J. DeLand,
Secretary of State.

CALLS FOR REAL CHURCH SUPPORT

REV. LONG MAKES PLEA TO ALL CHRISTIAN FOLKS.

Compares Our Concern for Home and Schools With That We Show for Christ's Church.

Rev. Clarence W. Long of the First Congregational church of this city, has turned in to us a communication which is intended for the eyes of every reader of this paper. It contains some sound sense and a good deal of potent argument, and we take pleasure in presenting it to our readers. The communication follows:

"Can there be a community in the sense of using the term to mean common unity with seven different religious denominations in our midst?

"Is the Christian church, with its different branches, a help or a hindrance to unity?

"Would this, or any other organized section of people operating under one head with a prescribed constitution and by-laws be sufficient, with their civil government, to fulfill all the requirements of a community without the institution of the Christian church set in their midst?

"What I am trying to get at is to discover if the church is a necessity or a superfluity in community life.

"Would you feel just as well or better satisfied to live in a place where the Christian church is left out all together?

"Oh, you say, we need the church—we could not come as near the ideal of unity without it as with it. But there is no need of so many different denominations or branches. The cost of supporting them in time, men and money is too great a tax upon our resources.

"It does cost more to furnish and heat 700 houses, set 700 tables and maintain 700 families in Charlevoix and vicinity than it would cost to live together in one great apartment building and all eat at one table and be maintained as one family, but the difference in cost is no temptation to make our community life so common that there would be no chance for the expression of family character. The very fact that there are 700 homes is the strongest argument possible for the fullest community spirit.

The fact that there are seven different organized religious bodies in Charlevoix, in like manner, adds just that measure of multiplied interest to the possibility of perfect community life. While there are differences of opinion expressed in the several different religious organizations, such are necessary to fill the need of a complex doctrinal concept.

"Yes, there is some extra cost necessary to maintain seven different religious organizations, but is it not worth the cost in religious expression and life as it is worth the cost to maintain 700 homes for domestic expression and life, and is not the greater possible achievement worth the difference in cost of maintenance?

"The cost of maintaining seven religious organizations is not so great for a community of 4,000 people 8 months in the year and 10,000 for four months as it might at first appear to be. Compare this cost with the cost of expression of life and character in 700 separate homes or with the cost of common and high school education for this number of families. Do you want to put your children all together under one teacher and all huddle together into one room or into one building in order to save extra cost?

Do you consider the Christian church in its several organizations and departments of work an institution worthy of its influence and teaching to be placed alongside of the home and the schools or would you prefer to live in an organized section without the Christian church?

"If the community needs the church, then the church needs you and your support. If you consider the church an institution holding a place that is vital in order to have a real community, then stand up and be counted, measure up to your convictions and rally to the church with some organized body as you rally to the support of the home and school. Clarence W. Long."

We Are Overstocked in Many Lines

In many lines we bought heavy, with the consequence that unless we sacrifice in price we will be obliged to carry them over to another season. We do not intend to do this. The continued warm weather was against us. It has resulted in slow sales on winter wear. But this will not stop us from disposing of these winter garments. What are we going to do? Just cut the price to a point where you cannot possibly resist buying. And this cut in price will take place during the Christmas shopping period. We make a present to you of discount prices, you buy the merchandise for presents for Dad, the Boy, or some dear friend. Look carefully. HATCHERY NOW A BUSY PLACE troughs where they are scooped up and placed in the cans, ready to be taken to the planting grounds. The empty shreds of eggs that come out with them are collected in the trough by means of a fine screen and disposed of. If the individual egg is held up to the light, even now when the process of development has just begun, the tiny fishlet may be seen wriggling about inside, his eyes instead of his stomach (unlike the young of the human species) being the biggest part of him.

The spawn now maturing at the hatchery are not expected to become fish before spring, although it is likely, on account of the unusual warmth of the water which stimulates growth, that a good proportion of the eggs will hatch out in midwinter. Water temperature plays an important part in the hatchery business. On the day the Courier representative visited the plant (Monday) the thermometer showed between 42 and 43 degrees. Early maturing is not desirable but is one of the chances of the game. The yield of spawn has been exceptionally good this year. A five pound whitefish may be expected to produce anywhere from 50,000 or 75,000 to 100,000 eggs; an average trout, 45,000 or sometimes a quart—about 6,000 eggs being figured to a quart.

In the spring, the young fish are taken out by the tug Fulmar and planted at various spots in the lake found to be most favorable to their development and distribution. At this time the government fish cars begin their visits to the various inland waters and the outdoor end of the business commences in earnest.

At the present time the hatchery employs a force of twelve men—seven regular helpers and two temporary assistants, besides the three men who operate the pumps in eight hour shifts. Four of the men—Stewart, Crandall, Finucan and Tomerassen are detailed for the winter from the fish-car service, which is their regular job while the service is in operation, to assist at the hatchery. The present force also includes three men from the Northville station. Most of the painting and repair work around the plant is done in the summer time.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

The response last Sunday by attendance upon all the public meetings was gratifying, encouraging and a source of inspiration to the pastor and to every member of the congregation. The best work can only be done through co-operation. The pastor is anxious not only to see everyone present next Sunday who was present last Sunday, but also to see and greet all others, who for some reason were not present.

Judge Correll's Bible class filled two large sents last Sunday. Come. Fill the whole annex.

Mrs. Miller's class shows increasing interest. Plan to come and stay and help the work in this department if you belong there.

The church school is at 12:00 M. It is desired that children not attend the morning preaching service, but come to Sunday school. Come at the hour for Sunday school and not through early arrival by loud talk and play in the vestibule or basement, cause distraction from the meeting in the main auditorium.

The Y. P. S. C. E. meets for a devotional meeting and Bible study at 6:00 p. m.

Sunday beginning at 7:00 p. m. the church has provided a second devotional service and the pastor prepares and preaches a sermon. This sermon is prepared and preached for the people, but unless the people are present, it falls upon empty seats. The evening congregation is slowly increasing, but there ought to be more interest taken in this service.

We are glad that the Intermediate Boys and Girls have been willing to make up a choir to help with the music. This is as it should be. Keep up the good work.

Thursday, 7:30 p. m. The church is called together for prayer, Bible study and fellowship. The need of attendance upon this service is great.

On Sunday, December 23, we are arranging to observe Christmas with a church program in the morning, enriched with special music and in the evening the young people will provide the program at the usual hour for evening worship.

A fair attendance at Ironton last Sunday at 2:30 p. m. We hope to see more present this Sunday.

Prayer meeting Thursday at 7:30 p. m. in the church. Read Mark 10. Bring your Bibles. We want to read the Bible in the prayer room together.

This Sunday at 10:30 a. m., worship. Sermon by the pastor, subject "The Influence of Jesus' Touch." Hear this message.

Sunday school. Lesson title: "World Wide Missions." Study Paul's aim and method in getting the gospel to the known world.

3:00 p. m. Junior League. The Juniors will support a boy in India. Their special missionary project will educate this boy. Juniors are asked to rally at their meeting and hear about it.

6:00 p. m. Epworth League. Splendid bunch in attendance last Sunday. Follow the sentiment of last Sunday's theme, "Ye Are Co-Laborers With Him."

Evening worship. The pastor's sermon will be from the subject, "Room for the Saviour." "Swing the heart's door widely open, bid Him enter while ye may."

The Sunday school Christmas exercises will be rendered on Sunday night, the 23rd. The service is entitled, "The Cradle of Bethlehem."

Join the crowd. Become a member of the Christmas Savings Club at the State Bank.—Adv. 49tf.

AT THE MOVIES

The latest William Fox production starring Charles Jonea is "Snow-drift," shown at the Palace Theatre, Tuesday, December 18th. This story by James B. Hendryx, is an adventurous tale of the great Northwest and is filled with exciting action along the Mackenzie River.

The author is well known for his romantic tales of the land of the strong cold, including "The Promise," "The Gold Girl," "The Gun Brand" and "Connie Morgan in Alaska." The supporting cast includes Irene Rich, Dorothy Manners, G. Raymond Nye, Colin Chase, Evelyn Selbie, Lola Encinos and Lee Shumway.

Page by page in every way it follows the book to the letter.

This Cineastic expression aptly describes the fidelity with which Hobart Henley followed the printed version of Jack London's famous story, "The Abysmal Brute," which opens at Palace Theatre on Saturday night with Reginald Denny as the star. Transcribing the book to the screen exactly as it was set forth in the great author's work, this celluloid transplantation of one of the most appealing stories ever conceived, proves far more entrancing on the screen than it did in binding. The broad scope of the camera enhances the story with scenic value, plus a personality registered on the screen by Denny, far in excess of the written expression of even such a great author as Jack London.

Counties, who also declare the heavy busses damage the highways excessively.

Friends of the highway bus idea contend that the remedy for any damage done roads by bus operation lies either in higher taxation of such busses or the construction of roads able to bear the traffic of heavy busses. They say that the bus is a convenience, as much a necessity to towns served as are trolley cars, and point to the fact that in the beginning the railroads were against the establishment of interurban trolley service, but that in later years the railroads found them of such value in relieving them of the unprofitable short haul that many railroads have built trolley lines themselves.

Restrictions of a public utility to serve private interests has been so often tried in this country and so often decisively denied that the eventual outcome of this case should not be hard to predict.

IMPROVED ROADS

Smooth Surface Needed for Concrete Highways

If we are going to construct a concrete surface for our primary roads, it is very important that the surface of the concrete should be made smooth. Not only does this smoothness add to the comfort of the traffic, but it is also a factor in the lasting quality of the road surface. The ordinary layman very seldom thinks of the impact as the load passes over the rough road. If the pavement is rough the impact may be serious. Recent experiments by the United States bureau of roads have given us data concerning this impact, which are very interesting.

For instance, if truck wheels drop one inch when traveling at a speed of 10 miles an hour, and if the wheel load is 8,000 pounds, they will deliver a blow to the pavement of 56,000 pounds, or seven times as much as the load of the wheel. Under the same load, the pneumatic tired wheels deliver an impact equivalent to 14,000 pounds.

Often this impact is not caused by rough pavement but by a defective wheel, or a small obstruction dropped on the road surface, or if large skid chains are used. The wheel strikes the obstruction, rises over it, and falls, delivering an impact. Or, if the solid rubber tire is defective, each revolution of the wheel delivers an impact to the pavement.

It may be that with our heavy truck traffic, the cement surfacing will be stressed to an extreme extent by this impact on account of this rough surface or defective wheel. The surface cracks and breaks, and repairs are necessary.

The surface of the concrete for our roads can be made smooth if cars is taken in surfacing the same, and the inspectors should see to it that this surfacing is rightly done.—E. B. House, Colorado Agricultural College.

Jacks Protect Highways

From Overloaded Trucks

Weighting jacks with which the load carried by a heavy truck may be ascertained by road police are helping Maryland protect its new state roads from damage by overweight vehicles. Most roads are constructed to withstand a moving load of ten tons. Heavier loads break down the sub-grade and start ruts, the police assert.

Each weighing machine consists of a screwjack operating in an oil-filled cylinder. When four of these jacks are placed under the suspected truck, lifting it clear of the ground, its weight is transferred to the oil cylinders and can be read directly on the pressure gauges. If the truck is found to weigh more than ten tons, the excess material is unloaded by the roadside. The jacks are of aluminum alloy, weighing only 40 pounds each, so that the inspectors can carry them about in a light car.

State officials estimate that this supervision reduced overloading 75 per cent within 30 days. California has also recently passed a law halting the weight of motor trucks, and road officials and taxpayers are seeking to reduce the maximum permissible weight below the limit now set—30,000 pounds gross weight for four-wheeled trucks, and 40,000 pounds for six-wheeled vehicles, providing the axles are at least 60 inches apart, and there are not more than 800 pounds on each inch of rubber tire width.—Popular Science Monthly.

Iron Ore Quite Useful in Road Construction

Iron ore, found in northwestern Louisiana, has proven of great value in road building in that state and, in some localities where it has been used, has effected a saving of $2,000 to $3,000 a mile in the cost of construction. Highway engineers in Louisiana have been using the ore as a binder instead of sand and clay and have found it far superior to that material in many instances. During 1922 the Louisiana state highway department completed 350 miles of new roads. Most of this mileage consists of gravel. The remainder consists of roads built of shells, sheet asphalt or bitulith. The 1023 program includes a larger amount of asphaltic construction.

Growing Popularity of Autos Shows Road Needs

With the growing popularity of the automobile, there has come a parallel increase in the need of building up the highways. Of course, it is not to be done within a few years. Many sections of the Old World have excellent highways, but they have been built for centuries. But certainly we should begin now to lay the foundation of a great highway system.

Many Motor Vehicles.

According to figures compiled by the bureau of public roads in Washington, there are 12,238,275 motor vehicles in the United States. The report shows 10,690,112 private passenger cars, 40,450 taxicabs, busses and cars for hire, 182,714 motorcycles and 29,328 tractors.

Illinois State Roads.

The Illinois highway commission is working toward the completion of 1,000 miles of state paved road, or approximately enough to give an ardent tourist a run for his money.

BURGLARS LOOT FOUND IN SWAMP

Echo of Recent Bank Robbery at Kalkaska

The Kalkaska State Bank received word on Monday of last week that the safety deposit boxes stolen from the bank a year ago in October, had been found in the woods 18 miles from West Branch in Ogemaw county.

Hunters stumbled on the pile of boxes where the robbers had dumped them after breaking them open. Mr. Bloomer, manager of the bank, trailed the robbers to just about the place where the boxes were found, and where the trail was lost one box was found unopened, No. 19, but as there was a 19 stolen from two cases, it is not known yet whose box it is. The owners of neither 19 had reported a serious loss at the time of the robbery.

The box is being mailed to the bank by Ogemaw county officers.

THE CHRISTMAS PICNIC

By Mary Graham Bonner

THE young people were going to give a Christmas picnic on the day after Christmas. They had all decided that it would be no end of fun to take their skates and have a long day of skating, and to have their dinner out of doors.

They felt it would be particularly good for them, too, to get away from the sweets and holiday food they would constantly be nibbling at if they were home.

So on the day after Christmas they went on the Christmas picnic and skating party.

They all had so much enthusiasm. Everyone was going to take part. Everyone was going to help and assist and work.

But when it came time for dinner everyone seemed hungry but helpless, and somehow the cold seemed to have glowed in their cheeks and hearts as they skated, but to have numbed them as the work of the picnic loomed in view.

The gay and debonaire young man who called himself the life of the party and who had come garbed in knickerbockers and sport sweater was suddenly quiet. He said he was not much good at making a fire. Instead, he seemed to admire himself and his handsome legs and to ignore the opening of the baskets. To be sure, he looked well and his attitude said quite plainly:

"The man who invented knickerbockers, without a doubt had good looking legs himself, and perhaps an enemy with particularly ugly ones, but he certainly didn't get the better of me."

But Jerry, who was always a good fire builder and upon whom the work always rested, despite previous protests, that it would not this time, was the one now who built the fire.

And the rest of the typical picnic people did the usual things. There was the man who talked about building the fire so as to keep the smoke from blowing in the faces of everyone present.

There was the girl who spoke from time to time in alarmed, sudden sentences, wondering in turn if the salt, pepper, bacon, sugar, milk or coffee had been forgotten.

There was the girl who was obviously helpless.

There was the girl who kept asking what she could do to help, who would have received any suggestions with a very bad grace.

And there was Milly, who really nipped the packages and cooked the bacon and saw that everyone had enough to eat.

The man who said most about not being hungry inquired with more than an academic interest as to what the filling of the sandwiches might be.

And there was the man present who spoke from time to time of the good things that could have been brought if only he had thought of them sooner.

But Jerry and Milly saw that the picnic was a real picnic, while the others gave their eating services.

And after the picnic was over and Jerry was helping Milly as she washed off the dishes in the boiling water, Jerry had saved in the old big kettle, he said:

"Milly, you're the most unselfish girl I've ever known. Different from everyone else. I've always thought so. And don't you think we'd make a good team—not only on a picnic but through life?"

And Milly answered:

"That's very much the way I've thought about you, Jerry."

So that, you see, Milly and Jerry weren't so much elated at that picnic as you might have thought. In fact, they had a very merry Christmas picnic!

At the Christmas Party.
The wise hostess wishes to prevent her young guests from pairing off and remaining with their escorts the entire evening. To change partners in a novel and entertaining way in the course of the evening, have ready a circle of green cardboard divided into as many sections as there are girls present. Write a girl's name in each division. Now cut out a large red pasteboard star, with a white arrow painted on one of the points, and fasten this star to the center of the cardboard circle by means of a large pin. Each boy in turn, comes up and spins the star, and the maiden whose name is indicated when the white arrow comes to rest is accorded him as partner. Of course, if a girl's name has already been chosen the boy must spin again. This spinning star will result in much mirth for the young people.

SAFE HIGHWAYS TO BE GOAL OF POLICE LEADER

FLYING SQUADRON OF MOTORCYCLE OFFICERS TO CLEAN UP RECKLESS DRIVERS.

SOME CHANGE IN EQUIPMENT

Commissioner Harry H. Jackson of the Department of Public Safety, in announcing his plans for the further improvement of the department, has decided to make the uniformed branch of the Michigan State Police a separate division and to give especial attention to highway matters. He finds that the improved roads of the state have become unsafe in many sections because of the increase in reckless and illegal driving.

"The uniformed force of the department, will be under one head," states Commissioner Jackson, "and will function as a separate part of the department. A very important part of its work will have to do with highway travel. There is need of strict repressive measures to make Michigan highways safe for the general public, and it is probable that before warm weather next year there will be a 'flying squadron' in being which will be under the command of one officer and will be moved from one part of the state to another to handle this highway work effectively. Naturally, the places where accidents are most frequent and speeding most dangerous will be cleaned up first. This squadron will co-operate with sheriffs and other local officers and welcome their advice."

Not Seeking Arrests.

"In dealing with violators of the highway laws, the point cannot be stressed too strongly that the policy will not be to make a great number of arrests for technical violations, but rather to warn and advise drivers and to resort to arrests only to the extent that such action is necessary to check recklessness, carelessness and disregard of the law and of the rights and safety of others."

"It is my opinion that the detachment posts now established for the uniformed men of the Michigan State Police should be retained and, perhaps, other posts added if the circumstances warrant. These posts serve a useful function in that they furnish a point from which men may be summoned in any emergency. Peace officers in the districts in which they are located know where these posts are and know that they can communicate with them when they require assistance."

Aid in Emergencies.

"In such unusual cases as sometimes develop, where a community whose police officers are sufficient in number to handle any ordinary situation, finds a condition suddenly created, necessitating the aid of a state force in order to maintain order and protect life and property, the Michigan State Police will, I am sure, always be equipped and ready for the duty."

"Conditions under which the Michigan State Police work have minimized the number of cases in which horses are required. However, it is not the present policy of the department to do away with horses entirely. There are occasions in which mounted men are able to do far better work than men on foot or on motorcycles."

"Some changes in the uniform and equipment of the State Police are under consideration. It is probable that for ordinary duty the men will not carry the large revolvers on army belts which are now regulation. This does not mean that the officers will be unarmed or that they will not use the heavier weapon when on duty requiring such equipment, such as night duty and other emergencies when dealing with persons who may be expected to shoot in resisting arrest."

TROOPER WINS PRAISE

Trooper Levi Hutton of the West Virginia State Police was commended recently by his superior officer, Colonel Jackson Arnold, for his heroism in carrying an injured hunter, James Lockhart, for a distance of ten miles to the lookout station of Rindra Hamrick on Turkey Mountain, thus saving the man's life.

Attractions for the coming week

SATURDAY and SUNDAY, DEC. 15-16.

A Jack London story starring Reginald Denny of the "Leather Pushers" fame, in "The Abysmal Brute," a dynamic love drama of a real man and a real woman. Here you have Denny in the greatest picture in which he ever appeared. A great story and a greater picture. One of America's greatest authors, Jack London, traveler and student of life, wrote this latest screen triumph. A colorful, gripping story that is nothing short of sensational—nothing like it ever in pictures before. Your whole family should see this big, clean, inspiring story of real men and women. Added attraction, Larry Semon in a two reel comedy, "The Fall Guy."

TUESDAY, DECEMBER 18.

Wm. Fox presents Charles (Buck) Jones in "Snow-drift," a drama of flaming hearts in the frozen north. A story of a glorious fight for life in the Yukon gold fields. A virile story of the great northwest, from the novel by James B. Hendryx. Also a Larry Semon two-reel comedy, "The Bakery."

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 19.

Wm. Fox presents William Farnum in "Brass Commandments," with Wanda Hawley, Claire Adams and other stars. This picture sizzles with action, containing exhibitions of dazzling riding, clever shooting, and a whirlwind fight that furnishes a strong dramatic climax. One of Farnum's best pictures. And the Larry Semon comedy, "The Bakery."

Moved by Ald. Bridge, seconded by Ald. Hallett, that the bills be allowed and Mayor and Clerk authorized to issue orders for same. Motion carried by the following aye and nay vote: Ayes, Alds. Bridge, Hallett, Livingston, Marshall and Partridge. Nays, none.

Moved by Ald. Bridge, seconded by Ald. Marshall, that a communication from Oluf Nordrum, relative to sewers and sanitation, be accepted and spread at length on the proceedings of the council. Motion carried. December 8, 1923.

Mr. H. D. Marshall, Charlevoix, Mich.
Dear Sir—Just received the "Courier" for December 5th and note resolution in the council proceedings relative to sewers and sanitation.

Now it is evident that 105 Park avenue was missed somehow as I do not find my name listed. Notwithstanding this, I deem it best to fall in line with the order and I wish you would at your very earliest convenience take charge of connecting 105 with Park avenue sewer. I think you made an inspection of our sewer once and that, at that time, it was in good order and I never felt as though I cared to go to the expense unless my neighbors did likewise. I now find that 107 is listed and therefore I wish to be included as it has to be done anyway.

Will you kindly advise about what this is going to cost. I would be pleased to have you make an estimate of cost, I do not expect to hold you down to the exact figure.

Shall be pleased to hear from you at an early date.

Very truly yours,
Oluf Nordrum,
1409 No. Avers Ave., Chicago.

On motion of Ald. Marshall, seconded by Ald. Hallett, the council adjourned.
Chas. H. Lamphear, City Clerk.

MISS STEWART WRITES TO US FROM MARYLAND

Outlines a Few Of Her Local Problems In New Field

The Courier is in receipt of a letter from Miss May L. Stewart, former popular school commissioner of Charlevoix county, who is now connected with the Garrett county, Md., Board of Education with headquarters at Oakland, in which she tenders greetings to her Charlevoix county friends and sketches a little bit of her daily routine. We quote from the letter as follows:

"I am in the midst of all sorts of school problems, trying my best to stick to the main problem and not be side-tracked by details, the main problem being now to improve the quality of instruction. I have sixty-five teachers in my supervisory unit and I visit them from three to eight times per year—at the rate I have started out—and we plan on seven half days to be devoted to teachers' meetings. Our chief instructional objectives are improvement in rate and comprehension in silent reading and in arithmetic reasoning. This county is quite a little bit behind the standard in both these subjects and you know that is pretty much of a whip to arouse the ambition of the lackadaisical.

"I drive around among the mountains in a little Chevrolet coup admiring the scenery—before the leaves fell, and now when I get off the state road, wondering whether I shall ever get thru the mud. We go down hill in first instead of using the foot-brake—that is we are supposed to. I had the habit of using the foot-brake and have been taken to task for wearing out a brake lining in three months. I thought I had been truly careful but the brake lining was supposed to last a year. You see I am learning.

Best wishes to the Courier and all Charlevoix county friends.
Sincerely yours,
May L. Stewart"

PLANTED DEAD PART-RIDGE IN HIS AUTO

Bill Spayde Got Pinched for Another Person's Offense.

Bill Spayde of this city had a mean trick played on him last Sunday. While at Petoskey with a party of friends, somebody stuffed a dead partridge into the side pocket of Bill's tonneau door where it was afterwards discovered and reported to the police, who pinched Bill and brought him to Charlevoix, where he had to spend Sunday night in the coop.

Next day, Clinton Howe, the real culprit, who, it is alleged, had shot the bird out near Twin Lakes, was roped in and Bill was set free, while Clinton got fined.

Shows how you can get in Dutch sometimes without knowing it in these parlous days. It wasn't really intentional, though, as Howe claims according to Sheriff Novak, he stuffed the bird into the car pocket for safe keeping and meant to get it again but forgot it.

BIG FREIGHTER TIES UP TO WILBUR DOCK

J. B. John, Cement Boat—Once An Ocean Craft, Will Winter Here

The big gray boat tied up at the Wilbur dock is the J. B. John, of Michigan City, belonging to the Petoskey Transportation Company, which is affiliated with the Petoskey Portland Cement Co., and is being used by them as a cement carrier and general cargo boat.

The J. B. John was originally the Westoil, her name having been changed to that of the company's manager and famous cement expert this spring. She is an all-steel boat of 2,172 tons, originally built for ocean traffic at Wallsend, England, and was operated several years prior to her arrival on the Great Lakes as a cargo boat between New York City and Genoa, Italy. She is equipped with regular ocean-going tackle for handling cargo.

The big freighter arrived in the harbor Friday and will lay up here for the winter in the position she now occupies. George Lusk was at work Monday morning burying the shore end of a huge chain cable in a concrete-filled pit, located just back of the Sugar Bowl some fifty feet from the edge of the dock. This cable will hold the big vessel to her moorings in safely throughout the severest blows of the late fall and spring.

The John's captain, F. P. Russell of New York City will be located here and at Petoskey for the greater part of the winter. Frank Coatta, Sr., of this city is cook on the John.

WELL-KNOWN COACH PROVES TOP-NOTCH

Wins Chief Honors on Western State's All-Time Team.

Leo Redmond, football coach at Harbor Springs, was given top honors on the all-time football team of Western State Normal picked in the Kalamazoo Gazette this week.

"Center goes easily to 'Tiny' Redmond, the 290 pound captain of last year," says the Gazette. "Few local-followers of the game would doubt that he would look good on any gridiron and he was recognized as one of the outstanding pivot men in the country. Phenomenally active for so big a man, he strengthened Normal's whole line from tackle to tackle on defense and frequently went outside the wings to stop runners and intercept forward-passes. On his own kicks he frequently got down the field to make the tackle."

Oscar Johnson of Cadillac, who has another year at Kalamazoo, was named a tackle on the all-time team.

WYERS VS. LOEB CASE DISMISSED

Jury Finds No Cause of Action in the Matter.

In the case of Mary J. Wyers vs. Albert H. Loeb, et al., recently heard at court the case was dismissed with a verdict of no cause of action; the evidence showing that Mrs. Wyers had not certain times received sums of money which in the opinion of the jury were a full and adequate compensation for the injury sustained.

This case arose from an accident which occurred some two years ago when, it will be remembered, a car driven by Richard Loeb, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Loeb, struck and demolished a buggy in which Mrs. Wyers, her daughter, Mrs. O'Brien and one other person were riding. J. M. Harris and Lisle Shanahan, were attorneys for the plaintiff and the firm of Clink & Williams for the defendants.

SUPT. HAMILTON BELIEVES IN PUBLIC RECOGNITION

Suggests People Show Appreciation Of Good Work By Banquet Or Reception

A communication has reached us from the Supt. of Schools Charles H. Hamilton with the request that it be published in this week's issue. We reproduce it herewith:

"Charlevoix basket-ball fans will be pained to hear that all the improvements that can be made have, or are being made in the rink for the comfort of the team and spectators during the games of the coming season."

As has been done several times in former years, the rink so kindly loaned by Captain John Roen has been put up so as, to shield the building from the cold north breeze off the lake. All the windows have been fixed, window guards put on and the holes along the wall have been plugged. The seats will be covered with heavy wrapping paper to shut off the draft coming from the ground.

Those who attended the game the other night when the local team defeated Boyne Falls, 41 to 8, will testify to the fact that the place is the most comfortable that it has been in years.

Now folks, all that can be done by the school people has been done. We all realize that the conditions, at best, are not what could be desired, but—under those conditions, Charlevoix has developed and is developing some of the strongest teams in the north.

At the present time, over forty boys are receiving instructions in the fundamentals of basket-ball and along with it being kept in association with older boys and men, whose example is the best that can be expected of anyone. Your boy who gets into this red-blooded game is not the cigarette smoker and corner loafer. I believe that our parents are beginning to see the need of training for the physical side of life and this full appreciation cannot come too soon.

Just one word as to the Charlevoix students. Barring the one or two per cent who never can be made into real men and real women, because they lack the native elements, Charlevoix students are the cleanest bunch of students in the north country. The writer was in one of our neighboring cities last week. Posted in the assembly room is their list of tardy cases for last month. The number is one hundred eleven. Our average month is three tardy marks. I believe that we should not have any. That is one type of comparison. I realize that there have been cases of infractions of social rules, but let me say this: the school cannot do the work of the home nor the work of the church. I believe that the Christian churches are doing their best and that 95 per cent of the homes are attempting to do their part, in my opinion, most of the cases we have had are cases where some parent has fallen down on the job, either thinking that their Johnnie or Willie is so good that he cannot do wrong or down-right neglect of parental duty.

I wish to see Charlevoix schools the best possible and have no apology to offer for the part I have attempted to play to make them so. I commend heartily the work of our various (Continued on Page Six)

Wherever there is sickness,
May Santa Claus bring health;
Wherever there is poverty,
May Santa Claus bring wealth;
Wherever one is weeping,
May tears to smiles give way;
Wherever sadness hovers,
May joy come Christmas day.

Players.

The C. H. S. football team, athletic manager and coach wish to express their appreciation of the handsome way in which the business men of the city came to their aid this fall in the matter of sweaters for the team.

One hundred and twenty-five dollars is now pledged for this purpose and represents the good-will and faith of a majority of the business people in Charlevoix's winning team which they have helped to make such by their loyal support. Almost to a man, they responded liberally to the solicitations of the team's representative, Mr. F. H. Austin, and only in one or two instances was the appeal met by rebuff.

The names of the contributors who came across like good scouts and helped to make the team happy are as follows:

Our Christmas Thought

Seven more days and the Courier commences the thirty-second year of its existence as a newspaper. Founded by a son of the notorious King Strang, back in the days when Charlevoix was merely a frontier marker on the fringe of civilization, it has since that time, by a strange anomaly, stood consistently for the best things in our common civic and social life.

Standing on the brink of a new year, filled with its innumerable possibilities and opportunities, we pause a moment to acknowledge the debt of gratitude we owe to our subscribers for their faithful support through the long years that we have endeavored to keep the torch of community pride and enthusiasm burning brightly, through the honest description of events and occurrences, rewarding merit with a word of praise and unsparringly denouncing the anti-social acts that have tended to work injury to our social and political fabric.

Without the kindly support of the two thousand families and individuals whose names appear on our mailing list, our contribution to the prosperity and well-being of Charlevoix, meagre as that contribution is, would not have been possible. In tendering our sincere thanks for this support and expressing our earnest wish that the year, 1924, may bring happiness, comfort and well-being to our readers, we bespeak for ourselves that same confidence and assistance on their part which we have long cherished as our most highly-prized possession and asset.

an award to the individual players and are of the same grade as those in use by the players of the University of Michigan. The boys felt that they would like to have the best sweaters obtainable, even if they had to put their own money in with the fund contributed, but that, possibly, will not be necessary in view of the very gratifying results of the drive.

Two Weeks The Limit

Summer tourists can no longer use Michigan state tourist parks as all-season camping places, the Michigan conservation commission has decided. During the past season nearly every park had its all-season campers persons who came early, picked permanent tent-cottages and proceeded to enjoy the best the camp afforded. The board has placed a limit of two weeks as the time any camper may remain at any park at any one visit. No charge is made for use of any of the camps or camp equipment.

Over To The Palace

This treat is on the merchants of Charlevoix, with the kindly assistance of Lou Moon and is for the kiddies of Charlevoix. Christmas afternoon is the time, at 2:30 o'clock. The Palace Theatre is the place.

There will first be a free movie show and then a present will be given to each child in the room. Hey, kids! C'mon! We're goin' to have a real time.

And sh-h-h-h-h, but we heard Santa Claus was goin' to be there in person to give out the presents. The Commercial Association had him on the radio last night and the kindly old saint said he would go right out to the barn and give Donner and Blitzen an extra feed so that they would be in good condition for an early start so he would have time to talk with the folks and find out what the children wanted most for Christmas.

ALUMNI TUSSLE WITH VARSITY

BIG BASKET BALL GAME SLATED FOR FRIDAY.

Will be Held in Evening at Newly Repaired Rink—Startling and Spectacular.

Many of the alumni from the Charlevoix high school, who have been attending the U. of M. and other colleges are home for the Christmas vacation and many more will be here before Friday night.

In order that they may not find the old town too dead and also to show what C. H. S. can do nowadays, a big basket ball game has been arranged between the alumni and the local varsity men.

On the opposing team will be players who have represented the State Normal at Ypsilanti, one who has been an all-state guard and those who have starred on our varsity team in recent years along with two drafted men. They will attempt to make you marvel at their dexterity.

The facilities for accommodating the crowd are much more favorable this year than they have been during the past. The lighting has been improved, the heating system is functioning properly and many repairs have been made to shut out the seamen and the wild atmosphere. Really the change is quite commendable and comfort is assured the visitor as he unconsciously gazes with mouth open wide at the spectacular plays pulled off by the two crack teams.

This game will be a genuine one. The management is featuring it as one of the best and most exciting games of the season. You cannot afford to miss it if you live in Charlevoix or the surrounding community.

Come and bring your friend to the game, Friday evening, December 21, 1923. Be sure and keep the date open. Last game this year. It is the talk of the town.

DOCTORS HOT AFTER GOITRE

PLAN TO RUN GREAT LAKES SCOURGE TO EARTH

Addition Of Proper Percentage Of Iodide To Drinking Water Seems Only Solution

Physicians in various parts of Michigan, especially in the northern peninsula where the ravages of goitre seem to be greater than in other portions of the so-called belt, are getting together with a view of discussing the problem of this scourge which is doing so much towards lowering the vitality of our people and of providing some general remedy for the conditions that foster its growth.

It is believed that every citizen of Charlevoix will take an interest in this campaign of prevention when it is understood that more than 5 per cent of the school children of this city and area surrounding and a much larger per cent of young girls have goitre. It is much more common in females than in males, in the proportion sometimes as high as 40 females to one male. Citizens will be interested to know that the use of iodine in drinking water will prevent goitre and will cure many cases which have already started in children. It is possible to get this iodine into the system either through the use of tablets or have it put directly into the city mains.

Goitre is a swelling of the neck found throughout the highland and mountainous regions of the world. It is found in the Himalayas, Alps, Andes, Pyrenees, Rockies, Alleghenies and midlands of England in the neighborhood of Derby, where it is so frequent, it is called "Derbyshire Neck." In the mountainous districts of Switzerland and Italy it is so common that in some of the districts three out of four persons have goitre. It also affects animals. Horses, dogs, sheep and fish are affected by goitre. According to McCullom, in the Yellow Stone a million young pigs as well as lambs, calves and colts have died each year from acute goitre. Salmon and trout suffer from it.

This swelling of the neck was not regarded very seriously until it was found that goitrous children sometimes became dwarfish in stature and feeble-minded. In Switzerland for instance, 1900 recruits are discarded each year from the Swiss army because of goitre. In the Swiss Alps in the neighborhood where goitre is very common, the Cretins with goitre that is feeble-minded children with goitre, have so increased that they now number more than 50,000 and fill the Swiss asylums for feeble minded children. A Swiss commission has been appointed, and the results of this commission's deliberations and findings agree with the findings of authorities in other countries, that goitre—simple goitre—is caused by a low iodine content in the drinking water. They also find that the quantity of iodine required is exceedingly small. In the United States a study of goitre by McClendon of the University of Minneapolis shows that the country may be divided into what is known as goitre belts running across the county from east to west. The southern and eastern sea coast has little or no goitre.

MY OLD BELIEF

I used to watch for Santa Claus
With childish faith sublime,
And listen in the snowy night
To hear his sleigh-bells chime.
Beside the door on Christmas Eve
I put a truss of hay,
To feed the prancing, dancing steeds
That sped him on his way.

If children of a larger growth
Could have a Christmas-tree
From Father Time, one gift alone
Would be enough for me—
Let others take the gems and gold,
And trifles light and vain,
But give me back my old belief
In Santa Claus again!

HERE FOR STUDENT ROOKIES

MAJOR FRANKLIN APPOINTS
CAMP DEPUTIES

Volunteer Training Camp At Custer Offers Some Exceptional Advantages

Major John F. Franklin of the U. S. Army was in the city on Wednesday arranging to organize Charlevoix county in support of the volunteer student army training camp, to be held at Camp Custer during the months of July and August.

Each county in each state of the union will have its county chairman and chairmen in each city, town and township, examining officer and other committeemen who will endeavor to acquaint the people of each community with the desirability of maintaining the volunteer student training camps.

Captain Frank H. Wilkinson, U. S. R., has accepted the chairmanship for Charlevoix county and will soon appoint his city, village and other chairmen and these in turn will appoint their committees. Dr. Wilkinson has selected Dr. F. F. McMillan,

ONE WEAK SPOT

Many Charlevoix People Have a Weak Part and Too Often It's the Back.

Many people have a weak spot. Too often it's a bad back. Twinges follow every sudden twist. Dull aching keeps up, day and night. Backache is often from weak kidneys.

In such case a kidney medicine is needed.

Doan's Kidney Pills are for weak kidneys.

For backache and urinary ills.

Charlevoix people recommend the remedy. Ask your neighbor.

Mrs. Frank Smith, 307 May St., Charlevoix, says: "My kidneys were weak and irregular and there was a dull ache in my back. Doan's Kidney Pills were recommended to me and I got a few boxes at Hines & Co.'s Drug Store, and they cured me completely."

Price 60c at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Pills—the same that Mrs. Smith had. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

Charlevoix and Capt. Guy Conkle of Boyne City, and Major Hugh Dieken of East Jordan, officers of the Reserve Corps, who will be asked to act as medical examiners in their respective districts. It is also likely that Supt. of Schools, Charles Hamilton will be asked to assist in the work of securing recruits for the camp.

The first season of the camp, held between the dates of August 1st and 30th of this year, met with signal success and many who attended as students expressed their satisfaction at the treatment they were accorded and the benefits they derived. Reference to the files of this paper for July 6, 1923, will discover an article under the caption "This Vacation Is Free Of Charge" which explains the nature and purpose of the camp in detail.

The camp next year will be open to young men between the ages of eighteen and twenty-three and presents a very attractive opportunity to secure a vacation with all expenses paid and receive at the same time valuable instruction and training.

This year the fare of the student was paid both ways up to five cents a mile and he was furnished, board and bed, uniform and equipment at no expense whatever to himself. After drill hours, he had an opportunity to indulge in athletics and games under skilled and experienced supervision and in the evenings attend interesting lectures or a movie show. The government spent about $200.00 per man each month of his stay in camp and gave wonderful value in the point of building up the student's physique, teaching him to think and act quickly and work cooperatively with his fellows.

Entrance at the camp does not entail any further service, either actively or as a reserve, on the part of the student. It is simply an opportunity offered by the government for the study of military tactics and operations. However, three years consecutive attendance at the camp entitles one to try for a second lieutenancy in the Reserve Corps thru the medium of examinations in the work covered during the period in question.

The meals are excellent at the camp and other conditions most favorable for the enjoyment of a vacation thus spent by those who, possibly, could not afford to take such a vacation at their own expense.

The course of instruction at the camp is divided into four sections, to take care of four different grades of students: the red, or beginner's course, for such men as have had no previous military experience whatever; the advanced course, for men who have had some military experience, but not enough to qualify them for student non-commissioned officers; the white course: for men sufficiently experienced to hold the ranks of student corporal and sergeant and the blue course: where men will be accepted who have been officers in the army, are members of the reserve corps, cadet officers at recognized military institutions, or have sufficient experience to hold the grade of student instructors.

Anyone desiring further information or application blanks should apply to Dr. Frank H. Wilkinson whom Major Franklin has been appointed to look after these matters locally.

From Charlevoix, Major Franklin goes to Bellaire and Traverse City to continue his work in other counties. Major Franklin in an infantry officer in charge of the organized reserves in the first Michigan district.

OUR FINE WEATHER IS DUPLICATED

Young Louie See Says Oregon Can Match It.

A letter recently received by the Courier from Louis E. See, son of Charles E. See of this city, who is associated with his uncle, L. S. See in business at Warm Springs, Oregon, is dated December 8, 1923, and says in part:

"We are having wonderful fall weather this year and just last night got our first fall of snow which was very light.

"We will probably have about two months now of rain and snow and will then look for nice weather, so it will only be a short time until we can go out with a fly rod and haul in the big ones. We boast of as good trout fishing here as any place in the state and it is real sport."

Seems as though our unusual weather in Charlevoix territory is no exception to what other sections of the country have been enjoying this fall. Hope it doesn't mean that winter is going to hang on as long as it did last year, though.

Old Settler Is Dead

Paul Crouterfield, 72 years of age, died at six o'clock Friday morning at his farm home one-half mile east of Horton Bay.

Mr. Crouterfield was one of the old settlers of Charlevoix county. He is survived by his wife, four sons, William, Paul and Fred of Boyne City and Charles who resides in Bay township; four daughters, Mrs. P. H. Kaler of Portland, Oregon, Mrs. Harley Weaver of Manton, Mrs. Henry Erfourth of Boyne City and Miss Mary Crouterfield who lives at home.

Edson Given Contract

L. P. Edson, of Grand Rapids, was the successful bidder for the contract to construct the concrete roadway in Mackinaw City next spring. The road inside the village limits will be widened six feet, the village paying this cost.

Mr. Edson was the contractor, who handled the gravel road construction south of Sprick's corners, on M-11.

TRIES TO KILL

EMMETT SHERIFF

Moonshiner Draws Gun on Officers During a Raid

A Grand Rapids Press report says:

"The fact that rim fire shells had been placed in a center fire, 32 revolver, perhaps saved the life of Harry Pokriefke, Emmett county sheriff recently appointed through the tragic death of Will S. Purple, who was killed in gun play a few months ago.

"Late Saturday night, December 8, Sheriff Pokriefke, armed with a search warrant and accompanied by Undersheriff Ralph Walker of Levering and Deputies Sheriff James Black and L. L. Thomas of Petoskey, J. F. Keiser, Harbor Springs, Louis Newman, Alanson, and Henry Brutus, raided the William Donnelly home three miles northeast of Petoskey, where they are alleged to have secured evidences of illegal liquor traffic, it is reported.

"Upon entering the house, the sheriff said, they found themselves confronted by Donnelly armed with revolver, as he leveled the gun at Pokriefke, the hammer clicked twice, said the sheriff. Examination of the Donnelly revolver revealed the fact that rim fire shells had been placed in a center fire gun. Names of those in the Donnelly home at the time of the raid have not yet been made public, but the list is said to contain prominent Charlevoix, Harbor Springs and Petoskey residents."

Yes, yes, funny aint it. But we are puzzled as to the identity of the "prominent" Charlevoix residents.

Deputy Great Commander Will Visit Us Again in May

Mrs. Janet Branch, deputy great commander of the L. O. T. M., was honor guest at a six o'clock dinner given by the ladies of White Rose Hive on Tuesday evening last.

Seventy ladies were in attendance and partook of a bounteous repast. Mrs. Josephine Smith of Rettil, Washington, one of our oldest Macabee ladies, who is visiting her sons, Ava and Perry Smith, was with the members of the local Hive again for the first time in 15 years.

Twelve new members were initiated into the order during the evening and plans for the Charlevoix county association meeting were discussed. This meeting is to be held in May, when Mrs. Branch will be here again.

SNAPPY MUSIC FOR THE NURSES' DANCE

Five Piece Orchestra That Will Make Things Hum

The benefit dance to be given at the Bank hall by the nurses of the Charlevoix Hospital on Wednesday, December 26th for the benefit of the hospital looks like it was going to be the sensation of the winter season. A five piece orchestra, recruited from the town's local talent, will furnish the music, assisted at the piano by Miss Margaret Saunders.

The other members of the quintette who hope to jazz things up to a high degree of "peptimism" (we apologize to the editor of the Chanticleer) are Will Bellinger, who will perform upon the trombone, Arthur Winnick, cornetist, Ike Byers, who will pound the drum and E. L. Denny, who, we hear scrapes a mean bow on the fiddle.

FORD NAMED FOR DEMS CANDIDATE

Petition Filed Thursday Puts Name On Ballot

Henry Ford was nominated Thursday as a candidate of the Democratic party in the presidential primary election to be held next April, in a petition sent to the secretary of state by James W. Helme, of Adrian, assistant prosecuting attorney of Lenawee county on the petition, 106 being required to effect a nomination.

Chances are that a similar petition will be filed for Republican voters so that Ford's name will go on the ballots of both parties.

NEW PALACE THEATRE

Attractions for the coming week

SATURDAY and SUNDAY, DEC. 22-23

Paramount presents Dorothy Dalton in a highly dramatic and colorful picture, "THE LAW OF THE LAWLESS," with an all-star support. Here's a picture which reaches out in a hitherto unscreened corner of the world for its oddly fascinating background of Tartar village and Gypsy camp. In this colorful atmosphere is enacted the whirlwind romance of a picturesque gypsy chief and a tempestuous Tartar beauty. And the teeming thrills are all new. One of Dorothy Dalton's best pictures. Also a two reel Educational comedy, "For Land Sake."

TUESDAY and WEDNESDAY, DEC. 25-26.

Wm. Fox presents his biggest 1924 production in 12 reels, "IF WINTER COMES," a picture that is sweeping the nation from a novel that took the English speaking world by storm. The picture mightier than the book. Over a year in the making. New York, Chicago and San Francisco critics all hail "If Winter Comes" as the greatest motion picture of the decade.

Special admission prices of 15c and 30c, tax included. This picture has just closed its first run in Grand Rapids at $1.50 per seat.

COMING, Thursday and Friday, December 27 and 28, a 1924 Fox Special Production, "MONNA VANNA."

teachers and urge that business men and other citizens make it their business to see those who they think need encouragement and advice and give it to them.

Our school is growing in spite of the fact that, as a city, we are standing still. The two lower classes—9th and 10th, each number over fifty. I hope to see each of these classes finish with practically that number. I have urged boys and girls to come to school, gone after them to their homes and have done the best I could to get them and the school is holding them once they are here. We need more interest on the part of parents.

We are the only factory Charlevoix has. Support us in our attempt to make our finished product the very best.

I would like to see some time during the year our citizens in some public way acknowledge to the various athletic teams, debate teams, most worthy students scholastically and every other group representing special efforts, their appreciation by such an act as a public reception and banquet.

Boys and girls like to be noticed. They appreciate courtesies shown them and are, as a rule, better citizens for these special attentions. They are your boys and girls. They are the coming citizens of Charlevoix and other communities. It is our job to make of them citizens that any community will be proud to own.

I need not call attention to the insidious influences at work to undermine our efforts to make good citizens. You know them as well or better than I. We must combat these elements and stand out like Gibraltar, bold and unafraid.

Coming back to basketball—our boys are fighters, clean, hard, fast. They deserve your support. The rink is fixed so you will not be taking a chance on your life to go there—in fact, you will find it better than you had any idea it could be made. Back them up.

EWEN BOYS HAVE FIGHT WITH WOLF

Bring Dead Animal Home to Prove Their Story

John Smith and R. J. Colgin, aged about 18 and 14 respectively, went about three miles down the river Sunday afternoon to look at some traps they had set, when they suddenly came upon three wolves. The boys had no guns, and as one of the wolves came within a short distance of the boys and started to circle around them, while the other two stood off as though on guard, the situation was quite apparent to the boys that they were in for a fight.

Smith, the older boy, picked up a club and as the wolf sprang at him he struck it with the stick, which broke in two on the wolf's head, but only dazed the animal for a few seconds. The wolf again started circling around them and Smith, who now had no weapon, had planned to catch the animal by the neck when it leaped at him. In the meantime the Colgin boy was looking for a club, and finding one, handed it to Smith. After the wolf made a few circles around the boys it made a leap at Smith, who again struck it over the head with his club and the wolf toppled over dead. The other two wolves that appeared to be standing guard, slunked away in the woods, which was a great relief to the feelings of the boys.

The boys brought their victim home and related their story of the fight, which sounded like fiction, but the circumstances and evidence produced were ample proof that their adventure was real.—Cloverland Press.

Colon C. Lillie displayed a herd of 52 registered cows as well as three sires and 11 yearlings, and the purchasing of better cows was started with much enthusiasm.

It was a mighty difficult undertaking to make a selection with so many good cows to pick from, and it was long after dark before the dairymen had made their selections and completed the business transaction.

After the smoke of the battle had subsided it was found that the following purchases had been made:

Edwin Bowers, one cow and two heifers.

George Rubingh, two cows.

Matthias Rubingh, one cow and one heifer.

Nick Dekkenga, one cow with calf by side.

Nathan Carpenter, one cow with calf by side.

J. W. Drenth, one cow.

Louis Osterbaan, one yearling sire.

The prices were very reasonable considering the class of stock, ranging from $80 to $125, and it was the consensus of opinion among the party that if they had $1,000 to spend individually, they would spend it right then and there. Everyone was much pleased with their purchases and felt well repaid for the long trip.

The next move was to select a man to accompany the earload of stock and see to it that they had all the modern conveniences of a box ear.

Nick Dekkenga was elected on the 45th ballot as the man suited for the position and one who could be trusted with cows.

The days work was done and the expedition was demobilized. Three of the party, Edwin Bowers, Benton Mellenkamp and County Agent L. L.

BUY 12 PURE BRED JERSEYS

ELLSWORTH DAIRYMEN ADD TO THEIR HERDS.

Shipment Arrives at Destination on Friday Last—Story of Buying Campaign.

The most important and far reaching step yet tackled by the North Antrim Cow-Testing Association in its desire to improve the dairy herds, was brought to a successful conclusion when 12 head of pure bred Jerseys were side tracked at Ellsworth early Wednesday morning, December 12th.

Within a very short time the cows were unloaded and being led away to their respective farms and given a seat of honor at the altar of improved stock. The shipment was directly due to a hurried trip southward by several local dairymen in addition to one from Central Lake during the wee sma' hours of Wednesday, December 6th. At that time the following enthusiastic farmers, Nick Dekkenga, J. W. Drenth, John Drenth, John VonStratten, Geo. Rubingh, Matthaus Rubingh and Nathan Carpenter, started out headed for the sunny south. Arriving at Mancelona the party was enlarged by three more recruits, Edwin Bowers, of Central Lake, the association's cow tester, and county agent L. L. Drake.

By 6:00 o'clock the small caravan of three cars set out from Mancelona with Colon C. Lillie's farm as their destination.

Hearing of a Jersey disposal sale of 22 head of pure breeds to be held at Coleman the next day, the party decided to depart from the straight and narrow path and take a look at them, and if satisfied with the outlook, to stay for the sale.

The outlook was decidedly displeasing and so the party right about faced and again headed towards Coopersville. At Greenville some of the party dismounted and hit the hay, the rest flying in the direction of Grand Rapids.

Bright and early the next morning (Thursday) the party arrived at Colon C. Lillie's noted farm. But upon careful scrutiny it was discovered that one ear had not shown up yet, and after a heated debate it was thought best to phone the police station and find out if J. W. Drenth and his two loyal partners, Nick Dekkenga and Matthaus Rubingh had been waylaid and mishandled. Just in the nick of time a mammoth cloud of dust scattered and the worried party was rewarded by the sight of the lost three members of the expedition, who informed us that they had been navigating the avenues, alleys and side streets of Grand Rapids for two hours trying to find an outlet.

Drake drove home that same night. They attended a show in Grand Rapids and enjoyed breakfast at Bellhairs the next morning. The rest reached home early Friday night.

Nick Dekkenga reports a very pleasant trip with the cows, his only complaint being that the engineer on the Grand Trunk shakes a mean throttle, for at the first send-off the stock was thrown through the partitions into one end of the car and Nick, standing idly near the door gazing at a couple of girls, was caught in the stampede and thrown for a touchdown. Upon disentangling himself from the pack he found that the nice bright, new milk pail which he had recently purchased had been completely demolished, and the tears began to roll down his cheeks.

The association hopes that this is only the beginning and will prove to be an incentive for more shipments of the same nature.

REPORT OF THE COW TESTING ASSN.

Dry Cows and High Cost of Feeding Proves Costly.

The records for the month of November showed a still further decrease in all respects over the month of October.

267 cows were tested and 148 were dry, an increase of 11 dry cows over October. The average cow produced 400 pounds of milk at a test of 4.16 per cent 16.6 of butterfat, and a net profit of only $1.53. Compare this with 413 pounds of milk at a test of 4.18 per cent, 17.3 pounds of butterfat and a net profit of $3.24 for the month of October. Eight herds did not pay for their feed, while seven others failed to make a dollar profit per cow. Higher cost of feeding and an increasing number of dry cows sure plays havoc with the profits.

Seven cows produced over 40 lbs. of butterfat. Ernest Loehme has high cow, a grade Jersey with 50.4 lbs. Peter Wieland next with a grade Holstein with 47.0 lbs. John Koster third with a grade Durham at 46.1 lbs. Hermann Heeres fourth, grade Holstein at 44.9 lbs. F. H. Hemstreet fifth, pure bred Holstein at 44.6. D. H. Brat sixth, grade Holstein at 43.4. Ernest Loehm seventh, a pure bred Jersey at 40.1 lbs.

Ernest Loehm had highest herd for November, when his six Jerseys produced 37.1 lbs. of butterfat, 720 lbs. of milk, test of 5.15 per cent, and net profit of $7.96 per cow. J. W. Drenth next, his herd producing 24.63 lbs. of fat, 508 lbs. of milk at a 4.85 test and $5.61 net profit. Next in order are Chas. N. Snyder, John Tornja, Geo. Drenth, Hitchcock Stock Farm, John Hennepe, Hermann Heeres, Russell Burns and S. B. Anway.

For the first four months Ernest Loehm has highest money making cow—a pure bred Jersey making $56.19. Leonard Bush next with a grade Holstein making $39.20.

Ernest Loehm has the only cow making over 155 pounds of butterfat in four months, the above mentioned cow producing 217.4 pounds.

All but two members fed grain all the month and 12 men keep daily milk records.

Christmas Seals Helped to Make These Tots Happy

Every summer hundreds of undernourished and sickly children enjoy the hospitality of summer camps scattered throughout the state. At these camps the kiddies are given an opportunity to play, eat and sleep in the open air, to eat the right kind of food and to get the proper amount of healthful exercise.

Summer camps are a part of the work carried on with Christmas seal sale funds. Every penny that is spent for seals is a contribution to the health and general welfare of hundreds of children. Every seal that is used becomes a weapon in the hands of skilled tuberculosis fighters.

STATE TAKES AN OPTION ON LAND

DEAL FOR JOHN BURNS PROPERTY COMMENCED

Crew That Was Here Are Boring At Indian River—State's Plans Not Yet Known

For the information of those people who are anxiously wanting to know what the state is going to do with the lime rock land out southwest of town (and that includes about all of us) we will state that from the most authentic and authoritative sources obtainable we learn that the State of Michigan has an option on about 450 acres of land, known as the Bell estate and now the property of John Burns of this city.

This land contains a considerable deposit of high grade lime rock and extends along the shores of Lake Michigan from a point just a short distance south of the old Rock Product Company's land (now the property of the Newaygo Portland Cement) for a mile and a half, or thereabouts, south to the north line of Norwood township.

The state engineers, who for several weeks have been engaged in boring about eighteen or nineteen test holes to varying depths of from 40 to 60 feet on this property, are now at Indian River, northeast of Petoskey, where it is said the state has a similar option on the tract of land which the engineers are testing out, as they tested here.

Nothing definite is known as yet by any party as to just what the state intends to do here and at Indian River. Coupled, however, with the governor's announced extensive program of road building for next year, which contemplates the construction of upwards of 500 miles of concrete highways and his well-known bias in favor of convict labor camps, it is safe to assume that the operations recently completed here and now continued at Indian River mean, at least, the establishment of one or more of these road construction camps, in this region, to be operated probably by a certain percentage of convict labor if not wholly manned by prisoners. It is also possible that the construction of a cement plant is contemplated at one or the other of these places, though there is as yet no substance to any of the rumors that have been going around to this effect.

It is evident, anyway, that something is "stirring", and we should be content for the present and duly thankful for even small favors.

CARS SMASH ON EAST JORDAN PIKE

Meet In The Dark, Head On, And Bad Wreck Results

A real smash up, in which two local young men, Clayton McFarland and Carl Raber, were involved occurred last Friday evening on the Charlevoix-East Jordan road, about five miles this side of the latter city.

McFarland and Raber were proceeding towards East Jordan in the former's converted Ford speedster. Ray Olney of East Jordan, driving an Overland 90, was coming this way. The two cars met head on at the point indicated and a sorry wreck resulted. Olney, it is alleged, had no lights at all and McFarland says his lights were on but so dim as to be of little use to him. The entire front end of both cars was stove in. The Ford's windshield, steering gear and lights were at total loss, the front axle bent and the frame broken in two places. The Overland also suffered a broken frame and a smashed radiator. McFarland was badly bruised about the face and head and the other fellows complained of painful contusions. It's a wonder they weren't all killed, from what we can learn of the accident.

Then comes a region embracing the great plains and the Ohio valleys with some goitre. Then in the area of higher ground toward the north embracing the middle and western states. The central states like Illinois, Michigan and the north central states, there is more goitre and, finally, an area of mountainous region in the west and the high region in the neighborhood of the great lakes, including such cities as Chicago, Detroit, Buffalo and Rochester, where goitre is most common. This is particularly true about the eastern end of lake Ontario. Goitre is not found in the neighborhood of the sea because the origin of all the iodine in the world is in the sea. The lower lands in middle geologic time were submerged by the sea and the iodine which they received from the sea affects the drinking water, because much of the land in these lower areas was situated with sea water and got its iodine from the sea. Then, too, according to Prof. Fairchild of the University of Rochester, salt spray containing iodine is, during heavy storms, blown inland for as much as 200 miles, and some quantities of iodine are thus deposited in our drinking water.

Goitre consists of an enlargement of a gland, the thyroid gland, which lies under the skin and muscles and extends across the front part of the neck. It belongs to that great group of regulatory glands among them are adrenals on the kidneys, the pituitary body at the base of the brain, the pancreas, etc. The secretion or juice of the thyroid gland is poured into the blood. Experimental goitre in the common fowl causes hypertrophy or enlargement of the heart. It has been shown that in experimental goitrous animals the blood vessels in the thyroid gland increase in number and in size and that the blood courses through the vessels of the gland with increased rapidity. In the young child with enlarged thyroid or goitre the activity of the thyroid is greater, the heart and pulse beat more rapidly and the child wastes its energy because of enlarged thyroid when it should have all its strength for the rapid growth of both mind and body.

The thyroid is necessary for physical growth in childhood as well as for the development of the mind. It regulates the nutrition of the body as well as the mind. Enlargement of this gland occurs when it lacks a certain small quantity of iodine from the body and the body obtains its iodine from water, certain foods and from salt. The body's chief supply of iodine is water and salt. The reason the body does not obtain sufficient iodine is either because the water supply in the higher regions of the earth has had its iodine washed out by rain, ice or snow, and also for the reason that most of the salt which contains iodine has had its iodine washed out of it in the process of purification and whitening of the salt.

Water, nearly all water, even in all but the most goitrous districts contains some iodine, but most drinking water, our own included, does not always contain sufficient iodine for the use of the thyroid gland as a regulator of the body.

That we may prevent goitre and reduce in children and young people the size of goitres already begun, we are compelled either to add enough iodine as iodide of soda, table salt or to the drinking water. A century ago Chatin, a French chemist, suggested the use of iodine in the treatment of goitre. He was ridiculed.

To prevent goitre it is necessary that water contain at least 50 parts of iodine to a billion parts of water. Now our water contains less than one part of iodine instead of the necessary 50 parts. By adding the 45 parts it is possible to prevent goitre and cause the disappearance of much of the existing goitre.

In Rochester, N. Y., and at the Soo in Michigan, iodine has been added to the water in the city mains, the cost at the Soo not exceeding $200 for the installation of the equipment required and the necessary amount of iodine for one year. It is used in such a small quantity that the taste of the water is unchanged—people using the water not knowing from the taste that iodine has been added.

LEVI METZ, OLD RESIDENT, DIES
Was a Prominent Farmer of South Arm Township.

One of our oldest settlers, Levi Metz, after an illness of several months, died at his home in South Arm township, Tuesday, December 11, 1923, aged 67 years.

He was the second son of John Metz and Christine Rumen, born at Kalmazoo, Mich., November 11th, 1856. At the age of 11 years, his parents moved to Charlevoix county with their family. Here he helped them to till the forest and build their home. He was one of the men who helped build the streets of East Jordan when that city was a mere village.

In 1882 he was married to Elizabeth, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Whitfield of South Arm township and to this union were born seven children, six of whom have grown to manhood and womanhood. He was a man who had a kind word for everyone and was respected by all who knew him. He was an active citizen, having held several offices in the county and was, as well, a good Granger, a loving husband and indulgent father.

He leaves a wife and six children: Mrs. Thomas Cox of Grawn, Mich.; George Metz of Charlevoix, Edward Metz of Lansing, Mrs. Lawrence Jensen of Detroit, Sadie Metz of Mt. Pleasant and Jessie Metz of Charlevoix; two brothers, Edward Metz of Detroit and John Metz of Jackson; two sisters, Mrs. Charles Reeman of Jackson and Mrs. Joseph Whitfield of this city; and five grandchildren.

The funeral was conducted from the home of the deceased at one p. m. last Friday, by the Rev. John Hackett, who nearly 43 years ago united the couple in marriage. Mr. Metz will be missed by the entire community, who extend their sympathy to the bereaved family.

AT THE MOVIES.

In staging the battle scenes in "If Winter Comes," the William Fox screen version of A. S. M. Hutchinson's great novel, which will be given its first showing at the Palace Theatre, Tuesday and Wednesday, the entire Royal West Kent regiment known as "The Buffs," which earned an enviable record during the world war, was recruited by Director Millarde. Major Guy Leigh, commander of the regiment and Captain E. F. Strattell, the adjutant, personally mustered the troops for the big scenes.

In Dobruja, a district of Roumania, the Tartar girls decorate the water buckets with which they carry the "Adam's Ale" to their homes. Dorothy Dalton plays such a role in "The Law of the Lawless," a Paramount picture which comes to the Palace Theatre for a two day's run next Saturday.

The local color in the William Fox screen version of the A. S. M. Hutchinson story, "If Winter Comes," is scrupulously maintained. Director Harry Millarde, who went to England to "shoot" the picture, which will be shown at the Palace Theatre next Tuesday and Wednesday, searched carefully for the correct locations.

The office where Mark Sahre thought out so many of his serious problems is the result of careful thought and close attention to the description given by the author. The familiar chair and desk, the book-lined walls and the personal touch of its occupants that tells what manner of man he is, in spite of the attempt to envelop the room with the cold and formal stateliness of the rest of the place, are all there. It is in this room, after Sahre's collapse that Hapgood turns furiously on Mr. Fortune with the command "Go for a doctor! Go like hell!" and Nona falls on her knees beside the stricken man with her cry of "Mark! Mark!"

Agricultural Legislation.
The following questionnaire has been received by the boards of directors of some of the larger farm organizations:

It is not all probable that the leaders of more of the agricultural organizations will receive a questionnaire of this kind or very similar. In view of this fact the writer is presenting these questions in as concrete and tangible a manner as possible, in order that the farmers themselves may have the opportunity to become informed as thoroughly as possible.

Those who are not disposed to give matters of this nature their consideration, have no right to criticize, it is however generally conceded that it is easier to sit back and complain of general conditions, than it is to wade in, exert a little mental energy and help straighten them out.

Two articles in the questionnaire, namely: Truth in Fabrics and Muscle Shoals, are questions which the agricultural public as a whole have favored very heartily. However, as enactment of the legislative representatives of the farm organizations at Washington will desire the reassurance that farmers and farm organizations have not changed their minds.

Should you desire more enlightenment on these subjects, the writer will be glad to discuss them at any agricultural organization meeting.

Are you in favor of the American Farm Bureau Federation securing such federal law, or laws, as will permit farmers legally to organize co-operative and mutual insurance companies for the purpose of safeguarding themselves against losses arising from climatic conditions, insect pests and diseases, but not against speculative losses?

Are you in favor of the American Farm Bureau Federation joining the industrial group which seeks to have more immigrants of all types (except the orientals) come in, in order to get cheaper labor?

Are you in favor of the American Farm Bureau Federation joining the Americanization group which seeks to greatly lessen the number of all types of immigrants for the purposes of having time to assimilate the foreign population we already have and also to prevent most foreigners coming here?

Are you in favor of the American Farm Bureau Federation standing for such amendments to the present immigration laws as will secure a change of type from the Latin races of southern Europe to the Anglo-Saxon races from northern Europe, without materially changing the total number of annual immigrants to do which a change in the present law is supported from the census of 1910 to that of 1890?

Are you in favor of the American Farm Bureau Federation opposing the proposed Consumption Tax which seeks to put a federal tax upon various articles used by all citizens, starting them in all likelihood upon articles of luxury and of non-essential uses?

Are you in favor of the American Farm Bureau Federation supporting such proposed laws as seek to arbitrarily fix prices on staple farm crops by the federal government; either by setting a price or prices, on such crops to be guaranteed by said government or by the government buying the surplus at a fixed price, and selling it at a profit or a loss outside our boundaries?

Are you in favor of the American Farm Bureau Federation continuing its fight for the passage of the Truth-in-Fabric legislation, which seeks to require clothiers and cloth factories to designate what the fabrics are made of?

Are you in favor of the American Farm Bureau Federation continuing its efforts to get the Ford Tender enacted into law, so as to settle definitely just what is to be done with the great project at Muscle Shoals?

Are you in favor of your secretary or president sending a telegram of congratulation to Mr. Ford since he has recently issued a statement that he has no intention of giving up his tender for Muscle Shoals?

Are you in favor of the secretary or president sending a telegram to Hon. C. Bascom Slemmon, secretary to the president, White House, Washington, D. C., conveying to him your determination that Muscle Shoals and the Ford tender must be disposed of by congress and not by private sale; that your organization supports the Ford tender and Mr. Ford's recent statement in relation therewith, and that some competent army engineer be appointed by the president to revise the present tender to fit it to the changed conditions since a portion of Muscle Shoals has been sold?

DATE OF BIRTH OF CHRIST

Nothing Certain is Known as to Actual Time of Arrival of Child of the Manger.

It is a remarkable fact that nothing certain is known as to the actual date of the birth of Christ, Dec. 25 being only a tradition, adopted by the church about the middle of the fourth century. Lipl, a learned Jesuit of the eighteenth century, says:

"There is not a single month in the year to which the Nativity has not been assigned by some writer or other."

The earliest celebration of Christmas was on Dec. 25 appears to have been held in Rome in the fourth century, being first mentioned in a Roman document, the Philocalian calendar, dating from the year 354, but containing an older record, referring to the year 336. Christmas was brought to England by St. Augustine, and kept in 398, but it would appear that it was not established in Germany until 813, and in Norway about the middle of the tenth century, by King Hakon the Good.

The Romans of the empire used to celebrate the birth of the Unconquered Sun on Dec. 25, according to the Julian calendar, the winter solstice, when the sun began to rise in new vigor, after his autumnal decline. Therefore, the reason for the choice of Dec. 25 for Christmas would seem to have been symbolic.

CHRISTMAS AND GHOST TALES

Festival is Naturally Associated With Stories of Haunted Halls and Things Supernatural.

CHRISTMAS being celebrated in the depth of winter, when "long's the need for a warm room," the festival is naturally associated with tales of haunted halls and "things" that are supernatural. Thus Dickens in his "Christmas Carol," gave us the Spirits of the Past, the Present, and the Future, but Christmas in a fabled, clothed each of them in a fascinating mantle of kindness, and sent them out on a message of mercy that made itself felt over all the earth. Over many a stony Scrooge have they cast their mellowing shades, teaching them to say:

"I will honor Christmas in my heart, and try to keep it all the year. I will live in the Past, the Present, and the Future. The spirits of all three shall strive within me. I will not shut out the lessons that they teach."

Scrooge, concluded Dickens, "had no further intercourse with Spirits, but he was always said of him that he knew how to keep Christmas well, if any man alive possessed the knowledge. May that be truly said of us, and all of us! And so, as Tiny Tim observed, 'God bless us, every one.'"

SANTA FOR ITALIAN KIDDIES

Befana, Good Fairy, is Supposed to Fill Stockings With Toys on Twelfth Night.

THE character in Italian childhood lore corresponding to our Santa Claus is Befana, a good fairy who is supposed to fill the children's stockings with toys on Twelfth Night. She does not, however, come down the chimney, and the stockings are hung in the child's bedroom. When someone enters to fill the stocking, the child, according to a very ancient practice, cries out "Ecco la Befana."

The legend concerning this lady is that the Magi, while on their way to Bethlehem, stopped at her home, but found her too busy with household affairs to entertain them. She told them that she would see them on their return, but they went back by another route, and therefore Befana comes out in search of them every Twelfth Night. Her name is a corruption of Epiphany, which is Jan. 6, the twelfth night after Christmas, according to the church calendar.

Bills Which Have Come Up Held Unconstitutional By Atty General

The second week of the special legislative session called to consider the question of re-apportioning the state senatorial and representative districts resulted in no definite action being taken. The bill to increase the number of representatives from Wayne county from 14 to 21 was defeated in the House by a vote of 32 to 64, but later re-considered for the purpose of getting an opinion from the Attorney General as to the constitutionality of the bill.

The opinion of the Atty General declared the proposed bill to be unconstitutional in that it gave Livingston county an independent representative, although it does not have a moiety of population. He further pointed out that the total population in some of the proposed northern districts was far less than that of Wayne districts. After this plain statement that the bill was unconstitutional, the bill was overwhelmingly defeated by a vote of 90 to 3. All efforts to revive it have failed, so it looks as if there will be no re-apportionment of the representative districts this session.

The House is still considering the bill to re-arrange the senatorial districts. The Senate passed this measure with the number of Senators from Wayne increased from 5 to 7, but the attorney General fears that even this would be unconstitutional. It is possible that an attempt will be made to increase the number to 8, although there is little hope of such a bill passing either the House or the Senate.

INTERESTING BITS OF INFORMATION CLIPPED FROM OUR EXCHANGES

"And the question will be asked," says the Saginaw News Courier, "Where was Hiram when Newberry went out?"

"Chicago youth is seriously slain," says an up-state headline. However, it may turn out to have been only a minor killing.

"Eat it with toast," is another slogan which the wheat growers have introduced. "And eat a lot of it, especially if it is potatoes," the Michigan farmers add.

The unknown person who broke into a Ford garage at Charlotte and took $25 from the till is evidently well informed regarding most useful accessory.

A yearling deer was struck and killed by a freight train at a crossing near Baldwin—the deer probably having expected that, like a hunter, the locomotive wouldn't hit where it aimed.

The feather parties that are being held so commonly about the state remind one how greatly the host of such a party used to enjoy them, as soon as he learned that the guests hadn't brought any tar.

"How did we get our Bible?" was the subject of a lecture at Armada last Wednesday. "By clearing a place where the Gideons could leave another," is the answer in one case we have heard of lately.

A melon grower near Orion is still eating fine ripe specimens of a late variety of his product. It is very hard to understand this selfish policy in a man who might have gathered them and sold them green in August.

Two Canadians, two Australians, a Swede, five Germans, an Englishman, a Hungarian and an Austrian all applied for naturalization papers at St. Johns on the same day. Perhaps the best argument against the league of nations is that pretty soon there aren't going to be any nations.

Senator Ferris, who will support an inheritance tax measure at Washington, says young men and women would be better off and make higher marks in the world if they started life with little. Those of us who are making fairly low marks, shudder to think where we would have landed if we had started life with much.

The humane officer at Grand Rapids would have consented to the game-cock fight, it is reported, if the promoters had arranged to have the birds fight each other with a section of plate glass between them. We only wonder that our big fight promoters never thought of this device to bring our leading heavyweight pugilists together more frequently.

The stopping of a train near Saginaw when the engineer saw his headlight reflected from a car which was stalled on a crossing, again emphasized the rule, "Stop, Look and Listen."

That turkey weighing 50 pounds which was displayed at the Grand Rapids poultry show should be almost big enough by Christmas so that a person can buy two ducks instead.

With 204 miles of highway paved in the state this year—60 per cent more than last year—it was evident that good intentions are being fast relegated to the one district where they belong.

A Portland citizen who brought suit for $10,000 for damage to his reputation received a verdict of six cents, and it begins to look as if potatoes would soon be down almost as low.

A Kalamazoo man has been put under arrest on a charge of stealing a saw mill. Probably just a toy for the boy, which it is hoped he will run the other toys through soon after Christmas.

The state administrative board has decided to keep the prison road camps open all winter. To thwart any effort at escape, we understand a set of sleigh bells may be hung on each worker later on in the season.

"Fire which originated in the furnace of the Wolverine Garage," says the Birmingham Eclectic, "totally destroyed the pleasant dreams of the residents in the neighborhood on Monday morning at 3 o'clock." Fortunately by the quick work of the firemen, the garage was saved.

BILL DRIVES A WHEEL-CHAIR NOW

Bill used to steer a drivin' horse. About four miles an hour; An' then he bought a speedin' car. About sixty-five horse power. He never used to seem to be

In any sort of a hurry, When roads were bad an' goin' slow. It caused Bill Jones no worry; But soon he thought the cars too slow. Opined they should go faster, When he saw a car ahead of him. He thought he must go past her. But he chanced to meet another gent. Who had the same fool notion: I'm here to say they were goin' some. When they got under motion. It might have been some trouble with The wheel or with the gearin' But I think he got rattled like And mixed up with his steerin' But anyway he lost control

An' those two cars got tangled An' all mixed up and twisted like An' pretty badly mangled. Jones has no use for speedin' cars; He sure is plum disgusted. He claims a wheel chair plenty fast. Since both his laigs were busted. —Dick Hoffman in Michigan Roads and Bridges.

The Story About Christmas

ALDRICH MAY OPPOSE SCOTT

POLITICAL DOPE FROM HEAD-QUARTERS AT LANSING.

Herb Baker's Entry in Gubernatorial Race Will Bring Out Another
Cheboygan Man.

Political dopesters at Lansing are responsible for the following summary in the political line for the state. Take it for what it is worth.

The latest word from H. F. Baker, of Cheboygan, is that he has about made up his mind to be candidate for governor in the Republican primaries next year, and may make his formal entry within a few weeks.

With his entry he will announce the issues on which he will stump the state in the pre-primary campaign.

With Mr. Baker a candidate for Governor instead of for Representative in Congress for the Eleventh District, the primary battle of 1922 in the Eleventh District between Frank D. Scott, who has been five times elected the district's member at Washington, and Frank B. Aldrich is likely to be fought over again. In the primaries last year Scott's majority over Aldrich was but 660 in a total vote of 43,958.

Mr. Baker has stated that as a candidate for United States Senator, in 1922, he polled, in the Eleventh District, a few thousand more votes than Rep. Scott, and so he is sure that this year he could beat him for the congressional nomination. But, while the outlook for getting the Governor's nomination in 1924, with probably several candidates entered is not as good as for the Congressional nomination, it is quite encourageing as he sees it. Mr. Aldrich's entry against Rep. Scott in next year's congressional primaries was contingent on Mr. Baker not entering.

While in Detroit last week Mr.
Baker conferred with some state leaders and he will have further conferences before he throws his hat in the ring. One of those he met was Fred W. Green, treasurer of the Republican State Central committee, and now serving his 11th consecutive term as mayor of Ionia.
Another was Senator Oren G. Johnson, of the Lapeer-Tuscola district, who is planning to contest in the Republican primaries with Louis C.
Crampton for the congressional nomination in the Seventh district.

Mayor Green himself had been informally proposed by political friends as a candidate for Governor, as he had been in one or two previous campaigns, but he said a few days ago that he will not be a candidate next year, for one reason, because the manufacturing industry of which he is the head, requires all of his time.

A large element of Mr. Baker's strength in the senatorial primary contest last year, with four candidates entered, was in the railroad brotherhoods. The brotherhoods contributed more than 90 per cent of his campaign fund, as shown by the sworn reports. Brotherhood officials say their organization will do as much to try to nominate him for governor as they did for senator.
He finished second in the senatorial primaries, with 125,295, which was not quite 25,000 behind Charles E.
Townsend, and 53,977 ahead of the candidate just below him, Patrick
H. Kelley.

Being a practical farmer and long identified with the State Grange and other agricultural organizations, Mr.
Baker confidently believes that he would, as a candidate for governor, run as well in agricultural communities as he did for senator. At the same time he mentions that certain farmer organization leaders have not warmed up to the idea of his being candidate for governor. From what he has heard they prefer L. Whitney Watkins. But, he said, he is satisfied that he can count on the rank and file of farmers, and so the lukewarm attitude of leaders is not worrying him.

As a candidate for governor, he adds, he would make equally as aggressive a pre-primary campaign as he did for senator.

It was early this year that Lieut.
Gov. Tom Reed gave notice that he is going to be a candidate for governor in 1924, and with state senator Charles R. Rich, of Grand Rapids, and Mr. Baker now forecasting like notices as to themselves, three entries seem assured by the beginning of the new year or thereabouts. More or less, leaders still are conjecturing that Gov. Alex. J. Groesbeck may seek a third term, which would complicate the situation, but he himself may soon dispose of these conjectures with a positive statement that he will not again be a candidate, close friends say.

The main reason those who are talking about the matter say they have for thinking the governor may run for a third term is the elaborate highway construction program which he plans to carry through next year and which includes between 400 and 500 miles of concrete.

They are asking the reason for this elaborate program, if not to create sentiment for himself for a third term. The governor says their conjectures that political motives be involved in the plans for road construction in 1924 are a joke.

SCHOOL PARTY MUCH ENJOYED

CHRISTMAS PROGRAM MEETS WITH GREAT SUCCESS

Novel Ideas, Novor Before Tried Here, Likely To Become Regular Yearly Event

Friday afternoon last a unique entertainment was held at the Charlevoix high-school in celebration of the Yuletide. The idea of a school Christmas party was suggested by Mr. Roe, who had seen the scheme tried out with great success in the Soo and was enthusiastically supported by Mr. Hamilton who was familiar with such affairs in other schools with which he has been associated. Each class from the high-school was allotted a ten minute program, the entire schedule including the intervals between numbers consuming about an hour. The children changed names and each bought a present, not to exceed 25c in value, for his or her partner.

The eighth grade opened the ball with a playlet and were followed by the freshmen class of the high-school with a similar number. Original speeches by the sophomores followed, among which might be mentioned Walter Bergeon's on "What Christmas Means To Me", Norman Shanshan on "The Origin Of Christmas" and Clare Usher on "Christmas In Foreign Lands". Myrtle Guild gave a reading, entitled "Scrooge's Christmas", from the well-known Dickens story. Santa Claus then entered with his reindeers and distributed the presents that draped the branches of a fine tree, gaily decorated for the occasion. Through the kindness of George Glados plenty of candy, secured at special rates, was provided for all present.

The student body presented Mr. Hamilton, through its president, Charles Dagwell, with a handsome mahogany rocker, upholstered in tapestry. Mr. Hamilton responded felicitously, thanking the students of the school for their fine token of friendship and respect. Quite a little harmless fun was involved in the giving of presents some of them providing great amusement for both the giver and recipient when opened. Several of the school's best singers favored with vocal selections appropriate to the season. A short pep meeting was also a feature of the affair.

The Christmas party was voted a complete success by those who took part in it and the consensus of opinion seemed to be that it should be retained as a regular yearly event in the social life of these schools.

Mild Alaskan Fall Credited With Our Remarkable Weather

More evidences of a remarkable fall season were presented Friday when W. M. Russell of this city came into the Courier office with a few sprouts of balm-of-Gilead, soft maple and basswood, with buds nearly ready to open! Those of the maple were already turning red. And these shoots were picked on the 21st day of December in a Lincoln street backyard. Hard to tell what to say of climatic conditions that make such things possible.

We met a farmer the other day who seemed to know what he was talking about and he told us that reports from the Yukon district of Alaska stated that the weather there for this period was the mildest ever known to prevail in that section by any of its oldest inhabitants. As Alaska is where our storms and cold waves are supposed to start, this must be the explanation of it, but then—why in the Alaskan climate mild?

CHRISTMAS IN THE CHURCHES

LARGE CROWDS IN ATTENDANCE AT THE SERVICES.

Fine Choral and Orchestral Work Aided By Able Soloists Was Main Feature.

A large congregation attended the Christmas services at the Congregational church last Sunday morning.

Beautiful and appropriate music was rendered by the choir, assisted by Raymond Faulkner at the piano and A. F. Rollins, violinist, who added in no inconsiderable measure to the charm of the musical program. Owing to the illness of Mrs. Kaye Butters, she was unable to act as soloist, but her place was filled by Mrs. Jack Supernaw, who sang "O Thou Who Lettest Good Tidings to Zion"—a wonderful solo, beautifully rendered.

Mrs. Archie Livingston, the church's soloist, sang the solo in Mazza's anthem, "There Were Shepherds," in her usual competent manner, pleasing everyone.

The choir was under the direction of Mrs. Harry L. Oldham, the church organist, and showed clearly the result of their hard work by the noble manner in which they sang.

Rev. Clarence W. Long preached an able sermon, taking for his text—"Peace and Good Will." Everyone who attended the services was impressed with its beauty and effectiveness.

At the Methodist church an unprecedented attendance was also observed at both the morning and the evening services.

In the morning the chorus choir was ably assisted by Mrs. Lou Moon, Jr., and Ney Smith, who sang most effectively a duet, "I Heard the Voice of Jesus Say." Other principal numbers were "On to Victory," rendered by the choir, and "Silent Night," a solo by Mrs. Moon.

Mr. Quant took as his text, "The Influence of Christ's Life in World Affairs," and developed it in an interesting and forceful manner.

At the evening service the seating capacity of the church was filled to overflowing. A large chorus choir, accompanied by three saxophones, a cornet, the organ and piano, rendered a cantata, "Cradle of Bethlehem" and several other excellent numbers.

ONAWAY LAD FATALLY SHOT

Gun Accident Cost Life of Young Albert Camp

Albert Camp, thirteen year old Onaway lad, died at Petoskey hospital early Wednesday morning of last week from gun shot wounds received the previous day at his Onaway home in a gun accident. Details of the accident could not be learned, except that boys were using the rifle which accidentally exploded, the dead lad receiving the bullet in his back. It coursed upwards thru his liver, kidney and stomach and lodged beneath the breast bone.

Holiday Greetings, From Former Courier Editor

It is said there is nothing new under the sun,
And I think it quite possibly true,
And I know there is nothing new or strange
In the feelings I hold toward you.

The thoughts in my mind that I want to say
Have been said a million times—
Have been spoken in prose and "said by flowers"
And given voice through rhymes.

It is just the old-time sentiment
That at Christmas-tide blooms anew—
It's the fragrance of Friendship's sweetest flower
I am wafting through space to you.

So when you arise on Christmas Morn,
'And again on New Year's Day,
Tune in on Friendship's radio,
And you'll hear "W. E. H." say:

"A Merry Christmas to all your folks!
"Happy New Year to Thee and Thine!
Is the radio message from the heart,
Broadcasted from me and mine.

WILL E. HAMPTON.

(No more fitting personage than the genial former editor of the Courier and all around "jolly good fellow" could be selected to join with us in sending the people of Charlevoix a Happy New Year. Mr. Hampton ("Bill" as we all know him) needs no introduction to the readers of the Courier, and this clever bit of poetry from his facile pen seems just to hit the spot.—Editor's Note.)

MT. McSAUBA SCENE OF HOT-DOG SOCIAL

Physical Training Classes Enjoy
Thursday's Hike

The physical training classes of C. H. S., accompanied by their teacher, F. H. Austin, hiked to Mt. McSaub last Thursday.

Various games were played, prominent among them being indoor baseball in which the "Skunka" came off victors over the "Tigers". The game was very close, however, and was broken up only by approaching darkness.

Wienies were then roasted and everyone helped himself to buns and mustard. Ralph Burns proved the champion "dog-eater", with a record of about two dozen devoured. Mr. Hamilton was the welcome guest of the occasion. The fifty boys constituting the party interdispersed to their various homes, declaring that the event was one of the best ever.

HE'S AN M. D. BUT NO DOCTOR

"MASTER OF DINNAMITE" IS GIB'S PROUD TITLE

Nowland Lake Trapper And Hunter
Says Ironton Too Congested For Him In Summer

There's a certain romantic glamour attached to those who hunt and trap for a living. Let us therefore consider the case of Gilbert Holland, hermit of the Nowland Lake district. Gib came in behind his cheerful grin and declared he had "put one over" on a certain game warden over Hoyle Falls way.

"The cuss stopped me in some deep woods and wanted to see my hunter's license," Gib explained. "I told him I couldn't show it without a screw-driver. He said something about tellin' it to the judge and we walked out to his car. He poked a screw-driver at me and I unscrewed the rubber butt of my gun and pulled out the license. 'That beats anything I ever saw,' says the warden, 'You can go.'"

If you carry your license in the butt of your gun, you'll never forget it," advises Gib. "Got me some business cards printed," Gib continued. "Most all perfect-shas has business cards, so here's mine."

I took the pasteboard and read: "Gilbert (Gib) Holland, M. D." "Why, I didn't know you were a doctor, Gib," said I. "Shucks, no. Don't you know what that stands for?" I shook my head. "That stands for master of dynamite," explained the woodsman. "I've handled the stuff all my life and have found out that a feller who aint afraid never gets hurt—a coward always gets killed. I was out at the big farm last month, dinnamin' some stumps. Along come the straw-push, so I grabbed my crowbar and with the butt-end began to hammer dynamite under a stump. Pretty soon, the "push" tumbled to what I was doin' and started to beat it, hollerin' like mad. He's a big feller and fat, but he can sure run," screamed Gib.

Some folks accuse Gib of telling "fish stories", but the writer wishes he could catch half as many in twice the time. "I come by my fishin' lore natural," maintains Gib. "I'm a thirty-second cousin of Isaac Walton, once removed." "Yes, its true that I moved out of the woods," Gib explained, in answer to a question. "I find Ironton a fine city to winter in, but in summer it's entirely too congested." Gib says he's through trapping in his district and the boys can have what's left.

REV. LONG RECEIVES GRATIFYING TRIBUTE

Members of Congregation Remember Him on Christmas Day.

Appreciation of the untiring efforts and able management of church affairs on the part of the Rev. Clarence W. Long, pastor of the First Congregational church of this city, took concrete form Christmas day in the shape of a memorial signed by 27 families and individual members of his congregation, accompanying the gift of two very fine lamps, an electric floor and dresser lamp.

The text of the memorial is as follows and shows the esteem in which Rev. Long is held by the people of his congregation:

"With the deepest appreciation of your untiring efforts and valued services being rendered this church and community, we a few of your friends, desire to present you with a slight token of our affection and regard and so we would wish you a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year with these two lights to reflect something of the spirit of the Star of Bethlehem. Sincerely, your friends."

COURIER FARM HOUSE BURNED TO GROUND

Flames Fanned by High Wind Work Its Destruction.

A week ago today, in the early afternoon, the farm home of Joseph Courier in Eveline township caught fire from causes unknown and burned to the ground.

A strong west wind was blowing at the time and while this fanned the flames, its direction probably contributed to save the barn and out buildings. No insurance was held on the property and the loss is a total one. The house was occupied by a tenant at the time.

WARD LECTURE NEXT NUMBER ON COURSE

"The Little Englishwoman With The Big Message", She Is Called

The next number of the lecture course for this year will be January 10, 1924.

It will be a lecture by Ada Ward, known as "the little Englishwoman with the big message". This is one of the most expensive numbers of the course, Miss Ward receiving $125.00 for her lecture, so it is evident that considerable expense is incurred in bringing her here, besides the expense of the local theatre.

Through a misunderstanding, the last number of the course was very poorly advertised, but, by an eleven-hour appeal, a good crowd was assembled to enjoy the Mary Adel Hays Co. musicale, but an effort is being made to give everyone ample notice of the coming number.

The dates for the other numbers following the Ada Ward lecture are as follows:

Davis, magician, January 22nd.
Charlie Paddock, world's fastest human being, March 26th.

Folders that give the above dates were given out when the season tickets were sold, so reference to them will also be another means of keeping the dates in mind.

WHAT TO DO IF WINTER COMES

CAZENOVIA'S SOLUTION MAY HELP US DETERMINE.

Northern New York Town Started Big Winter Sports Organization With Two Members.

With an earnest desire to get the idea of winter sports across in this community, we are reprinting here-with an article from the Christmas number of The Farm Journal which shows how they developed the scheme in Cazenovia, N. Y., a city with a climate similar to Charlevoix's but with, we aver, no more natural advantages. Most of our rural subscribers have probably already read the article by this time but we want to get the city folks enthused over it, mainly because at this end is where the movement should start and the work of organization begin. The article follows:

"Folks who live in sections where real snowy winter weather comes for at least a few months of the year are beginning to make the most of the cold season by enjoying community winter sports. Winter sports do not necessarily mean well-organized skating speed championship contests, ski jumps, ice palaces, and the curling games of the recognized winter-sport center; indeed, almost any exercises in the outdoors may enjoy the dignified cognomen of snow and ice sports.

As proof of what may be done in any community where winter comes let me cite the case of the rural country centering about Cazenovia, Madison county, N. Y. Up to last winter the snowy season had blanketed the surrounding country with frost that folks all but dreaded. Last winter the boys and girls of the farming sections and the town, the fathers and mothers of the same places, and even the "old folks," enjoyed, actually enjoyed, the winter season. This was because they had organized on a small scale to enjoy winter.

The Cazenovia Outdoor Club was created purely and simply to help folks get all the pleasure out of winter. A skating-rink was kept open night and day and lighted at club expense. Hills were fitted for coasting, tobogganing, skiing, and ski jumping. Weekly ski and snowshoe walks, hikes, and runs were held. One of the most novel features was a huge community winter picnic, where hundreds braved a blizzard, laughed merrily at the swirling snow, and became children for a day. Sleigh-rides, like we used to have in the good old bygone days of "real sport," suddenly became common and more popular than mince pie on the Christmas menu. The grand climax was a modest winter carnival, within the reach of any rural community where winter comes with its snow and ice.

Summer picnics have all but lost their charm, and I suspect the automobile is to blame. In those rosy "good old times" the Sunday school or Grange or Red Men's picnic was an institution. Folks hitched up their teams and drove to the picnic grove and had a rip-roaring time pitching horseshoes, playing baseball and eating watermelon. Today you can't get much enjoyment out of whizzing ten miles to a picnic ground in an automobile. Once there you are fed "hot dogs" and ice cream and everybody is in a rush to get somewhere else. They grab a mouthful and skip. Now, with the winter picnic you have all the old-time fun without the rush.

You see the folks just naturally have either to walk, snowshoe, ski, or sleigh-ride to the winter picnic grounds. Autos are taboo at real picnics. At Cazenovia, the whole countryside was invited to come to Chittenango Falls, five miles from town, where they would be entertained with sports and hot soup, hot coffee or chocolate, and a general good time. There was no expense that was not borne by the club; merchant, however, donated almost all the needed cash.

Everybody brought his own cup, spoon, and sandwiches. No tables were set, as it was too cold to sit, anyhow. Folks stood about the huge camp fire and munching their picnic grub or quaffed steaming cups. No—

POULTRY

Means That Bird Referred to Conforms to Standards of Color, Markings and Weight.

A purebred, whether it is a hen or a cock, means that the animal comes from a definitely recognized breed and that the parents were purebred animals of the same breed. If an animal has lineage of pure breeding, which can be definitely proved, and thus makes the animal eligible for registration, it is then a purebred animal. There is the added stipulation that an animal must be healthy, vigorous and a creditable specimen of its breed in order to be purebred.

In reference to poultry breeding, perhaps the best terms of all to indicate 100 per cent blood is the expression "standard-bred." This means that the fowl referred to as standard-bred is one which conforms to the standards of form, color, markings, weight, etc., for the various breeds under the standard of perfection of the American Poultry association. Standard-bred is a term which is growing in popularity among those doing business in the purebred poultry field, and is perhaps a more distinctive expression than any other which might be used with reference to poultry. Of course, there are standard-bred horses which refer to a distinct breed of light horses, including both trotters and pacers eligible to registration in the trotting registry.

DUCKS FOR MEAT AND EGGS

Pekin Breed Is Kept Almost Exclusively for Green Ducks—Runner Is Good Layer.

"The Pekin breed is kept almost exclusively by producers of green ducks, and also on many farms where they are grown for meat," says H. W. Sanborn, extension poultry husbandman, United States Department of Agriculture. "They fatten rapidly and may be fed on rations recommended for chickens, but better results are usually secured by feeding more green and vegetable feeds and a larger proportion of mash."

"For the general farmer who is more interested in obtaining eggs than producing meat, the Runner is a good breed. This duck holds the same relative position to the duck family that the Leghorn does in the chicken family. It lays a good-sized white egg considerably larger than a hen's egg, and is declared to be a small eater, a good forager, and hardy. The introduction of this breed is helping to build up a trade of first-class duck eggs. These eggs should be marketed frequently, as they depreciate in quality more rapidly than hen's eggs."

HEN NEEDS SHELL MATERIAL

Tests Show Decrease in Number of Eggs Where Oyster Shell and Grit Are Lacking.

Tests made at the University of Wisconsin experimental station, where the feeding of hens could be watched closely, show that hens have a tendency to cut down on the number of eggs they lay when they run short of material which goes into the egg shell. Some believe that soft shells come as a result of not having sufficient oyster shells or ground bone material, but tests do not bear it out. So, for keeping up the number of eggs, it is essential that hens running free on the farm have a supply of oyster shells, ground bone or some other mineral grit, near where the flock is fed.

FEED FOR YOUNG COCKERELS

Where Market Is Available for Spring Chickens Plan to Feed Green Stuff Liberally.

If there is a market available for spring chickens, it is a good investment and time well spent in building a little enclosure where green stuff is available to feed the young cockerels all they can eat for a couple of weeks before selling them.

DODGE BROTHERS MOTOR CAR

Value so pronounced that you are justified in looking upon the purchase of a Dodge Brothers Motor Car as the soundest possible investment in transportation.

Not a dollar is added to the purchase price to support a free service policy; nor to cover the costliness of numerous body or chassis types; nor to pay interest on borrowed money; nor to maintain a multiple organization of middlemen.

Dodge Brothers finance themselves. They sell directly through a single organization of dealers to you. They do not believe in charging in advance for service you may never need. They have developed remarkable economies, and a time-seasoned product, by concentrating on standard types.

These facts are reflected, not only in the price of the Car, but in the quality of workmanship and materials that enter into its construction.

SEASONABLE GOOD THINGS

Now is the time to put away goodies for the winter, while the markets are flooded with all kinds of fruits.

India Chutney.
—Take 15 large, sour apples, two green peppers, one cupful of seeded raisins, two good-sized onions, one quart of vinegar, two tablespoonfuls of mustard seed, the same of ground ginger and salt, and two cupfuls of brown sugar. Pare, core and chop the apples together with the peppers, from which the seeds and membrane have been removed, and the onions. Add the raisins and vinegar and put into a kettle and simmer for two hours. Add the sugar and seasoning and cook slowly another hour. Seal in glass jars while hot. This recipe makes about five pints.

Peach Chutney.—Take two and one-half pounds of fresh peaches, one and one-quarter pounds of evaporated peaches, one-half pound of seeded raisins, two tablespoonfuls of red chili powder, one small onion, one-half cupful of mustard seed, one-half pound of green glazer, one and one-quarter pounds of brown sugar, one quart of vinegar and one-third of a cupful of salt. Soak the evaporated peaches several hours in water to cover, then cut into small pieces. Peel and cut the fresh peaches. Put the onion and ginger root through the food chopper. Boil the peaches in a pint of vinegar for one-half hour. Make a sirup of the sugar and a pint of vinegar and cook all the ingredients in it for an hour, stirring frequently until thick. Seal while hot in preserve jars. This makes eleven cupfuls.

Pickled, Spiced Onions.—Peel small onions and cover with hot water and salt, making a strong brine. Let them stand twenty-four hours, drain, cover with another hot brine. Next day drain, make a fresh brine, heat to the boiling point; add the onions and boil three minutes. Drain and put the onions into jars with bits of mace, bay leaf, cloves and slices of red pepper. Fill the jars with hot vinegar and sugar. Allow one cupful of sugar to four quarts of vinegar. Seal at once.

body was in a hurry. Everybody was happy.

A winter community picnic is mighty democratic. You forget the forms and conventions and the stiffness. Last winter at our picnic millionaires hiked the five miles and returned with the common folks, shoulder to shoulder, blue bloods with the red bloods. Even the old people were there, because plenty of farmers supplied bobs with straw in the bottom and blankets to cover up with—and who lives the soul so dead that he does not thrill at the mention of a sleigh ride. Behind each sleigh load of picnickers the young folks were pulled on their skis—a modification of the sport of skijoring.

The main thing about a winter picnic for the community is to get some organization behind it, to give it wide publicity, and to have a live committee go ahead and prepare for taking care of the crowds as fast as they arrive. Set the middle of the day, when it will naturally be warmest, for the hour of the picnic dinner, and have your kettles and boilers of soup steaming hot and the coffee boiling promptly.

Feed each group as rapidly as the folks arrive. Slight delays and inconveniences in the program of a winter event are dangerous. You must keep the corn popping, or at least the popper shaking. If you don't, then folks may literally get the proverbial "cold feet." This is easily avoided by having your committee on hand early to build the fires, clean back the snow, break trails for snow shoes and skis, and fit hills for coasting.

In every community there are a good many young folks who have taken to the Norwegian ski. The ski has almost replaced the coasting sled and bobs of the old days. The lad who won the ski race silver loving-cup prize at the Cazenovia races last winter was a farmer boy who had made his own "planks" from ash, a boy who had never skied until the community organized for winter enjoyment. He hardly felt the need of paying out several good dollars for his skis when he could build them with his own two hands. Today a beautiful silver loving cup, engraved with the youth's name, date and event, rests upon the mantle of a farm back in the hills above the village of Cazenovia won by home-made skis.

Snow shoes are in almost the same category. The ski came upon us like an invasion from Norway, while the snow shoe burst upon us from Canada. Both countries originally used these "shoes" for expediency and purposes of utility, gradually developing their popular use into forms of great national games; and today Americans are playing with skis and snow shoes. Contrivances that started on the spur of necessity as a help to get across snowy regions, are now the toys of boys and girls, as well as of men and women.

If you have ever visited winter-sport centers, such as those in Canada, New England, the Adirondacks, Wisconsin, Minnesota, the West or Switzerland, you know that the backbone of winter fun is skating. Under the direction of the International

STRONG EVIDENCE

Is the Statement of This Charlevoix Woman:

Backache is often kidney ache; A common warning of serious kidney ills.

"A Stitch in Time Saves Nine"—Don't delay—use Doan's Pills.

Profit by the experience of Mrs. John Hull, 102 Lincoln Ave., who says: "I gladly recommend Doan's Pills, for they have done me a world of good. I suffered from an attack of lumbago. I tried different remedies, but got no relief until I used Doan's Pills. In a short time they entirely removed the trouble."

FIVE YEARS LATER, Mrs. Hull said: "I can speak just as highly of Doan's as I did when I recommended them before. I use this medicine occasionally as a tonic and it keeps my back and kidneys in good condition."

Skating Union the amateur and professional skating championships are famous the world over today. This does not necessarily mean that skating must be the center of attraction for average community winter frolics, but it is a good sport to encourage. Americans become more naturally steel blade experts than successful prize takers on skis and snow shoes, because we have always skated in this country.

Last winter at Cazenovia some of the most popular events carried out were skate races between lads divided according to age.

The regulation speed racing track recognized by the I. S. U. is an oval, one-eighth of a mile in length. The younger lads raced 220 yards; older ages, 440; and the youth a half mile or mile. Prizes were donated by merchants, comprising skates, sweaters, scarfs, hockey stick, etc. One of the main reasons why skating ought to be encouraged in any community program of winter sports, is because the game of hockey is almost universally popular where ice comes in winter.

The crowning event of the winter sports may be a winter carnival. It is not difficult to build a winter palace of ice and vote for a "Winter Queen." However, this is not essential to a community winter carnival. The main consideration is to supply a one or two-day event that will make its appeal to every lover of the outdoors. Using Cazenovia again, as an example, we arranged a two day winter carnival, the first day set on Washington's Birthday. The program consisted of mile races for boys, men, women and girls (each class separate) on skis and snow shoes, for which prizes were awarded. Then there were skating races and horse-races on a track cleared upon the ice of Cazenovia lake.

Last year one should feel that a five-mile lake is necessary for winter sports, let me hasten to say that no skating was done on our lake, a rink in the village being fitted out specially, and indeed, the horse racing was all that took place on the lake itself. Skijoring, where skiers are pulled behind horses, was another event.

A fox-and-hound chase brought out the hunters. A winter sport dance pleased the young folks. A moving-picture show of winter sports was another evening feature. Snow-ing are building was suggested but not developed last winter at the carnival. The only outside attraction brought to the winter carnival was a fancy black-face skater from New York. This was the famous Bill Small, who yearly performs at Lake Placid, various university sport events, as well as in Canadian centers. It was felt by the men behind the carnival that this single outside attraction would be the frosting on the cake, and so it proved.

The main thing about winter sports in any community is to get some organization behind it. In most sections who have something upon which to work. In one community I know of, there is Sunday school with a class of with a class of lively boys who get out for all the fun winter is worth. There is also a sportsmen's club, a trap-shooting club, a bird club, and the athletic end of the high school. With only such organizations as these, the winter-sport hoosters can be recruited.

One thing favors most efforts for winter enjoyment; and that is, the fact that in winter almost all the societies are at low ebb, winter has locked the doors. Hence it is easy to ally all such organizations. Generally it is best to form a special club; say an Outdoor Club, and in this organization as a central one, create ski, snow-shoe, skate, coasting, winter picnic, winter carnival, and other special committees as needed.

When it comes to the winter carnival it may be best to call in the chamber of commerce or the business men's association, the Grange, or some business group. This is because there may be loss involved in such an event and it is never wise to burden the individual members of a popular club. Dues ought to be collected from club members, but should be nominal. In Cazenovia the dues are fifty-cents for the individual, or one dollar for a family.

Experience shows it is best to keep the popular winter sport events, such as the weekly ski and snow-shoe runs, skating races, picnics, etc., independent of the business of the winter carnival. Of course, the members of the club participate and enjoy the fun of the carnival, but it takes cold-headed business methods to stage a real carnival. It means a responsibility.

Some places could allow a church, or a local club, or a business men's organization to handle the carnival, reaping the profit. Anybody who attends the sports of a one or two-day carnival will be willing to pay for a tag (much better than ticket selling) to help defray expenses.

The main thing is to get in step with modern healthful winter recreation, for reduced to the last analysis that's just why winter sports are popular. The healthful consideration is just as big as the mere fun. Fun is all right and proper and there is always plenty of it when folks get out and become kids in the snow, but the fun is only a means to an end, that end is better health.

Winter is the most healthful season of the year. That is, it ought to be. If you stay inside, huddled in warm rooms, dread to stir out, and freeze up and and complain, then winter is the least healthful for you. But if you get into the new order of things, if you join the ranks of the hundreds of thousands who are enjoying winter thrills, then the snow season will be the best part of the year.

There are many places especially well adapted for community winter sports. Your place may be one of them. To see the enthusiasm of the young folks is enough to repay any one for the trouble and work of an organizer.

AT THE MOVIES.

Fred Thomson, former world's champion all-round athlete, who made a great record during the war as a "fighting parson," is being starred in "The Eagle's Talons," a chapter picture which will start at the Palace Theatre next Tuesday and Wednesday. Co-starred with him is Ann Little, known to all screen fans as one of the daredevils of the films. Al Wilson, champion aeroplane stuntster, also is in the cast.

This trio has combined to inject a succession of high-powered thrills into the picture, which was made at Universal City, Cal., from a story by Theodore Wharton, the "daddy" of screen serials. If the succeeding chapters of the present serial contain as many thrills as the opening episode, its run every Wednesday at the Palace Theatre will be a procession of breath-taking adventures and heart-grIPPING escapes. The story promises air stunts in profusion, wrecks at sea, under-water thrills and every conceivable deed of daring on land.

The picture is based on the conflict between criminal wheat market manipulators, who terrorize their victims and antagonists through mysterious air raids, and Gregory Markham, the leading wheat financier of the country. Thomson plays the role of Jack Alden, a volunteer secret service agent helping Markham and in love with Markham's daughter, Enid, played by Miss Little. Wilson enacts the role of Markham's secretary.

Many Novel Scenes

Among the many beautiful landscapes and exteriors to be seen in the screen version of "Mona Vanna," the city walls of Pisa with the novel lighting effects are worthy of particular attention. The night photography in the scenes showing the signal fires burning on the top of the city walls is exceptionally well done.

Maurice Maeterlinck's famous love drama is being presented on the screen by William Fox. It will start a two day's engagement at the Palace Theatre Thursday.

Picture Finely Cast

The cast of the Paramount picture "Children of Jazz," which comes to the Palace Theatre for a run of two days next Saturday, includes in featured roles Theodore Kosloff, Ricardo Cortez, Robert Cain and Eileen Percy. In the support are Irene Dalton, Alec B. Francis, Frank Currier, Snitz Edwards and Lillian Drew. This is a superb romantic comedy-drama directed by Jerome Strong.

Used Dynamite to Remove Man

One of the most unusual murder cases which has come to the notice of the Pennsylvania State Police in years was that in which Antonio Fuente of Limestone township, Olanton county, was killed by someone who placed a stick of dynamite between Fuente's arm and body while the man was sleeping, the explosion tearing his flesh to shreds. Ben Cosa was arrested and charged with the crime. He disapproved of Fuente's desire to marry Cosa's daughter.

CAR TURNS TURTLE—BOY IS DEAD

Gordon Waffle Succumbs To Internal Injuries

Gordon Waffle, fourteen year old son of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Waffle of Norwood township lies dead today as the result of a sad automobile accident which occurred last Sunday evening at about six o'clock on the Norwood road, near Stutzman's Corners.

Young Waffle and his brother, Medrick, who was driving, left their home with the intention of going over to the Ed Gregory place. They struck a stretch of gravel near the corners and a hummock in the road threw them out of the track. The car, slewing sideways, turned completely over pinning both the boys under it. Medrick escaped with a few bruises but Gordon was rushed to the hospital, suffering from internal injuries which resulted in his death sometime between one and two A. M., Tuesday.

The funeral services were held at St. Mary's church, Charlevoix, this morning at nine o'clock and the remains laid to rest in the Catholic cemetery here. Gordon was a promising young man, pursuing his studies at the Hillton school. His sorrowing father and mother and brothers, Enri and Medrick have the sympathy of the entire community.

MAKING TWO YEAR AUTOMOBILE TRIP

Mrs. Robert Hansen And Family Will Tour The U. S. Coast

We have a letter from Mrs. Robert Hansen of Redford, Michigan and former resident of this city, in which she says:

"We are leaving Redford this week for Lake Worth, Florida, and have a very comfortable home on wheels.

We have a Chevrolet truck chassis and a Wayne touring home body, seven feet by fifteen, complete to the smallest detail. We will make a two year's trip by way of the east coast of Florida through the south and west and will spend Christmas with friends in Washington, D. C.

If you remember, I am one of the McGeehan girls."

The Courier wishes the Hansens good luck on their trip and heartily endorses this method of enjoying life. To travel and observe, to stop when one likes for as long as one likes at a particularly attractive spot, to be independent of train and boat schedules and hotels, to explore interesting and inviting trails and ever having the anticipation of new experiences, new acquaintances and possibly new friendships awaiting us, perhaps, around the next bend of the road—what more can the traveller desire.

START CREAMERY AT EAST JORDAN

Plant Eventually Will Be of 16,000 Pound Capacity

The Northern Dairy Products Co. is laying the foundation for East Jordan's new cheese factory.

The main building will be 30x60 feet and the plant will have a capacity of 8,000 pounds of milk at first. This eventually will be increased to 16,000 pounds. The product of about 500 cows has been promised and milk will be received early in March. The investment in the plant will be about $7,000.

Officers of the company are: President, Ernest G. Loeb; secretary-treasurer, Forest F. Fowler; vice president and general manager, H. C. Jordan. This company now is operating a cheese plant at Levering and it is planned to build plants in other northern Michigan towns where the dairy interests warrant.

President Loeb also is manager of the Loeb farms, Charlevoix. Loeb farms have demonstrated the possibilities of northern Michigan as a dairy section and it is the policy of the farms to co-operate with the farmers in the development of the dairy interests of this locality.

CALIFORNIA MUST BE HEAVEN—WHAT THINK?

Read The Testimony Of Former Charlevoix People

California, it appears, has no more loyal boosters than the Charlevoix people who have in late years made their residence there (this, of course, is with one or two exceptions).

Witness the following letters; one from Mrs. F. N. Chapel and the other from Mrs. W. L. Brown, both of whom reside in Los Angeles. We quote from each in part, taking Mrs. Chapel's communication first:

"I enjoy looking over the Courier each week though many of the names are new to me now. It is lovely weather here. We drive our auto everywhere all winter—of course, very little difference between winter and summer here. You spoke in your paper once about Los Angeles people wishing we were in Charlevoix in summer but last summer was just as delightful as Charlevoix ever was all summer—much like your weather. Not hot weather, at all, except two days early in May and a few pretty warm days in September. Come on out—It is surely fine weather here and lots to do. Regards to all old friends."

Now listen to what Mrs. Brown has to say: "We have had a beautiful fall. Have not had only one little rain here since last May. Here is sure the ideal place to live and it has certainly grown some. Places that were farms and cattle pastures when we came here three years ago are now crowded with houses. The houses go up so fast that it seems impossible. Beautiful flowers and geraniums five feet tall grow here like brush does in the east. Tell Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Feasenden that I wish they were out here. I don't think that they would want to go back. It is a beautiful place. Tell them that I said that they do not know what they are missing by being back there in the cold and it is so nice here. All kinds of fruit here—eight pounds of potatoes for 25c, nine lbs. of apples for 25c, eggs 45c, and 50c a dozen, butter, 50c, and 60c, per lb."

POW-WOW WAS STAGED IN BIRTHDAY SUITS

Parade Followed Violent Orgy Of "Pop" Drinking

After the basket-ball game last Friday night between the Varsity and the Alumni, which resulted in a victory for the former by a score of 15 to 9, members of the team and some of the fans sallied down to the bench of Lake Michigan, near the pumping station, built a large bonfire and partially disrobed to appropriately stage a real Indian war-dance and pow-wow.

A few hardy souls, among them Elwood Livingston, Airel Cooper, John Kelderhouse and Harold Dutcher went a little farther in the disrobing process and emulating the popular bear of the antics plunged into the cool, refreshing waters of the lake. They were finally persuaded by the admiring spectators to desist from their icy gambols and, reluctantly resuming their apparel, took a stiff drink of "pop" all round smoked the peace pipe, and then wended their way toward in a parade down Park avenue to the main drag, preceded by their intertid leader, "General Airel Burr Cooper, stops being made at various points of vantage to emit warwhoops in appreciation of the winning team and of several prominent citizens who had rendered material assistance to the athletic association in divers ways. Eleven thirty P. M. marked the close of the performance.

ALANSON BANKER OPENS FOX FARM

Frank Armstrong Builds Pens In Timber Tract On Burt Lake Road

Frank Armstrong, cashier of the Citizens' Bank at Alanson, has recently completed a 20 pen fox ranch on the Burt Lake road, east of Alanson, and the place is now open to visitors. The guard fence of this ranch encloses a block of second-growth maple twenty rods square which is of sufficient area to permit of an increase in the size of the ranch to 100 pens. The pens are built of the latest crate type, and there is a tower house with quarters for the attendant and night watch. In all, it is the starting of an attractive ranch.

Mr. Armstrong purchased the first pair of foxes sold from the Petoskey Pioneer Silver Black Fox ranch in 1920, soon after this ranch was located in Emmet county, and up until the present time his stock has been cared for by Messrs. Gaffney and Leonard at the Petoskey ranch.

The stock moved onto this new ranch has just been inspected and passed into the advanced registration by J. E. Smith, secretary of the National Fox Breeders' association. The ranch is registered under the name "Armstrong Silver Fox Ranch. Frank Armstrong, owner; Dave Nicholson, rancher.

CRIMMINS MADE VICE PRESIDENT

Also Becomes Director Of Grand Rapids National Bank

Alvah D. Crimmins, formerly cashier of the Charlevoix State Savings Bank and of late years connected with the Grand Rapids National Bank as cashier has been elected by the board of directors of the Grand Rapids bank to fill the vacancies of vice president and director of that institution caused by the resignation of A. J. Maynard. Mr. Crimmins will also continue in his present position of cashier.

Mr. Maynard is a Northern Michigan man, having for many years held the position of cashier of the Traverse City State Bank. For the past two and a half years he has been connected with the Grand Rapids National but, owing to the ill health of his wife has been forced to resign his position there and take an extended vacation in California, where he plans to enter another line of business.

Mr. Crimmins is well-known and highly respected in this city and has the congratulations and best wishes of his many Charlevoix friends.

FARMER SHOT BY UNKNOWN MAN

Leelanau Man Gets 75 Shot In The Neck and Chest

Leslie Milks, Leelanau county farmer, lies in the General hospital at Traverse City in a serious condition, the result of gun-shot wounds received when an unidentified assailant shoved a shotgun into a buggy in which he was riding home and pulled the trigger.

Sheriffs Campbell, of Grand Traverse, and Steimel, of Leelanau, are following several leads, but so far had nothing definite to report. Milks says he knows of no enemy who would desire to take his life.

Milks was riding home when he received the charge in his right shoulder and neck. So close was the gun when discharged that the buggy box showed stains of burned powder, and a piece of the wadding was found buried in Milks' flesh.

INTERESTING BITS OF INFORMATION, CLIPPED FROM OUR EXCHANGES

"He apparently is a firebug," says an officer, in reference to a prisoner who is accused of setting 27 fires at the University of Michigan. How did he ever guess it?

Out of 227 persons arrested in Kalamazoo in one month, 257 declared themselves American citizens. For all but 20 of the foreigners, on the other hand, this was a free country.

A Grand Rapids gentleman informs the police that an alarm clock was stolen from his bedroom while he slept. Whereas, it is left for most of us to throw the clock out of the window when it wakes us up.

An Eastern scientist, speaking at Grand Rapids, explained how a person can become so highly energized that he can work 16 hours a day on less than five hours' sleep. Those unfortunates who have not yet learned to sleep 16 hours a day on less than five hours' work may be interested in this.

TO REORGANIZE DUTIES OF THE STATE TROOPERS

NEW PUBLIC SAFETY COMMISSIONER DRAWING UP PLANS FOR BROADER SERVICE.

SEEKS TO DIVIDE BUREAUS

Commissioner Harry H. Jackson, head of the Department of Public Safety of the state of Michigan, who was appointed to his present post in October, after fifteen years of meritorious service in the Detroit police department, has set himself to the task of further expanding the usefulness of the department. By nature and experience conservative, he has not hastened to make radical innovations, but has rather devoted himself to plans for developing the many lines of work now carried on by the department in the interest of law enforcement.

The Michigan State Police has been in existence since the days of the war, and was amalgamated with other state organizations to form the Department of Public Safety in 1921, under authority of an act passed by the legislature in that year. The period intervening since that amalgamation has brought out the greater economy of such a consolidated department and has made the way clear for clearer division of its functions in order to obtain still greater efficiency. It is this angle of the administration of the department that the new commissioner has chosen to take up first.

Division of Duties.

He is engaged in preparing a plan for outlining clearly the duties of each bureau of the department and for fixing responsibility upon each division for its share of the work. This plan will be presented before the first of the year. In its preparation Commissioner Jackson has depended not only upon his experience with the Detroit police department, but also upon his knowledge of state conditions obtained through acquaintance with other peace officers during the past years.

"I find that the public does not yet realize the great variety of duties performed by the Department of Public Safety, nor its many ramifications," states Commissioner Jackson. "There is a tendency to think of the department only in relation to the Michigan State Police, and to consider it only as it functions as a uniformed force. But this is not a true view of the department or its duties."

"In addition to its straight-out police work, which is very important in itself, the department serves to aid and back up the efforts of local police officers in every part of the state. It is the purpose of the department to co-operate with and assist these officers, not to supersede them. This fact is becoming more generally known among the sheriffs, chiefs of police and other local officers and their growing co-operation with the state department is bringing splendid results."

"Crime is no longer a local problem; it is state-wide and even interstate and the best police officers have long realized this. In a state department which is designed to give service they find an ally of the greatest value. Our records show that the volume of calls from local officers, with regard to every kind of crime, is constantly growing."

"Even on its police side, the Department of Public Safety operates in many ways that the public does not always know. A very large part of its work is done by plain clothes men and these may pursue their work in any community successfully without ever coming to the notice of the average citizen. This is particularly the case where state officers are called in to work with local ones."

"It will be my object to build up the investigation bureau of the department to the utmost of my ability and to use it to assist the sheriffs and other peace officers in solving serious crimes and in giving to the smaller towns and the counties expert service of men familiar with all of the phases of crime detection."

STATE DETECTIVES TO BE INCREASED

SEPARATE PROHIBITION ENFORCEMENT SQUAD FORMED BY SAFETY COMMISSIONER.

Greater assistance to sheriffs and other peace officers throughout the state is aimed at in the plans of Commissioner Harry H. Jackson for his administration of this important branch of the Michigan government. According to his idea, the state will furnish trained men, experts in criminal investigation, to assist local officers in dealing with crimes or criminal conditions which require such aid. The investigation bureau at Lansing will be built up further as an auxiliary in this plan.

"It is fortunate that Michigan has the splendid identification bureau built up by Captain I. H. Marmon. It is only the truth to say that this is one of the best identification bureaus in the entire country and is well on the way to become the best. This is acknowledged by police officers who have made a specialty of identification of criminals."

State Bureau Needed.

"The only way to handle fingerprints successfully is through a state bureau which acts as a clearing house. The fingerprint method is valuable in the detection of crime, especially in cases of burglary and safebreaking, and it is also valuable in establishing the identity of men who have been arrested on suspicion or for some minor crime, but who may be fugitives from justice. In our own state the bureau has made the recapture of escaped prisoners a much less difficult task because within a few hours of the reporting of such an escape, circulars bearing the description and fingerprints of the fugitive are in the mails on their way to police officers, not only in this state, but in other states. The same is true of the bringing back of parole violators."

"It is my intention to combine the investigation bureau, or detective bureau, of the state with the identification bureau and to place its work under the direction of one capable and responsible man. Under this system, as soon as the state headquarters is notified of a serious crime, men capable of recognizing every clue and following it up will be assigned to the case."

Specialize the Work.

"It is probable that the same sort of specialization in the state's police system can be perfected within a comparatively short time as is done with the police departments of the large cities. Thus, men who are specialists in any particular sort of crime detection will be assigned to the cases calling for such special experience. In this connection, I am of the opinion that it will be advisable to form a special squad to deal with enforcement of the prohibition law. This squad will have the duty of securing evidence necessary to obtaining warrants, and will receive the assistance of the uniformed force in making arrests. This prohibition squad will be composed of the men in the force who have shown themselves most successful in dealing with the evil conditions created by the lawless element which has engaged in liquor-running and bootlegging."

CONVICT THREE KILLERS

The Michigan State Police (Department of Public Safety) recently concluded three homicide cases in one month with verdicts of guilty in all three. William J. McPhee of Melvin was convicted of manslaughter and sentenced to from one to fifteen years imprisonment. Ralph Lindsay of St. Joseph county was convicted of second degree murder and Marjorie Kuhn of Hillsdale county was convicted of murder. The first two were accused of killing their wives and the last named of poisoning her common law husband.

DELAWARE GETS TROOPERS

The state of Delaware is the latest to organize a state police force. All of her neighboring states have long had such forces. C. C. Reynolds has been appointed superintendent. A Pennsylvania state officer was loaned to the Delaware force as instructor during the training period.

SMALL CAKES AND COOKIES

A Scandinavian cake which once tried will be a cherished recipe is prepared as follows:

Fattigman Bakelse.—Beat two eggs until light, add one tablespoonful of sugar and three tablespoonfuls of cream, mix well, then stir in one and three-fourths cupfuls of pastry flour; when well mixed roll very thin. Cut into diamond-shaped pieces with two slashes in the center of each. Fry in deep fat, drain on paper and dust with powdered sugar before serving.

Maple Doublets.—Take one cupful of maple syrup, three egg yolks well-beaten and a tablespoonful of melted fat. Add three cupfuls of pastry flour, one-half teaspoonful of salt, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder all sifted well together. Now fold in the stiffly beaten whites. Drop on baking sheets far enough apart, as they spread in baking. Drop by teaspoonfuls. Bake twelve minutes and put together in pairs with maple fondant or fudge between.

Filled Cookies.—Take one-half cupful each of shortening, brown sugar and molasses, one egg, one-fourth of a cupful of sour milk or buttermilk, one teaspoonful each of soda and baking powder, one-half teaspoonful of salt, one teaspoonful of cinnamon, one-fourth teaspoonful each of cloves and nutmeg, three cupfuls of pastry flour sifted well with the dry ingredients. Mix well, roll out very thin and cut into strips two inches by four. Spread lightly with filling and fold over to form a square. Filling: One-half cupful each of honey and broken butter-milk meals, a teaspoonful of flour and a few grains of salt. Bake in a moderate oven twenty minutes.

The ideal washcloth for baby's bath is the one made of three or four thicknesses of gauze, bound around the edge with a soft ribbon or worked around with a soft-finished crochet cotton.

POULTRY

CORRECT TIME TO CAPONIZE

Impossible to Determine by Age as All Breeds Do Not Develop Alike— Watch Comb.

This is a question asked more frequently than any other by novices. It is a very important question, and the answer should be so simple that anyone could understand.

It is impossible to tell the best time for caponizing by the age, because all breeds do not develop alike; neither do birds of the same breed and hatch; some will be small of body with large comb and wattle developments, while others will show very little comb and be large and vigorous.

With any breed when the comb and wattles begin to grow you may know that the reproductive organs are growing correspondingly; when the little comb begins to redden you may know that the organs are receiving more blood for their very rapid growth; as they receive more blood the danger of an operation is greater, for the artery carrying the blood to the testicle is larger and in more danger of being ruptured.

Therefore, if you wish to operate at the perfect time watch the growth of the comb and wattles; when they are just "showing red" is the best and proper time; then there will be little danger to the life of the bird, less pain and no "seiback" to speak of; while if you wait until the comb is bright red and the wattles hang considerably there will be more danger of death and more "slips."

EARLY HATCHED FOWLS BEST

Pullets Mature So That They Begin to Lay in Fall When Fresh Egg Supply is Low.

Every fall hens take a vacation. In doing so they have very important business on hand. Typically feminine by nature, they insist upon having a new dress each fall. During their vacation they are engaged in shedding their old plumage and in growing new, and their energy is so occupied in this way that they lay few or no eggs. The process of molt or changing their plumage takes at least three months on the average, and it is due to this three months' vacation that the supply of fresh eggs is so scarce during the fall and winter. Early hatched pullets mature so that they begin to lay in the fall and early winter, and it is upon these early hatched pullets that the poultry keeper must depend for his supply of eggs during the time the old hens are molting and resting from their labors as egg producers. So if you want eggs when the old hens have quit laying, be sure that you hatch early and have a nice bunch of early hatched pullets coming along to supply the eggs at that time.

MALES FAVOR SCRATCH FEED

Better Plan to Have Medium Sized Fowls Than Two Large, Especially for Breeding.

Cockerals usually eat more scratch feed and less mash than the pullets do. Feeds which develop a medium sized bird are better than to have the cockerals develop into too large roosters, especially those to be saved for breeding purposes.

POULTRY NOTES

As the chicks grow they need more room. It does not pay to let them crowd.

Beware of musty, mouldy, sour, or decayed food. It is sure to cause trouble.

Tough grass is of no value as a green food. Better sow some quick growing crop.

Feed hoppers greatly reduce the work. If they are kept filled, the chicks will never go hungry.

Two-year-old hens had better be sent to the market. They seldom pay for their feed if kept over the third season.

Grit and oyster shell should be included in the ration for both young and old. To neglect this would be poor economy.

SIXTEEN DAYS WORK FUTILE

SOLONS GO HOME WITHOUT PASSING REAPPORTIONMENT

Find It Impossible to Pass Constitutional Bills For Redistricting

After sixteen days of futile debates, of explaining of votes, of questioning each other's judgment if not integrity, the legislature adjourned last Wednesday evening without passing a reapportionment bill or any other legislation. This result was predicted by many even before the legislature convened, as the obstacles standing in the way of redistricting were so many and so insurmountable. Such legislature leaders as Thomas D. Meggison of Antrim county, speaker pro-tem of the House, declared that it was "a well nigh impossible task to enact a constitutional reapportionment of the state senatorial and representative districts under the present constitution."

Developments during the session proved the truth of these early predictions—A bill to rearrange the state senatorial districts to give Wayne seven senators, instead of five as at present, was passed by the Senate, but met defeat in the House, 44 to 41. All efforts to revive this bill proved futile, the 51 standing solid against it.

The House took even more unkindly to any proposal to give Wayne any more representatives, and thus reduce the rural representation. A bill to increase the Wayne county delegation in the House from 14 to 21, was defeated 64 to 32. Later this vote was reconsidered, but when an opinion was received from the Attorney General stating that the bill was plainly unconstitutional in two different respects, even the Detroit members turned against it and it went down in defeat 90 to 3.

According to the rules of the House, a proposition which has been once defeated, then reconsidered and again defeated, can not be brought up again without a suspension of the rules, which requires a two-thirds vote. Failing to secure this, the friends of the measure introduced a new bill, which altogether very similar in substance to the defeated bill, still appeared in a new form, being submitted as an amendment to the old apportionment law. The defeated bill had been an attempt to enact an entirely new law on this subject. The speaker ruled that the new bill was in order because it was in a different form than the one defeated, but an appeal was taken from his decision and the appeal was sustained, 50 to 44. At this point another attempt was made to suspend the rules, but the vote stood 49 to 46 against it.

Detroit members of the legislature and the Detroit newspaper have been outspoken in their condemnation of the majority in the House which has voted against the various apportionment measures which have been brought out on the floor. Farmer members welcomed this new-found interest of the Wayne county people in the sanctity of the constitution. Even the Detroit member who is state secretary for the League against the Eighteenth Amendment, suddenly turned into an ardent and enthusiastic supporter of the most narrow and strict interpretation of the Constitution.

Rep. John Espie of Clinton, commenting on this situation, rebuked the Wayne men who now profess such a high and intensive regard for the Constitution. He said, "Where were you when the Governor and his State Administrative Board stretched the Constitution to steal from the State Board of Agriculture the powers and duties which the Constitution specifically confers upon them. Were you interested then?"

Finding it impossible to apply the reapportionment provisions of the Constitution satisfactorily to the present conditions of the state, the House sent a respectful message to the Governor requesting him to submit a supplementary message permitting the consideration of a Constitutional amendment, to be submitted to the people, providing for a change in the basis of apportionment. There is a wide-spread feeling that representation should be on the basis of citizenship, rather than total population and also that the total number of senators and representatives from any one county should be strictly limited by the Constitution.

But Governor Groesbeck flatly refused to allow the legislature to consider any such proposal. Worse still, he also withheld his consent for the consideration of the pressing problems of highway financing and the gas tax, for which he professed to have such a friendly feeling a few weeks ago. Now a majority of the House members seem to feel that he is interested only in getting greater control in the hands of Wayne county, and they do not like that.

Rep. Floyd Rowe of Hillsdale expressed pretty nearly the feeling of most of the farmer members, when after reminding the House of the misdeeds of the Wayne members and particularly of their opposition to all tax reform, he said, "I do not wish to be a party to any move which allows one county to dictate the affairs of 83 counties. I do not believe that that would be for the best interests of Wayne county, and I am sure it would be most harmful to the state at large."

There are many of the more conservative citizens of Detroit who are inclined to feel the same way about it. They are perfectly satisfied to have their laws made by a legislature with a liberal representation from the rural districts. Even Governor Groesbeck himself is quoted as saying not long ago that Detroit might far better concern itself with the quality of the members which it sends to the legislature, rather than howl for an increased quantity.

Right or wrong, the legislature went home leaving things just as they were. They refused to permit the tail to wag the dog. The special session cost the State considerably over $1,000 for each of the 16 days it lasted.

BIG CROWD ATTENDS HOSPITAL DANCE

Wednesday Night Affair Gratifying Success.

The hospital benefit dance given at the Bank Hall, Wednesday evening, December 26th (which we are able to report owing to this week's issue going to press on Thursday) given by the nursing staff of the Charlevoix Hospital, was a complete success judged from every standpoint.

Much credit is due to Miss Bertha Larsen and her assistants who worked hard to arrange for the dance and to decorate the hall. The old Bank hall certainly presented a very attractive appearance in its holiday garb of bright colored streamers tastefully arranged. The floor was in excellent shape and the music surprisingly good.

Although it was the largest crowd seen in the hall for years, perfect decorum was maintained and this fact was commented upon by many. Everyone seemed to be highly enjoying themselves and things were still going strong when the clock struck midnight.

We hope the young ladies of the hospital duplicate this affair at an early future date. They can be sure of a gratifying response. Figures are not yet available, but it was estimated on competent authority, Wednesday night, that over a hundred dollars would be cleared. That is worth while.

WITHDRAWS BAIL SO BACK TO JAIL

Bondsman Believes Donnelly Meant To "Jump".

William Donnelly, arrested some time ago on a charge of assault with intent to murder Sheriff Harry Pokriefke, was placed back in the Emmet county jail again Saturday when Mrs. Catherine Braun withdrew from his $5,000 bond, declaring her belief in justice record that Donnelly intended to abscond.

Donnelly is charged with attempting to shoot Sheriff Pokriefke when the latter and a party of Emmet county deputy sheriffs raided his farm home east of Petoskey some days ago. The raid was in connection with the liquor case against Donnelly, the latter also being charged with violation of the liquor law. Officers declare Donnelly met them at the door with a gun, slammed the door and that when it was forced open, tried twice to shoot the sheriff.

He was overpowered and his gun taken away from him. Liquor was secured at the time of the visit, officers reported, and eight patrons of the place were present when the raid took place. Their names were taken by the officers for use later in connection with the two cases.

HOME-COMING PARTY FOR MISS LEMIEUR

A home coming party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Lemieur, on Mason street last Saturday evening for their daughter, Miss Mary Lemieur, who has recently returned from the Sacred Heart Academy at Grand Rapids, which she has been attending this fall.

About twenty of her friends and former school-mates were present. A fine supper was served, after which games of various kinds were enjoyed until ten o'clock when the guests reluctantly departed.

Congregationalists Greet That Rash
Infant, 1924, Who Appears In Storm

The social rooms of the Congregational church were thrown wide open on New Year's eve and in spite of the blinding storm and almost impassible streets, banked high with snow, a delightful company gathered at the invitation of Rev. and Mrs. Long who were host and hostess from 9:00 p. m. until 11:30 p. m., the company being entertained with games and folk-songs in which all joined heartily.

Considerable pains had been taken to have the rooms appropriately decorated. Looking at you from the walls in every direction was the significant sign—"A Happy New Year", which greeting got into the mouth and heart of all present and made the glow and warmth of the room brighter and warmer, though the storm raged outside.

At about eleven o'clock, Mrs. Tumuth, the caterer for the occasion announced that coffee and doughnuts were waiting, ready to be served. And such doughnuts—yum! yum!—sugar coated, and such coffee—no lead to real cream and sugar; well, enough said. If you were there you know, if not, it is too late now.

But the best of the feast followed immediately in the church auditorium, where a musical program given by a local choir that had been drilled by Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Oldham, until all the selections of anthems and hymns in which the congregation joined in singing made the church vibrate with notes of praise.

A few remarks by the pastor followed, on "The Turning of the Leaf", calling to mind the finger marks, stains and marks of toil on the leaf to be turned over but contrasting the encouragement that comes with having offered to each a new, clean page upon which to make the record for 1924. And in due time, just as the clock struck out the old year but rung in the new—the pastor took advantage of the audience in wishing each one a happy and prosperous New Year.

"Oward Christian Soldier" was sung as a recessional by an enthusiastic choir and audience, in keeping with the wonderful organ accompaniment play by Mrs. Oldham. At about 12:15 on the first day of the new year, the company wended their several ways homeward, glad indeed for the privilege of such earnest fellowship and rejoicing in the privilege of Christian brotherhood.

A clipping from the Clearwater (Fla.) Sun which came to us recently tells of a housewarming held in that city recently for Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. Butler, formerly of this city and for the past few years residents of Clearwater.

"Florida is one of the ideal states for reunions, and the housewarming which was given to Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Butler on Tuesday evening at their beautiful new residence on East Cleveland street, was one of the happiest ever held in the Sunset City.

The guests of the evening were nearly all formerly from Charlevoix, Michigan, and the majority have located permanently in Clearwater.

It is also worthy of note that these residents are among the best boosters in the city and all are doing their part for the progress of this section.

The entertainment consisted of singing old time songs. Some of the Lee Sneathen of Hayes township, winner of sweepstake at the Duluth International Potato Show, also winner of first place in the 60 pound certified seed exhibit at the Michigan Apple and Potato Show at Grand Rapids, reports that he has recently signed an agreement to sell his potatoes to the United Seed Exchange of Pennsylvania.

Mr. Sneathen states that as long as he makes such winnings at the potato shows as he has this fall, he has no fear but what he will be able to sell all the certified seed he can grow. Although Mr. Sneathen dug over nine hundred bushels of his seed this fall in order to secure stock for the show, he says it was time well spent, as the advertising value of the publicity more than offsets the cost of digging by hand.

Mr. Sneathen also was a contestant in the Three Hundred Bushel Potato Club and was one of the bronze engraved watch fobs put out by the Michigan Potato Producers' association. Mr. Sneathen had a yield of three hundred ninety bushels over a two acre patch.

OFFICERS FIND PLENTY OF LI-

George Baldwin Goes To Bellaire Jail With a Truck Load of Apparatus

Things were stirred up considerably in the little Antrim County village of Alba a week ago Saturday evening.

County officers from Bellaire, armed with a search warrant, visited the "Old Wagon Shop" in the northern part of the village which is occupied by one, George Baldwin and his mother. The first story is used as a machine shop, the second story as a dwelling and the basement for machines and storage.

When the party of officers arrived, Mr. Baldwin was not in. Despite the protests of the women in the house at the time, a search was started and resulted in the finding of a room in the basement, partitioned off and tightly sealed. This was broken into and "the murder was out". There was a still and complete equipment, two gallons of moonshine whiskey, two gallons of fermented liquor, the juice from fermented grain and one and a half barrels of mash. A loaded six shooter, equipped with a Maxim silencer completed the outfit.

Like the spider in his web, the officers sat down to wait. Presently, in came Baldwin, his pockets filled with empty bottles and was promptly placed under arrest. His next journey was to jail at Bellaire, accompanied by a dray load of "the evidence". He was arraigned before an Alba justice on December 24th and waived examination, where upon he was required to furnish a bond of $1,000 and failing in this was remanded to jail.

Baldwin freely acknowledged his guilt, stating that he was intending to clear out the entire business on Christmas day. He claimed he hadn't made much of the stuff, but the seized outfit contained an account book which appears to show that he had been doing quite an extensive business. The book is said to contain some very interesting names, but, unfortunately, they cannot be published.

The above is by way of a report to the tax paying public of that phase of the school work. Following the semester examinations it is planned to publish a report of the results of the examinations.

Parent's wouldn't it be a fine New Year's resolution to promise yourself that you will visit the schools at least once each semester, meeting everyone of Johanna's teachers and tell them of his particular traits, knowing which, they could the better manage him?

Remember, each teacher has a number of Johanna's and Jennies and your help in aiding them to understand your child adds to his or her efficiency. Then wonder if it wouldn't be a worthy resolve for the parents of pupils whose marks do not average a "B" to see that at least one hour of each day—preferably, early in the morning when their minds are fresh, be given to their studies. ROBERT E. NEW- VILLE IS DEAD

WAS ONCE STATE GRAND MAS-TER OF ODD FELLOWS

Boys City Pioneer Business Man Widely Known Throughout This Region

The funeral of the late Robert E. Newville, who departed this life last Wednesday, was held from the home of his son Floyd, 808 East Division street, Boyne City, at two o'clock Saturday afternoon.

The service was conducted by Rev. G. W. White, pastor of the Boyne City Presbyterian church. Interment in Maple Lawn cemetery.

Robert E. Newville was born in Allegany county, New York, August 20, 1853. His early education was obtained in his native state, in Iowa and in Michigan, a course in a business college at Adrian prepared him for a commercial career. He was with a grocery firm at Schofield, Michigan, for a time. On his arrival at Boyne City in March 1881, he engaged in lumbering and in July, 1883, became bookkeeper and manager in the general store of John Monroe, Sr., and for three years from 1883 was with W. H. White engaged in getting out lumber. Selling out to Mr. White, he was in the livery business until 1893, and for five years following was travelling representative of an insurance company. In 1898 Mr. Newville was appointed postmaster at Boyne City and served until 1923. In 1910 he began the development of a farm of one hundred and sixty acres within a short distance of the city. His first public office was that of school inspector, and he also served as village assessor, as deputy sheriff two terms, and as under-sheriff one term. In 1916 Mr. Newville was elected Grand Master of the Grand Lodge I. O. O. F. of Michigan, completing his term in 1918.

For all the news, read the Courier.

which in itself should be extremely gratifying to teacher and parent as well, he appends a few remarks which are well worth considering.

The parent-teacher association idea, while not new in the educational world, is new to Charlevoix. It has been successfully worked in many places, specifically in Traverse City, where they have a fine, strong organization whose meetings are faithfully attended and which serves as a general clearing house of valuable ideas pertaining to education. Addresses are made by interesting speakers on subjects with which they are expertly familiar and there is a very pleasant social side to the meetings, as well. But we will let the superintendent put his own case.

"The following is the attendance report of the Charlevoix schools for the first three months of the school year, 1923-24.

and their increased interest in school. What do you mothers and fathers say of a parent-teacher association? Call at your superintendent's office and talk it over. This business of making John and Mary useful citizens is a big one and we need to get together on it.

Do not come to school only when you think you have a grievance. You are welcome even then and I believe that our records of these last two years show that not a person coming with such an idea has gone away on other than friendly terms, but come when you feel the very best as well as when you come to show the other side of your nature.

Seek to know us. We're human too. We like to meet you as friends as well as in an official way. Ninety-eight per cent of your boys and girls are the best in Michigan. Help us lift the other two per cent to a higher plane.

—Charles Hamilton.

On December 31, 1876 Mr. Newville was united in marriage to Miss Florence C. Hill in Monroe county, Mich., and there are five surviving children, Floyd of this city, Irving of Port Huron, and Earl, Bert and Loyal of Detroit.

In 1916 Mr. Newville accepted a position as accountant in the office of the Auditor General, and moved to Lansing where he remained until his health failed. He returned to Boyne City last May.

NEW YEAR USHERED IN A REAL WINTER

Weather Forecasters Predict An Early Spring, However

If the weather on New Year's day is any indication, the year 1924 is destined to be a turbulent one. The first day of the year marked the third day of a violent storm which has been sweeping the nation and today is still continuing its hold in this region though greatly abated. With considerable snow in the air and the mercury hovering around 10 to 12 degrees above zero, the usual New Year visits were largely abandoned in favor of a place near the glowing stove. In fact, the principal indoor amusement of the day was shoveling coal and hunting for one's haadkerchief. A few hardy souls hiked to Mt. McSauth with their skis, built a fire and managed to have a good time. They reported the snow too soft for real sport however and the wind so strong that it was impossible to fall over once one got started down the hill.

Last year the weather was considered unusually mild with little snow and the weather quite warm. This mild weather continued well into January. Weather forecasters, however, predict that the cold weather, ice and snow will not hang on as late in the spring of 1924 as it did during last spring. We can all remember the spring floods and washouts as late as April 20th last year and trouble from high water up to May 1st, when navigation opened, the big steamer Algoma being the first boat to open a passage through the straits of Mackinac.

MISS WEBSTER WEDS RICHARD K. PADDOCK

Ceremony Took Place On Evening of January 1st

Miss Helen Anita Webster, eldest daughter of Amos Webster of this city, was quietly married last Tuesday evening to Richard K. Paddock, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Paddock of Charlevoix.

The ceremony took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Oakley Hammond on the north side at 9:30 p. m., in their presence, Rev. H. R. E. Quatt conducting the marriage service. The happy pair, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Hammond, appeared later in the evening at the Masonic dance in the Temple and received the congratulations of many of their friends.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Paddock are lifelong residents of Charlevoix and popular members of the younger social set. Mr. Paddock is attending the Michigan Agricultural College at Lansing and his bride has until quite recently and for several years been employed in the dry-goods department of the A. E. Mason store. The Courier joins with their many friends in wishing them a long life of prosperity and happiness together.

MRS. SEARS TO RUN BELVEDERE

HER APPOINTMENT AUGURS
WELL FOR 1924 SEASON.

Has Exceptional Qualifications and Experience—Will Carry on Club's New Plans.

Announcement is made by the Belvedere Club, formerly known as the Charlevoix Summer Home Association, that the Hotel Belvedere for the coming season will be under the management of Mrs. F. Irene B. Sears.

Mrs. Sears has, for several years, successfully managed the Charlevoix Beach Hotel and it is felt that her experience and many exceptional qualifications are a guarantee of a successful season at the Belvedere for the coming year.

The new plans of management adopted last year and which proved so popular will be carried through to completion. Further improvements will be made and with the introduction of the club idea and a still more homelike and intimate atmosphere, the officers of the Club feel that the hotel is destined to become more popular than ever before.

Special efforts will be made to attract guests earlier in the season and to hold them later to enjoy the beauties of the early summer and the late fall, in which the Charlevoix region peculiarly excels.

The members of the Club are prepared to give Mrs. Sears unqualified and loyal support and her many friends are confident that an even larger degree of success than she has heretofore enjoyed will be hers.

We cannot help commenting on the happy selection of the new name for the Charlevoix Summer Home Association. Besides the virtue of being far less cumbersome and relieved from the suggestion of real estate activities which the old name carried, "Belvedere Club" conveys to the mind an exact picture of the character of the organization for which it stands—not the hotel alone, nor the cottages alone, but a harmonious whole, dedicated to the maintenance of a delightful social life.

DOG CHASED FROM WOODS BY A LION

Catamount Visits Sears Fox Farm
In Search of Food

Tales of a strange beast roaming the woods near the Sears' Fox Farm lately were corroborated last week when the animal, whose huge padded tracks had frequently been seen in the snow near the farm, chased a dog out of the woods and was later shot by a local hunter.

It is thought the mountain lion, for such the mysterious vagrant is thought to be, escaped some time ago from a Grand Rapids animal show and with the approach of cold weather, wandered into north. His presence near the vicinity of the farm is accounted for by the carcasses of horses at the farm used to feed the foxes. It is not known that he committed any depredations during his short visit to this locality.

LICENSE SALE FALLING OFF

WINTER'S FIRST REAL STORM
SLACKS DEMAND

Plates Issued During 1923 In State
Total 724,352. Receipts Total
$10,000,000

Sale of 1924 automobile license plates appears to have slowed up in northern Michigan, evidently due to the winter storm which has been sweeping the region for two days and also to the fact that a large number of car owners have already put their cars away for the winter and will not purchase their plates until they prepare their cars for use next spring.

County Clerk Chas. H. Emrey, who operates the branch office of the Michigan secretary of state for the sale of the automobile license plates, had sold fifty-eight licenses since sales started on December 21st up to Saturday night.

Many Charlevoix merchants will operate their delivery cars as long as possible during the winter, and some car owners will use their touring cars as long as possible.

Licenses for 724,352 motor vehicles were issued by the department of state in the calendar year of 1923, according to a report completed Thursday. The sale of 1924 license plates is now underway and 1923 books have been closed.

Complete figures regarding the revenue to the state are not yet available, but will total around $10,000,000, of which half goes to the state and half to the counties for highway work.

The year showed an increase of nearly 85,000 registered motor vehicles. In 1922 the total was 639,402. The department is making preparations to issue about 850,000 licenses in 1924.

The number of motor vehicles has nearly tripled in the last five or six years, and there are nearly five times as many cars now as there were eight years ago. In 1916 there were 160,062 licensed motor vehicles; 226,693 in 1917; 262,125 in 1918; 325,813 in 1919; 416,428 in 1920; and 481,367 in 1921. The big jump came in 1922 with an increase of more than 150,000.

In 1923 figures include passenger, commercial and trailer vehicles. On the basis of the 1920 population, of 3,668,412 there is approximately one motor vehicle for every five persons.

WE MADE MOST ROADS IN '23

BIGGEST MILEAGE OF ANY STATE, FIGURES SHOW

Uncle Sam Helped, But Bulk Of Expense Was Paid By Michigan Motorists

Broad gratification over the progress of Michigan road improvement realized by the actual experience of touring motorists is strikingly confirmed in a bulletin of the bureau of Good Roads which functions at Washington within the Department of Agriculture. This bulletin places Michigan in the lead of all the states in number of miles of roads, surfaced during 1923.

To reach this distinction, Michigan surfaced approximately 2,900 miles of highway—a record-breaking total.

Indiana, a state famous for its gravelled truck lines, and one which has been for many years highly progressive in its expenditures for this purpose, stood second, with 2,435 miles of freshly surfaced highway.

In this road building achievement, Michigan has been greatly helped by the federal aid plan through which Uncle Sam matches, virtually dollar for dollar, the state's expenditures for approved type of highway. These highways must pass government inspection before the government's share is paid, thus ensuring that the construction is correct and lasting.

William S. Hart Admirably Supported in Picture, "White Oak"

It has been said that a William S. Hart cast is practically flawless. Not only are the players finished artists, but they typify their roles in the picture. Supporting Mr. Hart in "White Oak," his Paramount picture which comes to the Palace theatre next Wednesday, is Viola Vale, who will be remembered as Mr. Hart's leading woman in "Wolves of the Rail." Of long stage experience and brilliant dramatic successes, Alexander Gaden portrays the villain, while other important roles are in the capable hands of Robert Walker, Bert Sprout, Helen Holley, and Chief Standing Bear.

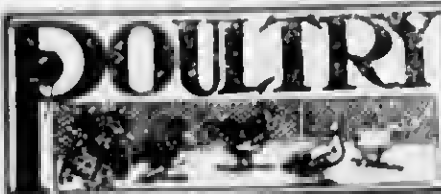

Zane Grey's Novel Read World Over "The Lone Star Ranger," the famous best-seller by Zane Grey which has been made into a motion picture by William Fox with Tom Mix in the starring role, has been read by more than ten million people since its publication in 1915, according to Harper Brothers, publishers.

The noted author's work has been through more than seventeen editions and from the demand that still exists it is likely that it will pass through many more before it is finally abated.

The book has been translated in many foreign languages and found fertile soil in the readers of these countries. The film will be shown at the Palace Theatre next Wednesday.

POULTRY

Department of Agriculture Recommends Careful Selection of Breeding Stock.

The campaign that has been inaugurated by the United States Department of Agriculture to stimulate and increase poultry production along more efficient lines is divided into the following phases:

Careful selection of breeding stock to reproduce a larger percentage of good types of profitable producers.

Early hatching, so as to produce fall and winter layers.

To confine mother hens to brood coops for at least two weeks after the chicks are hatched.

To provide free range for both growing stock and layers in so far as possible to stimulate growth and production and conserve food consumption.

To preserve eggs for winter use.

The production of late-set eggs as soon as the breeding season is over.

Disposing of surplus cockerels as broilers to conserve grain.

To discourage the marketing of all profitable hens of the general purpose class until the end of their second year, and of the Mediterranean or egg class until the end of their third laying year.

To encourage the careful selection of all hens in order to eliminate the unprofitable producers.

To discourage the marketing of all profitable pullets as broilers and of all well-matured pullets for meat.

To encourage the culling of cockerels only when free range can be provided and a special nearby market afforded.

To encourage back-yard poultry keeping, especially among city and suburban dwellers thereby utilizing Laying hens are adapted for production of eggs.

table scraps for the production of fowls and eggs for home consumption.

To encourage turkey, duck and geese raising when circumstances are favorable.

TO KEEP HENS COMFORTABLE

House Must Be Kept Dry, Well Ventilated, and Sufficient Space for Scratching.

The poultry house is both the home of the hen and the factory where winter eggs are produced, and unless it provides suitable living and working conditions the hen cannot be expected to lay well. The chief requirement is that the house must be comfortable. To be comfortable the house must be dry, well ventilated, well lighted, and have sufficient floor space to provide exercise by scratching. Dryness is insured by having a good roof, keeping the floor of the house higher than the surrounding ground, and by providing good ventilation. Ventilation must supply plenty of fresh air without drafts. This is secured in the poultry house by having the south side relatively open and the other three sides absolutely tight. The importance of light in the poultry house has not been properly emphasized in the past.

FERTILE EGGS FOR HATCHING

Maximum Fertility Not Likely to Be Obtained Before Two Weeks After Mating Fowls.

Matings should be made at least two weeks before hatching to save the eggs for hatching. If less time is allowed, the maximum fertility is not likely to be obtained. It is often desirable to mate even further ahead than two weeks so that a few eggs can be incubated for five or six days to see whether they are fertile. If these eggs are not fertile, there is still time to change the male bird and thus be sure of fertile eggs for the earlier hatches.

FRESH AIR VERY IMPORTANT

Not Advisable to Close All Windows at First Approach of Cold Weather in Fall.

Don't close all the windows in the henhouse at the first approach of cold weather, but leave some of them open. If the wind blows in, put a piece of burlap over the open space to keep out the wind, but let in air.

THE CARELESS PEDESTRIAN

"It is my observation," says an automobilist who considers himself a careful driver, "that pedestrians are much more careless than drivers, and more responsible for accidents. They take chances that few drivers would ever take. They dart across a street or road at any place and any moment, regardless of the traffic, and often without looking either way. Of two or three people walking together, whom the driver naturally assumes to be moving as a unit, one is pretty sure to dart across or hold back, so that the driver doesn't know what to do.

"They start across the street at established crossings regardless of traffic signals. It is annoying for them of course to be held up for minutes at a time by a stream of passing cars, and at such times drivers are often inconsiderate. On the other hand, at crossings where they are given their turn, they often start across en masse just when the policeman gives the signal to motor traffic to go ahead, thus endangering their lives or holding up the drivers and making them lose their turn. The drivers have to obey the signals.

"To be sure, the odds are usually against the pedestrian, because the automobile can always do more harm to him than he can do to the automobile. But there is altogether too much blaming of drivers for accidents. If the average driver were as careless of his own safety and as regardless of traffic rules as the average pedestrian, there would be a dreadful slaughter very day."

There is undoubtedly a good deal in this view. It takes both classes to make the streets and highways safe. Perhaps conditions will improve with the multiplication of cars. Eventually almost everybody will have a car, and be both motorist and pedestrian, and understood both sides.

LET CONGRESS KNOW WHERE YOU STAND

The taxpayer as a taxpayer is unorganized. He has no taxpayers' posts, no chapters, no locals, no taxpayers' lodges. There are 7,000,000 of him who pay federal income taxes and ten times as many of him pay federal taxes, directly or indirectly, but he is without an organization to camp on the doorsteps of the capitol and look after his interests. There are farm blocs, dry and wet blocs, labor blocs, and bonus blocs, but there is no taxpayer bloc in Washington.

Every gang of treasury raiders organizes and goes after what it wants. These determined minorities working under high pressure, are usually able to shove aside the majority and take what they want.

That exactly is what is happening in Washington now. A stubborn minority is ready to defeat a majority in the matter of taxation. Secretary Mellon has placed before the country a plan whereby at least $300,000,000 a year can be cut from the load of taxpayers.

If there was ever a majority proposal, this is one. At least 35,000,000 Americans will be directly aided, counting five persons to the average family. Indirectly, it will help nearly every citizen by easing the national tax load.

The vast majority demand these reductions. Americans have been patient under wartime tax burdens carried five years into peace. The Mellon plan is the first ray of sunshine lighting the taxpayer's sky since the war.

What stands in its way? Just one thing—the soldier bonus. Tax reduction can not be put into effect and carried into the future if this nation is to go down into its pockets and eventually pay out four or five billions as a soldier bonus.

Bonus money can come from one place only, and that is the taxpayers' pocket. All the frenzied financial figuring done by the bonus-straddlers in Congress can not figure away the interest charges and amortizations that will be necessary.

It is 7,000,000 income taxpayers, plus every man, woman and child who pays direct or indirect taxes, against about 3,500,000 bonus beneficiaries. On one side 35,000,000 will directly benefit by tax cuts. On the other, not more than 15,000,000 who can benefit directly by the bonus.

It seems reasonable that every consideration of the public interest, of the payers of taxes and even of politics in its larger sense would lead Congress to reject the bonus and approve tax reduction. This might be so if Congress were not in "a state of mind" about the "soldier vote" and if its members had not been trafficking in bonus pledges swapped for the promise of that vote. Congress is suffering from an American Legion "complex" and has not discovered that the Legion itself is not unitedly in favor of the bonus.

Nevertheless, Congress, as a victim of its own delusions, will shove through the bonus, destroying all hope of great and permanent tax reduction, unless it hears in an unmistakable manner from the country. Left to itself it will ignore or mangle the Mellon plan. It will calmly forget that taxation today is taking $15 of every $100 an American lays hands on; that every twelve of us now are supporting some city, county, state or federal official, functionary or tax-eater.

NEW SET OF BOOKS FOR POOR SUPERS

So Efficient That They Almost Keep Themselves.

The Board of County Superintendents of the Poor has a brand new set of books. Lyman E. Benton, secretary of the board, says this is the first time that the poor commissioners of this county have had an up-to-date system of maintaining records of accounts.

The books are two in number—the cash receipts book and the register of warrants paid—with columnar loose leaf sheets, making possible the detailed distribution of amounts paid out or taken in according to what the payments are for or the source of receipts. The proceeds on each item produced and sold at the county infirmary can be quickly obtained over any desired period from the cash receipts record, and all monthly totals in both books are recapitulated or assembled for a grand total at the end of each year. The books will be submitted for yearly audit to representatives of the state auditing department and the figures compared with those shown on the records of the county clerk and treasurer.

The new system makes for accuracy and simplicity in the handling of the board's business and is a distinct step forward in the operation of this important function of our county government.

DAIRY FACTSBIG VALUE OF BETTER SIRES

Offspring of Scrub Cows Bred to Pure-breds Show Great Increase in Milk and Fat.

That purebred sires in the grade dairy herd are worth, while is shown in the results of 14 years of experiments at Iowa State college. In the first generation from the purebred dairy bulls used, production of milk in grade cows was increased 44 per cent and fat production 38 per cent. In the second generation an increase of 110 per cent in milk over the original production was secured and 101 per cent increase in butterfat. This increase would more than pay for the cost of a good sire and the farmer would have a better herd at the end besides.

This work, which is a continuation of an experiment started in 1907 with scrub Arkansas cows, has progressed into the second generation so far and results show conclusively the value of better sires.

The Arkansas scrubs under Iowa conditions had an average production of 4,064 pounds of milk and 157 pounds of fat. The next generation following, made up of the offspring of the scrub cows from purebred sires, had a production of 5,769 pounds of milk and 230 pounds of butterfat. In the next generation, where purebred sires were again used on grade cows, a production of 8,413 pounds of milk and 376 pounds of butterfat resulted.

Holstein, Jersey and Guernsey bulls were used in this experiment. In the original matings of the scrub cows which were later bred to Jersey bulls they produced 4,047 pounds of milk and 194 pounds of butterfat. From the first generation of Jersey matings a production of 4,334 pounds of milk resulted and 204 pounds of butterfat. From the second Jersey mating 6,257 pounds of milk were produced and 320 pounds of butterfat.

Scrub cows later bred to purebred Guernsey bulls produced 4,200 pounds of milk and 196 pounds of butterfat. In a first mating with the Guernsey bulls 4,371 pounds of milk and 231 pounds of butterfat resulted. From Half-Blood Holstein Which Had an Average Production of 6,384 Pounds of Milk and 304.5 Pounds of Butterfat.

The second mating a production of 7,271 pounds of milk and 370 pounds of butterfat were produced. Scrub cows bred later on to purebred Holstein sires had a production of 3,638 pounds of milk and 175 pounds of butterfat. Following a Holstein cross the offspring produced 6,748 pounds of milk and 277 pounds of butterfat. The offspring of a second generation with Holstein sires produced 10,323 pounds of milk and 399 pounds of butterfat.

The scrub Holsteins returned 3,638 pounds of milk and 175 pounds of fat while the first generation of purebred sires showed a production of 6,748 pounds of milk and 277 pounds of butterfat. The second generation increased steadily and showed 10,323 pounds of milk and 399 pounds of butterfat.

All the cows were kept under the same environment and fed as nearly as possible standard rations and received careful handling so that the experiment was uniform.

PROPER FEED FOR DAIRY COW

Animal Should Have All Roughage She Will Clean Up—Proportion of Grain Mixture.

Under most circumstances, the cow should be fed all the roughage that she will eat up clean, adjusting the grain ration to the milk production. Only when the cow tends to become overfat should the quantity of roughage be restricted.

A grain mixture should be fed in the proportion of one pound to each three pints or pounds of milk produced daily by the cow, except in the case of a cow producing a flow of 40 pounds or more, when the ration can be one pound to each three and one-half or four pounds of milk. An even better rule is one pound of grain each day for every pound of butterfat produced during the week by the cow. Feed all the cow will respond to in milk production. When she begins to put on flesh cut down the grain.

Sire is Half of Herd.
The sire counts for half of the dairy herd. Remember this when you are buying a new head for your herd and don't be content with a scrub.

Water Needed by Cow.
A good milk-producing cow ought to have in the summer time at least 150 pounds of water a day, and in the winter time about 100 pounds.

Bring Small Returns.
Poor rations fed to poor cows are certain to keep the pocketbook thin.

NATIONAL HIGHWAY ASSOCIATION

It is high time the legislative and judicial authorities began to consider the crime (the word is used advisedly) of drunkenness when driving a motor car as something infinitely more serious than is drunkenness under ordinary circumstances. Prohibition is as yet too new for the world old opinion of the drunken man, as one to be laughed at, pitied, perhaps, put to bed to sober up, fined a small sum as a public nuisance, to change, at least overnight.

But drunkenness which can harm no one but the inebriated man is one thing; drunkenness which is menace to all who use the streets and roads, and which via the car, converts the otherwise innocuous victim of his appetite to a potentially wholesale murderer is entirely something else.

Sentiment is swinging over to regarding the drunken driver as one who commits more than a misdemeanor; but it should swing faster and go further. The man who, drunk, drives a car or truck, is a madman, a man without sense, without reasonability, without judgment. He puts in jeopardy the lives of men, women, and children. He endangers property. He may cause frightful loss of life, hideous maimings, terrible accidents. No mania with a gun is allowed upon the streets; the man who deliberately makes himself a maniac and fits himself out with a car loaded with potential death for many, should be dealt with the utmost severity. A few dollars' fine, a few days in jail, the loss of a license, are not enough. The man who runs amuck with a gun, killing and maiming, gets years behind the bars. The man who runs amuck with a car while drunk is even more culpable.

Let judges once get it through their precedent bound legal minds that it is not the drunkenness, but the drunken driving which is the crime, and our already crowded hard roads will be safer for us all; our children, our women drivers, as well as our sober citizens protected, as they have a right to be, from a menace which has no excuse, legal or social, for existing.

MICHIGAN FARMERS CUT DOWN CROP PRODUCTION

Low Price and Poor Marketing Con- ditions Discourage Activity of Farmer

Michigan farmers, in keeping with the general policy in all states east of the Rocky mountains, sowed a smaller acreage of wheat this year. The estimated area in the state is 913,000 as compared with 1,014,000 sown in 1922, and 968,000 harvested in 1923, as reported by Verne H. Church, U. S. Agricultural Statistician and L. Whitney Watkins, State Commissioner of Agriculture. The condition is 91 per cent of normal, one per cent better than last year and also one per cent better than the ten-year average. The crop has made a growth in all sections but some that was planted late is still below normal in size. There was also some fly damage reported from southwestern counties.

The area seeded in the United States is 40,191,000 acres as against 45,950,000 one year ago. The only states showing an increased acreage over last year are New Mexico, Nevada and Washington. Kansas reported a decrease of approximately 1,600,000 acres or 13 per cent. Missouri a decrease of 25 per cent. Illinois 17 per cent, Indiana 13 per cent, and Nebraska 12 per cent. The condition is 88 per cent as compared with 79.5 one year ago, and 86.5 the ten-year average.

Following the 25 per cent decline in the acreage of rye last year, in Michigan, a further slump of 22 per cent is reported this year. While the state still holds third place, the acreage sown this fall is only 364,000 as compared with 620,000 in 1920. The condition is 91 per cent, or one per cent below that of the corresponding date last year and the ten-year average.

The decrease in acreage was general in all rye states except Virginia, Nebraska, Kansas and Colorado, and the total for the 15 important states is estimated at 4,377,000 or 780,000 acres less than the revised estimates for the 1922 crop. The low price of rye is chiefly responsible for the reduction. The increase in a few western states may be attributed to the discouragement of some farmers in the low wheat yields obtained and, in some cases, an entire loss of their acreage which has caused them to shift from wheat to rye. While the condition on December 1 often has little relationship to the final yield, it is of interest for comparative purposes. The average is 89.9 per cent, the same as the ten-year average, and 5.6 per cent better than on the same date last year.

Twin Brother to T. B.

Cause of Cattle Loss

"The twin brother to tuberculosis" is one of the names given by veterinarians to a fatal disease which causes havoc in any herd where it gains entrance.

This disease, also called Johne's disease, and resembling tuberculosis somewhat in symptoms and effects, is not a new one but has often been confused with tuberculosis, so has not recently been credited with the seriousness that it deserves. Herds in dairy states are menaced if this twin brother to T. B. once gets its hold on a dairy animal.

"It is believed that once Johne's disease gets under way in the animal death is certain to result from it," says H. A. Beach, veterinarian at the Wisconsin College of Agriculture. "The annual loss in Wisconsin so far reported may run as high as 12 per cent in badly infected herds. The disease is a contagious one and purchase from an infected herd is usually the origin of the trouble in other herds."

"Another bad feature of this disease is that it generally affects only young heifers. Because of this tendency to affect the most valuable stock and because its spread is so rapid, this disease is worse than tuberculosis."

Symptoms of Johne's disease show about six months after the germs of infection gain entrance to the body. Immediately after calving is when the infected animals are most apt to show the symptoms.

Infected animals lose flesh rapidly so that they become mere walking skeletons. Diarrhea occurs at intervals and the milk flow is greatly reduced and finally stops. The disease, which is contracted through the mouth in feeding yards, can be detected by the Johne test, which according to Mr. Hastings, head of the bacteriology department at the experiment station, is similar to the tuberculosis test.

"That much can be done," says Mr. Hastings, "through the use of this test, to decrease the spread of this disease in a herd has been demonstrated in Denmark. Prompt removal and isolation of all animals reacting to the test is the only prevention."

Complete descriptions of the symptoms and effects of the disease and methods of detection and prevention of its spread in dairy herds are given in bulletin 343 issued by the agricultural station, Madison, Wis.

Economical Hog Ration Given by Ohio Station

In a bulletin recently published by the Ohio experiment station on "supplements to corn for fattening swine" some figures were given on the various amounts of feed required to produce 100 pounds of gain. The pigs used were pure breeds, weighing about 82 pounds each, and were fed in dry lots by means of self-feeders. One lot was fed corn and tankage at the rate of 12 parts corn to one part tankage. Fluctuating corn at 40 cents a bushel and tankage at $3 a hundred, it cost $2.91 for each 100 pounds of gain. Another lot was fed one part corn to two parts skim milk. Fluctuating on the same price for corn, the feeding value of the skim milk amounted to only $1.15, or 18.7 cents per cent, as compared with tankage in feeding value. This does not mean that tankage is always more economical than skim milk. For young pigs, skim milk is superior to tankage. However, there is not enough milk produced by the farm for feeding purposes. It is more economical to buy tankage than skim milk.

Hog-Growing Contests Make Better Breeders

Hog-growing contests in which the object is to make a litter weigh a ton when six months old have demonstrated the soundness of the recommendations which have long been made by the various state department stations and the United States Department of Agriculture. In one of these contests conducted last year by the Indiana Live Stock Breeders' association 555 farmers enrolled and 33 of them raised 30 litters which weighed 2,000 pounds or more at the end of 180 days.

The important facts for pig producers to remember, says E. Z. Russell, in charge of swine investigations for the United States Department of Agriculture, is that all of the winning litters were farrowed and suckled in clean quarters; all were stired by pure-bred sows; 28 of the dams were pure-bred; 6 were high-grades and 2 cross-breds; none of the 33 litters contained fewer than 10 pigs; and all of them were farrowed by old sows. On the average, therefore, the pigs in these record litters weighed 200 pounds when they had reached the tender age of six months.

Many states are holding similar contests this year, says the department, and it is expected that the results will make a large number of converts to the principles and practices of better breeding, feeding and care, not only for hogs, but for all kinds of farm animals.

Horses Are Annoyed by Botfly Pest in August

During August, horses are annoyed to a considerable extent by the presence of botflies. The the skin of horses' legs, and are most annoying to horses' legs.

Botflies deposit small yellow eggs, and deposit them to hairs at the time they are laid. During the late fall and early winter the eggs enter the horse's mouth. Later the eggs hatch in the stomach, and develop into the larval form known as bots. They attach themselves to the lining of the stomach, where they remain and consume some of the nutriment that should nourish the horse. During late spring and early summer the bots pass out in the manure. They at once burrow into the ground, where they undergo changes in their life cycle, and soon emerge as fully developed botflies.

Bots produce no definite symptoms, neither is there any satisfactory treatment that can be applied. Prevention is easy, and practicable to a considerable extent. Every few days during the fall months all hairs should be clipped off that contain eggs of botflies. By thus reducing the number of eggs the number of bots will be reduced.

Pigs on Rape Pasture Require Some Tankage

Tests in hog feeding conducted by W. L. Robinson of the Ohio experiment station show an advantage of feeding some tankage as a supplement to corn to pigs on rape pasture. Some farmers have believed that rape pasture alone is a satisfactory supplement for corn.

Pigs weighing 36 pounds and fed a ration of corn 19, tankage 1, parts by weight, for 18 weeks on rape pasture weighed 171 pounds at the end of the experiment.

A similar lot of pigs full fed on corn alone but on rape pasture for 18 weeks made a final weight of 149 pounds.

The average daily gain for the tankage-fed group is 1.1 pounds and nine-tenths of a pound for the lot full fed on corn alone.

The tests show that rape is a valuable pasture for swine, but it will not fully supplement a full-fed ration of corn.

Self-Feeders for Swine Fattening Reduce Cost

Wherever labor can be saved on the farm and results accomplished just as satisfactorily, by all means save the labor. Results of experiments at the University of Missouri College of Agriculture with self-feeders for fattening hogs show that those eating from a self-feeder gain more rapidly than those depending on the hand-feeding methods. The amount of feed necessary to produce a pound of pork remains practically the same, but the amount of labor is usually reduced. It is this decrease in labor which enters as a factor in cheapening the cost of producing pork.

Profitable to Provide Plenty Shade and Water

It is a profitable practice to provide plenty of shade and water for the hogs. While trees furnish the best shade a simple sun protection in the form of a straw or brush roof supported by posts will be satisfactory for this purpose if left open at the sides. The hog is not equipped with sufficient sweat glands for cooling purposes and needs this help during the heat of summer.

LIVE STOCK NOTES

If a sow farrows during severe weather, artificial heat may be needed for the farrowing pen.

The silo saves labor; cattle can be fed easily and quickly from the silo which is close at hand and always in a feeding condition.

A combined hay and cattle barn makes an economical arrangement for many farms. Make the hay door for your barn less than 8 feet wide and 12 feet high. Slugs will go through this.

Sheep require salt and it should be available at all times, for an irregular supply induces overeating of the salt, which causes scours. Further than limiting the supply of salt or of mixing it with their feed, it is best to let sheep eat as much as they wish.

Steers fed succulent feeds usually sell 15 cents to 75 cents per hundred weight higher on the market in addition to making larger gains. Cost must be considered, however, in buying succulent feeds, as water has no feed value of its own.

Some men can't live up to their opportunities because they have to live down to their reputations.

ANTRIM COUNTY RED CROSS NOTES

Work Accomplished During the Past Three Months.

During the months of September, October, November and December, we inspected Mancelona, Elk Rapids, and Ellsworth schools, and 33 rural schools. In these we inspected 1074 school children of which 727 were defective, having defects of the teeth, throat, vision and the simple thyroid or goiter. 222 children were 7 per cent and over underweight. There is a marked improvement over last year's underweights, but there is much room for improvement, as many of our children are undernourished and many of the children who are up to weight are poorly nourished, their flesh is soft and flabby instead of firm. They need vegetables such as cabbage (raw), onions, beets, carrots, rutabagas and tomatoes. Also children need to be impressed with the idea that food is to be masticated and not swallowed whole. Often children have a well balanced meal, but do not chew the food so that the stomachs can take care of it and feed the tissues.

We have given 47 health talks and 38 tooth brush drills. We find that many of our children have decayed teeth which should have a dentist's

MAKES RAPID HEADWAY

Add This Fact to Your Store of Knowledge

Kidney disease often advances so rapidly that many a person is firmly in its grasp before aware of its progress. Prompt attention should be given the slightest symptom of kidney disorder. If there is a dull pain in the back, headaches, dizzy spells or a tired, worn-out feeling, or if the kidney secretions are offensive, irregular and attended by pain, procure a good kidney remedy at once. Your townspeople recommend Doan's Pills. Read the statement of this Charlevoix citizen.

Daniel Himebaugh, 107 W. Upright Ave., says: "I had a lame back and felt bad a good many times with backache. I was bothered by the weak and irregular action of my kidneys and had to get up three or four times at night to pass the secretions, which were highly colored and contained sediment. A few boxes of Doan's Pills, bought at Metcalf's Drug store, fixed me up in a fine way."

care, and defective throats which should have the care of the family physician. Everyone feels very keenly about the crippled child who needs care and treatment, but seem to think that children who have chronic ailments and are suffering from rheumatism, kidney trouble, frequent colds and sore throats and extreme nervousness will out-grow their difficulties, while in reality there is very little difference as far as the child is concerned, only that the child who is suffering from decayed teeth or defective throats can be cared for at much less pain and expense than the crippled child.

Many a child is hurried at home because he is "slow to learn," when it is a physical impossibility for the child to do better work with the system constantly absorbing toxins from these putrifying teeth and tonsils; these chronic conditions clear up when the mouth is placed in a healthy condition. And the slow mentality improves greatly.

We are told that "Health is Wealth," and like wealth it is something to work for. It is something that comes as an "accidental blessing," but something to have if we go after it now.

BELL COMPANY TIES NAME WITH SYSTEM

MICHIGAN UTILITY IS KNOWN NOW AS MICHIGAN BELL TELEPHONE CO.

Announcement have been received, with their January statements for service, by local telephone subscribers that the name of the Michigan State Telephone company has been changed to Michigan Bell Telephone company effective January 1. Similar announcement is carried in the advertising columns of this paper.

Reason assigned by telephone officials for the change of name is that its name should indicate the company's association in the Bell System as it does the state it serves.

It also is explained that the company is a Michigan corporation, organized in Michigan for the purpose of giving "Universal Service" to Michigan people, both designations, "Michigan" and "Bell," therefore being appropriately used in the company's name.

Officials of the company announce that the task of consolidating the properties and service of the former Citizens' company with the Bell company, in some 63 towns and cities of Western Michigan, is progressing very favorably. Use of the unified toll service between the towns affected and to other points has increased considerably since the consolidation went into effect, indicating to telephone people that unified service was a greatly needed for interurban as for local business. The work of unification of the services has been completed in all but three or four of the towns affected, such as Grand Rapids, LaSalle and Jackson, where the task is one of great magnitude but where it is well under way.

The company has a considerable program of expansion under way for 1924, it is stated. Approximately 10,000 people are now in the employ of the Michigan Bell company throughout the state.

Early Molting Hens Are Poor Paying Proposition

What is the trouble with the poultry business? Why are fewer hens kept this year? Is the poultry business going backward? All these questions, and many more like them, have been asked recently.

What is the trouble with the poultry business? Would not any other business fail if it were conducted as the poultry business is conducted? Every female kept is not necessarily a good money maker. Some hens never lay. Some lay a few eggs. But it takes a hen that lays a good quantity of eggs to pay for her feed and return a fair profit above labor, interest, etc.

It has been proved beyond doubt that early molting hens are poor producers. Hens that begin to shed their feathers in July and August seldom start to lay before the latter part of January or the early part of February. Many poultrymen realize the necessity of culling out their poor producers in order to stay in the poultry business.

With the present prices of feed, it is absolutely essential that only the best hens be kept. One farmer last year selected from 500 laying hens 104 that he considered poor producers. No trap nests were used, but the hens were examined from external characteristics. These 104 hens were put in a house by themselves. The following day they laid four eggs.

The flock was again tested and the four layers were selected, leaving an even hundred unproductive hens. They were carefully watched for several weeks and did not lay an egg. At last they were sold. Similar instances prove that the selection of poultry pays. Why not save the tremendous amount of feed fed the poor hens and put it into better stock or human food?

Increase production and increase efficiency, by keeping the late molters. Hatch in September and thus increase the meat and egg supply of the country. Full hatching of chickens will pay. This is from these hatcheries will take the place of the early molters disposed of. Breed only from the late molters. Selection is a big step toward greater poultry efficiency and to a more profitable poultry business.

Increasing Demand for Disliked Guinea Fowls

Guinea fowls, which have suffered unpopularity with farmers because of pronounced propensities for noise-making during the sleeping hours of humans, are likely to rise above this objection in view of a steadily increasing demand for their delicious flesh, in the opinion of a poultry specialist of the United States Department of Agriculture. Guinea-fowl raising now is a profitable side line on eastern farms and may offer opportunities to the commercial poultryman in a few cases. In Farmers' Bulletin 858, "The Guinea Fowl," the specialist discusses the guinea business from the starting of a flock to marketing the produce, which is largely meat.

Colony House System of Poultry Raising Favored

One of the many advantages of the colony house system of poultry raising is that the birds have ample opportunity to find natural food, such as bugs, worms, grasshoppers, etc. This is a very necessary part of the diet if you are raising poultry for the eggs they will produce. If you have movable houses for the flock, place them near fields likely to harbor destructive insects; this will protect the crop and at the same time provide the necessary natural food.

Outline of Good Ration for Growing Ducklings

A good ration for ducklings consists of one part bran, one part cornmeal, one part ground crackers or stale bread made into a mash. Then 10 per cent beef scrap is added, as well as fine green food and a little sand. Be sure that the bread is not moldy and that all other ground grains are of good quality.

POULTRY NOTES

"The hen is the only thing on the farm that can make money by 'just laying around.'"

Paint the outside of the hen house; make it look as though it belonged to somebody.

Much loss could be prevented if those engaged in the poultry business were to examine their flocks regularly for indications of disease of any character.

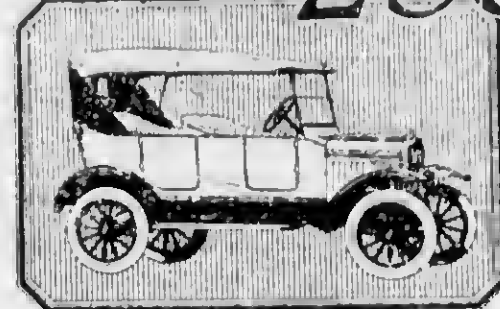

The white chicks that are somewhat dirty in color at time of hatching are the birds which turn out to be the best breeders at maturity.

Provide as much water per day as the poultry will drink. Keep all drinking vessels clean and send them out frequently.

Don't overlook the value of feeding gritty substances to the poultry frequently. This performs the same mission for poultry that teeth do for men and animals.

A Striking Value—at $295

Considering the improved appearance of the new Ford Touring Car, one would naturally expect a proportionate advance in price.

Larger scale production, however, has made it possible to incorporate in this new type touring car a number of decided improvements without increasing its cost to the purchaser.

A comparison extending over a long period of years will reveal the fact that the present price is actually the lowest at which the five-passenger open car has ever been sold.

The Ford Touring Car stands today, as it always has, a most remarkable value in the motor car field.

ANOTHER CHARLEVOIX BOY HAS MADE GOOD

Bobby Jarvis Termed Wonderful Comedian In South

We are in receipt of a clipping from the theatrical page of a Birmingham, Ala., paper which contains a discussion by a noted dramatic critic of the work of Robert Jarvis, son of Mrs. C. S. Morrison of Boyne City, as a member of the cast of "The Gingham Girl" recently staged in Birmingham. Both Mrs. Morrison (who is perhaps best known to Charlevoixians as Mrs. Agnes Jarvis) and her son have many friends in this city and it is with pleasure that we note the good things that the dramatic connoisseurs of a big southern city have to say about one of our home boys.

Among them we might quote—"a comedian the like of which one seldom sees"—"young, boyish, versatile Bobby Jarvis, worthy of George Cohan's attention. Here is a boy who 'gets away' with more clever lines and more clever 'stage business' than anybody we've seen in ages"—"just so funny, so different and so clever in everything that he does that the audience fairly roars and shouts with laughter whenever he is on the stage, which is most of the time." Then again—"Bobby Jarvis is so funny and has so much clever stuff at his finger tips that he doesn't have to resort to 'clap-trap' stuff to get the part over."

Mrs. Bobby Jarvis, who under the stage name of Edna Dare takes the part of Sonya Mason of Greenwich Village in "The Gingham Girl" is also very flatteringly noted by the critic as having "presented a rare bit of artistry and Bohemianism."

METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

Week of January 6th.

This first of the new year ought to call forth all energy within us. After a season of reciprocal gifts and so much emphasis of the born Messiah, one surely ought to feel his need of a more thoroughly consecrated service to God.

The opening year is a new challenge. East and west of us is war famine and earthquake. At our own south is revolution. What an opportunity for service in such a country as ours!

During January we will consider the following themes in the church services morning and evening:

In the morning at 10:30 o'clock—January 6, "The Church's Business."

January 13, "The Church's growth."

January 20, "The Church's Past."

January 27, "The Church's Influence."

In the evening at 7:00 o'clock—January 6, "Youth and Independence."

January 13, "Youth and Questions."

January 20, "Youth and Riches."

January 27, "Youth and Law."

This Sunday at 10:30 a. m., the pastor will preach a sermon on "The Church's Business."

12 M. Sunday school. Lessons based in the old testament. Subject, Chosen Leaders in a Church Land.

3:00 p. m. Junior League. The young folks would be pleased to add some to their number.

6:00 p. m. Epworth League. We want the young people. There are large numbers not identified with other work. This is an invitation to you to come with us.

7:00 p. m. Evening worship, subject, "Youth and Independence." The pastor will preach. Young people, we want you to hear this sermon.

Prayer meeting this Thursday at 7:30 p. m. Study Mark, 13th chapter.

Tuesday evening January 8th, is the anniversary of our "Church Family Night." We will meet in the lower auditorium for supper. This body will comprise all the church and its friends. Shift other things and have this date open for this important event. With it we propose a kitchen shower. During the evening we will hold the Official Board. There will be music and singing. The supper will be on the picnic order. Remember, next Tuesday.

Services at Greensky Indian church this Sunday at 2:30 p. m., preceded by Sunday school.

In this connection it is of interest that the federal government is now holding a fund of over eight million dollars at present available for further aid in Michigan road building.

But the main basis for all road building in Michigan continues to be the huge sum which Michigan motorists annually pay into the state treasury in the form of licenses, horse-power tax, and similar imposts. More than $10,500,000 was collected by the state from its motorists in this way during 1923 and it is estimated that over $12,000,000 will be collected in 1924 from the same sources.

On a fair valuation of $200,000,000, Michigan motor cars are carrying a tax burden obviously heavier than that of any other property in the state. That these taxes continue to be cheerfully paid is certain evidence of the enthusiasm among Michigan motorists for the good roads cause of which they have always been the loyal and unselfish supporters.

It is these taxes from which the state government derives, directly or indirectly, a large share of the huge sum which, duplicated by the national government, has enabled Michigan to assume the lead of the whole country in improved highway construction.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

Sunday is "Every Member Canvass" Sunday. You should not try to dodge the issue and it is not expected that you will. The finances of the church have to be provided for and if you look to this church for ministry, you will want to bear a proper share of the expense necessary to the upkeep and forward movement.

This year the subscription cards show two columns, one for local expenses and another for world-wide or benevolence offerings. You are being given the chance to designate how much you wish to contribute to each. Look well to this and fill in card accordingly. Be fair to yourself and the Christian church to which institution as Roger Babson says you owe a debt for safety, for yourself, family, home and friends.

Don't give the least you think you can put the church off with, but make an offering, not simply give a collection of what you need to throw overboard to keep the ship from sinking altogether.

Let's finance this church this year so that we can have the good things that we ought to have and are perfectly able to have.

Sunday, 10:30 a. m. The pastor will preach on "The Love of Service," and at 7:00 p. m. on "The Joy of Giving." At this meeting a report will be made of the day's offerings.

Thursday evening midweek meeting will follow the study outlined in the Congregational hand book and commented upon in the "Congregationalist."

Sunday school, Sunday, 12 m. Y. P. S. C. E. 6:00 p. m.

The annual meeting of Church and Society Tuesday, January 8, 7:30 p. m. All members and friends plan to come. Let nothing else keep you away from this yearly meeting.

Clarence W. Long, Minister.

TIPS FOR TAXPAYERS

INCOME TAX IN NUTSHELL

WHO? Single persons who had net income of $1,000 or more or gross income of $5,000 or more, and married couples who had net income of $2,000 or more or gross income of $5,000 or more must file returns.

WHEN? The filing period is from January 1 to March 15, 1924.

WHERE? Collector of internal revenues for the district in which the persons lives or has his principal place of business.

HOW? Instructions on Form 1040A and Form 1040; also the law and regulations.

WHAT? Four percent normal tax on the first $4,000 of net income in excess of the personal exemption and credits for dependents. Eight percent normal tax on balance of net income. Surtnx from 1 per cent to 50 per cent on net incomes over $6,000 for the year 1923.

Tips for Taxpayers

January 1, 1924, marks the beginning of the period for filing income-tax returns for the year 1923. The period ends at midnight of March 15, 1924. Heavy penalties are provided by the revenue act for failure or willful refusal to make a return and pay the tax on time.

Form 1040A, heretofore used for reporting net income of $5,000 and less, from whatever source derived, has been revised in the interests of the largest class of taxpayers—wage earners and salaried persons. Reduced from six pages to a single sheet. Form 1040A is to be used for reporting net income of $5,000 and less derived chiefly from salaries and wages. Persons any part of whose income is derived from a business or profession farming, sale or property or rent, though the amount is $5,000 or less, will be required to use the largest form 1040. The use of Form 1040 is required also in all cases where the net income was in excess of $5,000, regardless of whether from salary, business, profession, or other taxable sources.

It being impossible to determine at this time which form is desired, copies of both forms will be sent taxpayers who filed individual returns for the year 1922, and may be obtained also at the offices of collectors of internal revenue and branch offices upon written request.

NOTICE TO TAXPAYERS

I will be at the Charlevoix State Savings Bank Saturday, January 5th and at Frank Burnett's store, Bay Shore, on Tuesday, January 8th, for the purpose of collecting taxes. David J. Smith, Treasurer, Hayes Township. 1-11.

INTERESTING BITS OF INFORMATION CLIPPED FROM OUR EXCHANGES

One Michigan family is reported to have had the itch for nine years. But it hasn't minded much since it got the ague, too, and has been wearing special scratchy underwear.

The bridegroom at Monroe who succeeded in borrowing $5 from the judge who married him for the expenses of his wedding trip, now probably wishes he could have been married by a jury.

A Michigan youth who was known as the youngest man in the United States army during the war, has been arrested on a charge of bootlegging. And what did you do in the Great Pence?

Almost half of the farmers of Oakland county, it is said, have left their farms and flocked into the factories. There at last behind the walls they are comparatively safe from being beamed by golf balls.

A shoe store at Ann Arbor has installed an X-ray machine to help in the fitting of shoes, so now the well dressed woman can always ascertain where her shoes are large enough and have them made smaller.

A boy who ran away from Hadley at the age of 16 because the school teacher whipped him, returned recently after an interval of 54 years. Or no soon, we suppose, as he felt that he was big enough to lick the teacher.

Traverse City has had to station special policemen at the end of a street where the bridge is out to prevent motorists from driving through the barriers and red lanterns into the river. At all costs, the city has determined the river shall not be mused up.

A former Kalamazoo man who fell into the hollow of a large oak tree in Texas and remained there 10 days, drank a gallon of water immediately after he got out. Now if he had only drank a gallon of water before he might have been big enough so that he wouldn't have fallen in.

While a Flint man was up north hunting someone got into his house and took three beds, a dresser, a sewing machine, a library table, a dining room table, six chairs, two rockers, a writing desk, seven rugs, a smoking stand, a pedestal, cooking utensils, linen, bedding, etc. All we are trying to say is that while the Flint man was hunting, the thief filled his quota.

Home On a Visit

Julius E. Guild of Souven, Saskatchewan, who has been visiting his brother, Joe of R. R. No. 2 and W. H. of Charlevoix over the holidays, left last Friday for Detroit where he spent New Year's day, going on from there to London and Chatham, Ont., where he will visit until spring, returning then to his home. Joe Guild had not seen his Canadian brother for thirty-two years. We'll gamble they had a lot to talk about, recalling old times and recounting experiences.

DESIGNS OF NEW ORDER OF COURT PROCEDURE

Judge Gilbert Announces the Way in Which Cases Will Be Handled Hereafter

Parm C. Gilbert, judge of the 13th Judicial District, who takes his seat on the bench in this county for the first time next February, has furnished us with an outline of the methods of procedure that will be used in handling cases coming before him. His plan is worthy of especial commendation in several points— notably with respect to the time of calling the jury to report for duty and the disposition of the court's business in such a way as to make every minute of the term count in the fullest degree. Under the new plan, the jury will not be called to report until the third day of the term, thus saving their wages for the two days that they would otherwise be hanging around the court-house idle, awaiting cases to be called to trial.

During the first and second days of the term Judge Gilbert plans to utilize any spare time that there may be in hearing default, pro confesso, probation and naturalization cases thus doing away with the interruption of the criminal cases after they are once started. This, of course, will save the time of the jury an enable the judge to dispose of his criminal calendar promptly. It will also greatly increase the number of all classes of cases that can be handled in a single term. But, we will let the reader judge for himself:

"In this Circuit, and for the time being and until further notice, the court will be conducted substantially as follows:

On the first day of the term the criminal calendar will be called and arranged. Prisoners will be arraigned and the order in which cases are to be tried will be determined. Any time not so occupied during this day will be devoted to default and pro confesso matters before the court only. Probation cases will be acted on.

On the second day of term the civil calendar will be called and arranged, and this will also be known and treated as "motion day." Any special motions, or motions for continuance and similar matters will have the right of way on this day, and after the civil calendar is arranged any time not occupied with such special matters will be devoted to default and pro confesso matters before the court only. Naturalization cases will be heard.

During the first two days of each regular term the court will act without a jury and the jury will not be called to report for duty until nine o'clock in the forenoon of the third day.

Beginning on the third day of the

CONTRASTING TWO TYPES OF CITIZENRY

Secretary-Manager Hugh J. Gray, of the Michigan Tourist and Resort association is telling a good story of a man whom Mr. Gray says should be president of the Michigan "Kickers" club. He is a storekeeper in a small town in West Michigan and when approached by leaders in his community with the purpose in view of enrolling him as a member of the Tourist association, he had this to say:

"I used to have peace and comfort around this place until these tourists began to come in big numbers and now the dem tourists come in any time of the day or night and expect to get waited on. And so many of 'em come that it keeps me hopping and there isn't peace and comfort around this place any longer."

And because of that fact, he could not be prevailed upon to join the organization which is bringing the tourists here to disturb his peace and comfort.

"Contrasting with that feeling, however, is that of a plumber friend of mine," said Mr. Gray, "who told me that his business this summer with the tourists ran to $30,000 with an additional $10,000 of unfinished business. He repeated the story to the community leaders who were securing his tourists' association membership and concluded with the question 'Where do I sign for two memberships on this blank?'" term at nine o'clock the jury cases will be disposed of and proceeded with until that work is complete, and jury trials will not be interrupted nor delayed for the hearing of pro confesso or default matters. After the jury cases are disposed of, if there should be any law case or default matter or pro confesso case to be heard before the court, these will be taken up in order.

The hours for holding court will be from nine o'clock in the forenoon, until five o'clock in the afternoon, with a noon recess from twelve to two o'clock.

It is desired that the business be arranged so as to follow this outline as closely as possible and with an effort to avoid the necessity of delays and adjournments after the calendar is once arranged; also, that the work be conducted so far as possible without any evening sessions.

The co-operation of all parties before the court and of the court officers is requested so that the business may be disposed of promptly.

Dated this 7th day of January, 1924.

Parm C. Gilbert, Circuit Judge."

BETTER LATE THAN NEVER!

BEAVERS FINALLY GET A DOCTOR OF THEIR OWN

Dr. Thomas Palmer is Appointed by State Board of Health to Winter There

Efforts of the inhabitants of the Beaver Island group to secure a permanent physician to reside among them and care for their health have been successful.

Dr. Thomas Palmer has been appointed by the state department of health to winter at St. James and the isolated islanders are going to breathe a little freer this winter, now that they don't have to depend on aeroplanes and dog sledges when dire need arises for a doctor. The thousand residents of Beaver Island and the woods and mill workers on Garden Island, one hundred and fifty members of the House of David colony on High Island and Indians whom Dr. Palmer, though located at St. James, can easily reach by boat or over the ice, hope that change is going to be permanent.

So far this winter, we are told, there hasn't been much need for a doctor, as the island people are "disgustingly" healthy as compared with their mainland neighbors and during the Xmas holidays, when as a rule doctors everywhere are busy repairing the effects of too much candy, nuts and pie, there was hardly a tummy ache among them. However you can never tell what is going to happen.

Schools on the island, closed for the holiday season, opened January 7th, and all children are expected back in school as there is practically no illness among them. Five teachers are employed in the schools right in St. James, two in a school in a far corner of the island and one at another school some distance from St. James. School is also maintained on High Island with one teacher. There has been plenty of cold weather for the past thirty or forty days and last week there was about sixteen inches of snow on the ground.

SMALL POX IS WITH US AGAIN

TEN CASES AND NOBODY QUARANTINED AS YET

Unexplainable Situation That May Result in Another Disastrous Epidemic

Eight cases of small pox been reported out of Marlon township within the past three or four weeks and two in this city.

Beyond a doubt, this new run of the disease is a hang-over from the epidemic of last October that closed our schools, churches and theatre and which, if repeated at this time, is likely to close up the town indefinitely. Had strict quarantine enforcement prevailed during the first visit of the disease to this region, it is highly probable that we would not now again be confronted with a possible total tie-up that will cost us hundreds of dollars in loss of business and the health and efficiency of many persons.

And even now, we understand, no steps have as yet been taken to quarantine the discovered cases, except that the health officer of Marlon township, William Burns, has written to Lansing requesting that a deputy health officer be sent up here to take charge of the situation.

When the first of the present cases developed some three weeks ago, the disease was thought to be chicken pox by all local physicians. Since then, several cases have appeared where the patients have already had chicken pox. The fact that a person rarely has chicken pox twice and that it is not a disease that, as a rule, attacks adults, has influenced the physicians to change their diagnosis to that of small pox.

It is alleged that about ten days ago the Marlon health officer requested a local physician to make an investigation of conditions in that township. This was done and, we are informed, the physician in question promised to write in to Lansing immediately and request that a representative of the state board of health be sent here to take charge of things. No formal report, it is alleged, was made by this physician to the township health officer and after waiting several days for word from Lansing, Mr. Burns took it upon himself to write the letter asking for state aid. In the meantime, nothing has been done in the way of establishing a quarantine on the suspected cases.

The Courier, and, we presume, not a few of our readers are completely at a loss to understand this npathy on the part of our public officials in a matter where so much is at stake. We would have thought that the lesson driven home so pointedly by the October epidemic would have had its effect and that the instant that any recurrence of the plague was discovered the most rigid enforcement of the quarantine laws would have followed.

Can it be that the responsible medical authorities are still in doubt as to the nature of the disease that already has some ten or twelve victims after having handled so many cases of small pox, actually determined as such, only a few weeks ago? We really would like to think better of their ability than that. And if such is not the case, then what is the matter?

And why must we call upon the state health department to handle a situation that had its parallel last October in a great many towns and villages of Michigan and was controlled more or less effectively by the local authorities?

Have Charlevoix officials any less power to put the quarantine laws into effect than those of Muskegon or any other town in the state?

If they are attempting to conduct the duties of their respective offices under any special disabilities or handicaps it is time the people of Charlevoix knew about it. If not, we would like to see them get busy.

Ninth Grade Leads

Pupils of the Charlevoix schools succeeded in selling $60.00 worth of the Christmas Red Cross seals. The results obtained by each grade collectively were listed and the ninth grade led all the rest with a score of $10.00, thus becoming the banner grade of the twelve participating.

SHORE COUNTIES BAOLY WORRIED

FEAR TO LOSE TOURIST BUSINESS NEXT SUMMER.

Proposed Ferry at Pentwater on M-11 is Causing Spinal Shivers.

Last week a petition was circulated in Charlevoix that had for its purpose the securing of an act of the Michigan legislature which shall direct that a pontoon or other more or less permanent form of bridge be constructed at the town of Pentwater over the Pentwater river on trunk line M-11 in Oceana county.

This petition, which had its inception in the Beulah chamber of commerce, has been circulated throughout the lake-side counties of Oceana, Mason, Manistee, Benzie, Grand Traverse, Leelanau, Antrim and Charlevoix. It received its full quota of signatures here last Saturday and has been turned over to the committee of the Beulah chamber of commerce appointed to forward it to Lansing.

The boards of commerce of the several counties have also been urged to send delegates to a mass meeting to be held at Manistee on Thursday, January 10th, for the purpose of considering this and other matters pertaining to the roads and tourist problems.

The idea in this: There is now at Pentwater on M-11 a permanent bridge. During the summer of 1924, it is planned to pave this bridge with concrete which of course will necessitate its being closed to traffic over a considerable period, right in the busiest season. According to the present plans of the Oceana county and Pentwater officials, a barge will be used to ferry passengers and cars over the Pentwater river at this point, during the time the bridge is closed to traffic, the idea being something similar to that now in effect at Fronton over the South Arm. Now, this would be all right for the lake-side counties named above if M-11 was the only highway over which tourists could reach the north.

However, just below the village of Shelby, some twelve to fourteen miles south of Pentwater, a good paved road cuts through by the way of Hesperia and White Cloud to join M-13 at Big Rapids. Should M-11 be rendered disagreeable to the touchy and comfort-loving tourist by the introduction of an antiquated ferry at Pentwater, it is more than likely that both north and south bound traffic would be deflected to M-13, thus providing the disgruntled automobilist with a direct and equally easy-ridden route to the straits and thereby cutting off the entire tier of eight lake-side counties where money is heavily invested in hotels and other equipment to care for the tourist.

So you see, this dilemma has induced the forward-thinking business men of the eight counties aforesaid to get busy and make sure through legislative action that some more permanent and generally satisfactory means of communication between the two sides of the Pentwater river be substituted for the proposed ferry.

DOWN BUT NOT KNOCKED OUT

KURCHINSKI NOW A SUCCESS, THOUGH CRIPPLED

Boyer City Veteran, Once a Carpenter, Raises Poultry And Keeps Bees

Army serial number 264374 was stomped on the aluminum tag encircling the neck of an unknown wounded ex-soldier picked up during the war on the Chateau Thierry sector in France.

He had been seriously injured by a high explosive shell.

Later, at a French hospital, the man was identified as Eugene J. Kurchinski who was a member of the 32nd division and whose home was at Boyne City, Mich. His army service record read that he had been a carpenter before the war, but when doctors examined him they were convinced that his disabilities were so that he could never again return to carpentry. He himself also knew that knowledge of his past vacation was now useless to him.

In spite of this Kurchinski was confident that he was not so handicapped that there were not other things he could do. With this in mind at his discharge he applied to the U. S. Veterans' Bureau for a course in bee keeping and poultry raising, which was given him. After two and a half years of training for the latter he was declared able to "carry on."

Now he is located on a forty acre farm of his own. He raises poultry for meat and egg production and keeps bees for their honey output. During his first year on his farm he has raised several hundred chickens, increased his swarm of bees and sold considerable amount of honey.

The probabilities are that Kurchinski is making a steadier, better and more comfortable living than he ever could at carpentry in this region.

This is but one of the many things the U. S. Veterans' Bureau has accomplished for its wounded charges since the close of the war. Hard indeed would be the heart and shortsighted the mind that would begrudge the money spent in such a cause. But it is a crying pity that a civilization far enough advanced to foster such noble works of reclamation cannot be wise enough and strong enough to root out the evil of war that makes such acts of mercy necessary.

Members of the Eastern Star Lodge of Charlevoix—you are hereby notified by the special committee appointed for the evening of Wednesday, January 16th, that if you are not present at this meeting you will positively miss the event of the season. THINGS FOR CO. AGENTS TO DO

SHOULD HELP FARMER IN EVERY WAY POSSIBLE

Federal Authorities O. K. Big Program for Production, Marketing, Finance

In the light of all of the discussion which we are hearing lately about the county agricultural agents, what they are, what they should do, what they should not do, how they should be financed, etc., it is extremely interesting to read an official statement on this subject which has recently been made public by the United States Department of Agriculture. The federal authorities have released an official statement which is in part as follows:

"Press and platform comments on these statements have placed much more emphasis upon those things which the agent may not do than upon those things which he may do. You will note from the quotations just made that the things which he may do are greater in number and of more importance than the things which he may not do. He may find out varieties of crops best adapted to the region in which he works. He may locate the seed of these varieties. He may find out the price asked for this seed at different places. He may get information on the proper method of growing the crops. He may get information on the proper method of growing crops. He may collect information on methods of marketing them. If they are to be disposed of in the raw state he may show how to standardize, how to store, how to pack, how to ship, and give up-to-date information on prices prevailing at various market points.

"If it seems proper to feed the crops to live stock in the region, and particularly if that is the proper procedure for the permanent agriculture, he may give information on the kind of live stock best suited to the climate and to the crops, when to get it, and what it will cost. He may tell what supplemental feeds should be used, where they can be secured, and what prices are asked. He may get information on where the matured animals can be marketed, when they could be marketed, and the probable prices which will be received on various markets. He may tell what supplemental feeds should be used, where they can be secured, and what prices are asked. He may supply information on the best method of marketing.

"He may show how to standardize and grade to get the best returns. He may tell of marketing systems in operation in various territories and explain how these are conducted. He may give information on the successes and failures of marketing enterprises, both corporate and co-operative. He may gather constitutions and by-laws of co-operative organizations, explain these, and teach the farmer how to organize co-operative associations. He may gather information which will help solve the troubles which these associations encounter after they are organized."

"The agent may secure information on where the farmer can get adequate credit at reasonable rates. Just now there is no more important problem before the farmer. New (Continued on page three.)

PROHIBIT CUTTING OF CHRISTMAS TREES

Artificial Christmas trees will be brought close to a reality if a bill that has been before the legislature and which, it is confidently expected, will be re-introduced at the next regular session is adopted. The bill would prohibit cutting down pine trees for a period of five or more years, the exact number of years to be agreed upon, to prevent the denuding of Michigan forests.

Restoration interests are backing the bill which close observers here believe stands an excellent chance of passage if re-introduced. Inasmuch as the next regular legislative session is not until January, 1925, the Christmas tree supply for next year is assured.

Passage of the bill would prove doubly severe because inter-state shipment of Christmas trees is now banned on account of the prevalence in the New England States of the gypsy moth which has caused great damage to evergreens in that section.

Vast System of National or Interstate Highways

There was a day, not very far back, when vision in road building was about as broad as a man's farm or a community's interest. Pork barrel methods and political puff, not yet a memory, were a big part of the accepted order. Then it became possible to see to the county limits and still later it gradually was revealed that roads leading from one county to another might be a convenience to a reasonable number of travelers. Thus emerged the idea of state systems.

It has remained for recent months, however, to bring into potential existence a vast system of national or interstate roads that in a few years may reasonably be expected to lie, like long ribbons of white, across every section of the country and link up the states, the cities and counties even more closely than they were joined in the construction of railway lines. The idea isn't a dream, but a thing of fact. National statute, provided for in the Federal Highway act of last November and now rapidly assuming form through cooperation of the state highway departments with the United States Bureau of public roads.

The system will carry more than 17,000 miles, 7 per cent of the entire public road mileage of the United States. Of this amount three-sevenths will be composed of interstate roads, the remainder to make up connecting state systems. There is state and federal money enough on hand or in sight to start the actual work, and nearly all the states now have submitted to the national bureau plans for the sections of road that will go into the interstate system. And the bureau is seeing to it that the sections meet at the state lines. No federal aid will be allowed on any highway which does not fit into the general scheme of a national or state system.

This is vision in road building, founded only by the limits of the country itself. It will mean results in the shape of roads that link up and lead somewhere and bring service to all rather than a favored few.—Kansas City Times.

Colored Pins Indicate Danger Spots in Roads

A rather original way of ascertaining the condition of roads and the places where repairs are necessary has been worked out by a road commission for state roads of Maryland. It is based upon the accidents occurring on the highways of the state. Upon receipt of each accident report, a numbered colored pin is put in the proper location on a map of the road system of the state. Fatal accidents are marked with a red pin and other accidents are marked with yellow pins, the numbering on the pin referring to a card index system, enabling one to find the character of each accident.

By keeping this record, it has been found that bad stretches of road can be easily located because of the number of accidents occurring thereon. In many cases it was found that the road on that stretch was too narrow, or had a bad approach to a bridge, and in many instances these stretches had never been listed as being in need of repair or change. The method outlined has proved successful and has located many dangerous spots.—E. B. House, Department of Civil and Irrigation Engineering, Colorado Agricultural College.

DAIRY POINTS

PLAN FOR BULL ASSOCIATION

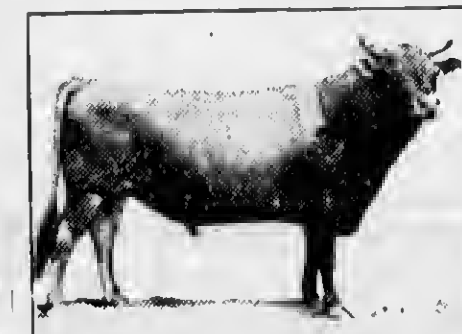

Idea Has Been in Use in Europe for Many Years, But Is Comparatively New Here.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Every dairy farmer knows that he would get better returns from his feed and labor if he had high-grade stock; but the idea of establishing a blooded herd immediately suggests "kid glove" farming and bankruptcy. "Two-thousand dollar cows and two-dollar milk" was one farmer's characterization.

Yet the United States Department of Agriculture annually is leading hundreds of farmers toward the possession of herds that will increase the former's milk and butter-fat yield with the same outlay for upkeep. One of the most useful agencies is the co-operative bull association.

A high-grade cow will impart her excellent qualities to one calf in a year, and the total of high-grade farm cattle is increased by one. On the other hand, a bull whose mother had the same milk and butter qualifications, and whose father is descended from a milk and butter strain, may sire as many as 75 calves, each carrying its share of the racial excellence. This bull can do duty with one lot of cows.

Five Bulls Like This Will Improve an Entire Dairy Community.

For two years without danger of inbreeding. If there were five lots of cows and five bulls, and the bulls were rotated from one herd to another every two years, each bull would have a period of usefulness of possibly 10 years, and may easily have added 750 head of young stock, with a due proportion of high milk-producing heifers. As the first generation of heifers become milkers, the breeding value of the bulls would become established and any inferior sires could be weeded out. Five bulls kept for ten years may change the entire dairy industry of a community and possibly give its cattle a distinctiveness that would be a valuable market asset.

Co-operative bull associations have existed in Europe for a long time. In America the system is only twelve or thirteen years old, but records of milk and butter-fat production are in possession of the department, showing tangible benefit far exceeding the cost to the cow owners.

At New Windsor, Md., for instance, seven daughters of one sire averaged 270.5 pounds of butter fat a year, an improvement over the average of 268.3 pounds for their dams. This was only the first generation. The five-bull association will permit the breeding with greatly increased possibilities.

To organize a co-operative bull association it is first advisable to arouse as much interest as possible in the plan through meetings, conversation, and the circulation of Department of Agriculture literature. It is possible that the county agent or even some state or federal agricultural representative can be induced to help personally. Advice can always be obtained from the department by mail. Forms can be had from the department for a preliminary agreement, in which, among other things, the number of cows owned by each prospective member is listed. When a sufficient number of cows have been listed, a meeting should be called and arrangements made for incorporation. Each member would contribute in proportion to the number of cows he owns, but would have only one vote.

As early as possible, the temporary or permanent secretary should begin corresponding with breeders having high-grade bulls for sale. One bull should be purchased for about every 75 cows. The cows should be divided into blocks of that number, with regard to geographical convenience, and arrangements made for the keeping of the bull by a responsible member whose farm is conveniently located. The fees should be such as to cover the purchase cost and the cost of keeping for a year, and annual assessments provided thereafter.

Valuable information on the formation and conduct of bull associations will be found in Farmers' Bulletin 993, which the department will send free on request. Supplemental information, including plans for a model bull pen, and data on the operation and success of various established bull associations can also be had by correspondence. The department is doing everything in its power to promote the co-operative bull association movement as one of the most valuable advances made in modern dairying.

Gentleness With Cows.
Cows respond to gentle treatment. The dairyman who makes pets of his calves and who continues to fondle the animals even after they have dropped their own calves is almost certain to possess a herd of good milkers.

Active Work Needed to Stop Blight

Active control measures to rid orchards of every trace of fire blight, a disease which may cause serious losses during the following season, must be practiced by Michigan fruit growers if they would avoid danger of disastrous epidemics of the disease, according to Prof. V. R. Gardner, head of the horticultural department at the Michigan Agricultural College.

"Growers generally realize the danger of fire blight and know that they must cut out and destroy every vestige of the disease," says Gardner, "but they do not recognize always that it is in fall, winter, and early spring that control measures are most effective. In the dormant season, the disease is neither conspicuous nor spreading and the oversight follows. In the spring and summer, when flowers, leaves and branches are suddenly blighted, the orchardist realizes the danger but is often too busy with other tasks to eliminate the diseased places.

"Inspection of any orchard which has been blighted badly discloses the presence of blight cankers, dark-colored sunken areas on the branches, limbs, crotches or trunks, where the bark has been killed and underneath which the wood is more or less discolored. These places contain the germs of the disease and prove sources of infection for its spread throughout the orchard the following summer. To the extent that they are removed and promptly destroyed, preferably by burning, next year's danger from fire blight is reduced.

"Theoretically it is possible thus to eradicate the disease from an orchard; practically this is very difficult because insects or other carriers may bring it in from orchards some distance away where winter cankers cutting is not practiced. However, much can be done to hold the disease in check, and as a matter of fact it is the easiest and most practicable means of blight control.

"Care should be taken to trim out every trace of the disease, every bit of the canker itself and of discolored wood or bark spreading out from it; and after this removal all wounds of any considerable size should be painted with white lead paint, with each gallon of which one ounce of corrosive sublimate dissolved in a little turpentine has been thoroughly mixed."

Crops Show 12 Per Cent Gain

The industry, courage and faith evidenced by the farmers of the Nation during the past three years are slowly bringing their reward. Improvement in agricultural conditions continues—not as rapidly as desired or needed, nor as rapidly as deserved, but nevertheless it continues. The promise of the year has been fulfilled.

So we come to the end of the third year of post-war depression with a feeling of greater confidence born of better times already realized and with justified hope of still further improvement in 1924.

In general, the crops of 1923 were good. Some sections in the cotton belt and in the wheat belt suffered from the ravages of weather and insect pests, but the aggregate crop production was equal to the average of the five preceding years.

Considering money return we find that the values of most crops are greater than 1922. The total value of all crops is 12 per cent greater. The values of the wheat, rye, rice, clover seed, cranberry, peach and pear crops are below 1922; in the case of wheat 11 per cent below. The values of all other important crops are greater.

It is difficult to measure the productive value of live stock during the year, dependent as it is upon crops marketed in that form. In general, it has been a prosperous year for sheep growers, fairly good for dairymen, less satisfactory for producers of hogs, and discouraging for growers of range cattle. Cattle feeders, however have done very well on the whole.

There are discouraging conditions still to be overcome. There is the burden of debt. There are heavy taxes to be met. The cost of production and of what the farmers buy remain high. Farmers in the spring wheat territory especially are in sore straits from conditions largely beyond their control.

Experience gained during these years of depression, however, together with progress already made, warrant a hopeful attitude for the coming year. Gradually crop acreage is being better adjusted. The domestic market continues strong. The children keep coming and that means a steadily increasing number of mouths to be fed. Those who stay by the farm and do good farming can look forward to better times as a reward for their years of toil and hardship. Those whose businesses depend directly upon farm purchases can find decided encouragement in the growing gross income of the farmer for he will buy as his income expands.

The year 1924 comes with the promise of continued improvement in the material prosperity of the farmer, and the farmer continues to be the material and spiritual backbone of the Nation.

The Cow—The Sow—The Hen

A friend of mine is a banker in a small central west town. For years he has handled the funds of the community. He knows every farmer by name, how he farms and what he does with his money. He has seen some farmers fail and others build up an enviable competence. He has this to say from his experience and observation:

"Farmers who milk cows are the ones who have good bank accounts, not only for checking but saving accounts as well. They are the ones who pay cash at the stores and build a prosperous community. They likewise have the best credit.

"The farmer with twenty cows has fifteen calves each year to feed out besides his regular cream check. The first 800 pounds gain on a calf is the most certain of profit. In addition he has skim milk for hogs and poultry and have observed these are the most persistent money-makers. Grain farmers and feeders have their streaks of prosperity but it is a gamble. The farmers who place their dependence on good cows and the sidelines that go with them insure a consistently prosperous community."

It is not too much to say that the cow, the sow and the hen are the trio upon which the prosperity of our great farming sections depend. Figures based on April prices show that prices for butter and dairy products were far above any other farm commodity excepting cotton and wool. The dairyman's dollar represented a purchasing power of ninety-four as compared with seventy for other products of the farm. At the time of the investigation by the joint committee on agricultural inquiry shortly after the close of the war, it was found that the poultry and butter dollar had a value above one hundred cents while other farm products were considerably below. All through the history of agriculture in this country it has been the same. The farmer who markets the products of his toil in the form of cream, eggs and pork is the farmer who invariably wins out for himself, his family and his community.—The Dairy Farmer.

It Pays The Farmer

"In dollars, how much does education increase in earning capacity of the young farmer?" Is a question asked by the U. S. Bureau of Education. Some of the State Agricultural Colleges are publishing figures in answer to this question.

The Georgia Agricultural College collected the facts from 1,271 farmers of the state and found that those who had no schooling earned on an average of only $240 a year and those who had completed the high school course earned an average of $664. The men who had completed an agricultural short course earned $896 and those who had graduated from the agricultural college were earning an average of $1,254 a year.

The Kansas Agricultural College had 1,237 reports. The average young farmer with a common school education earned $422 a year, the high school graduate $554. The men who had taken the short course in agriculture earned an average of $859 a year, and the college graduate $1,452.

MOLD REPORTED IN SILAGE

Trouble Occurs Only Where Air Is Present, Generally Caused by Lack of Water.

The usual number of complaints are coming in regarding the presence of mold in silage. Mold can grow only when air is present. Air generally gets in as the result of the silage being too dry when put into the silo. If water was added, not enough was used. Poor packing may cause the same trouble. Mold around the doors and against the wall is the result of poor construction of the silo which allows air to enter. Nothing can be done now to remedy the condition. At the next filling time special care should be taken to see that the corn contains enough moisture and that it is well tramped. It is always safest to reject moldy silage especially for horses and sheep, although for cattle there seems to be little danger.—C. H. Eckles, chief of the division of dairy husbandry, University Farm.

Ed. J. Vines on Walls

Some men and boys, but I am not, painted the walls of their houses. Those may keep the buildings cool and comfortable in the spring, but an otherwise harmless, the wooden buildings damage may be done since many times which climb by twining, force their way through any joint which is not perfect and then by continued growth force the woodwork apart.

Oldest Known Will

A will executed in 2548 B. C. is the oldest extant. It is written on papyrus by an Egyptian named Ubah. In it he gave his home and other property to his wife, to be left by her to any of their children; arranged for the burial of himself and wife, and appointed a guardian for a son. In fact the will differs little from one which might be executed today.

Money Not Everything

When I hear a man saying that he is in business only for the money he can make and not for the favors he can render, I think of what some wise man said one time: "If a pig could pray he would devote his entire prayer to corn and swill, but men should pray for other sorts of things."—Tom Dreier in Forbes.

To Relieve Canaries of Vermin

Canary birds are often covered with vermin. They may be relieved of them by placing a clean white cloth over their cage at night. In the morning the cloth will be covered with minute red spots so small that they can hardly be seen with the naked eye. These are the parasites, a source of great annoyance to the birds.

THE INCOME TAX RETURNS

Many people who are now working out their income tax returns, are fuming and tearing their hair over the bother of the thing. Some of them feel sore at the amount which the government asks them to pay, and Uncle Sam seems an insatiable creditor who never ceases to hound them.

Meanwhile others whose incomes are small enough to give them exemption, are fretting because they have never earned enough money to come into this list of taxpayers. They would gladly enough pay such an assessment if they could only climb into that class.

The income tax demand searches a man's soul to see if he is honest. If he wants to cheat, he may often do so without getting caught. And some people dodge part of their burden without really meaning to. It is natural to exaggerate one's losses and exemptions, and minimize gains and assets.

The income taxpayer, instead of fretting over his bothersome return or begrudging the payment demanded, should feel a sense of pride. The summons to pay this tax, from which the majority of his fellow citizens are exempt, means that he has achieved more than average success, for which he should be glad and thankful.

Also he should meditate on the blessings that accrue to him as a citizen in the best country in the world. He should desire to contribute every cent that the law asks, as his fair return for the benefits he has received.

Some Charlevoix Kidney Sufferers Get Little Rest or Comfort

There is little sleep, little rest, little peace for many a sufferer from kidney trouble. Life is one continual round of pain. You can't rest at night when there's kidney backache. You suffer twinges and "stabs" of pain, annoying urinary disorders, lameness and nervousness. You can't be comfortable at work with darting pains and blinding dizzy spells. Neglect these ailments and serious troubles may follow. Begin using Doan's Pills at the first sign of disorder. Thousands have testified to their merit.

Proof in Charlevoix testimony: Mrs. Dan Bacot, 105 Lincoln St., Charlevoix, says: "My back was stiff and sore just over my kidneys. My kidneys were weak and acted irregularly, so I decided to try Doan's Pills and got a few boxes. They rid me of the trouble in a very satisfactory manner."

owned land approximately one-half is included in state forest reserves, state parks or game preserves.

The remaining one-half is either by location or soil condition unsuited to raise food crops. In the lower peninsula Roscommon county possesses the greatest areas of homestead lands; in the upper peninsula the same holds true of Luce county.

The bulk of the lands owned by the state have reverted to the state through the non-payment of taxes. In a few instances they have come through exchange with corporations or individuals for other lands denuded of their timber growth, burnt over, time after time, their good for any purpose is at a low ebb.

A recent ruling of the conservation commission forbids the sale or exchange of any tax homestead land that borders upon the Great Lakes or any inland lake or stream. A wise decision, indeed. This feature alone has attracted more applicants for homestead lands than all other inducements. Development of such areas as private recreational grounds under the provisions of the homestead law is a subterfuge. The state is the possessor of, but little land so endowed by nature. What it has, should be held for the benefit of all of her citizens. Public recreational sites are growing less each year. Every means should be taken to add to such areas.

Homestead lands should be disposed of in the manner required by law and if their agricultural possibilities are limited, the state could well afford to grow a crop of timber or establish more game preserves and public parks.—Detroit News.

ELK RAPIDS POWER COMPANY GROWS

Are Installing Another and a Larger Electrical Unit

The Elk Electric Co. at Elk Rapids is installing an additional generator of 375 kilowatt capacity—approximately 500 horsepower. The new machine is what is known as the "umbrella" type, that is, is mounted directly upon the upright shaft of the waterwheel and revolves like an umbrella held upright and twirled in the fingers.

The present equipment consists of an umbrella type generator of 188 kw., with another generator of 150 kw. installed as an auxiliary. The latter unit will of course be removed when the new machine is placed in service.

The new machine is of comparatively slow motion and is 14 feet in diameter on the floor-line. The water-wheel runner, shaft and rotor of the generator weighs 17 tons. This portion of the machine was shipped on a car especially built for this kind of shipment.

The Elk Electric Co. uses the water-power developed many years ago for the sawmills and other uses of the Elk Rapids Iron Co. Besides Elk Rapids the company furnishes light and power to Williamsburg, Acme, Bates, Kalkaska, Alden, Rapid City and Persons Harbor, and various resorts in the western part of the county.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

Sunday 13th
 Last Sunday's storm kept many from following their usual church going habit. Quite a number of the faithful few dared to go through. Charlevoix gets used to storms and its people are made of the brave stuff that conquers the winter king. If you did miss last Sunday, whether you had to or not, make up for it, the remainder of the winter. Go to church.

This Sunday morning at 10:30 o'clock hear the sermon by the pastor on "The Church's Growth." If an acorn will grow a forest, what can not be said of the stupendous development from Christ and twelve followers? We have grown in influence in methods of service, in institutions and in spiritual power.

12 Sunday School. Get there. If your boy goes, father, you ought to accompany him.

The Prayer meeting is at 7:30 o'clock Thursday. Read the bible! Read for this service Mark 14th chapter.

The Church family night announced for 8th inst is postponed one week. Don't forget it January 15th. "Every family in church for supper" is the slogan.

That group of men that met Tuesday at the church for work did things.

On a recent Sunday before the storm came, there were one-half of our Sunday school teachers present. We will not venture to say where the other half were.

Immense Damage Is Done Annually by Ox Warble

An estimated damage of over $60,000,000 annually is caused by the ox warble, a cattle pest found in all parts of the United States. This pest is well known by the cattleman and the dairymen in the grub or larval form when it produces the little lumps that are found in the cow's back in the spring. The adult warble is very much like the horn fly and it also resembles a honey bee.

Australian Government to Introduce Road Bill

It is expected that the Australian government will introduce a main road bill for New South Wales at the next session, creating a board to take charge of and finance the main roads for that province, says Consul R. Wormuth, Sydney. In a report to the department of commerce. At present there is a lack of coherence and consequent inefficiency in the matter of road building, because the control is divided among municipalities.

BETTER ROADS

Pranks of Temperature Ruin Expensive Roads

Jack Frost and Merry Sunshine are wrinkling the brows of highway engineers and contractors. Their pranks are ruining expensive hard-surfaced and paved highways. During the winter months frost penetrates deep under the road surface, freezing and refreezing the subsoil numerous times. Then, just like freezing water breaks the water pipe, the subsoil bulges up and cracks the surface of the highway. Rain and slush seeps through these cracks, freezes again, and the process of destruction goes merrily on.

When spring comes the final touches are put on the breaking up of the road. The spring rains rush through the yawning cracks and wash away the subsoil, leaving a hollow shell. The warm sunshine aids in the destruction, drying the surface and making it brittle. It is no time then until the road crumbles away under the heavy traffic impacts.

Highway engineers of a big rubber concern travel and transport bureau declare that rapidly-increasing highway travel is focusing the attention of road-building experts to this underlying cause of highway destruction. They say that governmental and private agencies have, in the past ten years, lost sight of adequate subgrade soil treatment in their eagerness to produce

MAKING MILK IN NEBRASKA

Figures Obtained Probably Approximate Requirements in Other Sections of West.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Here is what it costs, in labor and feed, to produce 100 pounds of market milk in eastern Nebraska: Winter, six months—concentrates, 41.2 pounds; dry roughage, 95.3 pounds; silage and other succulent roughage, 93.4 pounds; bedding, 11.1 pounds; human labor, 2 hours; horse labor, 0.06 hour; handling and grinding concentrates, $0.016; pasture, $0.108; total costs, except depreciation on cows, $0.788; depreciation on cows, $0.018. Summer, six months—Concentrates, 11 pounds; handling and grinding concentrates, $0.001; dry roughage, 51.2 pounds; silage and other succulent roughage, 23.3 pounds; pasture, $0.053; human labor, 1.1 hours; horse labor, 0.05 hour; total costs except depreciation on cows, $0.805; depreciation on cows, $0.084.

The work of determining the cost of producing milk in this section covers two one-year periods. It was begun by the bureau of animal industry, United States Department of Agriculture, in cooperation with the department of dairy husbandry of the University of Nebraska, in September, 1917, discontinued at the end of the first year, and resumed in September, 1919. The figures reported were based on actual records obtained by regular monthly visits of 24 hours each to eight farms for two years, and to 22 other farms for one year.

The requirements for keeping the average cow one year were: Concentrates, 15.23 pounds; handling and grinding concentrates, $0.60; dry roughage, 4.275 pounds; silage and other succulent roughage, 3.533 pounds; pasture, $2.201; bedding, 3.10 pounds; human labor, 113.6 hours; horse labor, 3.2 hours; other costs except depreciation on cows, $4.655; depreciation on cows, $4.78.

During the first winter and summer the average incomes from milk were not sufficient to meet the average costs. In the second year the incomes were above the average costs in both seasons. The greater percentage of the year's income was received in the winter, but the feed, pasture and bedding costs exceeded the summer costs.

Feed for Dairy Cows Should Be Carefully Weighed.

by a greater percentage than the winter receipts exceeded the summer receipts.

Although the figures obtained show what was required to produce milk for the Omaha market under the system of dairy management found in the section studied, and probably approximate the requirements in similar localities, it is pointed out by the department that they, of course, do not apply to dairying in sections where different conditions and methods of management prevail.

Additional details of the record and work are contained in department Bulletin 972, "Unit Requirements for Producing Market Milk in Eastern Nebraska," recently issued by the United States Department of Agriculture. Copies of the bulletin may be had by addressing a request to the department at Washington, D. C.

Very Satisfactory Milk Substitute for Calves

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

A very satisfactory milk substitute for feeding calves after the second week has been devised by the United States Department of Agriculture. The mixture consists of 50 parts finely ground corn, 15 parts linseed-oil meal, 15 parts finely ground rolled oats, 10 parts dried blood flour, 10 parts skim milk powder, and one-half part salt. It is stirred up with warm water at the rate of 1 pound of meal to 9 pounds of water. The feed is increased gradually as the whole milk is decreased, until at the time the calf is 50 days old it is getting only the gruel. At this time 1 1/2 to 2 pounds of meal mixed with water will constitute a day's feed. Whenever there are indications of scour the feed must be reduced.

When calves are vigorous, the following schedule may be adhered to in changing from whole milk to the substitute:

First week—Whole milk.
Second week—Whole milk.
Third week—Three parts whole milk, one part gruel.
Fourth week—Three parts whole milk, one part gruel.

Fifth week—Whole milk and gruel, equal parts.
Sixth week—Whole milk one part, gruel three parts.
Seventh week—All gruel.
Grain and roughage should be fed with milk substitutes the same as with separated milk. Milk has to be very high in price to justify the use of substitutes during the first two weeks of the calf's life.

Right Care of Horse in Harvest Quite Important

Horses working in the heat should be fed only a limited amount of hay in the morning and the noon feeds, and should be given a liberal amount of grain, preferably oats, with from 10 to 20 per cent of bran added. They should be watered in the morning before being fed and should be allowed water again after feeding. At noon, when cooling from the field they should be given a limited amount of water if they are hot, followed by feed, and again be watered before going to the field. At night they should be given a limited amount when brought from the field, followed by the evening feed, and should then be given all the water they will drink.

It is an excellent practice, also, to water the horses in the middle of each half day's work. A drink at this time is as refreshing to the horse as to the man and will be repaid by better service. Frequent branding spells should be given in the hottest field to avoid overheating and injury to the wind, which may result in permanent unsoundness.

The shoulders should be washed with cool salt water at night to prevent shoulder galls and sore aches. The collar should also be carefully cleaned when taken off.—J. S. Montgomery, University Farm, St. Paul.

Solid Permanent Water Trough for Sheep Flock

Ordinary wood troughs are unsatisfactory, subject to decay, and when in use are often impractical because they are so easily overturned.

All these objections have been overcome in building the type of trough shown in the illustration. It is made of a rich mixture of concrete, one part of cement being used to one and one-half parts of clean sand to three parts of well-graded pebbles or broken stone. The inside is troweled smooth, so as to facilitate cleaning.

This trough is designed particularly for the watering of sheep and is, therefore, set low and deep in the ground for the convenience of the animals themselves and to reduce the probability of freezing.

Frank Klooster of Phelps was in town one day this week.

E. R. Harris was at East Jordan on business one day last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Loufelle are the happy parents of a son born on Sunday.

John Parsons, Sr., is at Petoskey this week to receive treatment from eye specialists.

Harry Cooper is visiting relatives and friends at Grand Rapids and Holland for a few days.

Ennes Schaver expects to leave some time this week on a business trip to Detroit and Toledo.

Mr. and Mrs. Clark Glazier left on Wednesday for Ann Arbor where Mrs. Glazier will receive medical treatment.

George Liberty left for Chicago on Thursday of last week being called by the serious illness of his sister, Mrs. Arthur Palmer.

The recent jump in the price of potatoes have caused many farmers to sell their crop. The price today (Tuesday) is 75 cents per hundred.

Miss Helen Best is so far recovered from her recent operation at the Petoskey hospital that she returned home the first of the week.

Fire which started Saturday morning in a potato car at the Co-ops warehouse caused considerable excitement and several dollars damage. Luckily the fire was discovered before it gained much headway.

A. A. Davey suffered a paralytic stroke on Friday of last week and is in a serious condition at the home of his son, Frank here in town.

Mr. Davey is some better at present but as he is nearly ninety years of age, it is highly improbable that he will ever fully recover.

The Ellsworth girls basketball team defeated the Williamsburg team 51 to 10 on the Williamsburg floor on Friday night of last week and the Ellsworth boys won on the same floor by a score of 16-3.

These teams will play a return game here in February. Both teams go to Alden for games on Friday of this week.

The date of the next Community supper is set for Saturday evening.

No man has ever made a fortune out of cows strictly from their productive ability, but good cows are about the safest and surest investment on the farm while poor cows are certainly one of the biggest reasons why so many farms are vacant today.

During the month seventeen cows produced over 1000 pounds of milk, 4 cows over 1250 pounds. Sixteen cows produced over 40 pounds of fat, while only two made over 50 pounds of fat. Thirteen members kept daily milk records and all but one member fed again for the month.

S. B. Anway had the highest herd average his 8 cows producing 28.45 pounds of fat, 744 pounds of milk at a test of 3.82 per cent and $4.56 net profit per cow. George Drenth with his eight Holsteins producing 27.12 pounds of fat, 708 pounds of milk, and a test of 3.87 and $4.97 net profit per cow was second. Next in order are Ernest Loehne, Earl Burns, N. Snyder, D. H. Bral, John Jansen, John Henney, Hitchcock Stock Farm and Henry Vander Slik.

John Doctor had the highest cow for the month, a Holstein mix, giving 51.1 pound of fat. George Drenth next with a Guernsey-Holstein at 50.8 pounds, D. H. Bral 3rd at 48.6 pounds and 47.8 pounds. Ernest Loehne 5th with a Guernsey-Jersey at 47.6 pounds, John Koster 6th with a Guernsey-Durham at 46.6 pounds, Hermann Heeres 7th with a Guernsey-Holstein at 46.2 pounds, Louis Osterbaan 8th with a Guernsey-Jersey at 45.9 pounds, Tony Shooks 9th, with a Durham at 44.4 pounds and George Rubingh 10th with a Guernsey-Holstein at 44.1. In addition the following men George Drenth, Ernest Loehne, S. B. Anway, F. H. Hemstreet, Henry VanderSlik and John Jansen had 40 pound cows and over. For the five months Ernest Loehne has highest herd average making a net profit of $7.04 per cow per month, Geo. Rubingh next with $5.89, Earle Buens next with $5.56 and W. R. Smith next with $5.46. Ernest Loehne has high cow for five months making $68.37 net profit and 260.5 pounds of fat with a purebred Jersey.

Taking America Off Its Feet!

Overland Success is the Talk of the Country

The year just ended has been the greatest of all the fifteen years of Overland history. A great year made by great cars—the greatest Overlands ever built. Greatest in looks, power, action, comfort—and money's worth?

Look at the new Overland Champion, for instance. It brings a quality closed car with features and utilities hitherto unheard of within reach of every purse. America's first all-purpose car—conceded to be the most useful motor car on wheels.

The Champion and all Overland models have the bigger Overland engine—brute power with extreme economy. Leaders in economy—leaders on the road—leaders in the many satisfactions they bring to owners. See them. Sit in them. Ask for a sample of their performance.

Good Roads Are Called Great Aid to Churches

"Where roads are best churches are strongest and civilization bears its choicest fruit; where roads are poorest churches are weakest and ignorance, poverty and crime abound."

This is the outstanding thought in an article written by Dr. S. M. Johnson, former pastor of the Austin Presbyterian church at Chicago and now director of the Lee Highway association.

Dr. Johnson, in his article, points out that the modern highway will do as much for a rural community as a railroad, school or church, serving as a means to bring the people together and promoting the consolidated school, the union church and the civic center. These, he shows, result in more regular attendance at church and school and better paid preachers and teachers for the rural communities.

Smoothness of Highways Needed for Easy Riding

While the smoothness of a road is desirable for easy riding, there are other reasons, such as the saving of wear and tear on the machines from the vertical movements caused by roughness and the fact that it takes less power to run over a smooth road than it does to go over a rough road.

Bulletin Has Back-Yard Egg-Making in Nutshell

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture)
A small flock of hens instead of a large garage can mean a sizeable balance on the side of thrift. In a nutshell, that is the essence contained in the 20 pages of Farmers' Bulletin 1331, Back-Yard Poultry Keeping, just issued by the United States Department of Agriculture. It is a revision of a former bulletin and contains many new suggestions and conveniences that will be useful to flock owners in villages, small towns and suburbs.

Various uses are now made of the table waste collected from homes in towns and suburbs, but practically the only use that may be made of it on the premises is as feed for chickens, and this use, according to the bulletin, can be made very profitable if the birds are given good housing and care. It is assumed that each hen in her pullet year will produce at least ten dozen eggs, a reasonable requirement of only one egg every three days. The size of the back-yard flock seldom should go below ten hens. Ten birds laying eggs at the specified rate will produce 100 dozen in a year, which at the conservative price of 40 cents a dozen will make the flock income $40 a year.

The bulletin is really a handbook designed to answer any question that may come up in the mind of the owner of a small flock. It covers such subjects as the kind of fowls to keep, the size of the flock, procuring stock, housing, feeding, lice and mites, hatching and raising chicks, culling the hens, preserving eggs, and practical pointers.

Plans and bills of materials are given for making houses of low cost and houses that will fit various conditions. Details are given on interior equipment such as roosts, dropping boards, nest boxes and coops for broody hens. It is suggested, for instance, that an orange box can be made into two good nests simply by nailing a narrow strip of board along one side to hold in the straw. The advantages of a double yard are discussed, and one paragraph tells of the value of a mulberry tree in supplying a succulent feed for three weeks. There is a description of an interesting device for providing fresh green feed by growing oats through a frame in a poultry wire stretched on a frame a short distance from the ground to keep the hens from killing out the plants. Copies of the bulletin may be obtained, as long as the supply lasts, by writing to the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Whitewash for Chicken House Easily Prepared

A whitewash that disinfects, kills mites and brightens the poultry house is made as follows: Shake five quarts of rock lime with hot water to about the consistency of cream. To this add one pint of crude carbolic acid or kerosene, and one quart of kerosene. Stir thoroughly and dilute with twice its own volume of water. Apply with either spray pump or whitewash brush. When properly prepared, this solution serves three purposes: the carbolic acid is a disinfectant, killing the germs; the kerosene penetrates the wood, destroying the mites, and the lime whitens the walls, making the building cool and light.

Contagious Roup Cause of Heavy Poultry Loss

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture)

With the approach of fall and wet, cold weather, contagious roup, say members of Iowa State college, is one of the most dangerous diseases that threaten flocks. It causes a heavy loss not only from a high death rate but also from the fact that it interferes with egg production and causes loss of vitality in breeding.

Contagious roup is easy to identify. It starts with a thin watery discharge from the nose and eyes, which has an offensive odor. Inflammation sets in, the birds begin to cough and they frequently breathe through their mouths. The secretions from the nose and eyes change to a yellowish cheese-like mass.

Roup can easily be prevented by avoiding damp, poorly ventilated, overcrowded quarters. To cure a sick bird, place it in a dry, well-ventilated place away from the other birds and give it plenty of fresh water and feed. Every morning and evening remove all the cheesy matter from the eyes and nostrils and dip the bird's head into a solution of bichloride of mercury (1-1,000). This is made by placing one 7.3 mercury bichloride tablet in a pint of water. Hold the bird firmly and immerse the head until the eyes are covered, keeping it there a few seconds or until it struggles.

Poultry Manure Is Most Valuable as Fertilizer

Poultry manure contains fertilizing constituents which would cost 20 to 25 cents as commercial fertilizers. The average night droppings of a hen are 30 to 40 pounds annually. A flock of 100 hens at this rate would produce $20 to $25 worth per year. To prevent loss of the fertilizing constituents, stilted coal ashes may be used on the dropping boards as an absorbent. Wood ashes or lime should not be mixed with the manure. As poultry manure is particularly adapted to gardening, poultry raisers can often dispose of it at a good price. Such management will add a little to the profits from the flock.

Feather-Pulling Harmful in Any Chicken Flock

Feather-pulling destroys a flock. When a cock begins to look as if he were plucked on the neck and breast, you may then begin to watch for the hen that is doing the mischief; and she should be removed at once, as she will teach the habit to others. If she remains with the flock, feather-pulling is a vice that comes from confinement and idleness. There is no remedy for it, but it may be prevented by so feeding the fowls that they will be compelled to scratch. They should be fed meat and bone-meal, plenty of grass, and a little salt, in their food.

Fowls Lay Majority of Eggs During First Year

Hens lay the majority of eggs during their first two laying seasons, and especially during their pullet year. If they are early hatched, if a hen lays well during her pullet year she should be kept for another year as a breeder. If she lays well during her second year as a breeder, the older she is and the more culling she survives the better, for then she has proved that she has the vitality to stand up under long-continued laying, and consequently is valuable as a breeder.

Overcrowding of Fowls Cause of Many Failures

Overcrowding of poultry is one of the most common reasons why success is not had. The temptation to carry a few extra fowls, over and above the capacity of the buildings and equipment, and thereby "increase" the profit, is one of the commonest stumbling blocks to actual success. When this lesson is learned (sometimes it is a bitter lesson) then real profit is more likely to be had.

POULTRY NOTES

Vigorous chicks come from eggs laid by hens of good breeding and vitality.

Don't throw or bury dead fowls where there is a possibility of others of the flock having a chance to eat the diseased meat. Burn them.

Poultry will pay for a lot of milk. Where milk is fed to hens and chicks freely, there is no need to furnish any neat scraps or meal-mash.

When you discover that there is something wrong with some of the fowls don't stop your investigations until you have discovered the trouble.

Tapes do not usually trouble turkeys as much as chickens, but turkeys sometimes pick up the tape worms from ranging or soil which has become infected from chicken raising.

Strain More Important Than Breed of Chickens

There is no "best breed" of chicken. Breed does not play half the part that strain does. Pick a strain that has a record behind it, either for eggs or fancy—whatever you desire—buy directly from the principal breeder of that strain, or from stock direct from his strain and buy as good stock as you can afford.

POULTRY NOTES

There is no danger of getting the hen house too clean.

Water deep enough to dip the head in up to the eyes must always be given when the ducklings eat.

Oats, rye and new corn have never given good satisfaction for fattening poultry.

Stint in the feed bucket means stint in the egg basket or milk bucket. Grass won't do everything.

Feed all poultry regularly. Indifferent feeding methods never pay. Regular hours for feeding, proper feeds and the right amounts are required.

Water for swimming purposes may not be absolutely necessary to geese and ducks but they certainly appreciate it when it is provided.

Diarrhea in young poultry kills thousands every year. While this is a germ disease, improper feeding and care can do a great deal to bring it about.

Rocky Road. "The road to the police court," mused the motorist, "is paved with good pedestrians."—The Passing Show (London).

Road Connects Seaports. A highway is being planned along the South Atlantic coast linking the chief seaports from Norfolk, Va., to Jacksonville, Fla.

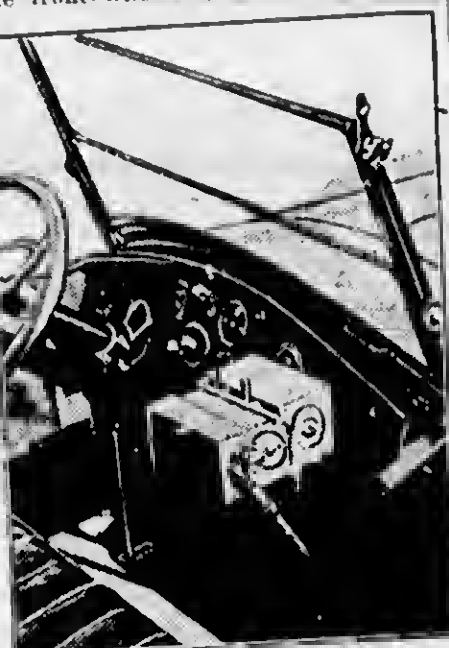

Grade Crossings. There are more than 250,000 highway grade crossings in the United States.

GOOD HIGHWAYS

Highway Surface Tester Keeps Record of Bumps

A manufacturer of road machinery has recently perfected an ingenious recording instrument to measure inequalities in highway pavement surface. This instrument is divided so that it may be mounted at the side of an automobile dashboard as shown in the illustration, and is intended to record variance in surface by the markings of pencils upon a rolled chart fed through the tiny machine.

All inequalities in the surface of the pavement passed over by either of the front wheels are recorded. This reduced to a horizontal scale whereby 1 inch equals 50 feet, and a vertical scale where 1/4 inch equals 1 inch. Irregularity in either line outward indicates a depression. Irregularity of the line inward indicates a hump. The roll of paper constituting the chart is sufficient to record inequalities in ten miles of road surface for the guidance of road maintenance officials.

Federal-Aid System of Highways in 34 States

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture)

Roads that will comprise the federal-aid system of highways have been definitely designated in 34 states, according to the bureau of public roads of the United States Department of Agriculture.

A story of the system in the 34 states now approved shows some interesting facts. Nearly every city of over 5,000 population is located upon it, and the few that are not will connect with it over improved roads. Indications are that over 90 per cent of the entire population of the United States will live within ten miles of a federal-aid highway. In a number of states the figure is as high as 98 per cent, and in none of the states will it drop below 65 per cent.

The following tabulation shows the mileage in the system by states, estimates being given for those states whose systems are not yet approved:

Considerable Work Yet to Do on Dixie Highway

Judge M. M. Allison, president of the Dixie Highway association, Chattanooga, Tennessee, announced that at the annual meeting of the association held in Chattanooga, Richard J. Finnegan and William G. Edeus, of Chicago, were elected directors for the association from the state of Illinois. The Dixie Highway is complete from the Indiana line into Chicago. Other states, however, are not quite so fortunate, and have considerable work yet to do between the Indiana line and Miami, Fla., the southern terminus of the highway. It is proposed to hold a series of meetings at points in Kentucky, Tennessee, Georgia and Florida, where local interests are planning to complete their sections of this important North and South trunk line highway.

North Carolina's Great Better Highway Program

The North Carolina state highway commission recently let new road contracts amounting to $3,000,000. Bids were solicited by 165 different firms of road contractors. There were 21 projects totaling 199.07 miles, of which 43.08 miles were mostly of asphalt paving and cost $1,923,937, of $30,370 per mile, including grading, drainage, bridges and culverts. The widths of the pavement were about equally divided between 16 and 18 feet.

"Three Live Ghosts" Coming
We are glad to announce the forthcoming presentation at the Palace theatre next Saturday and Sunday of George Fitzmaurice's great Paramount production, "Three Live Ghosts." This is a picturization of Frederic S. Isham's famous stage play and Anna Q. Nilsson and Norman Kerry are the featured players. This is unquestionably one of Mr. Fitzmaurice's best screen productions and as comedy and pathos are delightfully blended in the story, we are sure you will be charmed with it. It's a great picture, magnificently produced and the portrayals are highly artistic.

Vera Borden Seen in "The Good Provider."
That pre-eminent mother and father of pictures—Vera Gordon and Dore Davidson—again appear in a picture of humble life, a picture that is undoubtedly the capstone of their highly successful careers. The new photoplay is "The Good Provider," a Paramount picture created by Cosmopolitan Productions, written by Fannie Hurst and directed by Frank Borzage. These four—Miss Gordon, Mr. Davidson, Miss Hurst and Mr. Borzage—helped to make "Humoresque" the sterling picture that it was and Miriam Batista, who also did her share in it, has an important part in "The Good Provider," which comes to the Palace Theatre next Wednesday. Vivienne Osborne, William (Duster) Collier, Jr., and John Roche also lend their excellent talent to the production.

RETURN FROM U. P. VICTORS

BASKETBALL SQUAD CLEANED UP ON NORTHERNERS.

Beat Newberry 20 to 17, the Soo 14 to 12 and the U. S. Army 15 to 13.

Patience, ye basketball fans—a complete account of the great north country "clean-up" staged by the C. H. S. squad will follow in one minute. Here's the official Chanticleer report:

In one, two, three order the speedy basketballers of Charlevoix High School defeated the crack squads of the upper peninsula.

Newberry's strong aggregation was the first team to meet defeat at the hands of their down state opponents; next came the speedy Sault Ste. Marie team, and last, the U. S. Army at Fort Brady.

Each game was a fight from start to finish with "the big six-footers from Charlevoix" working in perfect form and with amazing speed. They met veteran teams and in spite of the strain of playing games three nights in succession, were as strong at the Fort as up state.

Last Thursday night they met Newberry and defeated them by a score of 17 to 20. The game was strongly contested and not until the last quarter did either team get far in the lead. At the end of the half the score stood 5 to 6 with C. H. S. ahead. In the third quarter, with a sudden burst of play, Hallett placed the ball in the ring and the locals took the lead, which continued until the whistle blew. There was only one foul called during the game.

The "Soo" team, under the training of Coach Cushman, were in perfect trim for the game. The "Soo" Evening News stated before the game: "The smoothest, hardest working squad of aspirants to court honors that the 'Soo' high school has developed in years will meet the Charlevoix team here tonight." And although the north-state team was all that it was cracked up to be, the locals took their opponents into camp by a score of 12 to 14. The largest crowd that ever witnessed a basketball game at Sault Ste. Marie, 1000 in number, saw the affair, accompanied by a 50-piece band.

The fans saw the game of their lives. The hall had scarcely left center when the game started in a fast and furious manner. McGauley, Soc guard, fouled Todd, who was given two free throws, both of which he missed. Two minutes later McGauley fouled Dagwell, who made his shot. Zeller jumped with Dagwell, who took the ball through the Soo guards for a sensational field goal.

The ball had scarcely been taken to center when the Soo netted a basket, followed by another which ended the quarter with the Soo in the lead. The local team was somewhat winded at this time, but came back strong in the second quarter. The Soo News says: "The playing was very fast at this time, but our team could not get through Charlevoix's stalwart guards. The six-footers on the opposing team missed the ball over the heads of the 'Soo' men, who were held at a disadvantage on this account."

The half ended in an 8 to 8 tie. The third quarter decided the game, as no scores were made in the final period. The local basketballers dashed into the fray with their old speed and netted in quick succession three baskets, followed by two by the "Soo." The quarter ended Charlevoix 14, "Soo" 12.

Though the playing was fast and furious in the final period, the north staters failed to break through the bulwark of the local defense. Thus the local boys took the "Soo" team into camp.

The next night they met the Army, a team who boasted of but one defeat in two years at the hands of a high school and then only by a one point margin.

This game too was a thriller, a scrap from beginning to end with the soldiers ahead one moment and the down-staters the next. The half ended in a tie as did the game. An overtime period had to be played in which the locals, as per usual, netted the telling basket. The pitched battle ended 10 and 12.

Jones, former captain of the local outfit, was sent up north Saturday morning to strengthen the Charlevoix squad at Fort Brady. He replaced Glasgow during the first half.

Coach Altenburg says: "The Charlevoix team played the game hard and square to the man. Each individual player was a star in himself and it was only through their strategy that they brought home the bacon to C. H. S."

We understand Glasgow proved himself a stalwart guard, fighting every minute of play and keeping out the enemy forwards with all the cleverness of his team-mate, Captain "Doc" Todd.

At center Dagwell played a sensational game, as did the forwards, Hallett and Bacot.

NEW PLAN WILL CUT RED TAPE

STATE ABOLISHES OFFICE OF DISTRICT ENGINEER.

Substitutes Consulting Officer—Resident Engineers Report Direct to Lansing.

At a meeting of the state highway department officials held at Lansing on January 3rd measures were adopted that promise to simplify greatly control of road construction in this state, insuring less expense, a saving of time and better inspection of work.

Under the old plan, district engineers with supervision over several counties were located in some central town of the district and each resident engineer was forced to make report to his district engineer, who checked over and verified the reports of the various residences and forwarded them to Lansing, where they were again checked, returned to the district engineer, by him returned to the resident engineer and finally found their way to the contractor with the state department's O. K. or recommendations. The district engineer for this district was located at Cadillac, where all the detail for several counties was handled.

The new plan contemplates the elimination of the district engineer, substituting in his place a supervising engineer who is not bothered with the details and minutiae of the separate residences. The headquarters of this official for the counties of Charlevoix, Antrim, Benzie, Clare, Emmet, Grand Traverse, Kalamazoo, Lake, Leelanau, Manistee, Mason, Missaukee, Oshtemo and Wexford and Roscommon Township in Roscommon County, forming what used to be known as District No. 2, will be at Cadillac, the old headquarters. Each resident engineer will make his report direct to Lansing. The present supervising engineer is King Scott. His duties are purely consulting and advisory.

Under each supervising engineer are resident engineers, who will take care of two, three, four or five counties, according to the amount of construction and maintenance work comprehended within the boundaries of his territory. "One result of this new plan is that the burden of petty detail is lifted from the shoulders of the supervising engineer and distributed among the various residences of his district. Each resident engineer will have practically full authority in his section and will take care of all detail work."

The resident engineer for the counties of Charlevoix, Antrim and Emmet is a man named Dimmick, an experienced engineer who has been associated with and in the employ of K. I. Sawyer in the Upper Peninsula. K. I. Sawyer is generally acknowledged to be the best road man in the state. He is county engineer for several counties in the Upper Peninsula, is backed by the big mining interests and is the father of quite a

LIZZIE WEARS SNOWSHOES NOW

CAVORTS GAILY OVER DITCH AND SNOWDRIFT

Roads! They Mean Nothing at All in Her Young Life—Makes 20 Mile Speed.

The new snowmobile, which represents the joint purchase of Messrs. Louis Sharrow, rural carrier on Rt. 3 and Orson Everts, of Route 4, looks like it was going to be a nine day's wonder, as the saying goes.

Interested observers gathered so thick around the strange looking contraption over at the Northern Auto Co.'s garage yesterday that the work of assembling the parts was sadly held up. However, they managed to get it together and in the afternoon Lizzie Snowball had her first trial trip, which she negotiated successfully, making a speed of 18 miles to 20 miles an hour over drifts and filled-in ronds. Manager Russell of the Northern Auto Co. says he struck only one drift that Lizzie didn't top and in this instance she bored clean through it, throwing snow in all directions, although he had to go into low before he got through it. She will run on the garage floor in high.

The snowmobile, which was ordered some time ago from the Snowmobile Co., Inc., whose plant is in Ossipee, N. H., with offices in Rochester, N. H., is designed to be used on the rural delivery run out of Charlevoix and will probably go into commission tomorrow if the work of assembling and tuning up is completed by that time. As yet there is no body on the chassis, which is now constructed will take only an old Ford roadster or coupe body. Fenders and running board are missing, as these would interfere with its smooth running through heavy snow. The frame at the rear is reduced to the standard sleigh width of 44 in. The chassis, which is the regular Ford ton truck type, is fitted with an auxiliary rear axle in addition to the regular driving rear axle and the two sets of rear wheels are set with a space of about three inches between tires. This distance will be decreased to two as soon as the machine gets to working and the connecting belt can be tightened.

Over the tires of the four rear wheels and connecting the two sets is a strong canvas belt, eight inches wide. This belt is spaced at intervals of about five inches with steel lugs, each lug in two parts; those on the outside or driving surface having sharp edges turned up and running.

FINE SKI RUN ON MT. MCSAUBA

FANS HAVE BEEN BUSY CLEAR- ING AWAY BRUSH

Nothing is Needed to Make a Perfect Winter Playground Except Co-Operation.

A devoted band of local enthusiasts were out on Mt. McSaubia Sunday morning, busy clearing away brush to make one of the best ski runs in northern Michigan.

Starting at a point just west of the tower, the track shoots straight down at an angle of about 40 degrees for over a hundred yards. Then a short level run to be taken at only slightly diminished speed and another drop, followed closely by another and ending far down among the trees near the lake shore—a thrilling minute or two of birdlike swooping at express train speed; then the not-too-strenuous climb to the top to begin again.

Another run, much longer than this, is planned to start from the tower down the northeastern slope of the big hill which offers even better possibilities of development, as it affords a much longer trip. But it takes a little "elbow grease" to put it across so if you want to enjoy the kind of sport that brings crowds to St. Moritz in the Barvarian Alps every winter and in almost equal measure with what those places have to offer in the way of a ski run, get your well-sharpened axe or your shovel and hike out to the mountain early Sunday afternoon and help the boys clean the brush off the run. If you bring an axe, he sure it is sharp, for much of the brush is light and a dull axe will simply bend it over without cutting. And if you are not handy with an axe, bring a shovel.

If it once gets noised about that we have skiing here of the first order, right near town, it will not be long before our resorter friends will sit up and take notice and maybe a few will venture up this way to see what it is all about.

If we really have something here it is highly possible, as it has proven in other places, that visitors will keep coming year by year in steadily increasing numbers for stays of more or less duration and gradually we shall have developed a winter season.

There is no reason in the world why this should not be. We have all the natural advantages and a Charlevoix winter is a vastly different proposition from one in St. Louis, Cincinnati or Chicago. Beautiful, clean snow, fine bracing air and a restful stillness impossible in the larger centers form a combination that should prove very attractive to the week-end or vacationist from the big towns.

But we've got to co-operate to develop our natural advantages to the fullest extent. Let's see a big crowd out next Sunday afternoon.

Each week, something of interest about two of the numbers will appear in our city papers and these will be featured that week in homes and all public meetings.

These contests of musical knowledge have become popular all over the United States and in Europe. One of the features of the London concerts is a competition item. MICHIGAN'S VAN- ISHING FORESTS

FIFTY YEARS WILL SEE ITS TO- TAL DESTRUCTION

Upper Peninsula Newspaper Reviews Situation and Gives Some Startling Statistics

The Ishpeming Iron Ore, Saturday, Jan. 5, carried an interesting story on our vanishing forests, declaring that the next 50 years will witness the total destruction of the timber forests in the upper peninsula of Michigan. The story, as told in part, follows:

"Authorities, or pretending authorities, have made the statement that the next fifty years will have witnessed the total destruction of our forests, taking the present rate of exhaustion and reforestation as it is now being prosecuted. By destruction we mean that all the timber of commercial value will have been cut away. To the people of the upper peninsula who have a thought for the years to come and who have pride enough in their country to see that oncoming generations will have some of the natural pleasures that we have enjoyed, the vanishing forests must be a subject of the deepest concern, and if it will, only take a form that will rebuild the vast tracts of land that have been laid bare, with new trees, then a great thing will have been accomplished. In our humble opinion the only practical way to reforest the upper peninsula is to plant seedlings of the varieties that may be desired, preferably white pine, which is native to our soils. The cutting out of the mature trees, permitting the younger and smaller to remain has not, as we have observed, been a success for the reason that the younger growth has a very superficial rootage and when the large trees have been cut it removes the shelter the younger growths need, so that the latter are uprooted by the winds."

"But the owners of these cut-over lands that would be ideal for the growing of new trees tell us that it would not prove profitable to reforest them because the taxes now assessed would not warrant the carrying on of such an enterprise. It is the opinion of men who would reforest that there ought to be some exception in the ease of those who sought to grow new forests in taxes as now levied. If this cannot be brought about then the forests will not be replaced with new ones. Some plan ought to be adopted that would prove so attractive that it would start reforestation throughout all portions of the state where suitable lands for the purpose are available. The upper peninsula would be an ideal region in which to carry on the work. There ought to be exemption from taxes for a period of years during which the young trees are getting a start and until they have reached a time when they could be considered of commercial worth. No one is going to invest any time or money in seeking to grow new forests when the cost is altogether out of proportion to the returns."

"It was only a few years ago when we were mourning the last white pine in the peninsula. It is true that we still have a little patch here and there, but practically it has all been cut away, as the hundreds of thousands of acres of high white pine stumps give mute testimony. And in these high stumps is proof of waste in cutting. Other hundreds of thousands of acres show where fire ravaged much pine while the latter was standing."

"When the pine was gone we began cutting the hemlock that had previously been considered of little value. It was even too heavy to be used in the mines for support of the hanging walls and brought very little in the market, barely enough for the cutting and delivery. For the last twenty years hemlock has been in heavy demand for the reason that the beautiful white pine was no longer available, and it has gone in to all kinds of building from the best to the poorest and has commanded good prices. And now the hemlock is becoming scarce. The jack pine has been pretty well cut away, having been used for holding the roof of drifts in the mining of soft

ROAD BUILDING

Good Roads Will Keep Boys and Girls on Farm

"The Kansas Automobile Owners' association believes good roads will induce more country boys and girls to stay on the farms and more city boys and girls to go to the farms," declares E. J. Heckle, in the Topeka Capital.

"Government statisticians compiled at intervals during the past thirty years have shown, and do show, a steady tide of immigration of farm boys and girls into the cities," Heckle said.

"But the automobile owners see a powerful counter-attraction, which if generally adopted, will reverse the tide and send the farm-bred boy and girl back to the farm and take with them a number of their city-reared cousins.

"That is a state system of highways, such as the project proposed for Kansas, which would include 6,575 miles of hard-surfaced road that could be traveled 365 days a year, without one cent of additional cost to the taxpayers.

"One of the principal causes of the pull of the cities is the unimproved or only slightly improved roads which are an effectual barrier between the farmer, his wife and children and the undoubted pleasure and gaiety that the city and town life offers. With the advent of the automobile this barrier was in a way removed, but rain and bad weather promptly replaces it periodically.

"This project to break down the last barrier between the farm and city in Kansas includes the passage of a bill, at the next legislature, submitting to the people of Kansas a proposition authorizing a state system of highways to be paid for by the funds raised annually by the present automobile license fees.

"The plan also includes removal of the automobile from the personal property tax list. This feature in itself would tend to reduce the taxes of every automobile owner and give Kansas an improved system of 365-day roads, touching every county and every important trade center in the state."

Highway Improvement Is Costing Billion a Year

The magnitude of the country's road improvement program is emphasized in a summary of the government's participation made by Thomas H. MacDonnell, chief of the United States bureau of public roads, who was the principal speaker at the twentieth annual convention of the American Road Builders' association, held in New York city.

"Long strides have been made in improvement of roads in the United States," he said, "but the building program of the country has scarcely been started. The federal government gives a little more than 6 per cent of aid to states and localities in meeting the expenses of improving roads. Since 1916 the bureau of public roads has undertaken a program of 150,000 miles of road improvement help.

"Throughout the United States last year a total of $976,000,000 was spent by the federal government, the states, counties, and municipalities in building and improving roads. There are 2,500,000 miles of roads in this country, of which 2,500,000 miles remain to be improved.

"Building of good automobile roads will not hurt railroads but will help them. Statistics in hand will disprove the contention held by some that states expending funds for motor roads are spending money for the benefit of the country at large rather than for the states themselves.

"Most of the traffic is local, that is within the state. Take the case of Connecticut, for instance. There the traffic on the highways is 70 per cent local. That is, it is traffic confined within the state's borders, giving the state the largest benefit of its road improvement. In general, the road traffic on automobile highways is truck or short-haul traffic and that 65 per cent is pleasure. But the bulk of traffic remains within state boundaries."

Hard Roads Movement Is Gaining in Popularity

The hard roads movement is gathering power as it moves. T. C. Powell, vice president of the Erie Railroad Co., is reported to have said, "The time has come when the nation's railroad facilities are so heavily taxed by the enormous tonnage offered that there is only one way in which we may get freight hauled. And that is by asking business men to employ motor trucks for the short hauls, say, up to thirty miles or so, thus releasing railroad facilities and equipment for the longer haul which can go by no other means."

Care Given to Highway Work in National Parks

Great care has been given to the construction of highways in the national parks of the United States. Roads have been built through steep canyons across towering mountain ranges, beside rippling streams filled with the fighting trout and into primal forests. Hotels and camps have been erected to provide comfortable accommodations in the most distant and inaccessible places.

Freight Zone Changes Mean Money.

The recent order from the Interstate Commerce Commission to the railroads to rearrange their freight rates is going to mean much to the shippers of Michigan agricultural products. It is estimated that the entire amount saved will be over a million and a half dollars in the lower peninsula alone.

Instead of the previous five zones there are now only four.

Shippers north of Montcalm and Gratiot counties will not be affected as favorably as those below those counties. However, the savings in the immense shipments of potatoes out of Michigan will be considerable, although amounting to only a few dollars a car. It is estimated that on this commodity alone that a saving of $40,000.00 to $50,000.00 will be made the shipper.

On a car load of potatoes from Petoskey to Toledo, a saving of approximately $4.00 will be made. Other points vary.

This is another instance where organization has paid. The Michigan State Farm Bureau took a very active part in this case and all over the entire state credit is given that farmer's organization for putting this huge piece of work across.

Where is Poverty?

The writer was engaged recently in a conversation with one of our rural superiors of the county, which naturally was along agricultural lines or plainly speaking, "farming."

During the course of the interview our talk drifted towards the finances of farming. It was and is generally conceded that the farmers as a whole are financially inadequately remunerated for their agricultural labors. In other words, they are under-paid. The writer also admits this. But nevertheless let us stop and glance around and see if the agriculturalist is the only one in financial difficulties.

The question was brought up as to who received the most aid from the county—families on the farm or those in town. Here are the figures that were given in reply to this question: From the amount between two and three thousand dollars paid in bills to the poor, not ten per cent of it went to people on farms, but instead the majority of this amount was paid to families in town.

Farmers may not have large savings accounts, but they are quite sure of at least a living and fuel to burn to keep them warm with.

In the January 12 issue of the Country Gentleman is an article entitled, "The Country Woman." This article explains why great men, men who are leaders in thought and action come from the country. This article is not exactly along the line of farm finances, but it again reminds us of a few of the advantages of the farm that do not exist in the city.

Contentment cannot be purchased with money, and it is the writer's belief that there are more chances for contentment on the farm than in the city.

AT THE MOVIES.

"Hello, Tom," and "Hello George!" That's the way Thomas Meighan, Paramount star, and George Ade, America's leading humorous author, address each other.

For Tom and George are warm personal friends of long standing. Tom met George in Chicago and suggested that the author write a screen play. "Write one for me to star in," he added.

That's a capital idea," responded Ade. "You've played a crook in several pictures. Now, in this story, we'll have you as something entirely different. We'll make you a small town lawyer—a lazy fellow who likes to fish better than practice law, and then we'll put you in politics and show how much dynamite you really have when you get into action. We'll prove that there are no lazy men—the so-called lazy man is simply one who has not struck the right job."

That is how the story of "Our Leading Citizen," the Thomas Meighan starring picture which will be displayed at the Palace Theatre next Saturday and Sunday came into existence. It was scenarized by the author and Waldemar Young. A remarkable cast which includes Lois Wilson, Theodore Roberts, William P. Carleton, James Neill, Laurence Wheat, Lucien Littlefield, Sylvia Ashton, Thomas Kennedy and Ethel Wales was chosen. Alfred Green directed.

GOOD HIGHWAYS

Road Design Is Feature of Traffic Regulation

Traffic regulation is a problem of road design and maintenance, in the mind of the highway engineer, Charles J. Bennett, Connecticut state highway commissioner, told highway department representatives of 20 states at a conference recently held at Harrisburg, Pa. He spoke on the experience of the states in traffic regulation and said the necessity for providing highways over which motorists can travel at all times of the year must be the first principle considered. Bennett said that he is selling service to the public and the problem of traffic regulation as connected with the design and maintenance of the road is a very important part of his work.

He advocated the widening of roads, particularly on curves and dangerous points, to provide for emergency conditions. He told the conference that Connecticut has partially solved the problem of safety at such points by placing a concrete strip in the center of an asphalt road to divide traffic. He said that a standard form of signal should be adopted for railroad crossings and advocated the use of reflecting type signals for curves.

Overloading of trucks was censured by the speaker, who said that "with the constantly increasing use of the motor-trucks and at times of congestion with the necessity of concentrated use of the motor-truck, the temptation and tendency is to overload, and a regulation of this particular evil should be drastic, severe, thorough and continuous."

The regulation of speed and operation at dangerous points, he called a matter of policing, saying: "We should be careful to so define the limits of truck and passenger car dimensions that the highway engineer can intelligently design his roads to furnish the service which the public has a right to demand in return for the expenditure of such tremendous sums of money as are being invested in the highway service."

Oil Prevents Sand Dunes

Shifting on New Roads

One serious obstacle to improved road building, particularly in the Northwest, has been the shifting sand dunes which cover up a highway soon after it is completed, and to remedy this evil the bureau of public roads of the Department of Agriculture has resorted to the spraying of the sand with oil. Fifty-three miles of construction of the Columbia river highway from The Dalles eastward lie through sandy country in many places of a volcanic ash as light as flour. As fast as cuts are opened up and fills made in this light soil the wind whips out the fill slopes and sand dunes creep into rock cuts, completely blocking the road. Oil is the only agency yet found to stop the trouble.

The equipment used to spray the crude oil consists of two supply tanks, or drums, in which the oil is carried from the storage tank at the railway siding, and a tractor, which draws the oiling rig and supplies the steam through a hose to the compressor tank, which is carried on a trailer. The oil is heated by the steam and forced through a hose with a nozzle consisting of a half-inch pipe. The steam atomizes the oil and sends it in a fine spray for 100 feet or more, depending on whether the spray is projected in the direction of the wind or against it. For obvious reasons, spraying is usually carried on in the direction of the wind. Where sufficient oil is used this means of controlling the sand dunes is very effective, and it is believed that the cost will not be excessive.

Destruction of Roads

Due to Heavy Impacts

It is agreed by experts who have made numerous tests that the greater part of the destruction of hard-surfaced roads is due to the heavy impacts of the motor wheels, and the contention, which seems to be just, has been that these trucks should pay taxes high enough to insure the repair of the roads in the proportion in which they use them. Little damage is done by the numerous pneumatic-tired pleasure cars which travel these roads.

Modern Built Highways

Are Built of Concrete

Modern paved roads which are superseding macadam are built of concrete or with brick or bituminous surfacing on a concrete base. In the most expensive type the concrete is reinforced with steel. The tendency of state engineering departments, moreover, is to build them much as modern railroads are built—with low grades, few curves and without grade crossings.

Every Automobile Owner

Interested in Highways

Well-built roads and how they should be built is of interest to every truck and automobile owner. He pays very large taxes assessed on the basis, principally, of road maintenance, and he should interest himself in seeing that his county commissioners place road work not only with the lowest bidder, but with the contractors that thoroughly understand the business of building road beds that will far outlast the surface.

THE WEEKLY PAPER

The power of the weekly paper is one of the undisputed developments in journalism. The great dailies are certainly not great because they are thoroughly read, but rather because they use up lots of ink and space. It's the weekly paper that gets the attentive audience, including every member of the family, and because of its special stress upon home news and home interest attains the maximum of reader-interest.

The 20,000 weekly papers in the United States are ever on the side of their readers; their editors and owners are known personally to the people, and they cannot deviate from the wishes of the majority. This is certainly not true of the great daily. In only a few conspicuous instances do readers know of their editors or who they are, while their owners, as a rule, are of, for and by the interest.

The weekly papers are the saving power of American journalism because they are sincere and close to the people whose actual wishes and thoughts they reflect. The weekly papers are the saving power of American journalism because they are the best advertising medium in the country. Their once-a-week timely appeal to the women home-need buyers is becoming more and more evident to local and national advertisers. Local merchants who want to keep Charlevoix trade in Charlevoix should take cognizance of this fact and make freer and more intelligent use of the advertising columns of the favorite "home paper."

THE WAY OF TAXES

Everyone lives in a house that he owns or one that he rents, or in an apartment or a single room. Every time real estate assessments are raised and taxes are increased the house owner pays them directly out of his pocket, and his cost of living is increased by just that much. The landlord who rents houses, apartments, tenements or rooms, also pays his higher taxes and then raises rent to cover them, plus a little extra to make it even money. Exactly the same process takes place in the case of every commodity. The manufacturer adds his taxes plus to his costs; the wholesaler adds his taxes plus to his quotations; and the retailer adds his taxes plus to his prices. But this is not all. The man who draws his income from any profession or business finds it materially reduced, after he has paid his city, state and federal taxes, so he presses for ever higher fees or salaries and dividends to enable him to maintain his standard of living. These, too, must be added to retail prices and be paid in the end by the man who thinks that he is paying no taxes as well as by the one who knows that he is—Saturday Evening Post.

GEORGE HAMLIN WRITES FROM BRIGHT ANGEL CAMP

Tells of Visit to Petrified Forest and Indian Christmas Dance

Here's a letter written November 27, 1923, by George Hamlin, eldest son of Arthur Hamlin and brother to Mike and Charlie of this city, from Bright Angel Camp, Grand Canyon National Park, Arizona, where he and his family stopped for a time on their way to Los Angeles by automobile. Sorry we cannot print the wonderful view of the canyon that occupies the lower half of the letter-head that Mr. Hamlin used for his interesting account:

"Well, here we are at the Grand Canyon. Drove in here about 60 miles off from the main road and didn't get in until after dark, so haven't seen anything yet, but there is a black hole about fifteen feet from where I am writing which they tell me is one mile to the bottom."

We spent a good week in New Mexico, visiting ancient ruins, cliff-dwellings, Indian, etc. Sunday, we drove 30 miles out on the plains to see an Indian dance and were well paid for the trip. Got there just about dark over very bad roads, over mountains, valleys and river bottoms, and as we went over the last mountain and could see their campfires in the distance, it surely made a beautiful picture.

The tribe was the Navajoe and the dance was their annual religious festival, the same as our Christmas. They believe that all living things came from the middle of the earth through the mountains and they were celebrating the event. They are a very large race—very few of them less than six feet tall.

Visited the petrified forest yesterday and saw great trees lying on the ground that are now solid rock. Santa Fe and Albuquerque were both very interesting places, nearly all of the houses being made of mud—even the city and capital buildings. We are now about three or four days from Los Angeles. Car going fine. Still have Traverso City air in our tires."

ENJOY A GOOD FEED

Business Meeting and Discussion Follows.

A fine supper was prepared by the ladies of the Eastern Star Tuesday evening for the Masons, who, with the Stars, had gathered to discuss the estates and the matter of the sale of stock in the Masonic Temple.

After the supper, which was highly enjoyed by all present, who were sufficient in number to make a second table necessary, the business meeting was held in the big diningroom of the temple. P. D. Campbell was elected temporary chairman for the meeting, in the place of the regular chairman, Charles E. See, who is absent from the city and reports from the treasurer and the auditing committee were read and disposed of. Several speakers then addressed the meeting on the subject of the stock, among them A. L. Fitch and W. H. Miller who explained the condition of the stock which is now on hand for sale and the regulations governing its transfer and bequest at the death of the owner. The value of the stock was tellingly shown by W. H. Miller, who cited the fact that among the effects of the late Julius C. Birge, Belvedere reporter, were five shares of this stock which were listed among his sound investments and valuable securities by the administrator of his estate.

At the close of the meeting, a subscription list was passed around and those present of the members of both lodges were urged to become shareholders in the Masonic property. The stock which is ten dollars per share can only be held by a star or a Mason. It is secured by the fine modern building of the order, which was recently appraised by an expert at a value of forty thousand dollars.

hematite iron ores under the caving and wrecking plans now observed in ore extraction. The spruce is fast going, the pulp mills demanding it for the millions of tons of paper that go into Sunday editions and into the regular issues of the great newspapers of the country, as well as into a thousand other avenues.

"Even the wooden boxes are becoming rare excepting for heavy articles, the lighter ones being made from paper, and paper is generally the product of wood. With the end of spruce the white poplar will again be used as it was many years ago for pulp, and after this has gone then where shall we secure our supply? Canada is good for a number of years, but that country has destructive fires as has ours, and with a constantly increasing demand the Canadian supply must eventually be wiped out.

"It was not many years ago that our hardwood forests were generally regarded as of little value aside from furnishing cordwood for heating and cooking purposes, and for charcoal for blast furnaces. Forty years ago Iron Ore predicted that the hardwoods would in time become of great value to this peninsula and we advised owners to be sparing of them, to save them as carefully as the softer woods.

"We read that Henry Ford has just contracted for 60,000,000 feet of logs to be sent to his mills at Iron Mountain, L'Anse and Pequaming to be sawed into such shapes as he will need in his car manufactures. Mr. Ford has a great footage of hardwood timber on his own lands, but he is keen enough to know that his own timber will grow more valuable with each succeeding year. There were those who thought he had been led to pay an excessive price for these timber holdings but time will show that he secured them cheaply. Mr. Ford is keen in business propositions, and we do not believe he is so slow in political ones, and he knows that it will profit him well to buy the open market and keep his own trees. Sixty million feet of logs will make a sad hole in the tracts from which they are cut, and to the activities of the Detroit automobile manufacturer, there will be added those of many others who, in their demands for hardwood, will have to seek it where it can be had, and that means the upper peninsula of Michigan. Already there has come an important manufacturer of cars in addition to the Ford Motor Company, and others are looking over this field with the idea of filling their needs for hardwood from our forests.

"The finest birch and maple to be found in the United States, and this means the world, is growing in the upper peninsula of Michigan. Soon there is going to be a scramble for it, and owners will do well not to give it away, and it would be in line of good business policy to demand that the sawing and shaping be done in this region where the trees grow. There are many available, ideal locations for such mills and they could be operated at greater profit here than in places farther removed from where the trees grow. The hardwoods will be worth more than was the white pine when the latter was being harvested in such enormous quantities, and each new year will find them still of greater value than they were the one before. These hardwoods are suited to the making of very fine furniture and other articles where beauty and strength are demanded. Some wood is still being used for the making of charcoal in the upper peninsula and in the operation of chemical works in which by-products are secured from smoke distillation, the Cleveland-Cliffs Mining Company being the largest producer in this line.

Coughs annoy unnecessarily

Check those violent coughing spells that bring upon you unfavorable attention. Dr. King's New Discovery cures coughs quickly by gently stimulating the mucous membranes to throw off clogging secretions. It has a pleasant taste. All druggists.

DR. KING'S NEW DISCOVERY

"Just what will we do for substitutes when our timber has vanished? Naturally, we will be forced to them, and in these lines, iron, copper, and concrete will play very important parts. Already we have much iron 'timber,' as it is sometimes referred to. We see iron joists, scantling and flooring and windows and door frames, and other shapes, and many more are certain to follow as the wood goes, and in this contemplation we may secure some satisfaction knowing that our principal industry is to be called upon for still greater tonnages. Iron naturally comes next to timber for building purposes, and building is to go right on in greater volume than ever, so we are appreciating a wonderful demand for the iron ores of the Lake Superior region. A doubling with every seven new years suggests the volumes we may eventually be called upon to deliver."

LIVE STOCK NOTES

If given constant access to the proper feeds the hog cannot be overfed.

More trouble comes from not giving the sows care before farrowing than after farrowing.

The man who pins his faith to good hogs and sticks by them through thick and thin, was out in the long run.

The place in which the sow is to farrow should be warm enough that large quantities of bedding will not be needed for warmth.

Give the pigs plenty of water and shade throughout the warm months. Both are essential to the best health and growth of the animals.

It is the amount a steer eats over and above what he needs to maintain his weight that makes fat. The aim is to keep him eating as much as possible, without going off feed.

LIVE STOCK NEWS

Breeder is anxious for Strong Litter of Pigs

When the sows start farrowing in the fall the breeder is anxious that there will be large litters of strong and vigorous pigs. This can be accomplished if the feeding and care of the brood sows is adequate. Usually the herd during the summer months are under more favorable conditions than in the winter. If they have plenty of succulent forage, shade and water, most of the problem of feeding is solved.

The sows should gain enough to equal that which they will lose during the time of farrowing and the lactation period which follows. This gain for a mature sow should be in the neighborhood of 75 or 80 pounds. The gain should be a little larger in the case of yearling sows.

During the first part of the gestation period it should not be necessary to feed grain if the sows have access to a good pasture. Every attempt should be made to maintain them upon green forage, because the sows will then have plenty of exercise and the cost of feeding and care will be materially decreased. In addition this is the ideal condition for a brood sow and later they will have an easier time in pigging, the pigs will come in better condition, and the milk flow will be ample.

The sows should never be allowed to lose flesh. They should make the required gain in flesh indicated above and this can be done during the last half of the summer. During this time and up until the time of farrowing the sows should receive some grain. If the pasture is one of the legume crops the feeds necessary to supplement this may be home-grown feeds or those which are usually easy to obtain. If the pasture is just an ordinary one it may be necessary to purchase such feeds as tankage, linseed oil meal, shorts or middlings to supplement the corn fed. The amount of grain to feed and the time to start feeding the grain will all depend upon the condition of the sows.

The feed which a sow requires is important but the shade and water are also important considerations. There should be plenty of shade and the water should be fresh, cool and in ample amounts. In extremely hot weather there should be some place in which the hogs can wallow.—B. W. Fairbanks, Associate Professor Animal Husbandry, Colorado Agricultural College.

STATE HIGHWAY SIGNS IMPROVED

ENTIRE NEW SYSTEM IS BEING WORKED OUT

Aims is to Make Driving Easy and Safe For Stranger Traveling Highway First Time

Michigan is going to have a much improved system of highway markers and signs during the coming year, if plans of Deputy Highway Commissioner G. C. Dillman are carried out. Mr. Dillman now has some of his assistants obtaining data from surrounding states, and the Michigan system will be reorganized with a view of making it as nearly uniform to that of the other central states as possible.

At a recent meeting of the highway commissioners of the central states it was agreed that some uniform plan of road marking would be adopted. The Michigan system was adopted as a basic principle, but it is now planned to enlarge on it.

In remarking the Michigan trunk lines next year the work will be carried out with a view of making driving easy and safe for the stranger who is traveling the highway for the first time. Recently a survey was made of the accidents reported on the trunk lines last year, and it was found that in practically every accident the driver of the car did not know the road and had he heeded the advice given him through the signs he would have avoided trouble.

All trunk lines are to be made through traffic highways. Stop signs will be posted at all important intersections in order that the trunk line traffic may have the right of way with safety.

Another change will be made in the railroad crossing signs. The same oval marker now in use will be continued. For a single track crossing the circle will be equally divided by the two lines at the right angles. For crossings of more than one track an extra horizontal line will be added. In this manner the tourist will know that there are at least two and possibly more tracks on the approaching crossing, and can be on his guard.

Signs two feet square will be posted 500 feet from each important highway intersection on trunk lines. The curve signs and right angle turns will be marked as in the past. The square signs will be known as warning signs, while the same sized sign set in a diamond position will announce all danger points.

The trunk line marks will continue as at present.

Mr. Dillman in working out the new marking system hopes to have the most complete plan of highway marking in the country.

The new signs will be made of metal mounted on wooden backgrounds. The posts will be of steel set in concrete bases. All lettering on signs will be at least five inches high, black in color on a white background, making them easily read both day and night.

Signs announcing school houses may have a little larger lettering than the others and will bear either the word "School" or "School Zone."

In addition to the new signs it is planned to ask the co-operation of all sheriffs and country road commissions in seeing that the new uniform traffic law is strictly enforced.

ELMIRA STORES BURN TO GROUND

Fire Loss Estimated At $11,000
Partially Insured

The town of Elmira in Otsego county suffered heavily by fire last Friday when the post office, the telephone exchange and the A. B. Wickett drug store were completely destroyed.

It is not known how the fire started. It was in the daytime and one section of the block, a one story wooden structure, was a mass of flames when discovered. Those in the building barely had time to get safely out. Only a few records and a small amount of mail were saved from the postoffice. A large stock of goods in the Wickett grocery store was also destroyed. The total loss, estimated at $11,000, was only partially covered by insurance. A new building has been leased, across the street from the burned building, to house the post-office and the telephone exchange.

crossways of the belt to dig into the snow; those on the under surface, curved and smooth to fit the shape of the tires which are of the non-skid variety. Both parts of the lug are bolted together through the belt, thus making a caterpillar arrangement, similar to the belt on a tractor, which gives the machine a tractive surface of four and one-half feet. The wear and tear of the belt on the tires is slight and both the tires and belt are guaranteed for 10,000 miles.

At the front end, in place of the usual wheels, are two wooden sleigh runners, six inches wide and shod with steel runners eight inches wide, bolted to the wood with six bolts and making a complete runner five feet long on each side of the car. These runners are well turned up at both ends and for their entire length are cast with a narrow half inch ridge or keel which keeps them from skidding on hard snow or ice. The runners are fastened separately to the front axle by iron brackets, resembling very closely belt-pulley shaft hangers turned upside down.

These machines, which are guaranteed to go wherever a horse and sleigh can go, have been in use for about six years in Maine and New Hampshire. It is contemplated by the manufacturers to fit them for use with the new model Ford sedan and touring car bodies.

Owing to the difficulty of changing over from summer to winter gear and back again, it being necessary to have an entire spare rear end and the job entailing about a day's work, it is probable that for a long while yet the new snowmobile will find its principal market among users of delivery equipment, but some day, without a doubt, all kinds of cars will be plying up and down our streets in defiance of old King Winter's fiercest efforts to drive them to cover.

NEW PLAN WILL CUT RED TAPE

few original ideas in the building of roads, especially as regards the minimum cost. Mr. Dimmick has been one of his distinguished senior and comes to us with a wealth of experience and valuable knowledge.

He will make his headquarters in Charlevoix and will probably employ next summer some twelve or fifteen sub-engineers and inspectors who will be located in various parts of Mr. Dimmick's district and report to him at Charlevoix.

The new plan, which bids fair to revolutionize methods of road construction management in Michigan, is attributed to Governor Groesbeck. One of its best features is that it provides a means of competent inspection of work, as this will be one of the duties of the resident engineer.

Field goals: Bacot, Hallett, Dagwell two each, Brown one. Substitutes, Brown, center; Harrington, forward; Jones, guard; Burns, forward. The substitutes in all cases did splendid work. Keep it up, Charlevoix.

Seventy-five students delegated to cheer their victorious team back into school met the train Monday in four sleighs. They followed a big and uproarious home-coming meeting at the school, during which Coach Altenburg told the grand and glorious tale of the tri-victory.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

On January 11th, the W. C. T. U. held their monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. A. J. Hamilton on Clinton street, Mrs. James Simmons presiding.

A special committee reported that the different churches had given the use of their rooms for the meetings of the union during the year.

Mrs. Simmons was voted a councilor of the Hospital auxiliary board for the ensuing year.

Miss Georgin Kelderhouse received $15.00 as a state prize on essay contest work held in the public schools here last year. Miss Kelderhouse also won second prize in the schools of Charlevoix. No contest is in progress in the schools at present.

The report of the juvenile court department was read, showing that there had been five juveniles in the jail during the past year. The boys' Champion class of the Congregational Sunday-school had called on the boys in the jail, presented them with an Easter lily from the W. C. T. U. and also had kept the boys supplied with Sunday-school papers.

The changes in the dates of circuit court were noticed, the next date being the third Monday in February.

Mrs. Frank Metcalf, having charge of the program, "Peace and Arbitration," introduced county commissioner of schools, A. C. Belding, who gave a fine talk, explaining many points in the World Court proposition. Miss Erma Carey and Mrs. E. Stewart each gave a reading which was enjoyed by all.

A resolution on Peace was read by Mrs. Metcalf and adopted by the Union.

A rising vote of thanks was given Mrs. Hamilton for the use of her home.

Alba Man Goes to Jail For Striking a 2-Year Old Baby Girl

Melvin Laird, who lives near Alba, was arrested for simple assault upon a child not quite two years old. The child, Vivian Barnett, her nine year old brother and their mother, Mrs. Virginia Burnett, had been staying at the Laird home for about a week.

According to Mr. Laird's statement at the trial before Justice George Tobias he was trying to make the child mind; and, according to evidence, in doing so struck her on the side of the head, knocking her to the floor; then he picked her up and hit her on the other side of the head, knocking her to the floor the second time. The child's head was badly bruised.

Justice Tobias fined Laird $25.00 and costs and on his failure to pay said fine and costs to be committed to county jail for 20 days. Laird preferred the jail.

BOYNE CITY ELECTRIC CO. CHANGES HANDS

New York Concern Purchases Control From Present Owners

A. E. Fitkin & Co., Banking Co., New York City, have advanced the capital for the purchase of the stock of the Boyne City Electric company from the present owners, Follmer and Stowe, Grand Rapids, Mich. The old company was practically the pioneer of the lighting and power in Boyne City, having started modestly in 1902 and have gradually developed into their present size along with the growth of the city.

The new company, which will operate under the same name as of old, will be under the general head of the General Engineering and Management Corporation, the operating and managing organization. This corporation will put the ownership of their new company in the hands of either the Interstate Electric Corporation or the Commonwealth Light and Power company.

A. E. Fitkin and company controls numerous power and light companies throughout the states. They own plants in Cheboygan and Ludington.

Louisiana Parish Saves Money by Using Iron Ore

Iron ore, found in northwestern Louisiana, has proved of great value in road building in that state, and, in some localities where it has been used has effected a saving of $2,000 to $3,000 a mile in the cost of construction.

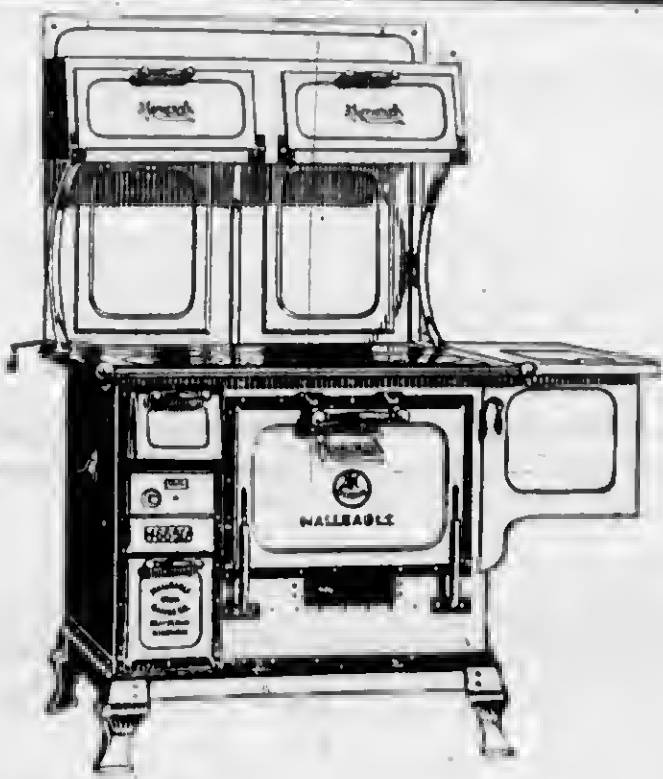

Highway engineers in Louisiana have been using the ore as a binder instead of sand or clay, and have found it far superior to that material in many instances. During 1922 the Louisiana state highway department completed 350 miles of new roads. Most of this mileage consists of gravel. The remainder consists of roads built of shells, sheet asphalt or bitulphic. The 1923 program includes a larger amount of asphaltic construction.

Iron ore was first used in De Soto parish, La., in 1917. Then a large deposit was found northwest of Arcadia. Ore from this deposit is being used as a base course on the new Houma-Minden highway, the Arcadia-Natchitoches highway, the Ruston-Arkansas highway and the Pershing highway. The state pays about 10 cents a yard in royalties for this material, against $1 a yard in sand and gravel. The saving effected amounts to about $1.50 a yard.

Federal Funds Spent on Highways in Year 1922

During the calendar year 1922 the amount of federal funds spent on highways by the United States Department of Agriculture totaled $5,903,100, which constructed 2,420 miles of forest roads and 4,190 miles of forest trails. An additional $350,000 was secured for this construction work from state and county authorities. During this same year 4,550 miles of roads and 19,600 miles of trails were maintained at a cost of $500,000.

Hens And Eggs Open The Way To Extraordinary Prosperity In Competent Hands

While the general farmers of the region are throwing up their hands in object surrender to adverse conditions and many have already sold their goods and chattels and removed to the large centers to pick up the steady factory wage, the dairyman and the chicken breeders are holding their own in a most gratifying way.

The reports of the cow testing associations which have been published in the past two or three weeks bear testimony to the success of the stockman in a territory peculiarly adapted to his industry and now comes the cheering news that poultry raising is coming to the front as a local enterprise of no mean proportions.

Minna Potter, Jr., of R. F. D. 1, is among the few wise farmers of the region who has taken up chicken raising on a scientific basis. He has 200 laying hens and gets from 40 to 50 doz. eggs per week. Another young fellow by the name of McGhan, who lives near town, is heating hen house with a coal stove and gets good results. It is a cold day he doesn't get a good bunch of eggs.

E. J. Hiller, secretary of the Charlevoix Lumber Company, who raises pedigreed chicks as a side line or a hobby, has just shipped a trio—two Barred Rock pullets and a rooster to Dr. A. J. Auld, who does a little chicken raising himself on his farm near Eaton Rapids. Mr. Hiller has a cockerel that won first prize at the Grand Rapids poultry show a year ago this winter.

Dr. Auld, who is well known to Charlevoix people, having been a resident here for many years, has a fine flock of a half dozen or more varieties, gets lots of eggs and is coming along with his enterprise in good shape.

Fabulous stories reach us periodically through the poultry magazines of the success of chicken breeders in Texas and other parts of the south who, starting with a few hens, now number their chickens by the thousands and their profits likewise. One Texan has 175 buildings devoted to chickens on his ranch, arranged along streets like the dwelling of a town. He is much more than well off and started with practically nothing. Instances nearly parallel to this are common in that region.

Although it may not be possible to achieve the phenomenal successes enjoyed by the southern fanciers, a great deal can be done in Northern Michigan to advance the poultry game and we are glad to see that more farmers each year are appreciating this fact.

STORM STILL RAGED FIERCELY TUESDAY

Zero Temperature And High Winds Prevailing

The cold wave and blizzard that has had this region in its grip for the past few days showed no signs of a let up last night. With more or less fluctuations, the mercury has held steadily around the zero mark during the few

IT'S TOURISTS ALL WESTERN MICHIGAN ARE LOOKING FOR

The Muskegon county board of supervisors last week voted an appropriation of $2,000 toward the 1924 campaign of the Michigan Tourist and Resort Association. The money will go toward the work of bringing tourists and resorters in greater numbers to the western Michigan resort region.

The vote was unanimous and the sum was the largest the board is allowed under the law to be appropriated for such a purpose.

Supervisors and boards of trade in nearly every western city and county have already appropriated money for this big booster campaign. Counties which have not already put on their campaign are to do so during the late winter or early spring.

past nights and the plumbbers of the city have reported considerable trouble with frozen pipes. However, we may be content with our lot when we learn that at White River, Canada, the coldest point reported, folks shivered with a temperature of 46 degrees below zero and at our own Duluth, 36 below was reported Sunday.

The storm which swept down out of the northwest was hitting more southern cities Monday, Chicago and Cleveland reporting severe weather and below zero temperatures. Kansas City and other western points reported bad storms with very cold weather over the week end, with many fires and many persons frozen to death.

Train service in the Charlevoix region was somewhat hampered by the storm, though not quite as badly as in some former years. Better equipment for snow-fighting may be responsible for this feature as all the roads have been put to a terrific test. The Pere Marquette train to Traverse City Monday morning and the train from Traverse City to Charlevoix that day were annulled. The afternoon train went south about on time and the Grand Rapids-Charlevoix train northbound got in in good shape, but several hours late.

STATE CONVENTION SUMMONED

DATE SET FOR MAY SEVENTH AT GRAND RAPIDS.

Charlevoix County is Entitled to Six Delegates, Apportioned on November Vote.

The Republican State Central Committee has issued its official call to the Republican voters of Michigan announcing a state convention of the delegated representatives of the Republican party of Michigan, to be held in the city of Grand Rapids on Wednesday, May 7th, of this year.

The meeting will be called to order at 11:00 o'clock in the forenoon for the purpose of electing seven delegates-at-large and seven alternates to the Republican National Convention, called to meet in Cleveland, Ohio, on June 10th, 1924, where candidates for electors of President and Vice-President of the United States will be selected and other important business transacted.

Each county's representation will be based on the number of votes cast at the November election of 1922 for the Republican candidate for secretary of state, one delegate being selected for each 250 votes cast. Here, we begin to see another vital reason why the voters of the country should turn out on election day and vote!

The county conventions throughout the state will be held on Wednesday, April 23, 1924. The various county committees will specify in their official call the number of delegates to which each township, ward or precinct shall be entitled.

A district convention will be called by the Congressional District Committee to select two delegates and two alternates to the National convention. A district caucus will be held at 9:30 a. m., on the day of the state convention at which delegates from the several counties of each congressional district will select a vice-chairman, assistant secretary, member of committee on credentials, member of committee on permanent organization and order of business, member of committee on resolutions and one candidate for elector, their selection to be confirmed by the state convention.

The apportionment of delegates for Charlevoix and six nearby counties is as follows: Charlevoix, 6; Antrim, 5; Cheboygan, 7; Emmet, 6; Grand Traverse, 7; Mackinac, 4; Otsego, 2.

Snow Belt Shifts.
Railroad men report that the northern Michigan snow belt has moved north a considerable distance this winter. The center of the belt was formerly in the Kalkaskas, Elmira, Mancelona region, but this year it has moved to the region of Brutus, Pellston, Leaning and Carp Lake. Trainmen express the belief there is more snow in these places this year than at the southern points named.

POSTAL CLERKS SEEK MORE PAY

NOT SATISFIED WITH PRESENT AMOUNT RECEIVED.

Big Interest Centers in the Kelly House Bill For Increase in Wages.

Postoffice clerks and carriers, feeling themselves overworked and underpaid, are intensely interested in the Kelly bill, now before the house of representatives at Washington providing for at least a partial solution of their difficulties.

At present a clerk or carrier starts out with a wage of $1,400 a year and if he sticks to the job he gets a raise of $100 a year, until he reaches a maximum of $1,800. Special clerks at $1,900 and the second year $2,000. Only a few, however, can get this chance.

The clerks and carriers are seeking, thru the Kelly bill an entrance wage of $2,000, an intermediate wage of $2,200 and a maximum of $2,400 with $2,500 and $2,600 for so-called "special" clerks. This, the boys consider, would mean a living wage, under present conditions. The present wage is not, they insist, and in many instances men are working outside of their postoffice hours at other vocations, or their wives are working.

Four years ago the minimum wage was only $800 and the maximum $1,200, but it was found that men would not work for these rates and congress changed them to $1,200 and $1,800. The committee that investigated conditions recommended a much higher increase, but congress turned it down.

Clerks and carriers say that a better class of men would be obtained to fill vacancies if wages were adequate and this would mean more efficient service.

Owing to the poor wages, men are no longer taking the postal examinations as they used to, nor keeping their jobs after getting them.

There is another bill the clerks and carriers are interested in, known as house bill 705, providing a better plan for pensioning clerks. The present plan is practically a joke. No man can get his pension of $720 a year (if he has worked 30 years) unless he is 65 years old. The Lehlbach bill (705) removed the 65 years old provision and provides for a pension of $1,200 a year, instead of $720.

It is interesting to note that the clerks and carriers have already raised a fund of $27,000,000 for pensions, from their own funds—two and one-half per cent of their wages. There is plenty of surplus to take care of the new pension plan. And the proposed raise in wages is to be taken care of by a readjustment of parcel post rates, provided for in another house bill.

The Kelly bill (4123) and the Lehlbach bill (705) are now before committees of congress and will probably be reported out within a week or so. What the clerks and carriers want is for those who appreciate the inadequate pay, hard hours, and scarcity of postoffice help, to write their congressmen and urge him to support these measures.

SECOND HONORS TO GAYLORD MAN

FORREST LORD SCORES IN COLLIER'S CONTEST.

Over 22,000 Letters From All Parts
Of U. S. on Prohibition Question.

Second prize in the "What I Think of Prohibition" letter contest recently closed by Collier's Weekly has been awarded to Forrest Lord, publisher of the Otsego Herald and Times at Gaylord. This contest has been running in Collier's for several weeks and over 22,000 letters from all parts of the United States have been submitted. Of these, 11,596 writers were in favor of prohibition and 9,220 against. Mr. Lord's letter is as follows:

"I have lived among the lumberjacks of northern Michigan and in Detroit, wet and dry; have seen the results of the licensed sale of hard liquors in Europe, and I still believe the American people did a wise thing when they adopted the Eighteenth Amendment. In one week I saw more drunkenness in Great Britain than I have seen in the United States in five years. I visited the Merchant's Club in Christania, My host ordered whiskey—and got it. Plenty of wine and beer to be had without violating Norway's prohibition law, but everyone around was drinking whiskey. Four American battleships spilled 2,000 marines. Three hours later the parks were filled with speeing American youths, drunk and sick on Norway's 'light wines and beer.' This is what a liberal minority want to foist on the American people.

Will wine and beer satisfy the American thirst? It hasn't the Norwegian. Our prohibition-enforcement problem, discouraging as it is, is nothing compared with Norway's. When we see a man drunk it is evidence that some one has violated the law. In Norway they don't know whether he is drunk on legal beer or illegal gin. My observations in Norway convince me there can be no halfway measure.

"I think the Volstead Act should stand; that prohibition should be given an honest trial, which it has never had. If then it fails to stand the test, I am ready to compromise. I want what is best, not for myself, but for my country."

Forrest Lord.

STORM DIDN'T AFFECT THE WIRELESS

Saturday and Sunday Programs Came Through Clear.

With the fierce storm, raging all day and night Saturday night, Sunday and Sunday night were busy times for the radio fans.

Many interesting sermons were heard Sunday and many concerts of sacred music were enjoyed. "The Skinner Organ company, New York, broadcasted a most enjoyable concert, including Christmas carols and organ and orchestra numbers. Saturday night a vocal and instrumental concert came in strong from Havana, while Sunday night Los Angeles concerts came through in wonderful shape. Amateurs all up and down the Pacific coast were picked up here without much difficulty. Their work was in code.

STATE HOSPITAL HEAD GIVES UP HIS PLACE

Dr. J. D. Munson Retires After 38 Years Service.

Dr. J. D. Munson, superintendent of the Traverse City state hospital for the last 38 years and nationally prominent in medical research circles, has announced he will resign from the superintendency there July 1. Dr. E. H. Campbell, head of the Newberry state hospital, will succeed him on that date.

Dr. Munson has been prominent in business circles in Traverse City and in national medical circles. He is affiliated with the American Medical association, American Physiological association, Michigan Medical association, National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, and the Grand Traverse Medical society. He has also been a special lecturer at the University of Michigan for many years.

It was largely through the efforts of Dr. Munson that the appropriation was obtained from the state for the construction of the new hospital at Traverse City, which will take the place of the general hospital and, in recognition of this service, the new institution will be called the James Decker Munson hospital.

JORDANITES MET WITH A DEFEAT

WENT DOWN BEFORE VICTORIOUS
C. H. S. QUINTET.

Our Boys Grab Off the Sixth Game of a Successful Season by a Score of 28 to 4.

In the sixth game of this winter's successful basketball season, the fast working, victorious Altenburg machine emerged from the melee Friday night on the big end of a one-sided score. Though playing somewhat ragged at times, the local quintet gave a good representation of the brand of basketball that got the up-stater's goats.

Friday night's zero weather did not keep the local fans at home and at eight o'clock the rink was jammed with about 200 people anxious to see the team that caused so much havoc up-state. They got a fair idea of how the "big boys" looked in action.

The Jordanites made but one point in the first half and that was in the early stages of the contest. At the end of the first eight-minute quarter, the score stood 4 to 1; the half, 10 and 1.

The local quintet was much more speedy than their smaller opponents, though the East Jordan squad were no slouches on the offensive. Charlevoix's two big guards, Todd and Jones, however, formed an impenetrable defense before the Red and White goal and only once did East Jordan break through for a field goal. It happened at the beginning of the second half. Dagwell, playing center, had been called out to receive instructions for his teammates, and Brown, the big, promising six-foot sub-center, replaced him. Swafford, Jordan's right forward, slipped in and placed the ball in the ring. He also made their last point during the fourth quarter, when he placed a free-hand throw in the basket. By this time the home squad had piled up 28 points with their lightning offensive and commendable hand work.

The local quintet, however, according to Coach Altenburg, did not display the speed and team work that was so spectacular at the Sault Ste. Marie battle. He expects to give the local fans a real thrill next Friday, when he will match his squad against the powerful and well-drilled Petoskey aggregation on the home floor.

Bullett and Bacot played fine games at the forward positions, though the entire game lacked that smooth-running, machine-like technique for which the Charlevoix men are so famous.

Dagwell at center, played a whiz of a game, placing five baskets in the ring, three of which were made in the last two minutes of play. Hallett made three field goals, Bacot two and Capt. Todd 4.

GOODBYE TO BIG LUMBERING HERE

BEATTIE TRACT OF BEECH AND MAPLE VANISHING.

Gorham Company Completes Its Cut
This Year—Nothing Left But Second Growth.

Charlevoix is now witnessing the passing of the last tract of virgin timber in this locality.

Since October of 1922, the Gorham Brothers Company of Mt. Pleasant, through their local representative, James Crawford of Benzon, have been taking out lumber and veneer logs on the Arthur Beattie farm, three miles south of town on the State road and now occupied by Louis Shapton.

Last year they concentrated their efforts on the lumber logs, which were hauled to the Zipp mill on the shores of Pine Lake and cut up prior to shipment. This year they are taking out the veneer timber, which they are stacking up or decking down at the Seed House side track, to be shipped to their factory at Mt. Pleasant to be cut up there and used in the manufacture of ply board or laminated wood. This product, which consists of thin layers of different woods, glued together is exceedingly strong in proportion to its weight and proof against warpage or other effects of atmospheric changes. It is largely used in the manufacture of aeroplane wings, in cabinet work and for other similar purposes. Formerly, they had a contract for the Ford dashboards.

The farm from which the timber is being cut contains about 60 acres if which some forty odd is or was heavily timbered—mostly beech and maple.

With the passing of this tract there is nothing left in this immediate vicinity but second growth and cut-over lands. Some of the logs they are taking out now are from ten inches to two and a half feet in diameter and from ten to sixteen feet long. Mr. Crawford has six teams hauling and two men loading, besides the foreman, at the tract. At the seed house, a team and three men are engaged in decking the logs. Those employed are mostly farmers of the district. The Gorham people expect to finish the cut this year. About half of the stand was removed last year.

That part of the timber unit for logs has been contracted to Lige and George O'Brien, who have a force of men on the ground cutting it up into cordwood, which they are hauling to town for sale to the local wood yards.

Car Ferry Freed.
The car ferry, Chief Wawatam, which became stalled in the ice again Friday morning, was able to free herself at about 5 o'clock Friday afternoon and proceed on to St. Ignace with her seventy passengers.

STATE OF MICHIGAN LISTED SIXTH IN AUTOMOBILE USE

There now is one motor driven vehicle to every 7.8 persons in the United States, according to Automotive Industries, which last week announced that the nation's motor car and truck registration had reached a total of 15,281,295 December 31, 1923. The gain over 1922 was 2,916,918 or 22.6 per cent, the largest actual increase ever recorded and the largest percentage gain since 1919.

Car and truck owners paid approximately $190,000, 000 into state treasuries in motor fees and taxes in 1923. Trucks compromise about 11 per cent of the total.

New York still leads in registration, with 1,214,090 cars and trucks. The next nine states are as follows: California, 1,093,660; Ohio, 1,072,750; Pennsylvania, 1,061,624; Illinois, 969,082; Michigan, 728,327; Texas, 688,889; Indiana, 582,882; Iowa, 572,611; Massachusetts, 566,150.

Large percentage gains were made in the southern states, while the agricultural areas went ahead at a relatively slower rate. Pennsylvania made the largest numerical increase having 234,888 more vehicles than in 1922. Motorcycle registrations fell off about 22,000 the 1923 total being 171,568.

Ice Hole Costs Money

A few days ago the writer saw a man starting towards the water, tank with an ax in his hand. Of course the first thought was that something was going to die. But then I got about 8 pounds a day of milk. Just then the concentrate feed, with more protein in it. It didn't have any special name; the boss mixed it up at home sometimes, and sometimes he'd seemed to stay with the same mixed feed very long though.

That year I averaged 20 pounds of milk a day or 6000 pounds for the year and the boss was a whole lot better pleased. My roughage cost was just the same as the preceding year, about 20c a day, but my concentrate ran a good deal higher, both in quantity and in cost. Feeding 8 pounds of it a day at an average price of 2 1-2 a pound or $50.00 a ton, meant 20c for the concentrate or 10c more than he had spent before. Forty cents a day feed cost divided by 20 pounds milk production is 2c which meant that that year I produced milk for him at $2.00 a hundred or 17c a gallon. "Much better," the cow tester said, "but I believe she can beat that even more."

The sparkling, glistening, particles radiantly reflected the morning Sun's rays and all but yielded a rainbow of unexcelled beauty.

Esthetically it was a beautiful and glorious sight. Financially it was terrible.

Figures have been produced to show that the cost involved when the cow has to warm her own drinking water, can be greatly reduced with a tank heater.

Milk is about 90 per cent water and before the water would ever go to make milk it had to be warmed to body temperature. When the cow does this it is done with high priced feeds which should go into the manufacture of that lactical fluid commonly known as milk.

During our winter months, a tank heater will save the cost of itself many times, over, through increased milk production.

Investigate, then invest and prove it out to your satisfaction.

A Cows Talks Profits

Funny how some of these fellows will scrap around for two or three weeks for a cent or two difference in the milk price when they could cut the cost several cents a gallon if they would make up their mind to it.

Believe me, my boss sure did it. Just think of making an additional profit of over 2c a gallon on every gallon of milk. That's what I've done for him though and he says he isn't thru yet.

Maybe you'd like to hear just how it was because if you're a milk producer it will talk to your pocket-book.

How I Earned Nine Cents a Gallon Extra Profit

With my second calf the boss was sort of new in the dairy business and didn't pay a lot of attention to me. He fed me pretty well on hay and ensilage but was kinda short on grain, getting only about 3 pounds a day of first one kind of feed and then another.

I made 3600 pounds of milk that year and I hear that's just about the average of all the cows in the country, but I wasn't very proud of it.

Milk cost 21 1-4c Per Gallon

Believe me, though, I was ashamed when the boss began to figure out what it cost him to have me make that milk. He figured that the roughage such as ensilage, hay, fudder and so on, cost about 20c a day, and the concentrate cost about 10c a day, figuring on an average of 5 pounds a day at 2 1-2 a pound or $40.00 a ton. That made 30c a day as my total feed bill. Thirty divided by 12 (12 pounds of milk for 300 milking days—3600 pounds yearly) is 2 1-2 which means that it cost the boss $2.50 a hundred, or 21 1-4c a gallon to make milk with me. "JENOSA-PIAT! YOU LOST ME MONEY."

That's what the boss said when he figured that out, but the cow tester said, "Never mind, give her a chance next year on a little more concentrate and especially more protein. I believe she'll do better. She's got some pretty good breeding behind her even if she isn't a purebred."

More Concentrates Increased The Milk

Well, next year the boss joined the cow testing association and of course they had pretty good rations:

THESE WISE MOTHERS

They helped their little ones back to health and strength with original Vinol. Mrs. Fred Sommers says, "My little boy was weak, nervous and tired all the time; was most unfit at school and, nothing seemed to help him. I gave him original Vinol; it restored his health and strength, and he gained in weight." Mrs. C. B. Wilkinson says, "I used original Vinol for my little girl, five years old, for a run-down, nervous condition. In a week I noticed an improvement, and now she has a good appetite and has gained in flesh and strength." If your children are pale and sickly don't waste a minute. I had the same sort of roughage as as before, but it was fed to me a little more plentifully. Clover and timothy mixed hay with silage was what I had most of the time, but then I got about 8 pounds a day of milk. Just then the concentrate feed, with more protein in it. It didn't have any special name; the boss mixed it up at home sometimes, and sometimes he'd seemed to stay with the same mixed feed very long though.

That year I averaged 20 pounds of milk a day or 6000 pounds for the year and the boss was a whole lot better pleased. My roughage cost was just the same as the preceding year, about 20c a day, but my concentrate ran a good deal higher, both in quantity and in cost. Feeding 8 pounds of it a day at an average price of 2 1-2 a pound or $50.00 a ton, meant 20c for the concentrate or 10c more than he had spent before. Forty cents a day feed cost divided by 20 pounds milk production is 2c which meant that that year I produced milk for him at $2.00 a hundred or 17c a gallon. "Much better," the cow tester said, "but I believe she can beat that even more."

Then He Gave Me a Real Chance.

I had a good two months' rest; dropped a calf that the boss liked fine and then started on my second attempt to lower the cost of production. That's where that bough-ten Dairy Feed stuff came in. Believe me, I liked it from the start but the boss nearly ruined me the first time by giving me a couple of gallons the very first day. It tasted good and I stuffed on it and for a while I thought I never wanted to see it again, but he brought me back on it slowly, and Oh boy, what I don't do to that Dairy Feed. By that time the boss couldn't wait for the cow tester's monthly records and he started keeping records of his own every day. And seeing the way I could keep pouring out the milk, he increased the feed, so that at the end of the year I had averaged 10 pounds of Dairy Feed a day, but I had also averaged 30 pounds of milk a day or 6000 pounds for the milking year. Gosh, the boss nearly went crazy. He had always wanted to have a grade cow, make 10,000 pounds of milk and now he began to see I had it in me. Of course he was a little doubtful about the cost at first because that 10 pounds of Dairy Feed cost him around 32c a day. My roughage bill wasn't a bit bigger; I was already getting all that I could eat, so that my upkeep cost then was 20c for the roughage plus 32c for the feed, or 52c total. Fifty-two divided by 50 is $1.73, meaning that I produced milk for him that year at a cost $1.73 a hundred or 17 1-2c a gallon.

"My First Alfalfa"

I noticed then that the boss was growing some green stuff that looked mighty good to me and I learned that the county agent called it alfalfa and was getting quite a few of the milk producers around our town to put it in. I had quite a little of it during my rest and then after dropping a fine heifer calf I started on the track for beating 10,000 pounds of milk and believe me, I did.

County Agent Calls

The County Agent had been out to show the boss that with alfalfa he needn't use straight Dairy Feed but could use part of his home-grown grains, so this last year I got two parts of Dairy Feed to one of oats or corn and of course it cost the boss less per pound of concentrate. I had silage as in the past but plenty of good alfalfa instead of mixed hay and the boss, noticing from his daily records that I was still coming up in milk, gave me an average of 12 pounds of concentrate a day. This ran about 8 pounds of Dairy Feed and 4 pounds of his home-grown grains at a total grain feed cost of 31c. My roughage cost was still 20c, making 51c the average cost of keeping me a day. Fifty-one cents divided by 36 made a milk cost per 100 pounds of only $1.42 a hundred and believe me, that is where the boss saw that he was cleaning up on the profits. Figuring it by the gallon, that meant 12c and the boss could hardly believe that I could cut the cost of producing a gallon of milk from 21 1-2 down to 12c but there it was, and as the boss said, winking to the hired man one day, "the bank balance proves it."

FARM STOCK

Tuberculin Test Should Be Applied to All Stock

Since tuberculosis continues to be probably the most important disease affecting man and the lower animals, causing in man alone one-tenth of the deaths from all causes and occasioning an economic loss in the United States of over $200,000,000 annually, a few facts relative to the present status of this disease may be opportune.

1. The disease is caused by a specific germ so small that a magnification of nearly 1,000 diameters is necessary in order to see it distinctly.

2. It is possible to isolate the germ from both man and animal tissues affected with tuberculosis and to grow same on artificial media.

3. The germ of tuberculosis is quite resistant to many of the natural influences that affect bacteria and if encased in sputum will withstand the direct rays of the sun for 24 hours or longer. In dark recesses at low temperature, the germs may live for many months and even a 5 per cent strength of carbolic acid requires 24 hours to effect destruction of these organisms.

4. In addition to man, practically all mammals are susceptible.

5. Among the lower animals the disease is most frequently seen in cattle and hogs. Horses and sheep are rarely affected.

6. In man the disease may involve the lungs, (pulmonary tuberculosis; consumption), the intestines; be confined to the lymph glands, or the skin, or it may be localized in the bones and joints.

7. It is a very common disease of chickens, although turkeys and pigeons also frequently suffer from it. Ducks and geese do not appear to be susceptible.

8. Fowls apparently do not contract the disease from diseased cattle, although swine may do so.

9. Heredity plays but a very minor part in the transmission or communication of this disease.

10. Tuberculosis may be contracted by inhaling air contaminated with the germs, or by the organism gaining entrance into the digestive tract with various articles of food, particularly milk.

11. Cattle are frequently affected with both the intestinal and lung forms. The holder of cattle is not an uncommon location for the disease.

12. A large share of the cases in children showing the intestinal form of the disease is due to the tubercle germ of bovine origin being transmitted through milk from diseased animals.

13. Animals may be fully "rotten" with the disease without any symptoms being manifest.

14. Tuberculosis in cattle, swine and fowls can be diagnosed with a high degree of accuracy by means of the tuberculin test. The ones showing a positive reaction should be disposed of at once.

15. Tuberculosis is a preventable disease and will decrease in prevalence with the development of sanitation, personal hygiene, supervision of the production and distribution of milk by health officers; veterinary inspection of all meat products designed for food; and the universal application of the tuberculin test to all cattle, but particularly those supplying milk for human consumption.—William H. Feldman, Pathology Section, Colorado Experiment Station.

Careful Management Big Need in Building Herd

It takes good feeding, careful management and considerable patience to build up a herd. Good food alone can not do much. If feed and care are neglected. When handling registered cattle, the calves must be properly recorded and marked so that the pedigrees may be correctly certified. It means considerable loss to sell a purebred as a grade because it has lost its identity or its breeding is not known. Culling is highly important. A breeder should not be afraid to sell inferior animals for beef. Culls appear in the best herds. Weeding out is a necessary part of the breeding business. A scrupulously bred is a bad advertisement for the seller, as well as an injury to the buyer. A satisfied customer is likely to be a permanent customer, while a buyer who feels he has been loaded up with unsatisfactory stock can spoil a good deal of business for the breeder. After a breeder gets to the point where he has a well-selected herd of purebred cattle, a well-merited reputation and a number of satisfied buyers to advertise his stock, he can be assured of a good income. He will have the nodding satisfaction of knowing that he has a real part in the building of one of the state's great industries.

Plenty of bone and muscle-forming rather than fattening feed is needed for growing poultry. Leave the fattening business alone until near selling time.

Turkey hens are probably the best breeders between the ages of two and five or six years.

Pullets that are undersized, lacking vigor, deformed or hatched too late for winter production, should be culled.

Each year a nice little profit could be made by the average farmer by giving his hens a little study, and culling out the poor layers, thus allowing more room for the good layers, saving on feed, labor time and closer attention.

NEAT COLONIAL STYLE BUNGALOW

Tasteful, Distinctive Home That Is Not Expensive for Average Family.

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD
Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 1827 Prairie avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only inclose two-cent stamp for reply.

What the designer of this six-room Colonial bungalow did was simply to eliminate the upper (second) story of a typical Colonial design and leave a well-balanced one-story design that retains all the artistic perfections of our early American houses. Its exterior is of wooden siding, painted white; stucco could have been used as well, if desired. The spreading porch entrance is perfectly proportioned and inviting, and the wide entrance doorway flanked by quaint sidelights has an old-fashioned brass knocker and two modern adaptations of old Colonial wrought iron lanterns.

There is no entrance vestibule; one step over the threshold and we are inside the simply dimensioned living room, 15 feet by 14 feet 6 inches. It has a fireplace flanked with built-in bookcases, and with its large spread of blank wall space offers an opportunity for the effective grouping of pictures and furniture. This is a consideration worth taking into account; many rooms pretend to be convenient, simply because they have many doorways or windows. As a matter of fact the placing of doors and windows deserves a great deal of study, for if the wall is cut into by these in too many places we have a room in which it is hard to make good furniture and pictures seem to belong.

Folding French doors divide the living room from the dining room. The latter is 13 feet by 16 feet, has a built-in china cabinet and four windows in a row. The kitchen has many built-in conveniences, with the sink placed by the window and handy to the china cabinet shelving above and the pantry close by.

POULTRY

Condition of Hen House

Factor in Productivity

The condition of their winter quarters is a potent factor in the productivity of poultry flocks. Only healthy, contented hens produce eggs in paying numbers. While on range most hens both lay and pay, because conditions are such that they are perfectly healthy. Sanitation then takes care of itself and constant exercise, coupled with natural selection of food having widely differing properties, gives ideal conditions for high production. Because conditions differ widely in these particulars during the seasons when fowls are confined, results are not as satisfactory.

"To counteract unsatisfactory results," says A. C. Smith, poultry husbandry leader at University of Minnesota, "proper sanitary measures must be practiced. Begin by putting the young flock in a clean house this fall. Clean and disinfect the house thoroughly. Remove and burn all floor and nest litter. Remove all fittings, such as nest, roost, roosting platforms, and water stands, clean and paint with a good liquid disinfectant. Kerosene to which has been added a little strong, crude carbolic acid serves the purpose, as do several commercial disinfectants.

"Brush down the walls and ceiling, remove as much of the old earth as seems necessary, paint the walls with the same disinfectant as the fittings and put in the new or sandy loam to the depth of four to six inches. Replace the fittings, and let the house air well for a week or more before putting in the young stock."

Proper Arrangement of Roosts for Hen Flock

Roosts for chickens should be wide enough to support them; narrow roosts cause cramped positions and crooked breast-bones. The best roosts are swantling of 2 by 3 or 2 by 4, broad side up, with rounded edges. They should be smooth and movable. Roosts need not be very high. Too high roosts cause humble-foot when the chickens fly down on a hard surface. Heavy breeds require lower roosts than the light breeds. From one and a half to two feet high is a good height. Roosts should not be arranged like stairs. Chickens like to roost on the highest point; the stair arrangement means overcrowding on the upper roost.

Plan to Clean Up Badly Mite-Infested Building

To clean up a badly mite-infested building, proceed as follows: Sweep and dust thoroughly, first removing everything removable. Scrub with washing powder and water. Paint the roosts and supports for the roosts with heated carbolicum. Next, spray the nests and every other bit of woodwork that harbors vermin, or might do so, with crude creosote and distillate, one gallon of each to the mixture. If there were no mites on the walls or floors whitewash would make a good spray for them. In either case the fowls should be shut out of the house until thoroughly dry.

Breeds for Production of White-Shelled Eggs

Poultry of the Mediterranean or egg breeds are best suited for production of white-shelled eggs. Representatives of this class are bred largely for the production of eggs rather than for meat production. Among the popular breeds of this class are: Leghorn, Minorca, Ancona and Andalusian. One of the outstanding characteristics of the egg breeds is the fact that they are classed as nonsitters. That is, as a rule they do not become broody and hatch their eggs. When fowls of this class are kept, artificial incubation and brooding are usually employed.

Oyster Shells Are Good to Form Shells of Eggs

Ordinarily, the hen does not consume enough lime to form the shells of eggs if she is laying abundantly unless something besides the ordinary grain feeds is accessible to her. Oyster shells are very good for this purpose. A box of crushed shells may be placed before the fowls, allowing them to eat at will. Old mortar and the gravel are also useful in supplying lime.

HUMOR IN DRAWING AND "THE COMICS"

We could wish that the public protest against the comics was not so occasional. A correspondence on the subject was begun recently in a New York paper, but it ended too promptly to make any impression, either on editors or on the public. The comics have become such a regular feature in American journalism that they are taken for granted and seem inevitable on the page assigned them as are the editorials in their appointed place.

It is not to a drawing because it is comic that objections can be made. Draftsmen we call comic have been among the world's distinguished artists. All depends upon the quality of both the drawing and the humor. The humor was grim in many medieval illustrations. It was coarse in eighteenth-century Englishmen like Gillray and Rowlandson. It ran to grotesque, and sometimes trivial, exaggeration in so fine a draftsman as Daumier. It depended at times on the accompanying legend with Charles Keene. If it never failed in the real originator of the comics, Curran D'Ache, neither did it ever run to vulgarity or sheer banality. It was always as gay as it was exuberant. And with all these masters of humor and many of their contemporaries their art was of no less importance than the jesting, the satire, the grimness to which it was devoted. Had they not been artists, they would not be remembered as they are today.

But what of the humor, what of the drawing in the popular comics? The humor is almost always of the feeblest and the most infantile, often of the most demoralizing—the venerable mother-in-law jest, the antiquarian knockabout of the circus ring, the henpecked husband—all the old punny, silly, degrading jokes in full swing, rarely, if ever, touched by true humor or suggesting original thought. And the drawing is in keeping—no drawing at all in most of them. Put one of the favorites of the hour alongside a design by Daumier or Charles Keene and the degradation of the present fashion in comic drawing will be realized. It is of small use to attempt the teaching of art to children in the schools or the training of the public in museums if this sort of food they are daily fed on at home. The eye, habituated to vulgarity and ugliness, becomes debauched, it can no longer see beauty, while the mind is dulled and stupefied. Better no comic drawings at all than many of the comics now published with such a lavish hand.—(Christian Science Monitor.)

CHRIS LYNKLIFF HAS PASSED AWAY

Former South-Side Merchant Dead At Seventy-Five

Christopher Lynkklip, an old resident of this city, who, it will be remembered, once conducted a grocery store on the south side near the Norwood road some eleven or twelve years ago, died last Monday, January 21st at the home of James Davenport on Garfield avenue. He was seventy-five years of age and his death resulted from natural senile decline.

Mr. Lynkklip was born in Denmark, December 1, 1848. He was long a familiar figure in his little store to south-side people and the quaint old gentleman will be missed by many of his neighbors. His wife, who at one time assisted him in the store died a number of years ago, leaving him practically alone in the world.

The funeral was held today at 2:00 p. m. from the Davenport home, Rev. Clarence W. Long officiating. Interment was made in the vault at Brookside.

Dr. W. W. Mitchell, G. Weaver and C. Wood New Incumbents

At the annual meeting of the Congregational church, held January 8th, the following officers were elected: Dr. W. W. Mitchell and Capt. At the adjourned meeting, held Sunday, January 20th, the newly organized board of trustees submitted a budget which includes the same benevolent offering as was given last year and also recommended that the same salaries be continued and other items that showed the board was in favor of a progressive program. This budget was adopted by the church. Also, the pastor, Rev. Clarence W. Long, was extended a vote of thanks for his efficient services during the past year.

Gravel Highways Lead Other Types in Mileage

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture)

The relative mileage of the various types of road being built in this country is indicated by figures given by the bureau of public roads of the United States Department of Agriculture. These figures apply only to federal-aid roads, but since they represent 25,000 miles of road now in use and include roads built in every state, they may be taken as fairly representative of the character of the main highways. The 25,000 miles is divided by type as follows:

	Percent
Gravel	39.1
Graded and drained	20.6
Cement concrete	18.3
Sand clay	10.8
Bituminous macadam	4.0
Bituminous concrete	2.1
Water-bound macadam	2.7
Brick	1.4

Complete figures covering all roads constructed and now in use would undoubtedly show somewhat higher percentages of the lower types of road, since the more important roads have been selected for improvement with federal aid.

Profitable Weight for Marketing Young Hogs

When a pig in northern Ireland reaches a weight of from 170 to 195 pounds, he had better be marketed, reports Vice Consul Barringer, Belfast, because to fatten him up any more would require more feed than the extra pork is worth. The smaller the pig the greater the gain in live weight from the consumption of a given quantity of food. Farmers are being urged, therefore, to market their pigs when they weigh from 170 to 195 pounds and not to continue feeding them until they have reached heavier weights.

McMULKIN NOT YET CONSCIOUS TODAY

Believed Fell At Rink Cracked Temple Bone

A very distressing accident occurred last Monday evening at the rink; just before supper time, while a basketball team from the sophomore class of the high-school were practicing.

It seems that John Kelderhouse in a scrimmage for the ball with Harold McMulklin ran into the latter with considerable force, the two boys striking their heads together. Young McMulklin was knocked to the floor and struck on the side of his head near the temple. He did not rise and when his mates went to his assistance they found that he was unconscious. The lad was carried to the home of his uncle, James Tammuth, on Mason street and medical aid summoned. At latest reports today (Wednesday) he had not regained consciousness, although he has had several more or less lucid intervals since the accident, not being able, however, to recognize anyone. The doctor states that it will probably take some little time for him to recover from the blow and thinks that a bone is cracked at a certain place between the eye and the ear. Kelderhouse got out of the affair without serious injury, only experiencing a slight bleeding at the nose.

He had to break his way through the snow and maximum speed was not therefore possible, but Lizzie delivered the goods which is fair enough.

Clarence Withers and Clarence Bridge, while working on the break in the meter at the waterworks yesterday were over come by fumes from the gasoline engine. Withers was out completely for about an hour and Bridge is laid up in bed today as a result of what he inhaled of the stuff.

How Much Grain to Feed
Hens of Various Breeds

Most people who are attempting to put the flock on a scientific basis are perplexed as to the amount of grain which they should feed to their hens. Some people feed by measure, others by "handful" and most people by guesswork.

Measure feeding is probably to be condemned more than any other method. Merely giving a quart of grain to the hens and letting it go at that is what causes so many poor flock records over the country. The hens should be fed all that they will consume, never by measure, yet measures can be used as an indication of the amount they are likely to require.

Morning feeding of grain should be just sufficient to get the hens busy. Oats make a good morning feed and one quart to a hundred hens will keep them busy most of the morning, but where a balanced grain and mash ration is being fed you will not want to disturb it by feeding oats alone in the morning. Feed a small quantity of the grain mixture you are using in the morning, only enough to get the hens working and give them all they want at night.

Experiments carried on by the federal poultry farm authorities have brought out some interesting figures as indicating how much grain and mash by weight is required for fowls per day. General-purpose fowls, such as Rocks, Reds and Wyandottes, require one quart of scratch grain and a quart and a half of mash per day for each 13 hens, or for each 14-hens of the smaller or egg breeds. This is at the rate of 7½ pounds each of grain and mash per day for 100 Leghorns and 9½ pounds of each to 100 general-purpose fowls. Hens having range consume 75 pounds of feed in a year, while the Leghorns consume 55 pounds in addition to the grain food eaten.

Avoid Overcrowding of Chicken House in Fall

Overcrowding of poultry houses, which generally means overheating, and is likely to cause colds and finally roup, is strongly deprecated by poultrymen of University Farm. A. C. Smith, in charge of the division of poultry husbandry, says:

"Because of the noticeable change in living conditions—from colony coops and free range to the poultry house and confinement—the young birds are timid and group themselves together in corners against the walls and partitions on the floors and roosting platforms. The birds become too warm and so closely grouped and, consequently, chill easily when they separate. To correct this habit, house only a few birds at a time. When these few become sufficiently accustomed to their quarters to take to the roost, house more birds, as those first in the winter shelter will not get so nervous in those that follow.

"Until early winter, sets in give all the air possible from one direction and do not subject the birds to a draft. In short, make the changes between the range and the winter quarters as gradual as possible. Provide a light house of straw or leaves.

in which the birds can get the exercise necessary to maintain health. Snowed out food must be supplied as the birds are cut off from the green food of the range."

Cut Bone Necessary to Provide Balanced Ration

One pound of cut bone for a dozen hens every day is just about right. On farms the feed for bones should be made or nothing, yet some folks think it does not pay to procure a bone cutter. This is a mistake. Bone cutters are now cheaper than many ordinary garden tools and are strong, durable and efficient. The cost of the cutter is an investment soon returned by the increased number of eggs laid. It is almost indispensable in providing fowls with a balanced ration. The regular use of bone also effects a great saving in the quantity of grain feeds necessary for the flock.

Chickens Self-Feed as When Given Free Range

Chickens will "pick up" a good part of their living from waste that otherwise would be thrown away. They will feed themselves, to an extent, from grass, weeds, insects and grubs and small scraps, that if not eaten by chickens, would not become of food value to man. They will eat the eggs and larvae from which come various destructive insects, particularly orchard pests. In some orchards where chickens range, the brown-tail moth has almost disappeared, while nearby orchards where chickens do not run, are damaged by the pest.

Guinea Fowl Does Well
With Little Attention

Guinea fowl might well be bred in the United States more extensively, either along with other poultry or in larger numbers by themselves. The varieties have been improved in recent years and there is reason to believe that the improvement will continue and breeding them will become an increasingly important branch of the poultry industry. The birds do well on comparatively little feed in addition to what they will gather if allowed to range.

Egg Production Depends Greatly Upon Protein

Egg production depends more upon the amount and kind of protein eaten than upon any other feed. Hens are naturally grain eaters and will do well on almost any grain mixture if they have milk or meat scrap to go with it. By holding most of the whole grain until the night feeding, you keep the hens hungry and thus force them to exercise and eat the more concentrated protein feed through the day.

Do not handcuff the chicks by unnatural restrictions. Let them hustle. Keep all young poultry thrifty and growing. The profitable fowl is not the sick one made well, but the healthy one kept healthy.

Lousy fowls will not lay, and will require much more feed to keep in good condition than those free from the pests.

Hens like a dark nest for laying. It is a covered nest is used, it is well to have it to the wall, and to have a slanting cover to prevent roosting.

Always keep in mind that the constitutional strength and vigor of the flock must be kept up to a certain standard that the fowls may have the necessary power of disease resistance.

Table Scraps Important
Item for Small Flocks

Table scraps become an important item for a small flock, but are of little value for large numbers. The small flock will pay at all seasons, because the scraps lessen the cost of the food by permitting of the utilization of waste materials that would otherwise go into the slop barrel. For this reason, every family should keep a few hens, even if but half a dozen, and especially the families that live in the suburbs of cities and towns, or who have a space that can be utilized for that purpose. The greatest obstacle is the attempt to keep too many. Be satisfied with a few, and the cost will be less and the result more satisfactory.

Turkeys in Confinement Need Careful Guarding

Those who grow turkeys in confinement must, of necessity, guard carefully against overfeeding throughout the summer, though in the absence of infection caused by the presence of mutant birds, there seems to be comparatively little danger from blackhead at this time. Topper-feeding of dry mash to birds in confinement has been found entirely safe at Purdue, where 60 were raised to the age of twelve weeks or more and a dozen raised to maturity, always in confinement. The dry mash, consisting of equal parts of bran and shorts, was kept before the turkeys in hoppers.

ROAD BUILDING

Problems Face Engineer in Spending Road Money

Two distinct problems confront the highway engineer who must spend highway revenues in the best interest of the taxpayer.

One, to salvage the old pavements with a view to utilizing as large a proportion of the original investment as possible; and, second, to construct new pavements at the most reasonable cost consistent with service and durability. There are in the United States nearly 400,000 miles of hard-surfaced highways, and of this total at least 100,000 miles consist of water-bound macadam pavements. It is little short of an economic crime to dig up these old macadam pavements and replace them with an entirely new pavement, thus ignoring the excellent foundation value of the old macadam. The material in these old pikes has been compacted under years of traffic to a degree of stability which could hardly be approached by entirely new construction. During the process of compacting the weak places, both in the subgrade and in the pavement, will have been shown up so that repair and replacement can be intelligently conducted without sacrifice of those portions of the old pavement which are in good condition. When it is considered that the stone or gravel constitute by far the heaviest portion of a pavement, the saving in the cost of quarrying, transporting and placing this great mass of material becomes an item well worth while. For conserving these old macadam pavements as asphaltic wearing course is ideal.

The second problem, that of providing new pavements, involves the consideration of a very wide range of highway method and design. A few years back the so-called city types of pavement were regarded as beyond the reach of the country road builder because of their great cost. That was in the days when a $5,000 to $10,000 per mile outlay was regarded as quite liberal. Today the country highway which costs less than $30,000 per mile is either regarded as a shining example of extreme economy or is relegated to the ranks of the "elephant types." Now when we go into cost levels such as these we are scarcely abreast of the city paving types and it is entirely practicable for the farmer to drive from the market to town on a Fifth avenue or Broad street type of pavement and pay no more for it than he is now paying for other types of country roads. As a matter of fact, the famous Lackawanna trail is mostly composed of sheet asphalt on a portland cement base and compares favorably with the best pavements in the best cities. Few state highway engineers have had any experience with city paving, as curiously enough there have been very few city engineers who have been placed at the head of state highway departments.

Back Move in Support of Improved Highways

Legislative activities, both state and national, on behalf of good roads and in support of motor vehicle laws which are fair to the individual automobile owner will constitute a prominent part of the American Automobile association's program for the coming year, according to a statement by Thomas P. Henry of Detroit, new president of the A. A. A., at an informal meeting held in Washington.

National problems will be handled by the national organization and local matters affecting the motorist in the various states will be taken up through the state association of clubs of such state which are affiliated with the A. A. A.

Highway legislative activities, according to Mr. Henry, will include an intensive program directed toward eliminating in so far as possible the personnel of the various highway boards and commissions from partisan politics. Decision to concentrate on this problem was reached after a study of statistics which show that highway departments of eighteen states have been radically changed during the last few months.

"We feel," said Mr. Henry, "that the building and maintenance of highways is of too great importance to be interrupted by a complete change in administration. Adequate highways are a boon to the whole people, and partisan politics should play no part in their construction. We feel that every highway department should be operated on a businesslike basis with the best obtainable personnel in charge, in order that the people who pay for the roads may get the most for their money."

Closer co-operation with other national organizations was also suggested by President Henry as a part of the year's activities for the A. A. A.

"Every cause advocated by the American Automobile association," he said, "is altruistic in purpose, and there is no reason why we should not have the co-operation of every great national organization in support of the measures we advocate.

"Good roads benefit everybody, and fair taxes on the automobile affect every class of people; measures which give the motorist a square deal are of interest to every national organization. As the activities of the A. A. A. are confined solely to advocating beneficial measures, and as Secretary Wallace so aptly expressed it, 'The A. A. A. has no axe to grind,' there is no reason why we cannot co-operate with other organizations and receive in turn their co-operation."

States Utilize Surplus War Material on Roads

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture)

Surplus war material which the government refused to sell at junk prices is being used in road construction to great advantage by the states to whom the material is transferred, according to the bureau of public roads of the United States Department of Agriculture.

At the end of the war there was left unused over a half-million pounds of rough castings of spare parts for one of the well-known makes of motor trucks. They were badly rusted and on casual inspection might have been condemned as worthless junk, but it was found that the necessary machine-finishing entirely removed all rust and pits. A small offer for the entire lot was made, but was not accepted. A few months ago the state highway department of North Carolina accepted a portion of them as part of its share of surplus war material for use in road building. Surplus war machinery was used for finishing the parts for use in trucks also received as surplus war material. The finished parts are worth about 75 cents a pound as compared with an offer of one cent a pound for the parts in the rough.

Other states have followed the example of North Carolina and the entire supply has been taken up and will be put to useful service.

Guard Lincoln Highway With Surface of Asphalt

Highway engineers in charge of construction in sections of the country traversed by the Lincoln highway are paying new stretches of this great thoroughfare in accordance with the latest and most improved road building methods by protecting the concrete base with a surface of asphalt. Particularly is this true of the section which crosses New Jersey and over which tourist traffic passes into New York city.

Early construction of more than $600,000 worth of additional pavement on the highway between Trenton and Princeton, a distance of 11 miles, has just been authorized by the New Jersey state highway commission. This pavement will vary in width from 20 to 36 feet, and will be surfaced with sheet asphalt in order to give it resilience against traffic impact and make it frostproof and moisture-proof. The section which extends from News Brunswick to Metuchen, N. J., was repaved with asphalt this season, while that between Rahway and Elizabeth, N. J., was repaved with the same material last year.

Tree Tops Help Judging Road Over Hill Crest

Many motorists hesitate to pass another car when approaching the crest of a hill, fearing still another machine may be approaching from the other side, whereas the road at the top may be level. To make sure that the highway does not dip down beyond the summit it is only necessary to note whether there are any trunks of trees visible 100 feet or so away.

If these can be seen when climbing the hill, the top of an approaching car could also be seen, and it is safe to assume that the road is level at the top and that no harm can result from passing around the car ahead.

Improved Highways Will Spread Over All States

Secretary Wallace told the American Automobile association that by the end of 1923 approximately 179,000 miles of roads will have been designated as part of the federal aid highway system. Up to May 5, he said, all but three states had submitted tentative systems for approval and the systems of 33 states had been approved, comprising a total of 105,400 miles.

Iowa Inaugurates Roads Campaign in Each County

The Iowa Good Roads association, permanently organized and with a definite highway building program adopted, has set out to lay its plans before the people of the state and win support that is expected to carry the program to completion.

Plans already are being made to cover each county in an educational campaign on behalf of the movement to "lift Iowa out of the mud." The association's next big meeting probably will be held here in December during the special session of the legislature which will be called upon to enact some laws necessary to the program.

In Past 11 Years Large Sum Spent for Highways

During the past 11 years the United States Department of Agriculture has spent $20,435,200 in the construction of 5,650 miles of roads and 8,960 miles of trails within or adjacent to the national forests.

FOSTER AND BEACH FIRST

BEGINNING NUMBERS IN MUSIC MEMORY CONTEST.

Foster Leads American Folk-Song Writers—Mrs. Beach Leading Woman Composer.

The Music Memory Contest, now in progress at the public schools of the city, is a listener's contest and records of all the pieces used may be obtained.

Foster
The first number on the list is "Come Where My Love Lies Dreaming," written by Stephen C. Foster. This number is first on the list because January 15th marked the 60th anniversary of the death of this now famous composer. He died at 38 years of age in the charity ward of a New York hospital, neglected and alone. He is our most gifted folk-song composer and his songs are known and loved by all Americans. He wrote the words, as well as the music, of over 200 songs.

His people were well-to-do. They came from Virginia and settled in Pittsburg, where he was born in 1826. His talent was regarded as a weakness by his family and discouraged. His first piece was written when thirteen years old. His love for the south is seen in all his music. Negro minstrel companies were very popular in his youth and there was a ready market for songs they could use. So, he employed the negro dialect and sometimes themes suggested by the negroes. "Uncle Ned," "Away Down South," and "O, Susanna" were among his first. He sold them for from $5.00 to $25.00 apiece.

Foster was indifferent to food and clothing and because of his poverty and dreamy nature his wife and daughter left him.

On January 13th, in all parts of the United States, Foster programs were given and some twelve of his songs were sung by the audiences, among them, "The Old Folks at Home," or "Swanee River," "Old Black Joe," "Massa's in the Cold, Cold Ground," "Hard Times," "My Old Kentucky Home" and "Nelly Was a Lady."

"Come Where My Love Lies Dreaming" is one of his best known productions, but not a negro song. It is very effective when sung by a mixed quartette.

Beach.
"The Year's at the Spring," composed by Mrs. H. H. A. Beach, American composer and concert pianist, is the second number.

Mrs. Beach was born at Henniker, N. H., in 1867, and is the most eminent American woman composer of today. Most of her compositions are program music—that is, they seek to express events, moods or surroundings outside the music itself, though she has written also in the larger forms, including the "Gaelic Symphony," "Festival Jubilate," "Concerto in C Sharp Minor" for piano and orchestra; a piano quintet, a violin sonata and a number of cantatas and other choral works. Her songs are numerous.

"The Year's at the Spring" is a musical setting of two stanzas from Robert Browning's dramatic poem, "Pippa Passes." Pippa is a peasant girl in Italy who sings joyously—"The year's at the spring and day's at the morn; God's in his heaven, all's right with the world." And, as she passes along singing, the lives and fates of a number of people who hear her are affected by the innocence and charm of this young girl without her knowing it. The music of the song is expressive of the joyous faith of Pippa. It ends with a burst of ecstatic happiness.

NEW CASTLE HALL FOR KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS

Have Five Year Lease On County Bank Third Floor

At a meeting held last Thursday by the Knights of Pythias, it was agreed by the greater part of the members in attendance to enter into a lease with the Charlevoix County Bank for a period of five years for the entire third floor of the building for lodge purposes and the trustees of the lodge were instructed to commence negotiations with the bank at once.

The boys turned out eighteen strong on Monday to redecorate, clean and furnish the rooms and the progress already made is remarkable. The work will continue throughout the week or until such time as the lodge room is placed in a condition second to none in the city and it will surely be a great step for K. of P. lodge to control their own lodge rooms and have access thereto any night in the week that they desire.

It is planned that the ladies will institute a Pythian sisters organization at an early date and through their assistance and cooperation the social activities of the Knights of Pythias can be greatly added to and better carried out.

The work now under way comprises changing some of the partitions of the hall and adjoining rooms, the construction of a rest room for the ladies, new toilets, etc. All you good K. P.'s turn out and help the boys clean up the job.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

The month soon passes. This fourth Sunday at 10:30 we will preach on the subject, "The Church's Influence." No one can measure the worth of a church in any community. The church has put her mark on all morals and reforms. Come and hear the sermon. There is more than one Methodist in this city who is not regularly attending church. We need you. You need us.

Twelve o'clock is the time for Sunday school. These are wonderful lessons. Make the study of your bible your regular habit. The Sunday School will help you.

All the Juniors are expected to meet the pastor at their League hour 3 p. m. this Sunday. We will outline some special Bible work. Bring your bible.

The League League meets at 6 p. m. The study of this book at 6 p. m. After a week will give you information on youth. Don't miss it young people.

"North and Law" is the subject, at the 7 o'clock service Sunday evening. There is the physical law, the moral law; the legal law and the "not under the law but under grace."

Prayer meeting Thursday 7:30 p. m. Bible study. In thirteen months we have completed the study of Matthew and Mark. February we will begin the study of John.

Friday Feb. 1, at 3:30 p. m. the Literary and Sewing Club will have its annual meeting in the church parlors. Reports of the year's business election of officers. At 6:30 the members and their husbands will supper together. All members and husbands are urged to be present.

The Indian work is being carried on at Bay Shore for the present under the direction of the pastor.

The official board has arranged to renew the walls in the three rooms of the annex. Recently very much needed repairs were made on the furniture of the church dining room.

The church people, some of them at least are proving that they don't care for a storm and why should they because business men go to business in the storm, the children go to school and Christmas ought to go to church.

LOCAL TEAM WON HARBOR DEBATE

AFFIRMATIVE SIDE TAKES THE HONORS FRIDAY.

Out-argues the Northerners in Spite of Their Two Victories by Two Points.

The negative debating team of Harbor Springs, with two victories to their credit, met the local trio at the high school assembly room Friday night, January 18.

The contest was one of the scrappiest and most exciting this season, and not until Albert Widdifield, the last speaker on the affirmative, rendered his fiery climax, did the odds seem in favor of the home team. This final speech, full of convincing argument and well-driven oratory, turned the tide and Probate Judge Gilbert of Petoskey, who acted as referee of the contest, gave Charlevoix the victory.

The next opponent will be Cheboygan we hear. This debate promises to be even more thrilling than the Harbor Springs contest, as they have won three debates by unanimous decisions according to reports. It will take place in the local high school, Friday, February 8.

The teams in the order in which they spoke were: (Numbers after names designated the points Judge Gilbert accredited to each speaker).

HAS PULSATING STORY

Marion Davies Has Strong Role in Picture "Enchantment"

A picture with a vital pulsating story, with an insight into one of the great factors of the present day is found in "Enchantment" a Cosmopolitan production starring Marion Davies, which will open at the Palace Theatre next Saturday and Sunday. Miss Davies shows us the real modern "flapper," that product of present day civilization. She is spoiled, but she has ideas of her own and knows how to carry them out. Men are much attached to her. They besiege her with invitations to dinners and dances, and her parents decide she must be "tamed." The story tells how this doctrine was carried out. It's a Paramount.

Supporting Miss Davies are Forrest Stanley, leading man; Edith Shayne, Tom Lewis, Arthur Rankin and Corinne Baker. It was directed by Robert G. Vignola, from the story, "Manhandling Ethel" by Frank R. Adams.

Big Scene Affects Lila Lee During Filming of "After the Show"

So realistic was a scene in William de Mille's new production, "After the Show," wherein Charles Ogle, as the old stage doorkeeper, slashes his wrist with a broken champagne bottle, to renew the dormant love of a little chorus girl, whom he has adopted, that little Lila Lee, who plays the chorus girl role was painfully affected when the incident was enacted before the camera. The picture, which is an adaptation of a story of Rito, Weiman, will be shown at the Palace Theatre next Wednesday, January 30, Jack Holt, Miss Lee and Charles Ogle are the featured players and head a practically all star cast.

Equus Transit.

The horse has lost some of his standing in northern Michigan lumbering regions and has given way to the tractor. The Boyne City Lumber company is using a large tractor to haul trains of three or four sleighs loaded with logs from Deer Lake to Boyne City this week. This marks the opening of the log hauling season at Boyne. At Clarion, teams are being used for hauling, about fifty loads being placed on the bank grounds each day at that point. The timber there goes to Wabneme-

Poor Soils Cause Clover Failures

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Clover failure is one of the most serious problems at present confronting the farmer in many of the cooler sections. With continuous cropping and the consequent reduction of the humus and plant food in the soil the difficulty of growing red clover is greatly increased. This condition must be met and solved, since the loss of red clover or its equivalent from the rotation leads rapidly to a run-down farm and unprofitable crop yields.

Factors of Failure.
The farmer who is contemplating seeding a field to clover in the spring may well look to the suitability of that particular field for the growing of clover before sowing the seed. There are many factors, say the clover men of the United States Department of Agriculture, which are responsible for the failure of seeding or maintaining a stand of clover, but these factors may be placed in five groups: Soil exhaustion; improper seeding methods; nurse crops, etc.; unit seed; disease; and improper treatment the first autumn.

Clover fails more often, according to the opinion of these men, because soils have become poor in lime, phosphorus, potash, or organic matter than for all other reasons. If lime is badly needed, there is no use wasting clover seed. If phosphorus is the limiting factor, the addition of lime alone, even if the land is "sour," will have slight effect. Manure will do good more often than anything else, but when lime is needed the results from manure will be much greater after this need has been supplied than before. By making the soil conditions such as favor the growth of clover culture can nearly always be turned to success.

Substitute Alsike.
Where red clover cannot be grown without the addition of lime or other soil amendments and where the application of these is for any reason impracticable alsike clover should first be substituted for red clover, or it may be possible to grow mammoth clover for soil improvement after common red clover will no longer thrive, and by turning under the mammoth clover the soil may be restored to a condition in which it will produce a stand of red clover.

Cows Need Minerals for Best Production of Milk

That the average ration fed dairy cows is deficient in mineral matter, especially lime and phosphorus, is shown in recent feeding tests at the Ohio experiment station.

To overcome this it is well to feed all the leguminous matter—clover, alfalfa or soy-bean hay that the cow will eat. Or the addition of one pound of finely ground limestone and two pounds of bone meal to every 100 pounds of grain fed is another method of supplying the needed minerals. The limestone carries much calcium, and the bone meal is composed of both calcium and phosphorus. Wheat bran in the grain mixture will also supply mineral matter.

A high producer always gives off more calcium in her milk than she can receive daily in her feed. For this reason it is well to feed the cow liberally of feeds rich in minerals while she is dry, so that she may store a surplus in her body to meet the demands of milk production after freshening.

Practical Experiments With Glass Nest Eggs

Some interesting experiments at the Iowa State college proved that hens like to lay in a nest where there is a nest egg. China or glass eggs helped some, but were not so attractive to the hens as ordinary hen's eggs were. On the other hand, wooden and plaster of paris eggs were found better even than hen's eggs.

The experiment was worked out by putting a flock of 40 pullets in a large pen with 16 nests, and putting one of each kind of nest egg in each of four nests, shifting these around from day to day and keeping a record of the number of eggs laid in each nest. It was carried over a long period of time.

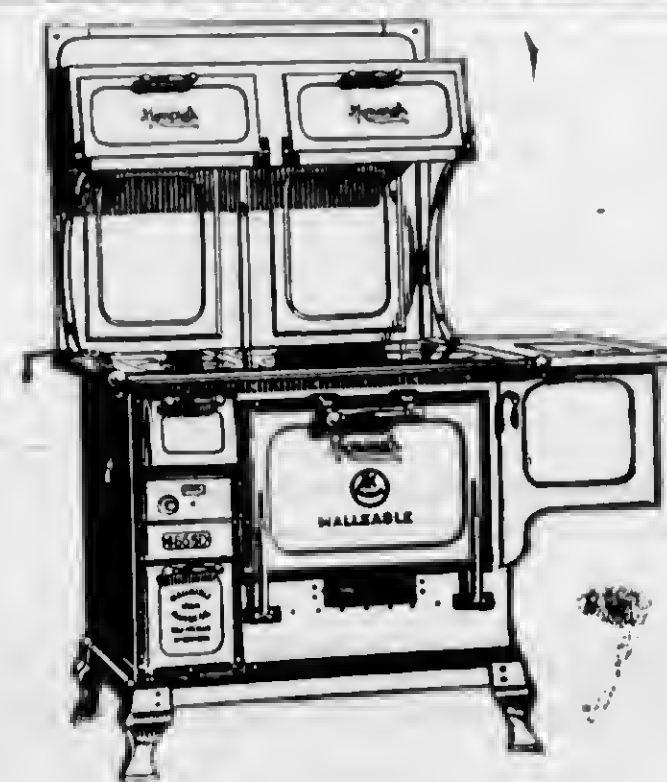

Begin War on Chinch Bug by Burning Over Grass

Wherever the chinch bug was abundant during the past summer, 98 per cent of them will be found hibernating in the bunch grass and bluestem in meadows, pastures, ravines and along roadsides. The burning over of these places will result in the destruction of practically all of the bugs and when the community co-operates in such a campaign it eliminates the necessity of fighting the chinch bug the following year.

During Winter Is Good Time to Repair Harness

This is a good time to go over the harness, remove the surplus baling wire and rape, and make the permanent repairs necessary. Splice in the halter reins that have been broken out during the past season. Hang the extra halters in some place where the rats and mice will not eat them.

E. K. SHANAHAN WRITES FROM NAVAL ACADEMY

Gives Vivid Account of The Life of A Naval Academy—His Trials
And Joys

The letter that follows was written by Edward Shanahan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lisle Shanahan of this city, who entered the U. S. Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md., last fall, to a friend in this city. In the letter Mr. Shanahan describes the life at the naval academy in a colloquial and interesting manner and we are reproducing it in part herewith, believing that our readers will be interested in hearing a first hand account of the daily life of the nation's future Deweys and Farraguts at this famous institution:

"You asked me to give you some dope on the life down here. Well, that is something that will take quite a little time to do justice to, but I will give you the best I can. It will, no doubt, be rather dry and uninteresting but that will be due more to my deficient literary talent than to the fact that there is little to do here except routine. This last is far from the truth.

Of course, there is routine and a lot of it, but that is only a foundation, a skeleton, you might say, of the real life here as it is known to midshipmen.

To begin with, 'reville' busts every morning at 6:15 except Sunday—then at 7:30 a. m. On week days, we have twenty-five minutes to shave, shower, dress, brush off etc.; then we have to go to morning roll call, followed by marching to breakfast. There we eat, yes, we eat and that heartily. By 7:30 we are through; then we must go to our rooms, make our beds, sweep out, dust the furniture (such as there is—in our room there are three beds, three chairs, two tables, two book shelves, two lockers and two wall mirrors) and be ready to go to our first class at 7:50.

We have two classes in the morning and one in the afternoon; besides that we have a drill period five days in the week. From 4:30 until 6:40 we have what is known as our requisition period. In it we can go over to the gym for a work-out or over to the library and read or may be to draw a book. Then at 6:40 we have evening roll call, then 'chow', or supper as you would say in 'civil life'. From 7:50 until 9:30 we must remain in our rooms and study. At 10:00 o'clock taps 'bust' and we must be turned in.

This afternoon, Navy played a game of basketball with New York University. Incidentally, we won—36 to 30. The game started in a rather odd manner. We play our games in Dahlgren Hall, or as it is popularly called, the armory. It is named after Rear Admiral John A. Dahlgren, a very successful commander during the Civil War. The floor or, as we would say, the 'deck', is made of some preparation that is without grain or seam. Every so often, it is necessary to go over it with an oil. When they do this, the deck becomes very slippery until it has dried in. Well, this was the case this afternoon. As soon as the two teams started in, it was seen that they would not be able to play real ball. They were just like ten men trying to play on hard, smooth ice in leather shoes. One fellow would see an opening and start for it. He would take a step or two, then start to move or else fall down. In this manner, each team made two baskets. They then decided that such a condition had gone far enough, so it was announced by the referee that the remainder of the game would be played in the gym. We promptly went over there and saw a fairly good game.

Here at the academy the classes are named just inversely to what their name sounds like. Thus, the class that corresponds to seniors in other schools is known as the first class. There is one sure way of knowing a first classman. He has a narrow gold stripe around each cuff. The next class is the second class. The second classman's left sleeve sports two, diagonal gold stripes while his right arm is without any decoration. The class that you would call the sophomores is the third, or youngest class. They have one diagonal stripe on their sleeve. Last and most insignificant of all comes the fourth or plebe class. The plebe doesn't rate any gold stripes—in fact, he doesn't rate anything. A plebe cannot go into the corridor at any time unless he is completely dressed and when he does he must walk down the very middle and look to neither right or left. He cannot talk to an upper classman unless addressed first by the latter and then only say that which is required of him. As I said before he doesn't rate anything.

The last four letters I have received from Northern Michigan have told me of the success of the Charlevoix basketball team. Good stuff, what? I always like to hear of them winning—I often wish that I might be with them.

The weather here is just about the same every day. We haven't had one bit of snow since I came back, although it has been cold at times. I will state again that it appears to me, 'wierd and uncanny'. We are now near the end of January and in the afternoons we see people playing tennis and trying to play a little golf.

VETERAN OF '61 IS PASSED AWAY

J. A. HAWKINS WAS A PIONEER CITIZEN.

Came to Michigan From Connecticut in the Early Days—Here
Since 1882.

James A. Hawkins, one of the old time residents of this city, passed away at the home of his son-in-law and daughter, Dr. and Mrs. F. H. Wilkinson, on Dixon avenue, Saturday evening at five thirty. He had been seriously ill with neuritis for about seven weeks, most of the time suffering intensely.

Mr. Hawkins was born in Connecticut, November 16, 1839, and came to Michigan at an early date, locating in Washtenaw county. Early in the Civil war, July 1st, 1861, he enlisted in Co. "A," 4th Illinois infantry, and served all through the war, not being discharged until September 2, 1865.

His regiment took an active part in the army of the Cumberland, being in over 60 battles and skirmishes. In 1866 he was married to Miss Hannah White of Bowne, Kent county, living in and near Grand Rapids until 1882, when they came to Charlevoix, where he has since resided. His wife passed away fourteen years ago. Since that time he has made his home with Dr. and Mrs. Wilkinson.

In 1865 he joined the Masonic order and was granted a life membership a few years ago. Increasing deafness obliged him to be less active in social and civic affairs than he was before this affliction came upon him. He was a good neighbor, a kind and indulgent father and interested in all benevolent and philanthropic enterprises that he thought might be helpful to the community.

The funeral services were held at the home of Dr. and Mrs. F. H. Wilkinson, Wednesday morning at ten o'clock.

HIS LECTURE ON MODERN POETRY

Professor Hollister Will Be Here

Professor R. D. T. Hollister from the University of Michigan will lecture at the Congregational church in Charlevoix on Wednesday evening, February 6th, at eight o'clock under the auspices of the Charlevoix Historical Society. His subject is "Modern Poetry."

Professor Hollister is out in the interests of the extension work of the university and the lecture is given on admission free. Everybody is welcome to come, with the express provision, however, that all children under high-school age come accompanied by parents, teachers or guardians.

The professor is instructor of public speaking at the university and will no doubt offer not only an instructive but an entertaining lecture. Don't forget the date, time and place—Wednesday, February 6th, at 8:00 p. m., at the Congregational church.

OPEN RINK ON SCHOOL GROUND

FLOODED DAILY AND ELECTRICALLY LIGHTED

Space 100 x 20 Yards, East of High School Makes Ideal Place
For Sport

The winter sports idea in Charlevoix seems to be gaining a gratifying momentum. During the past few weeks, quite a number of young and near young folks have availed themselves of the excellent facilities for skiing which are offered by Mt. McSaubu and no little work has been done by local enthusiasts in the way of clearing a course, fashioning jump-offs, etc.

About ten days ago, Mayor Bergeon and the council, acting in collaboration with Hon. Rollie L. Lewis, president of the local board of education and assisted by the teachers and pupils of the schools have instituted another feature which promises to be equally as popular with its devotees as the skiing has become.

A fine ice rink has been formed on the eastern portion of the high and Central school grounds by banking up the snow around the sides, and flooding the space thus formed—some 100 yards long by 20 yards wide—with water from the city mains through the medium of a length or two of fire hose. At first an ordinary garden hose attached to the school tap was tried but this proved too slow and H. D. Marshall and his father were called upon for assistance. They very kindly responded and as a result the rink is now an accomplished fact.

Benches have been placed at one end of the rink for the weary skaters and Monday night seventy-five people enjoyed themselves on ring-running runners of steel under the glow of the electric lights that have been strung above the ice to brighten things up.

A radio set, the gift of the class of '23 to the C. H. S., has been installed in the chemistry room at the southeast corner of the high-school building and the broadcasted program was much enjoyed by the skaters. It is planned to equip this set with an extra loud speaker so that the music may be heard distinctly at any point on the rink.

Superintendent Hamilton and his associates plan to establish regulations to govern the use of the rink during the time that it is open to the public. Lights will go out promptly at ten o'clock. School children will be allowed on the rink only two school nights a week.

SELLS OLD BARGE TO SOO PARTIES

John Roen Disposes of Stafford, Converted Schooner

The schooner Stafford was sold today by Captain John Roen, of Charlevoix, to Samuel Shields and Pearl Weston, of Sault Ste. Marie.

The Stafford was built at Tonawanda, N. Y., in 1908, of wood, is 112 feet long and 25 feet beam, and of 199 tons displacement. She was a sailing vessel of the old type, familiar yesterday, but today seldom seen. She was shipwrecked on Beaver Island some few years ago, and afterward purchased by Captain Roen, who dismantled her, and converted her into a tow barge.

DRY INVESTIGATOR BOUGHT A HARD DRINK HERE.

Cheer Up, Though—Twenty-seven Towns Keep Us Company—
Owosso Easiest.

A survey in Michigan made to determine how rigidly the liquor laws were being enforced, reveals that it is possible to buy liquor in any town or city in the state, Robert W. Wardell, secretary of the Michigan branch of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment recently told delegates at Washington, D. C., attending the "Face the Facts" convention of the Anti-Prohibition association.

Mr. Wardell said he sent men in to municipalities all over the state, who were strangers in the communities they visited, and instructed them to try to buy liquor. In all instances they were successful, he said. It was the most difficult to obtain in Adrian, according to his reports, and the investigator succeeded quickest in Owosso. In that city he had a pint of moonshine 10 minutes after he arrived in town.

In contravention of Anti-Saloon league claims, that lower Michigan, outside of Detroit, is dry, Mr. Wardell named the following lower peninsula cities and towns in which purchases were made.

Corunna, Durand, Flint, Owosso, Adrian, Jackson, Grand Rapids, Kalamazoo, Battle Creek, Rose City, Bay City, Saginaw, Leno, Lapeer, Lansing, Ionia, Mason, Pontiac, Birmingham, Royal Oak, Pionecr, Grayling, Lovells, Standish, Big Rapids, Cheboygan, Charlevoix and Muskegon.

He said that he had information that two cars full of moonshine were recently shipped out of Roscommon county and across the border into Canada and where it was bottled and sent back into the United States as Canadian liquor.

He also mentioned a letter, which he said a banker in Charlevoix recently received. A man who had a note due at the bank asked the banker to hold it up temporarily as he had just got the money for a few days. Mr. Wardell said the banker turned the information over to the county prosecutor.

In Leno, he said, there are only three stores, but the investigator was able to make a purchase of liquor in one.

On Friday, February 8th, will occur the third and last party of the series. Place and time will be announced later. Prizes will be awarded at the end of the series.

The first party, held at the Hotel Charlevoix last Thursday evening was a very pleasant affair, twenty-eight couples being present.

W. S. NORMAL HAS NORTH MICH. CLUB

To Aid New Students From This Section at Kalamazoo

Charlevoix county students at Western State Normal, Kalamazoo, are joining with others from this part of the state in organizing a Northern Michigan club on the Normal campus.

Largely the upstate students are banding together to become better acquainted but one of their chief aims is to aid new students from this section who came to the Normal strangers to Kalamazoo and unfamiliar with college ways.

Because a large share of Kalamazoo Normal's 1,900 are registered from Northern Michigan the club expects to have the largest membership of all campus societies.

Two Charlevoix county students are officers in the Northern Michigan club, Arthur Secord of East Jordan, president, and Miss Eleanor McBride of East Jordan, treasurer. The other officers are two Petoskey boys, Douglas Miller, vice president, and Donald Wade, secretary.

FISHING INDUS- TRY COUNTS BIG

ONE OF STATE'S BEST COMMER-CIAL RESOURCES

Fifty-two Million Pounds Marketed Annually a Average of 15c Per Lb.

The little heralded commercial fish industry has attained large proportions in Michigan, according to reports received by W. P. Harman, head of the bureau of foods and standards of the state department of agriculture.

"During 1923 approximately 52,000,000 pounds of fish were marketed by Michigan fishermen. Most of them went east. The average price was 15 cents a pound. The commercial product came largely from the fishing grounds in the Great Lakes. About 200 fisheries are in the lower peninsula, and about 50 north of the straits.

To keep step with the growth of the industry 21 new fish houses were constructed during the year. More satisfactory to Mr. Harman's department, however, than the actual growth, was the improvement in sanitary conditions. In 1922 nearly 40 per cent of the fisheries were served with sanitary notices. In 1923, out of about 250 plants, only five notices were served.

A distinct and unique branch of the industry is carp production, the largest shippers raise their carp in domestic pools and ship them in tank cars, alive. Last year approximately 5,000,000 pounds of live carp were shipped to New York. They are said to be a favorite fish in the east side markets there, and command very good prices.

CAME TO NURSE—SHE HERSELF FALLS SICK

Mrs. Ethelyn Atkins Died of Peritonitis at Hospital.

Mrs. Ethelyn Atkins of Bellaire, who came here on the 15th of January to act as nurse for the late James A. Hawkins during his last illness, was taken ill on Sunday evening, January 20th. She was sick all day Monday and Tuesday morning, it being discovered that she was developing a slight temperature, she was removed to the Charlevoix hospital.

Her case was diagnosed as appendicitis and an operation performed last Thursday noon disclosed the fact that peritonitis had set in. Everything possible was done to save her but she never rallied and passed away Sunday morning, January 27th, at 2:30 o'clock. She was 65 years of age.

The funeral, which has been delayed to await the arrival of a brother of the deceased, Vernon Smith, who lives in Saskatchewan, Canada, will be held at Bellaire on Friday of this week from the home of Harley Smith, another brother. Mrs. Atkins' son, Paul, who is a teacher in the schools at Johannesburg, Mich., and her sister, Mrs. Sylvia Hoover of Buffalo, arrived in Petoskey Saturday night and drove over to Charlevoix Sunday morning. Mrs. Atkins was a aunt of Mrs. Archie Livingston of this city.

WILL HELP RUN MONSTER AFFAIR

CLAIRE CARTIER ON 1925 JUN-IOR HOP COMMITTEE

Eight Hundred Fifty Couples Take Part in Giant Ball at U. of M.

W. Claire Cartier, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Cartier, 705 State street, has had conferred upon him the highest social honor possible to attain at the University of Michigan where he is a student by election to the 1925 Junior Hop committee.

Cartier, together with the twelve other juniors honored by election to the committee, will lead the grand march at the giant ball that will be held February 8th. A native of Charlevoix, Cartier graduated from the Charlevoix high school here, before he entered the University. He is in the dental school there.

Aside from being one of the social leaders of the campus, Cartier has also taken part in numerous other activities. He was president of his class last year, the highest honor that can be given a man by such a group. He has also taken prominent part in class athletics of various kinds. Cartier is a member of Xi Psi Phi dental fraternity.

The J-hop, is a giant ball toward which the efforts of the entire junior class of the University are bent many months before in an effort to make it surpass any other event of its kind in the country. More than 850 couples, gathered from every corner of the United States, attend.

The two combined gymnasiums where the ball will be held are entirely transformed for the event. A novel form of decoration, never before used on such a large scale, will be tried at this year's Hop. Both of the gymnasiums where the dance will be held will be transformed into gigantic Eskimo villages for the occasion.

Constructed about the sides of the ballrooms will be the igloos of the Eskimos, built realistically, and with light shining from their doors. Above them, and from the edge of the balcony that surrounds the room, dripping ice will be placed. Still above this a cold dark-blue sky will rise the true sky of a frozen north. Stars will glitter from the darkness of the canopy each star having within it a concealed light that will shed a mellow glow upon the revelers beneath.

The guests are placed in booths that are in charge of the various fraternities on the campus. These booths, arranged beneath the balcony and separated from one another by walls of jagged ice, will offer cozy nooks against the cold atmosphere of the ballroom. Luxurious furniture will make the booths restful havens to couples tired of dancing.

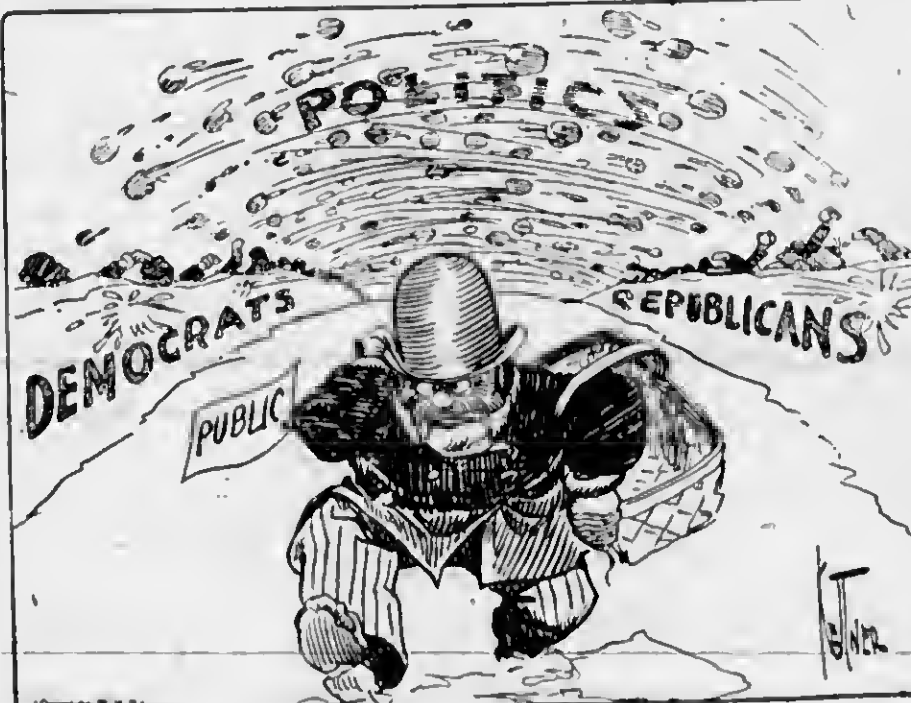

At the three orchestra platforms that will be placed about the walls of ice will separate the musicians from the starry sky above. On either side of each platform a walrus and a polar bear will stand guard over those who play within. At intervals about the walls of the ballroom and in each corner, pinnacled icebergs will rise against the snowy background.

At one end of the larger gymnasium, a giant picture of the Aurora Borealis, painted in a thousand blended colors and lighted by banks of colorful lights and tiny spotlights, will cast sparkling rays of lights on the dancers. At the other end another picture will be painted; that of a ship frozen in a mass of icebergs. From the portholes of the ship, lights will shine.

With the frigid atmosphere that the decorations create, special furniture dances are being planned to further carry out the idea of the scheme. One of these will be a snow scene, in which paper snow will be blown upon the dancers with a series of electric fans so that they are merged in a very gale of whirling snow. In another feature dance all the lights will be turned out with the exception of the stars that will cast their pale gleams on the revelers; in another the lights of the Aurora Borealis alone will light the room, and in a third the dancers will be illuminated only by the shining rays from the doors of the Eskimo igloos.

Different Ailments Are Confused With Cholera

With the gradually increasing control of hog cholera, it is important that swine growers give attention to the many other ailments which cause losses, some of which are frequently confused with cholera. Among the diseases with symptoms confused with those of cholera are anthrax, epilepsy, gastroenteritis, necrobacillosis, pleurisy, pneumonia, poisoning, tuberculosis, swine plague and worms.

more Ford cars and trucks were produced last year than the previous year, an increase of over 50 per cent.

In spite of this tremendous increase in production, it was impossible to meet delivery requirements during the spring and summer months when orders for 350,000 Ford Cars and Trucks could not be filled.

This year winter buying for immediate delivery has been more active than ever before—and in addition 200,000 orders have already been booked through the Ford Weekly Purchase Plan for spring delivery.

These facts clearly indicate that the demand during this spring and summer will be far greater than ever, and that orders should be placed immediately with Ford Dealers as a means of protection against delay in securing your Ford Car or Truck or Fordson Tractor.

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS

Suggestions From County Agent Hagerman Worthwhile Your Closest Attention

The Agricultural Situation

Agriculture comes up to the new year much as a heavily burdened man hauls breathing-space in a long up-hill climb. Farmers have not yet reached level ground though generally the going is getting better right along.

All through the readjustment turmoil of the last four years has run an insistent pressure to reduce production. The markets have driven home a harsh lesson. It reached the Cotton Belt early. It has now reached the Wheat Belt.

The great feed crops, corn, oats, and hay have yielded heavily for four seasons, however. Increase in livestock represents, as much as anything else, the natural effort to carry along that vast store of feed and dispose of it gradually. It is somewhat like funding debts to a longer more tolerable basis.

What we have come to, therefore, is essentially a new phase of the readjustment period. First it was the money crops, the crops of world markets. Now it is the great feed—crops a longer more delicate adjustment working itself out through the medium of the livestock industries.

This is a matter for producers to move slowly on. If a man's hand is not actually forced, this is a poor time to let snap judgment lead him into the reversal of plans which usually foreshadow violent swings in the cycle of production and prices. Even if the times force an absolute contraction of farm output toward the bounds of the domestic market, we are not sure that it might not involve a relatively high level of activity within the animal industries—backed presumably by adequate tariff and other measures of national scope. Shrewd men are now taking advantage of cheap hogs and cattle to improve their breeding herds.

Agriculture thus goes into the new year with renewed hope. With feed crop surpluses safely stored on the hoof, there is more chance for a breathing-space. The general outlook is more promising than at any time since 1920.

Sweet Clover and Alfalfa Inoculation

The writer is again receiving volumes of literature, emphasizing the value of inoculation for our legumes seeds. Also in the same literature, there are prices quoted for this inoculation which in 98 per cent of the cases is 75-80 per cent higher than the same stuff can be purchased from the Bacteriological Department of the College.

Instead of paying eighty cents to a dollar per bottle per bushel size, a sufficient quantity to treat this same bushel can be secured for twenty-five cents. However, those selling this inoculation maintain that theirs will keep indefinitely. For best results, fresh material is recommended and can be secured through the County Agents office and will keep its virility for thirty to sixty days. If you will send your orders in, accompanied with twenty-five cents, you may secure this inoculation.

be deemed to constitute the State Tax to be apportioned among the various counties of the State in accordance with the provisions of the general tax law."

Recently when a similar bill was voted down by the farmers of the State, the opponents of the bill appealed to the farmer voter that taxes were high enough and what was the use of another tax? This is indeed use of another tax? This is indeed opinion that in very few cases will it be another tax for the farmer.

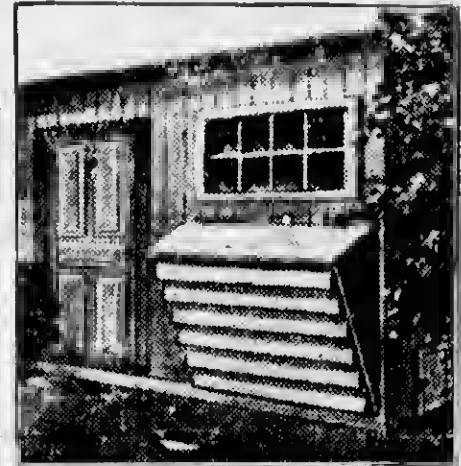

It might be interesting to state that real estate is 35 per cent of the wealth of the state. This 35 per cent of the wealth of the state is bearing 80 per cent of all taxes. Investigate for yourself and you as a farmer will find that it will be a relief rather than a burden.

Automatic Ventilation

Is Latest Convenience

Most poultrymen today acknowledge the value of good ventilation in the winter hatching pens. But ventilation without objectionable drafts is often hard to accomplish, especially where snowstorms and blizzards are of frequent occurrence. The open air type of henhouse, which is in general use, is not entirely satisfactory because snow and rain can enter. Even if a muslin curtain is provided to prevent this, it is necessary to adjust this curtain according to weather conditions, and this is very often neglected. To overcome these difficulties, and to make the ventilation entirely automatic, a Wisconsin poultryman devised the shutter arrangement shown in the illustration.

A Shutter for the Poultry House That, While Providing Ample Ventilation, Eliminates Draft, as It Closes Automatically in a Wind.

matic, a Wisconsin poultryman devised the shutter arrangement shown in the illustration.

It consists of a frame projecting from the side of the poultry house as shown, about 6 feet long and 4 feet high, roofed over with tar paper. Seven 6-inch boards are suspended within this frame, with enough space between them to insure proper ventilation at all times, and arranged in such a manner that they swing easily upon pivot nails driven through the frame at each end.

In fair weather the shutters hang vertically, but when gusts of wind, with rain or snow, beat against them, they close automatically. To prevent the fowls from scratching litter into the openings, which would interfere with the movement of the shutters, sparrow netting is tacked across the frame, on the inside of the house.—G. E. Hendrickson, Arcyle, Wis., in Popular Mechanics Monthly.

Hens Must Be Well Fed

During Molting Period

Many people ask how to feed chickens through the molt. They seem to feel that the system of feeding during this normal resting period should be different from their feeding system during the other periods of the year.

The yearly molt is a very natural part of a hen's life. This is the time of the year when the hen ceases production in order to replenish her wardrobe and to store up renewed energy and strength for her next year of laying. During this time she is manufacturing a supply of feathers instead of eggs. Feathers and eggs are made up of somewhat the same material. The system of feeding then should not be different from one used for egg production. Milk should continue to be fed along with the mash, and oyster shell and grain should continue to be fed in order that the hen may store up surplus fat so that she can have fat to draw upon for the next year's production.

Cutting down in the feed will cause production to drop off. Any condition which stops egg production will cause birds to molt at this time of year. However, the cause of the early molting will not bring about a quick molt. On the contrary, those that molt early are usually long-time molters. Those that molt late are usually short-time molters. It is therefore most profitable to continue to feed for egg production and let the fowls go into their natural molt, rather than try to control this in any way.—Poultry Extension Service, Colorado Agricultural College.

encourage mature chickens to raise by feeding them carefully. A good summer ration for hens consists of 1 part wheat, 1 part oats, and 1 part corn, by weight. More eggs are obtained where the birds are fed a little grain than when forced to depend upon "pickings" on the farm.

KEEP TO VITAMINE NEEDS
Malnutrition is a subject that has received a great deal of attention recently since the discovery of vitamins or the vitamine theory has been expounded. It has been discovered that while there may be a sufficient quantity of food it is quite possible to be undernourished with a full stomach three times a day. The reason is the absence of vitamins, according to the vitamine theory and the other end of the argument is the absence of mineral salts necessary for the proper nutrition of the body. Whichever it may be vegetables furnish the needed factor in proper nutrition.

The vitamins which are classified as A, B, C and D, are contained in milk and fresh vegetables, particularly the leaf vegetables or those the leaves of which are food articles. It is known that the vitamine content and value is greater when they are eaten raw.

The A vitamine is a promoter of growth and its absence is the frequent causes of malnutrition, particularly in children who are backward in growth and subject to various ailments. Vegetables furnishing this element are string beans, cabbages, carrots, corn, Swiss chard, beet greens, lettuce, green peas, spinach and tomatoes.

The B vitamine is important in that its absence from the diet induces stomach and intestinal troubles, neuritis and other ailments. It is supplied by cooked vegetables as well as raw, beans, beets, cooked cabbage, carrots, cauliflower, raw onions, peas, potatoes, in short, most of the cooked root crops.

Vitamine C has considerable to do with the temper. Its absence leads to irritability and in extreme cases leads to scurvy. Cabbage and the cooked root crops also furnish this vitamine. The vitamine D is a yeast growth.

Green and cooked vegetables if eaten as a regular part of the diet will furnish the vitamins necessary for good health and development. If the vitamine theory is not accepted they furnish the mineral salts which are equally essential and without which the human machine cannot be kept in repair and in efficient working order.

UNCOUNTED CHILD WORKERS
The United States census of 1920 discloses that one out of every 12 children between the ages of 10 and 15 in this country was at work. This does not mean simple home tasks or school work, but painful occupations frequently beyond the child's strength and depriving him of education, recreation and health.

Of these million and more children, over 650,000 are in agricultural work—in sugar beet fields, cranberry bogs, on cotton plantations, and so on. Manufacturing claims 185,000 child laborers, clerical occupation take 80,000, trades take 63,000, domestic and personal service take 54,000, transportation takes 19,000 professional service takes 2,500, public service takes 1,100.

In addition to these working children, there are many others of whom the census takes no note. It does not report the number of workers under 10 years of age, or the child laborers who miss only a half or less of their school attendance, in spite of the fact that their wage-earning may be regular and seriously interfere with school work. Furthermore, the 1920 census was taken in January, when there was less agricultural work being done.

With more than a million child workers known about and admitted, there must be hundreds of thousands who have not been counted.

These bare statements tell nothing of the stunting of mental and bodily growth, the withering of spirit, the banning of educational opportunity, the blighting of childhood and subsequently of manhood and womanhood by the early and unsuitable grinding tasks to be found in child labor.

Knowledge of these things should inspire in the thoughtful citizen a determination to find the means to end this abuse of the nation's children. There is room for both federal and state action.

TRAVERSE C. OF C.

ADOPTS NEW PLAN

Will Have No Secret Sessions From Now On

New methods were started by the chamber of commerce of Traverse City Saturday when the newly elected officers and directors held their first meeting.

One of the first acts of the board was to banish all secrecy and plan to take the general public into confidence on all matters of general interest.

Glen W. Power, newly elected president, presided and it was decided to hold a meeting of the board of directors every Friday evening. All of these meetings will be open to the public. An effort will be made during the coming year to interest rural communities in local activities.

GOOD ROADS

Removing Snow on Roads

Greater Task Each Year

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Snow removal on important truck-line highways is becoming a matter of increasing importance each winter, says the bureau of public roads of the United States Department of Agriculture.

Investigations of the bureau show that there is a considerable mileage of road which the public can ill afford to lose the use of each winter.

As a result of traffic investigations in Connecticut, it is estimated that 1,019,688 net tons of commodities were transported over the state system in the three months' period beginning with September, 1922. More than a third of this tonnage moved only from one to nine miles, and nearly another third moved from ten to twenty-nine miles. These figures are given to show that in industrial sections there is a large volume of short-haul traffic which does not compete with the railroads and which cannot be carried by the railroads when the highways become snowbound.

It is difficult to estimate the amount of inconvenience to passenger travel caused by snow, but with at least one motor vehicle to every ten people in a majority of the states, it must be considerable.

In many sections motor bus travel is increasingly relied upon by rural communities. It is reported that there are 450 such lines in Ohio, 283 in Pennsylvania and large numbers in other states where snow is a problem. So great is the importance of keeping these lines in operation that cases are known where companies have cleared their lines of snow at their own expense.

Heavily Loaded Trucks in East Peril Highways

Restriction of the weight of trucks carrying loads over a number of Connecticut highways is likely to follow a survey now being made of freight and traffic conditions, the state highway department has announced. Although no definite program has yet been decided upon, the limitation is being considered in view of the heavy truck traffic that now traverses the state.

In answer to an inquiry from the Rhode Island board of public roads, Highway Commissioner John A. Macdonald has replied that at present, at least, there will probably be no restrictions of loads under the state's 15,000-pound limit on roads leading into Rhode Island. This maximum weight limit is fixed by statute. The highway department, however, has authority to make further restrictions if the safety of the public highways is endangered by overloading of trucks.

Paved Highways Causing Fresh Demand for Horses

Paved highways from farm to market are bringing about economy in transportation even where horses are used to haul grain, live stock, fruit, and other products to marketing centers. One of the best arguments for hard-surfaced roads came out of a series of tests made at Ames, Ia., recently. The experiments were made to determine the pulling power of horses of various sizes. A testing apparatus invented by C. V. Collins of the engineering department, Iowa State college, was used.

These tests, conducted by the Horse Association of America, showed that a horse has to pull four times as much on a dirt road as he does on concrete. A single horse drawing a wagon on concrete can pull as much as four horses burdened with heavy loads on the average dirt road that is still entirely too common in this country.

Now that the Agricultural college band has decided to tour western Michigan during the spring vacation, we will doubtless hear of a fine series of barn dances.

The professional golfer in one of our country clubs declares that bad golfers get the most physical benefit out of the game. That is unless you count the all-round athletic snicker of those who are watching them.

This is one of the biggest cases tried in Cheboygan county for many years and Mr. Shanahan is to be congratulated on his work.

We have all heard of the mean man who stole pennies off a dead man's eyes and took candy away from kids, but Charlevoix has an even meaner woman, so they tell us over at the library, who steals magazines and books, some of which have been supplied by the librarian out of desk money, stuffing them in her coat and walking calmly away with them. We don't know who this lady (?) is but if she is as hard up as her actions would indicate, we would ask that she please make herself known so that a public collection may be taken up for her benefit. It is possible she may be found in the beau monde, as she is especially addicted to "Vogue" and other fashion publications. It is a sad case.

NEW FARM HOME IS BURNED TO GROUND

George Meggison House on Route 2 Totally Destroyed.

The farm home of George Meggison on Rural route 2, caught fire in the roof from a chimney spark at about three o'clock Tuesday afternoon and burned to the ground.

No one was in the house at the time save Mrs. Meggison and their little grandchild. When discovered, the fire had a good start in the attic, but had anyone been around at the time a good part of the furniture on the second floor could have been saved. As it was, however, everything on this floor was a total loss, though the greater part of the furnishings of the first floor were removed to a place of safety.

The neighbors assembling, a bucket brigade was quickly formed, but the fire had progressed to a point by that time where nothing could stop it. Other buildings on the place were unharmed. The house was a new one and, with its contents, nearly covered by insurance.

Mr. Meggison plans to rebuild in the spring and in the meantime is fixing up the old house, which is still standing on the property, to occupy with his family for the remainder of the winter.

FIRES BLAMED ON RAILROADS

MAIN TIMBER LOSS DUE TO LOCOMOTIVES

So Find the Wardens of Fifth District, Though Total Loss Is Small

Despite the fact that thousands of tourists, campers, fishermen, hunters and berry pickers visit this part of Michigan each summer and travel through hundreds of thousands of acres of dry leaves, grass and underbrush, the annual report of forest fires for the fifth district shows a small fire loss for the year of 1923.

It has been generally believed that most of the forest fires in the north were caused by careless campers or tourists throwing cigarettes into the dry grass or underbrush, but in the report just completed for Cheboygan, Alpena, Montmorency, Otsego and Presque Isle counties, the railroads take first responsibility. Out of 206 fires reported by the wardens, 60 were caused by locomotives; 14 by campers, 3 by campers, 27 by men clearing land, 19 by berry pickers, 9 by settlers, 4 by lightning, 59 of "unknown origin" and a few by miscellaneous causes.

Cheboygan county suffered the heaviest loss, which amounted to $7,370 for the year just ended; Otsego was next with $6,480; Montmorency $4,250 and Alpena $2,328.95. The counties had the following number of fires: Cheboygan, 50; Montmorency, 50; Otsego, 48; Alpena 44, and Presque Isle, 14. The value of standing timber lost through fires was something less than $15,000, with other forest products approximating $5,000. The total cost of suppression in the five counties was $5,173.62.

Under the unusual conditions last season, long dry periods, late fall, lack of early rains and snows, this report is considerable remarkable, for the region comprises many thousands of acres of wild land which at certain seasons of the year almost becomes tinder.

Next Aisle Please.

There was a new attendant of the spiritualistic circle, and he had formerly been employed in a big drapery shop.

The fact came to light when a client requested him to tell the medium that she wished to speak with a Mr. Green. "Certainly, madam," said the attendant. "Can you give me his Christian name?"

"I'm afraid I've forgotten it, but he died quite a short time ago."

The attendant cleared his throat and approached the medium. "Please show the lady some of the latest shades of Greens," he said.

An Adventure on the Frontier.

A visitor from the East walked pompously into a stationery store, the other day and paused before the young woman who was presiding over the fountain pen counter.

"I've just discovered," he began with a condescending air, "that I have lost my fountain pen. I suppose I can't find what I want out here in this part of the country. What have you in fountain pens?"

"Ink, mostly," replied the young woman, as she arranged her hair and yawned languidly.—Kansas City Star.

Railroading in Winter

Especially in Michigan, Railroad transportation is subject to sudden periods of extreme cold and heavy snow. Such weather lowers the efficiency of steam-driven machinery, imposes severe hardships on men, and makes necessary abnormal expenditures for fuel, wages and special equipment.

To vanquish these obstacles—to accept and deliver freight and passengers in the teeth of a midwinter blizzard, when necessary—is an annual battle for each of Michigan's 24 steam Railroads.

Even in a comparatively open winter, the Railroads must always be equipped and ready. On certain northern runs, a snow plow precedes every train throughout the winter, regardless of weather.

Winter railroading in Michigan is seldom possible at a profit. Often it can be accomplished only by large financial loss. Yet, despite the handicaps of climate, the cars move, and Michigan continues warm, well fed and prosperous.

Do you appreciate the foresight, determination and fortitude which, year in and year out, make Railroad transportation so sound a reliance. The Railroads will be pleased and helped to know that you do.

Isa Alward, Russell, Alward and H. H. Elzinga are spending to day (Tuesday) in the attempt to capture a fox.

Several new cases of measles this week, but all are getting along in fine shape. No new cases of small-pox and it is hoped and expected that the threatened epidemic will not materialize.

Funeral services in charge of Rev. Lawrence at the house and of Rev. Lawrence and Rev. Beute nt the M. E. church, were conducted on Monday for little Margaret Bos, the seven year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bos, who died at the Charlevoix hospital on Thursday of last week following an illness of but a few days, and the body was carried to its resting place at Boss cemetery.

The little girl was a particularly bright and sunny disposition and school mates at the Wright school, which she attended, nearly as much as her parents and other relatives. Her school was closed for the day and nearly every pupil as well as her teacher attended the funeral services. The parents have the deepest sympathy of the entire community.

TWO FIELD BASKETS IN 73 ATTEMPTS

Independents and All Stars Meet in Desperate Encounter

The basket ball game of last week between the Ellsworth Independents and the Ellsworth All Stars was a hum-dinger to say the least, and resulted in a win for the All Stars by a 12-10 score. The Stars took the lead after one minute of play and were never headed, due largely to the skilful defensive work of Schover and the superb basket shooting of Capt. H. H. Elzinga, who caged two field baskets out of seventy-three attempts.

On Thursday night of this week the two teams met again and a harder battle than the one of last week is expected. Capt. Donaldson of the Independents stung by the defeat is endeavoring to bolster the weak spots of his team and is confident that the acquisition of a new center two more guards and two or three new forwards will give his team the necessary punch. JOHNSON OPENS STATE CAMPAIGN

POPULAR CALIFORNIA SENATOR FLAYS WORLD COURT OF LEAGUE OF NATIONS

ASKS RELIEF FOR THE FARMER

Shows Injustice of Boss-Controlled Conventor System. Favors Bonos for Soldiers.

Senator Hiram W. Johnson, of California, candidate for the Republican nomination for President, opened his campaign in Michigan on January 17 with a speech in the Light Guard Armory, Detroit, before an audience of approximately 2,500 people. He was enthusiastically applauded as he denounced the World Court of the League of Nations, advocated the Soldiers' bonus and criticized the President for his coldness toward the farmer. A summary of his speech follows:

The election of a president begins with his nomination by a national convention. The Republican National Committee, acting under the orders of our opponents violated the pledge of the last Republican Convention for a "just and equitable basis" in the selection of delegates. The Committee had, under the mandate of the Convention in 1920, reduced the Southern representation. Very recently at Washington, without warrant, it unjustly rescinded its former action, and increased the representation in the South. Nine Southern States, Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, South Carolina, Texas, and Virginia, polled 488,000 votes for President Harding, and these nine Southern States have 134 delegates in the Republican National Convention. Michigan polled 762,000 votes for President Harding, and Michigan has 33 delegates. Ohio polled 1,182,000 votes for President Harding and Ohio has 51 delegates. Illinois polled 1,420,000 votes for President Harding, and Illinois has 61 delegates.

One Republican, however, in South Carolina, or Mississippi, where there is no Republican Party, and where delegates are controlled by a few federal officeholders under command from Washington, is equal to more than one hundred Republicans in Michigan, Illinois, or Ohio.

It is this system upon which we war, and it is this system I challenge in this campaign. The determination is a test of popular government.

Tax Reduction

An inevitable tax reduction has been utilized as a smoke screen to hide every domestic and foreign issue before the American people. There can be no political issue on the reduction of taxes. Nobody believes in high taxation, and everybody wishes low taxation. With a surplus of $240,000,000 on hand, it is obvious there can be tax reduction. The only question is how shall it be effected?

There would be no great propaganda overwhelming in its extent, skillfully and cunningly devised. If reduction of taxation of small incomes alone were at stake. The propaganda comes from those who are most able to pay taxes, and is directed for the benefit of those who have demonstrated their ability to make large incomes, and who wish to have even larger incomes by reduction of their taxes.

Over 13,000,000 people pay taxes on incomes less than $10,000. 339,000 people pay taxes on incomes over $10,000. Under the so-called "Mellon plan" the fortunate possessors of incomes of $250,000 will make $49,000.00 a year; on an income of $300,000.00, $63,000.00; on an income of $500,000.00, $117,000.00 a year; on an income of $1,000,000.00, $232,000.00 a year. It is those who expect these enormous returns under the Mellon plan, who are filling the newspapers today, and inciting the enormous propaganda for tax reduction.

We would reduce the taxes as far as possible upon every class, but we would also keep our faith. The Republican Party is pledged, so far as its responsible leaders can pledge it, to the Adjusted Compensation Bill. The late President Harding unequivocally endorsed it. In the United States Senate, the leaders of the Republican Party promised the passage of the bill. We can pay this adjusted compensation and reduce taxes, too.

Soldier Bonus

The principle of adjusted compensation the Government, at the instance of business itself, has established. It was established also for the railroads and for our mining interests. The Congress upon the prayers of those who had war contracts, which were terminated by the armistice, passed the Dent bill, permitting adjustment of the contracts.

HOW'S THIS?

HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE will do what we claim for it—rid your system of Catarrh or Deafness caused by Catarrh.

tion of those business interests who had dealt with the Government, and upon this principle of adjusted compensation, the United States Government has paid out to business about three billions of dollars. Business insisted upon this principle, and received its benefit. It would now deny the same principle to the men who bared their bodies to shot and shell across the sea.

The soldier received $30 per month, while those who stayed at home received many times that sum. Out of his $30.00 per month, a very large number of soldiers, paid $15 as an allotment for relatives, and $6.00 per month was taken for insurance. He had remaining, in many instances, an average of $9.00 per month, or thirty cents a day. He asks now a pitifully small adjustment of the discrepancy in what was paid to him and what was paid to those who stayed at home.

And some business men paying taxes upon incomes of one hundred, two hundred, five hundred thousand or a million dollars per year would deny it! We not only recognized the principle of adjusted compensation for business, but we actually paid a bonus to the civilian employees of the government during the war and thereafter. This bonus has amounted to about fifteen hundred dollars to each of the civilian employees, three times what the soldier now asks. Not only this, but our loans to nations in Europe, have been most generous and extravagant. Some of these will never be repaid. Upon none of them have we received a farthing of interest, and yet some of the very nations we have loaned our money to have paid a bonus to their soldiers.

The Farmer

The farmer today suffers not only from low prices, but from the high cost of production. What he sells is low and what he buys is high. His dollar is below par. This is especially true of the farmer in the interior, where the greatly increased freight charge, stand between him and his market. The wheat farmer suffers most. During the war, the Government held down the price of wheat to a lower level than other commodities. It insisted on greatly increased acreage. The resulting over-production has added much to the farmers' difficulties. Conditions with him are not normal so long as he is not able to exchange his day's labor with all other kinds of labor. He is entitled to a fair wage and a reasonable return on his capital. He is not getting it. Credit schemes alone will not save him from bankruptcy. He must have a market for his products at a fair price. In the recent presidential message he is told to help himself. The Government apparently is cold to words him and turns from directions where he may be benefited. Co-operation, of course, would aid him, but co-operation of millions is a difficult thing after all. The unnumerable agents and experts of the Government should aid the farmers in effecting co-operation among themselves, but there should also be effective co-operation of the government with the farmer. Nothing could be more disastrous to our nation than the continuance of the demoralization of our leading industry, for in the wake of this demoralization, distress follows in every industry.

It is not sufficient therefore to say to the farmer that he must lift himself by the boot straps from the terrible predicament in which he finds himself.

World Court

What are we asked to join is no world court, no court at all. The President says of it in his message: "The court is merely a convenient instrument of adjustment to which we would go but to which we could not be brought."

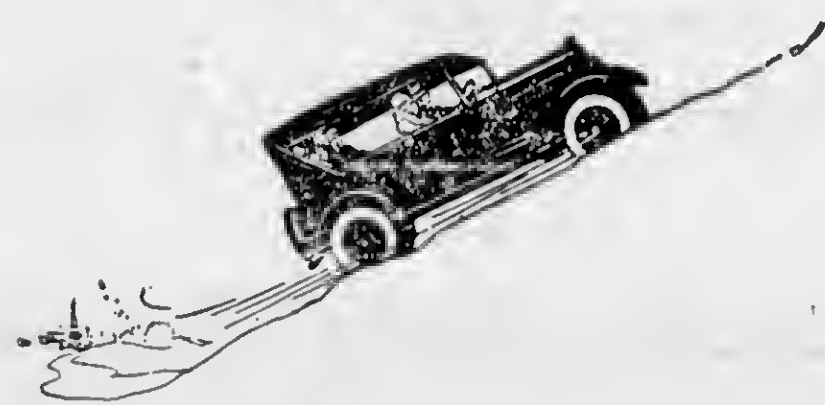

This is the expression of its futility. If we could not be brought to it, it is obvious other nations could not be brought before it. No wrong deed can be halted before it. No wrong can be remedied by it. Great nations have refused to submit to its compulsory jurisdiction. If an exploiting nation to Europe seizes the territory of its neighbor, this so-called court could not take cognizance of the act, could not remedy the wrong. Already, we have treaties of arbitration with nearly all of the nations of Europe. The Hague permanent tribunal site for the purpose of determining the controversies thus arising. It functions with a wider jurisdiction today than the misnamed League of Nations Court. It exists under our written contracts and our arbitration treaties. Our entry into the League of Nations court can only be for one reason, that we may ultimately be taken into the League. It is a part of the League functions by the League, derives its power from the League, its constitution is that of the League. The internationalists who desire to take us into Europe, know full well that once we enter the so-called court, we'll be a part of the League, and gradually will be taken into the League.

The recent agitation in this country makes this increasingly apparent. I insist that if we are to go into the League of Nations, we go in with the knowledge of our people. I resist this course with all my power, but I resist even more the effort cunningly to fold this course upon our people by subterfuge.

It is nonsense to talk about the aloofness of this country. We are not isolated, and never will be isolated in business, in finance, socially or commercially. We are not isolated from Europe and we have never been. There is just one sort of isolation, which has been ours, and which we wish to maintain, and our opponents would destroy—it is isolation from

AMARYLLIS IS A FRENCH RONDEAU

AUTHORITIES DIFFER AS TO ITS ORIGIN.

Writer of "The Lass With the Delicate Air" Composed "Rule Britannia."

The third and fourth numbers on the program of the Music Memory contest are "Amaryllis" (Ahm-a-rill-ia—Old French, 1651) author unknown, and "The Lass With the Delicate Air," composed by Thomas Arne.

"Amaryllis" is an old French rondeau. Our late Hayes Company concert on the lecture course, you will remember this piece, sung and danced by the company. The rondeau originated with the custom of folk-singing, when a number of people in a round or circle would sing a simple chorus after which one of the performers would sing alone. The same chorus would then be sung again, followed by a different solo, in the same manner as the Hayes Company did. It consists of one principal melody or theme and returns several times and then has separate contrasting melodies.

Amaryllis was the name of a shepherdess who was a character in the Latin writings of Virgil. During the 16th century, it was the custom to give fanciful, pastoral names to a woman and then dedicate to her poetry and music. Following this custom, the title of Amaryllis was given to Margaret, daughter of Henry III, and this rondeau was dedicated to her and first played at her wedding in 1651. Authorities differ as to the composer. It is an old French folk melody or peasant dance in four-four time and was called "The Clock," because of the regular tick-tock of the first melody, a very strongly marked rhythm with French charm and vivacity. This piece is popular on all concert programs.

Arne.
"The Lass With the Delicate Air" was written by Thomas Arne, who was born in London (1710 to 1778). His father wanted him to take up the study and profession of law and he tried it, but all his interest was in music and he was finally allowed to adopt it as his life's work. He was connected with the theatre and wrote many songs by which he is known today, the most famous being "Rule Britannia," one of England's most loved patriotic songs. Several of his compositions for Shakespeare's plays are used today. Arne was made doctor of music by the University of Oxford.

"The Lass With the Delicate Air" is essentially an eighteenth century song.

LUMBER-JACKS DROWN OFF GARDEN ISLAND

Miller and Lawson Break Through Ice in Mid-Channel.

Joseph Miller and Max Lawson, both around 18 years of age, who have been working for Albert Fochtman of Petoskey in a lumber camp on Garden Island, were drowned Sunday afternoon about half way between Garden Island and St. James, Beaver Island.

These young men, accompanied by two of their companions whose names are unknown, walked over on the ice from their camp to St. James to purchase supplies Sunday morning. Two of the men started back at about two o'clock in the afternoon, leaving Miller and Lawson who followed an hour later. The latter were never seen again.

Monday morning, a searching party started out from Garden Island. They found on the ice a hat, coat and pair of gloves which were identified as Lawson's. This seemed to indicate that Miller somehow broke through the ice first and Lawson attempted his rescue with fatal results to both.

Tuesday morning, Captain Vandenberg and crew from the St. James coast guard station pushed a small skiff over the thin ice and started dragging the lake near where the clothing was found, about two miles south of Garden Island. Their work was continued throughout the day and Wednesday, but at latest reports the bodies had not been recovered.

LEELANAU COUNTY LED IN POTATOES

Produced 1,086, 060 Bushels During 1923

An interesting factor of the potato show, held last week at the Petoskey Chamber of Commerce, was a map showing the production of potatoes by counties in Michigan. Leelanau county led northwestern Michigan with a yield of 1,086,060 bushels during the last season.

Emmet county produced 429,000 bushels of potatoes during 1923. Charlevoix 389,850; Cheboygan, 129,000. Grand Traverse, Antrim and Otsego counties of this section of the state had unusually fine records for the 1923 crop.

The display of standard grades adopted by the United States, the common defects and remedies for them, data concerning selections of seeds, results accomplished from spraying and the relative food value of the potato are among the points brought out by the exhibit.

Beauty and Luck Win Fame for Chance brought to Sigrid Holmquist, the "Mary Pickford of Sweden," her opportunity to win fame in motion pictures. Miss Holmquist who has a leading part in "Just Around the Corner," a Paramount-Cosmopolitan picture, which comes to the Palace Theatre next Saturday and Sunday, was born in Sweden but went to London when a child. She is a blonde, and her beauty attracted the attention of an English director, who saw her in a restaurant. He asked her if she would consent to appear in a picture.

At first Miss Holmquist's parents objected to her giving up the musical career they had planned for her, but finally consented. Later Miss Holmquist had leading roles in several Swedish productions.

Besides Miss Holmquist those who have important roles are: Margaret Seldon, Lewis Sargent, and Fred C. Thomson.

POULTRY

Investigate So-Called
New Breeds of Poultry

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
During the past few months the United States Department of Agriculture has received many requests from all parts of the country for information concerning two so-called new "breeds" of poultry, the "Turken" and the "Kiwi." The department has been aware of advertisements concerning these new and novel "breeds," for which some rather remarkable claims have been made. The advertisements and literature describing the origin and qualities of these "breeds" seem to have aroused much interest on the part of the public, since the department has recently received several urgent requests for an explanation regarding the reliability of the claims made.

The statements in the advertisements and literature claim that the "Turken" was originally produced by crossing a male turkey with a female chicken, and that the "Kiwi" was produced by crossing a male ostrich with a female chicken.

Successful crosses have been made between the pheasant and the chicken, and in practically every case the progeny has been of the male sex and sterile. Also, successful crosses have been made between the guinea and the chicken and here, again, the sex of the progeny has almost invariably been male and the hybrids have been sterile. Both of these crosses have been made with great difficulty and, so far as known, no cross giving any progeny has ever been reported between the turkey and the chicken. Furthermore, it is highly improbable that the progeny, if any have ever been secured, would breed at all, and certainly not readily. In such wide or violent crosses the progeny is always sterile, and the claim that the "Turken," which is reported to be the hybrid progeny of a cross between the turkey and the chicken, is in all probability not founded on fact.

One other point must be made concerning the so-called "Turken," says the department. The illustrations accompanying the advertisements and literature are in all probability photographs of the Transylvanian naked-neck chickens. According to the best information obtainable this old-looking breed originated in West India and the characteristic naked-neck has been true for many years. It is a distinct character of the breed. The department believes that the so-called "Turken" is nothing else than the Transylvanian naked-neck chicken, which apparently possesses no qualities superior to the more important standard breeds and varieties and has not been shown to be particularly well adapted to conditions in many parts of our country.

As far as the reported cross giving rise to the "Kiwi" is concerned, there is much less evidence in support of such a cross than in the case of the "Turken." This is too violent a cross to produce any results whatever.

The burden of proof that such crosses as those giving rise to the "Turken" and the "Kiwi" must remain with the sponsors of such novel productions. In the meantime, the interests of the public should be safeguarded.

Much Depends Upon Care

When Pullets Will Lay

At what age should pullets begin laying? It is commonly acknowledged that Leghorn pullets on the average will begin laying at the age of 5 to 5½ months. Wyandottes and Rhode Island Reds usually start at 6 to 6½ months and Plymouth Rocks around 7 months.

Of course there are exceptions where better records are made. Much depends upon the care and attention given during the months of growth and development. If properly fed and housed, they should be in a laying condition at the age mentioned above.

Timely Poultry Hints

Fall-hatched chickens are in good demand from January 1 to April 1.

Count on a shrinkage of a half-pound for each bird shipped.

Ship adult fowls in a box 20 by 18 by 12 inches, to hold 24 birds.

All animal heat must be out of the carcass before packing for shipment.

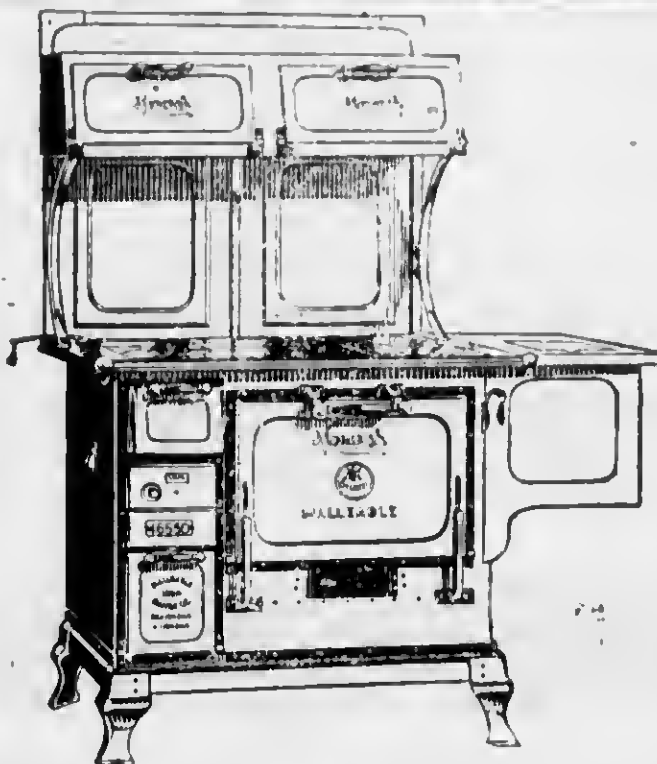

Young fowls in the same package with old stock, will command the prevailing prices for the latter.

The regulation box, for a dozen broilers measures 17 by 16 by 4 inches, inside measurement. It is made of half-inch lumber.

For shipping one dozen roasting fowls, the box should measure 20 by 19 by 6 inches, of half-inch stuff.—Farm Journal.

Cockerels that develop head points and begin to crow early in life are apt to be the best breeders. Breed the best ones before selling too many broilers.

ROBERT BURNS TELLS OF WHAT HE SAW IN JAPAN.

Describes Interestingly Earthquake Damage, People, Customs, Dress, Etc.

Robert Burns, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Burns of Route three, Charlevoix, is now on a tour of the Orient and we are this week in receipt of a very interesting account of his experiences in Japan, the Land of the Rising Sun, where he spent three weeks. From Japan, Mr. Burns intended going on to China and other parts in the east and may possibly by this time, be as far as India or Ceylon on his travels over a most interesting portion of the globe.

We quote from his letter: "As a tourist approaches Japan, he is impressed by the numerous islands and the mountains. Then, there is one mountain that stands out all alone above the others that is the Japanese holy mountain, called Fujiyama, where thousands of Japanese pilgrims climb every summer to worship their god.

Yokohama is a city, famous the world over for the recent earthquake disaster and it has rightly earned its fame, as there is not a building standing. Absolutely nothing is left except piles and piles of old brick, stone and pieces of broken concrete. The streets and sidewalks are covered over and things are in very bad shape. For all the disaster, the people are not suffering, as there are American troops, supplies and an American Red Cross hospital. But the best thing was the way the people spoke of the disaster, and how they praised the Americans for helping them.

As a whole, Yokohama is a total ruin, but the Japanese are very industrious and will repair the damage as quickly as possible. But that will take 25 years, as it has been 18 years since the earthquake in San Francisco and there are places that were not built up yet when I was there in September, 1923. Yokohama was destroyed more than San Francisco, so it will take at least 25 years to reconstruct the city and get it back where it was before the earthquake.

All Japan was not destroyed by the fire and earthquake—Osaka, Kobe, Moji and Nagasaki were not hit by the quake and Tokyo is about half left, but Yokohama and the surrounding country for 40 miles in all directions was damaged more or less.

Eben Kawakura, which is a city about one hour's ride on the train from Yokohama, was hit by the earthquake and how much farther from Yokohama I don't know, as I was no further inland from Yokohama.

Kamakura is famous as a summer resort for the people of Tokyo and Yokohama and also for the large, bronze Buddha, which is situated back of the city in a beautiful little valley running back into the mountains. The Buddha, itself, is a large, bronze statue, 50 feet high and 25 feet wide. It represents a Japanese goddess in a sitting position with her feet in under her and her arms folded in her lap with her head slightly bowed forward. Her eyes are eight feet long and three feet wide and are supposed to be made of solid gold. There is a spot in the center of her forehead, the size and shape of a coconut that is made of silver.

There is no particular day for worship but there is a continual string of people coming all the time and they will stop in front of the statue, bow and say a little prayer to themselves, throw a few pennies into an iron box and go away.

The nation of Japan has no Sunday or no special day for worship. They go to the shrine or temple and worship any time they feel religious—whether that is in the middle of the night or at noon, it makes no difference.

I had the privilege of watching some people go to church in a shrine in Osaka. The woman walked into the temple, bought two cents worth of incense, a candle and some matches. She then went to the front of the temple before a large bronze statue of a man making a funny face, bowed, rang a bell twice, lit the candle and incense and started walking around and around the statue, saying her prayers. She was in trouble with her husband, I found out from my guide afterwards, and was praying for the large statue in the temple to help her.

OBSERVE BIRTH- DAY OF DICKENS

ANNUAL EVENT HELD AT MRS.
W. H. MILLER'S HOME

Interesting Book Review and Typical English Meal Were Enjoyable Features

In accordance with usual custom of the Dickens Club, to commemorate in some way the birth of the great English novelist, Charles Dickens, the club was most enjoyably entertained Monday by the President, Mrs. W. H. Miller, at her home on Belvedere avenue. The members had previously been invited by the hostess to assemble promptly at 1:30 p. m., to bring with them, "a generous slice of appetite," and to be prepared for a general examination on "The Old Curiosity Shop," the study of which had just been completed.

A most clever book-review had been planned by the hostess, and was carried out by her in the serving of her luncheon. After the usual exchange of greetings the guests were invited to the famous English Oyster-shop to feast with Christopher Nubbles and his party. And in the words of Dickens himself, "They fell to work upon the supper in earnest; and ate and laughed and enjoyed themselves so thoroughly that it did not seem to them, as it had to the hostess, that they were eating oysters."

Then the scene changed and all partook of the meal as served by the good school-master to Little Nell and her grandfather, who after days of weary travel were quite exhausted. Such potatoes served in the half-shell; and such meat-pasties; and jellies; and jellies and preserves, and pickles.

No typical English meal could be complete without a dish of stuffed baked apples lavishly topped with the thickest of whipped cream, and served with lace-knot cakes and crullers, such as were served by Mrs. Quilp in "her bower on Tower Hill," where Mrs. Quilp was left to pine the absence of her lord. "Because," Dickens said, "in her bower she was, but not alone, for besides the old lady, her mother, there were present some half dozen ladies of the neighborhood who had happened by a strange accident (and also by a little understanding among themselves) to drop in one after another, just about tea-time."

The fourth course was with Dick Swiveller and the Marchioness, and from all reports was heartily enjoyed as was the one partaken of by these two people in the home of Sampson and Sally Brass, although under quite different circumstances.

Then followed the program of the afternoon first of which was a discussion: Question: "Resolved, that Mrs. Quilp could have risen above her condition in life." The affirmative was taken by Mrs. Catherine Rose, and the negative by Mrs. Abby Lewis. It was quite generally agreed, even by Mrs. Rose herself, that because of existing laws and conditions at that time, Mrs. Quilp was quite justified, as she could hardly have done otherwise. Quotations and Chimeras from "The Old Curiosity Shop" completed the program, and all left, feeling it had been a most profitable and pleasant afternoon.

SUPREME COURT UPHOLDS BOARD

AGRICULTURAL BODY CONFIRMED IN ITS CONTROL

Decision Orders Release of $150,000 Appropriated By the Legislature

Solid endorsement of the State Board of Agriculture as the constitutional body solely charged with directing the affairs of the Michigan Agricultural College and defeat for Gov. Groesbeck and the State Administrative Board were included in a decision handed down February 2, by the State Supreme Court, thus closing the controversy which has raged since July 1923 between the State Administrative Board and the State Board of Agriculture.

By the decision the Administrative Board is compelled to release $150,000 in agricultural extension funds, which it has been withholding in an effort to force the College Board to meet its demands, which, in effect, were virtual surrender of the Agricultural College and its state-wide educational system to the Administrative Board headed by the Governor. This the College Board held to be contrary to the provisions of the State Constitution and the farmers threw the matter into the courts, with resulting vindication.

This case had attracted wide attention and its decision had been awaited with more than usual interest. Farmers and farmers' organizations stood solidly behind the State Board of Agriculture and were hostile to the attempts being made to place the agricultural extension work under the control of the political administration at Lansing. They also opposed the efforts being made to prevent farmers from having a voice in controlling their own local county agricultural agent work and to forbid them to raise any such funds locally for such purposes.

If the decision had been granted in favor of the State Administrative Board, it would have meant that a board created by the Legislature was superior to one established by the constitution and that the centralization of all power under the control of the executive branch of the state government had been made complete in Michigan.

The decision coming out as it did with a complete victory for the State Board of Agriculture is perhaps the most severe jolt which the Governor and his administration has received in the more than three years in office. The Supreme Court has never ruled against the Administrative Board in any case in which the Governor was also a defendant.

The majority opinion was written by Justice MacDonald and was concurred in by Justices Sharpe, Steere, Clark and Moore. This opinion held that the Administrative Board had no constitutional authority to control the funds or affairs of the Michigan Agricultural College. A minority opinion was presented by Chief Justice Wiest and concurred in by Justices Fellows and Bird; it supported the Administrative Board's action on the grounds "that it is part of the present day legislative policy in carrying out a modern system of state finance."

Justice MacDonald in the majority opinion commenting upon the minority opinion written by Chief Justice Wiest, declares:

"I am in entire disagreement with the conclusion reached by Chief Justice Wiest in reference to the powers and duties of the state board of agriculture. If his opinion is to prevail we will have completely overturned the well settled policy of the state relative to the management and control of the university and the agricultural college. These institutions of learning are very close to the hearts of the people of Michigan. They have made of them the most unique organization known to the law in this, that they are constitutional corporations created for the purpose of independently discharging state functions. The people themselves are the incorporators; the board that control them are responsible only to the people who elect them; they are independent of every other department of the state government.

"The State Board of Agriculture stands on the same constitutional footing as the board of regents of the university. The progress which our university has made is due in large measure to the fact that the framers of the constitution of 1850 wisely provided against legislative interference by placing its exclusive management in the hands of a constitutional board elected by the people.

HERBERT A FAM- OUS BANDMASTER

MACDOWELL LEADS AMERICAN COMPOSERS

Both Have Contributed Much to Truly American Musical Expression

Selections numbers five and six on the Music Memory Contest list are "Badinage," by Victor Herbert and "From an Indian Lodge," taken from MacDowell's "Woodland Sketches."

Victor Herbert was born in Dublin, Ireland, in 1859 and is now an American citizen. He came here in 1886 to be solo violinist with the Metropolitan Opera in New York.

He organized the Victor Herbert orchestra of New York and has been conductor of many others and also of the 22nd Regiment Band of New York. He has composed more than 40 light operas.

"Badinage" is a typical composition of his for light opera and is what the name implies—a light and playful melody with an attractive rhythm. It is very popular.

MacDowell
Edward A. MacDowell was born in New York. Among American composers he occupies easily the first place, because of his striking originality.

He accepted the chair of music at Columbia University in New York, having appeared first as pianist in Boston. His health failing, he retired to his log cabin in the woods near Peterboro, N. H. Since his death, this place has become a musical resort and his widow gives recitals of his music, not only here but in many cities.

Here, he composed his "Woodland Sketches," from which taken "From an Indian Lodge." This is an impressive American Indian funeral march. It is said to have been founded upon a Kiowa Indian theme—a woman's song of mourning for her lost sons. The melody is foremost, but has subtle harmonies in the background which give atmosphere to the piece.

LAKE'S CHANGES ARE IN DISPUTE

ENGINEERS NOT AGREED ON AMOUNT OF LOSS

Figures Seem To Show Government
Estimate of Canal's Robbery Far Below Truth

The diminishing water level of Lake Michigan, its causes and effects, are furnishing much food for argument and concern in scientific circles as well as among the citizens of lake ports who are viewing the steady decrease of their harbor depths with mingled feelings of dismay and wonderment.

To the end that our readers may better understand the situation and be therefore better prepared to support the probably necessary legislative relief for these conditions when the time comes, we are reproducing herewith some of the arguments and figures that are being advanced to explain the phenomenon of lowering water level and to point out its remedy.

A clipping cut from the columns of a recent issue of the Petoskey Evening News presents a new angle of the problem:

"Extraordinary low lake levels have started discussion again of the Chicago drainage canal and its effect on navigation.

According to U. S. lake survey records, Lake Michigan and Huron were 2.6 foot lower during December than November, 3.8 foot lower during the month than during December 1922, 1.27 foot lower than the average December stage during the last 10 years and 3.78 feet lower than the high state of December 1895.

In the opinion of Capt. G. C. Robinson of the Manistee coast guard station, the drainage canal has very little to do with the low levels. Several years would be required for the canal to lower the level a few inches, he said, unless flowage were greatly increased.

He believes the low levels are the result of light rainfall during the last two years. Water feeds into the lakes from a widespread watershed, all of which has received comparatively light rainfall.

This clipping was submitted to a local engineer, who has made a special study of lake conditions and water level changes during his lifelong residence in this region, with a request for his opinion in the matter. He believes that the theory advanced by Capt. Robinson of the Manistee coast guard station lacks logic that can be backed up by actual figures.

According to our correspondent, if we should assume that Lake Michigan with its present area of 22,450 square miles had a uniform depth over its entire area of only one foot, its waters would feed the Chicago Drainage Canal (which is the alleged colored gentleman in the woodpile) for a period of 11.3 years. The canal takes off about 1 inch per year, or a little more. The lake maintained a certain previous level, but since the canal has been running (about 25 years) this average level has gone down about two feet.

The St. Clair-Detroit river has maintained the same rate as before the canal was opened. This is due to dredging and compensates to a certain degree the lower level of the lakes. Loss by evaporation has been the same as previously. Somehow, the lake is lower by two feet than 25 years ago.

The canal is taking more than 11,000 gallons or 1,470 cu. feet per second out of the lake—88,200 cu. feet per minute, 5,292,000 cu. feet per hour or 127,008,000 cu. feet per day, but these figures represent the government engineers' allowance.

In a previous article appearing in this paper (issue of Nov. 28, 1922, to be exact) it will be remembered that the city of Lockport, Ill., situated on the drainage canal, about 33 miles southwest of Chicago, was charged with maintaining a dam across the canal and using the power developed from a forty foot fall—about 10,000 H. P., to supply the city with cheap power for manufacturing purposes at the expense of its Michiganders. Assuming that net power produced at different heads

ANOTHER FARM HOME GOES UP IN FLAMES

Albert Black and Family Have Barely Time to Escape

The farm home of Albert Black on Route One, Charlevoix, caught fire Thursday night at ten o'clock, after Mr. Black and four other members of the family had retired for the night. It is thought a defective chimney was the cause.

One of the boys awoke to discover that the partition next to his bed was afire and had just time to arouse the others and escape in his nightclothes. The others barely got out in time, not even stopping for their clothes. The house and contents were totally destroyed, being fortunately, however, fully covered by insurance.

The family have moved into temporary quarters in the old Frank Smith place across the road from their former home, pending the erection of a new dwelling.

In no case shall a teacher whose pupils are writing the examination serve as conductor at the place where such pupils are writing.

WHO MAY TAKE THE EXAMINATION—
The high school tuition law provides that pupils eligible to have their tuition paid shall be the holders of county eighth grade diplomas, signed by the county board of examiners in the several counties, under rules and regulations prescribed by the Superintendent of Public Instruction, or shall have completed eight grades of work in a graded school district as evidenced by a written statement of the superintendent of schools in such graded district.

The seventh and eighth grade pupils of all schools other than those employing a superintendent of schools should write this examination.

Pupils enrolling for seventh grade examination must file with the commissioner a statement from the teacher that all seventh grade subjects required by the state course of study have been completed satisfactorily. Statement must include year's record in each subject.

Pupils enrolling for eighth grade examination must file a statement from the teacher that all eighth grade subjects required by the state course of study have been completed.

SUBJECTS FOR EXAMINATION—
The seventh grade examination will include the following branches: orthography, spelling, penmanship, reading, physiology, and geography. The eighth grade examination will include the following: arithmetic, grammar, history, civics and agriculture.

The examination in reading this year will be based on Longfellow's "Evangeline".

Pupils of the eighth grade are required to write from memory the first stanza of The Star Spangled Banner and the words of America.

SEVENTH GRADE PROMOTION CERTIFICATE—
Pupils who file statement from teacher that all seventh grade subjects required by the state course of study have been completed satisfactorily and who pass the county examination will be given certificates of promotion signed by the county board of examiner and the teacher. Such certificate will be necessary for promotion to the eighth grade.

Such pupils will be required to take the seventh grade subjects in which they failed with the eighth grade next year.

EIGHTH GRADE DIPLOMA—
Upon obtaining a satisfactory grade in all subjects pupils will be granted a diploma signed by the county board of school examiners and the Superintendent of Public Instruction.

3. The papers shall be looked over and marked by the county board of school examiners.

4. An average standing of seventy-five per cent and not less than sixty per cent in any branch should be required.

5. Spelling, composition, and the correct use of English shall be considered in the marking of papers. Pupils who cannot express themselves in good English are not prepared for high school work.

6. In no case should teachers be permitted to mark the papers of their own pupils.

7. In no case should a person be appointed to conduct the examination whose own pupils write on the examination.

8. Examiners may carefully explain points not understood by the applicants in regard to form of work and general meaning of questions, but care should be taken not to answer too many questions or to give aid in any way.

9. Pupils taking examination must sit alone.

10. Paper will be furnished.

11. Questions will be distributed to all candidates at the same time and no recess will be allowed until that set is finished.

12. It would be found helpful and more just to the pupils if teachers are requested to send names of pupils to the commissioner classifying them in three groups: those whose work indicates that they are qualified to receive a certificate;

those who are doubtful; those whose work would not warrant the receiving of a certificate. This would help in deciding doubtful cases.

13. It is not desirable that teachers attend examinations with their pupils, but in case they do attend they must not communicate with those who are writing, nor sit with them during the examination.

14. It is advisable that those who conduct the examination talk with the pupils, become acquainted, and encourage them to attend high school.

GOOD HORSE BARN IS THIS DESIGN

Provides Ample Single, Double and Box Stall Accommodations for Average Farm.

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building work on the farm, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 1827 Prairie avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only inclose two-cent stamp for reply.

Regardless of the motorizing of the farm the horse still maintains his useful position as a farming helper, and the horse barn can lessen or increase that usefulness, depending upon how it has been designed and constructed.

There are certain fundamentals required for any kind of barn and which cannot be slighted without affecting the comfort of the animals which will be sheltered therein. Location should be considered no less from the animals' standpoint than from that of the convenience of the farmer or his pensive for ordinary use. The space provided for the harness room is ample, besides being very necessary. We know how handy it is to have a bracket right near the stall or behind it, to throw the saddle or harness on when we come into the barn, but in the slang phrase "then days is gone forever" for the "Vaseline" former. Manure firms do altogether too much damage to harness, rotting it prematurely. A harness room is a good investment in every way, protecting the leather from the above, and offering a place where one can sit and oil and clean the harness on rainy days.

Observe that good space is provided for hay and feed storage, and the proper attention given to ventilating, and in such a way that the appearance of the roof line is much improved.

In constructing the stalls they have been designed to have the horses face the walls, with the driveway amply wide enough to prevent kicking. The driveway, crosses at right angles in the center of the barn, allowing for easy getting in and out.

Good construction for the stalls would be wood or concrete to a height of about 4 feet, and above this bars of wood or iron or heavy pig wire fencing. The mangers are best built about 3 feet 6 inches from the floor.

Absolutely.

The only sure thing in life are those that have already happened.—Boston Evening Transcript.

HOPPERS TAKE TO LINGERIE

Insects in Western Part of Texas Are Eating Silk Hose and Undies on Clotheslines.

Now it is nature that is conspiring against the flapper! News comes from Breckenridge, in west Texas, that the grasshoppers are passing up the crops in the field and banqueting off silk hose and lingerie on clotheslines.

This indeed must be disrupting to the peace of mind—or, as some may say, to the peace of the flapper. It is a sign of modern times, and a not so healthful sign, that enters generally are turning from the good old solid foods to the trifles, so the grasshopper may be excused for finding more delight in crops of eline than cotton leaves. A pair of teddies or a polka-dot stocking even on a clothesline is a delectable confection that can be expected to appeal to any creature, whether he hops or walks with his two hind legs.

But in this is also demonstrated that the flapper, being a pioneer, must bear the brunt of adverse forces that otherwise would fall upon her less-forward sisters. The west Texas grasshoppers, it is said, when silk is lacking on the clothesline, attack rotten clothing. So the old-fashioned woman can thank her stars for the flappers. As long as there are plenty of them and they continue to wear stockings and underwear the grasshoppers won't bother her.—Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

RADIO WAVE HALTS AUTOS

New German Invention May Revolutionize Warfare—Magneto Put Out of Commission.

Revolutionizing warfare has come to be an occurrence of periodic happening. The invention of steel ships revolutionized it, so did airplanes and poison gas. Now comes a report from Germany that it is to be revolutionized again, and this time by the introduction of a radio wave that will completely disable the electrical units of motor-driven vehicles of the enemy.

A number of automobiles fitted with high-tension magnets were taken toward the Nauen radio plant in Germany recently. When the cars had gone a certain distance, the conductor of the party announced that something would happen to the cars but would not affect the passengers. The cars soon stopped and it was found that the magneto had "gone dead" in each of them. It is said that special waves were sent out from the radio station in Nauen and that these waves killed the magnetos. It was announced that other experiments would be conducted upon airplanes, electric trains and even submarines.

What is really needed is scientific research that will result in a discovery of some way to change human nature so that wars will not be needed to clarify the atmosphere.—Los Angeles Times.

Odd German Town.

In a pretty rural section not far from Berlin there is curious little town. The population is comprised of 70 adults and a number of children.

and the entire populace is made up of Lilliputians. The houses, shops and theaters are on such a diminutive scale that a person of average size would have difficulty in entering. They have a tiny fire department with hose, wagon, hook and ladder and a steam engine drawn by Shetland ponies. The policemen are scarcely larger than big dolls and the post office is conducted by a postmistress that is sixty years old, but no larger than an eight-year-old child. Some of them earn a livelihood by circus and stage exhibitions, but most of them are stay-at-homes and excel in the manufacture of toys.

A LONG TIME INVESTMENT

Every Dodge Brothers Sedan body is steel built throughout—sills, pillars, panels, frames and all.

This all-steel design—exclusively a Dodge Brothers feature—possesses certain practical advantages which recommend it most emphatically to the closed car buyer.

It reduces cost, assures a structural precision which is particularly evident in the snug fit of doors and windows, and results in a staunchness of construction which guarantees to the owner a long time investment—and a long time satisfaction.

Did You Ever Stop to Think--

THAT every time a man allows prejudice to influence him, he is cheating himself. His mental vision is clouded. He doesn't see straight. He should SEE HIS OPPORTUNITY! BOOST HIS CITY!

THAT it requires great mental and physical effort of every citizen to make your city climb the ladder of fame.

THAT the time will come when all knockers will be forced to leave your city and their places will be filled by men who will be CITY BOOSTERS and CITY BUILDERS.

THAT conventions bring more than money to your city, because your city will be immeasurably benefited by the goodwill you generate as genial hosts.

THAT your city is now upon the threshold of its greatest opportunities for trade cultivation.

THAT Farming is a business and it is always possible to make a business grow.

THAT you should determine to make your business grow and return you profits on your investment and labor.

THAT your agricultural section needs and welcomes more home owners. The family seeking a small homestead for poultry, dairying and a small acreage for general farming can find desirable openings near your city.

THAT every community has its civic slackers, men who turn an indifferent eye to the needs of their city.

Our slender life runs rippling by,

 Into the silent hollows of the past;
 What is there that abides
 To make the next age better than

High School

A number of very original and interesting themes were prepared by Latin II class last week on the general topic of the similarities and differences between ancient and modern warfare. Several of these themes were in the form of Cains Julius Caesar as the leading character. They will be used later for Latin Club programs and for County Fair exhibit-work.

As a result of project-work done by the Eighth Grade Latin students a number of small pictures of Roman life and customs are to be seen on the walls of Latin room. Similar pictures, mounted by the same class, will be used from time to time to illustrate articles prepared for the "Laeti Latini" Club.

Mr. Blakeslie's class of boys from the Methodist church enjoyed a feed Monday evening. There are about twenty-five boys in the class.

Mrs. Rose is having "special sessions" for those who need help in French.

Seventh Grade

In the seventh grade those neither tardy nor absent during the first semester are: Charles Bleha, Clara Hamilton, Charles Krulik, Valera Ripley, Edna Brown, Maude Hardy, Helen Richardson, Ma Webster.

The music memory contest is on, and we all hope it will be successful.

Third Grade

The third grade has a very prettily decorated room with many plants and flowers in bloom. It is a good incentive for hard work.

The vaccination order has only kept three students out of the roll call.

The Charlevoix High School debating team will meet the Cheboygan team Friday evening at 7:30 in the High School Assembly. Our team is composed of Margery Brown, Vera Redding and Albert Wildfield. The Cheboygan trio are Verna Herrington, Susan Shepherd and Einar Keldsen. The Cheboygan team have had two victories and a forfeit. It promises to be an interesting contest. The judges secured for the occasion are Attorney Halstead, Supt. Splitter, and Rev. Alburg, all of Petoskey.

CAPTAIN "PATSY" FLANNIGAN DEAD

Well-Known Old Sailor Succumbs To Heart Trouble

Captain Patrick Flannigan (better known as "Patsy" to his friends) died Thursday morning, February 7th, at the Charlevoix hospital at 4:00 o'clock. Captain Flannigan, who has been ailing for about a year past, was taken to the hospital a week ago Wednesday suffering from a severe heart attack which was the immediate cause of his death.

The deceased was born in county Clare, Ireland, in 1841 and came to this country when about 17 years of age, locating in Chicago, where he went to school for a couple years. He then went to Washington Island, Wis., where he engaged in the fishing business for the greater part of his youth. He afterwards took to sailing, a calling which he followed ever since.

He has lived in Charlevoix since 1883, acting as master of various tugs and sailing vessels plying out of this port. Captain Flannigan never married. His relatives here are a half-brother, Capt. George Weaver and niece and nephew, Mrs. Ray Faulkner and Eddie O'Neill. He leaves a sister in Detroit, Mrs. Louis Moore, formerly of this city and a sister in Chicago. The late Mrs. John O'Neill was another sister of the deceased. A niece, Miss May Dowling of Chicago is in Charlevoix today looking after the arrangements for the funeral, definite plans for which have not yet been made. The funeral will probably be held at the Catholic church here with interment in the local Catholic cemetery.

GENTS GOT AWAY WITH TWO MEALS

Husbands of S. S. Circle Absorb Double Rations

An informal supper was given last Wednesday evening by the South Side Circle to the husbands of members at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Armstrong.

The affair was extremely enjoyable. Delicious salads, rolls, veal loaf, baked beans, coffee and pies, were served to the husbands at the first table. After the ladies had finished, the gentlemen again took their places and, at a second supper, at the conclusion of which the ladies gave them arising vote of thanks for what was found in the dish, $11.45.

The balance of the evening was spent in personal anecdotes, Dr. Armstrong relating several amusing boyhood experiences.

LOCAL QUINTET WINS AND LOSES

BEATEN BY TRAVERSE, THEY DEFEAT ELK RAPIDS.

Red and White Will Have a Chance to Square Accounts With Tra- versians Friday.

The local basket quintet broke even on last week's contests, losing to the Traverse City tossers and winning from Elk Rapids. The down state game was the first defeat this year, and though the boys redeemed themselves in the Friday night contest, they say they don't like these 50-50 deals.

The red and white squad, however, will have a chance to square things up with the Cub Spruit men in a return game here Friday. The team and a great many enthusiastic fans believe that they can grab the honors from the grave of their ignominious defeat at the hands of Traverse, Friday night we will know.

The game opened with the local basketweavers displaying their old speed and form. We can justly say that they completely outplayed and baffled their opponents during the first half of the game. At the close of the quarter the score stood 4 to 0; the half 10 to 11, the locals leading in both instances.

The "blow up" came in the third quarter, when the red and whites failed to meet the regenerated onslaught of their down-state opponents. In one, two, three order the Traverse boys were dropping the long one in. Surprised by the sudden dash and good luck of the Spruit men, the locals lost form and "went to pieces" although they fought gamely until the whistle blew.

There was no decided failing on the local defense, as very few close in shots were made during the fray. The Traverse quint seemed to be wearing the horse-shoe and continued to ring in the long ones until the large score piled up.

The fans are expecting to see a fast scrap when the two determined teams clash in the deciding contest here Friday. The score stood: Traverse City 23, Charlevoix 18 at the close of the fray.

The Elk Rapids battle two nights later was suitably contested, the big huskies from the Rapids putting up a game fight and holding the locals to a 9 and 11 score at the end of the half. It will be remembered that this team proved to be Charlevoix's Jonah at the tournament last year, defeating our squad by a 3-point margin. Things were squared up in a favorable way at last Friday's fray the final outcome being Charlevoix 24, Elk Rapids 10.

Todd playing guard was the outstanding man on the local side, making 12 points in spite of a sprained ankle. The game was well attended, but a much larger crowd is expected next Friday at the big game of the season.

Well, the groundhog saw his shadow Saturday but, on the other hand, report comes from the U. S. Coast-guard Station at Walker's Point, near Cheboygan, that the ice in the straits of Mackinac, which to all appearances has withstood the warm weather of the past few days, has commenced to break up and a goodly portion has entirely disappeared.

Radio fans told us Tuesday that station KYW, Westinghouse, Chicago, was half hourly broadcasting the news of the day, taking the place of the mails all canceled and telegraph and telephone wires completely out of commission due to heavy sleet storms throughout the east and middle west, followed by a thick blanket of snow. All parts of the country seem to be involved in the general tie-up.

The body of Max Lawson, eight teen, son of Mrs. Paul Marquardt of Petoskey, one of the boys who was drowned off Garden Island a week ago last Sunday, has been recovered by the coast guard crew from the St. James station. It was found at the bottom of the lake, about fifty feet from where the dead boy's clothing was discovered lying on the ice at about four thirty o'clock last Thursday afternoon.

Alfred Brown of Petoskey, former Charlevoix resident, blew into town last Sunday with a new type of snowmobile, with the rear wheels set aside by side instead of in tandem with a belt. We hear he made the trip in one hour and a half. The machine is one of his own invention. The day before, Raymond-Pearl was seen humping up the snow on the main drag with a motor cycle equipped with a runner in front and a pair of tail runners affix the rear wheel. Oh, they're getting in line.

Two games—one between the juniors of the C. H. The games this coming Friday night will be between sophomores and juniors, the eighth and freshmen. Both will be hard fought battles, so don't miss them.

Lady neighbor: "Good morning, Mr. Hamilton, didn't see you at church yesterday." Colonel: "That's so, but you see I'm down on my knees this morning, making up for it." Lady neighbor: "Very true, Mr. Hamilton, but you're heading the wrong way, aren't you?"

FIRE INSURANCE COMPANY FALLS

Capitol Mutual of Lansing is Facing Receivership

Local holders of policies in the Capitol Mutual Fire Insurance Co., of Lansing, will be interested to know that Leonard T. Hands, state insurance commissioner has filed in the Ingham County Court application for appointment as receiver of this company, to take over the business and assets and wind up its affairs.

The books of the company show assets, according to the financial audit recently made by the insurance Dept., of only $361.47, while its deficit on the liability side is $36,284.84. Of the total deficit, $33,340.00 represents unpaid insurance claims which the company is unable to meet, these claims dating back as far as June, 1921, according to the statements appearing in the receivership application.

This company has engaged in a state-wide insurance business along the mutual fire line since its incorporation in 1914. Its failure to meet claims is, it is alleged, due to the fact that the company management has been unable to collect any extra assessment, the sole source from which mutual companies derive their funds for that purpose. Application for receivership has been made in the interests of public protection, to settle all unpaid claims at the best possible figure and then close out the business entirely.

As I said before, there is no Sunday in Japan—all stores run seven days in the week and generally close between ten and eleven in the evening. These are Japanese stores. The American or European stores generally observe Sunday and generally close about six o'clock in the evening.

The largest department store in the Orient is in Osaka, Japan. It was built four years ago and has never been closed in the daytime since it was opened. This store closes every night at five, but runs Sundays and holidays. It is very modern, with an elevator, a moving stairway and everything just like an American store. And if I remember right, there are no stores in Northern Michigan, north of Grand Rapids, that will compare with this one in Osaka, and yet Japan is supposed to be 50 years behind America.

Moji, Kobe and Nagasaki are very modern cities, with traffic police, street cars and taxis—just like America, only the people are all small of stature and have a yellow colored skin. There is a wide variety of dress from the strictly Oriental to the modern American, carrying a cane and wearing glasses, and all kinds of combinations of the Oriental and Occidental dress, but the people generally wear Occidental shoes if they can afford them and discard their old wooden shoes.

The women of Japan are not free like American women. They look up to the men as almost their masters. They always go out of a door after a man and are secondary in every respect. I was sitting in a restaurant and took out some American cigarettes and offered a Japanese girl one. She took it and I went to light her cigarette for her and she was so surprised that she wouldn't let me light her cigarette for her but insisted on lighting mine for me and her's afterwards. In the street cars the women follow the men. They never push ahead and it is nothing uncommon to see a lot of men sitting down and some women standing. If an American offers to let a woman have his seat, he is looked down upon by the Japanese men.

The scenery of Japan is very beautiful; mountains, valleys, islands and tea gardens. The parks are very beautiful and every city has one or more parks. Everything is green and beautiful at Christmas time. The sun shines warm and it is far different from the Christmas at Charlevoix. In the fall the trees were just shedding their leaves, the valleys were green and the mountains brown, and there were lots of flowers—roses, flowers every where.

These are the things that a person will always remember of Japan—the beautiful mountains, islands and the extreme politeness and gentleness of the Japanese people as a whole.

more Ford cars and trucks were produced last year than the previous year, an increase of over 50 per cent.

In spite of this tremendous increase in production, it was impossible to meet delivery requirements during the spring and summer months when orders for 350,000 Ford Cars and Trucks could not be filled.

This year winter buying for immediate delivery has been more active than ever before—and in addition 200,000 orders have already been booked through the Ford Weekly Purchase Plan for spring delivery.

These facts clearly indicate that the demand during this spring and summer will be far greater than ever, and that orders should be placed immediately with Ford Dealers as a means of protection against delay in securing your Ford Car or Truck or Fordson Tractor.

Several new cases of measles this week, but most of those who first were afflicted are able to be out.

Allan Aardema of Chicago, arrived on Friday, for a few days' visit with his mother, Mrs. Wm. Drenth. He is recovering from an operation recently performed at a Chicago hospital.

John Parsons, Sr., is at Petoskey hospital, where he underwent an operation for the removal of a cataract from his right eye, which was done on Monday. At last reports the old man was doing nicely.

Mrs. June Campbell is slowly recovering from her recent illness and is still being cared for at the Albert Parsons home. Her sister, Mrs. Grey of Saginaw, arrived on Monday to visit her for a few days.

Charles Edson, chairman of the coming Community meeting, has announced that the date of the next meeting has been postponed until further notice. This action has been taken on account of the amount of measles in Ellsworth and vicinity.

August VanDerArk, in charge of the meat department at the Klosser and VanDerArk store, reports the heaviest sale on fresh meats during the past week of any time since his connection with the store. He attributes this to the fact that each member of the All Star basketball team consumes from five to eight pounds of raw beef daily in their effort to get in condition for the game on Thursday night of this week.

Ernest M. Erickson and Miss Naomi Carpentier were united in marriage at the M. E. residence on Saturday and left home shortly after the ceremony on a short wedding trip to the southern part of the state. The groom, whose home is at Saginaw, Mich., is superintendent of the Ellsworth schools from which the bride, the daughter of Mrs. D. E. Carpentier, living west of town, is a graduate. She is teaching the Phelps school at present and both will no doubt continue to teach until the close of the school year. The happy couple have the best wishes of the entire community.

ELLSWORTHITES SEE THREE FINE GAMES

Stars and Independents Clash in Second of Series

Ellsworth basketball fans were treated to three games during the past week in only of which, however, an outside team was played. This was the Lutheran boys of Petoskey, who won on Friday evening, from the local high school team by a 11-8 score. The girls game with East Jordan high was cancelled on account of a number of the local players suffering from the effects of vaccination, and a game between chosen teams from pupils and independents was put on for a prelin to the Ellsworth Petoskey game.

The real game of the week was, as predicted last week, the battle between the Stars and the Independents and which was won by the latter 13-12, a late rally by the Stars falling just one point short of victory.

Both teams went into the game determined to win and were deadlocked 7-7 at the half. Here, during the time necessary for Janitor Harm Torga and a corps of assistants to mop up the blood from the gym floor, Manager Donaldson of the Independents showed his cleverness by packing Edd Torga in to a basket ball suit, and before the stars could figure out "Torga's" whirling dervish style of play, the Independents forwards had swarmed over the points necessary to win.

The victory for the class of Donaldson leaves the games at one each and the third and deciding game will be played on Thursday night of this week. The winners of the series are, we understand, to be given a supper to which the time keeper is invited and for which the losers pay.

Tickets for the game will be placed on sale at noon on the day of the game and reservations may be had by applying to H. L. Elzinga at the Citizen's Bank.

ROUND WORLD IN AN AUTOMOBILE

The American Captain Wanders, his secretary and two chauffeurs, are asking a trip around the world in two autos. The trip began on Sept. 22, 1919, from Atlanta, Ga. Captain Wanders, who has been through 23 lands, is now in Berlin. He is said to have made a huge bet in America that he would go all round the world without making a penny of money with him or having any sent from home. He also does not accept any money from any auto manufacturers. He, with his companions, is to work his way round the globe.

SOME CAUSES FOR STARTER TROUBLE

In Case of Failure Battery Is First Thing to Suspect—Test Acid Solution.

(By HERVIN GREEN, President, College of Automotive Engineering, Chicago.)

To every motorist sooner or later there comes the unpleasant experience of stepping on the starter button and instead of the merry whirr of turning gears, being greeted by stony silence. It is scarcely remarkable that this occurs, indeed the wonder is that the starter holds up as well as it does under the abuse that it receives at the hands of the average car owner.

The starter system embodies the following units: A storage battery, the cables that connect the battery with the rest of the system, a switch for bringing the starter into action and as a general thing, the frame of the car, which is used to return the current to the battery after it has turned over the engine.

Suspect Battery First.

In cases of starter failure the first thing to suspect is the battery, which supplies the current that operates the starter. Once a week during the active running season the battery must be filled to level with distilled water. The acid solution should be tested at these times with a hydrometer, showing the specific gravity of the solution. If this has fallen below 1.200 the battery is away below charge and must be recharged without delay. If the battery is permitted to become dry or to fall so low in charge that it cannot turn over the starter the cause of the failure is at once revealed.

The next things to suspect are the cables that connect the battery with the starter by way of the switch. While the trouble here is not so frequent, nevertheless insulation may wear through, setting up shorts that drain the battery and prevent the starter from doing its work. Occasionally, also, the switch goes out of business, but if the battery is proved to have adequate current and the cables are all right, examine the switch.

Lack of Lubrication.

Sometimes the starter motor itself goes out of business through mechanical failure or lack of lubrication. The starting motor is generally lubricated from the engine on one end and by a small oil hole in the other. The engine lubrication is automatic, but the oil hole requires a drop of oil every 500 miles of running.

The brushes and commutator of the starting motor do not need oil; in fact, if oil gets on these parts it is likely to stop the motor from operating. In this case the oil may be cleaned off by holding a small piece of fine sandpaper against the commutator while the motor is running.

From all this the car owner will get the obvious lesson that troubles in the starting system are best cured by reasonable care beforehand. Keep the battery up to its work, watch the cables for broken insulation. Give the starting motor the drop of oil it needs, and the starter will continue to whirr obediently to your foot pressure while the crank rests in idleness under the back seat.

Hall's Catarrh Medicine

Those who are in a "run down" condition will notice that Catarrh Medicine does much more for them than they are in good health. The fact is that while Catarrh is a bad disease, it is greatly influenced by constitutional conditions.

HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE consists of an extract which quickly relieves the local inflammation and the internal medicine, a tonic, which assists in improving the general health.

SOME KNOW DETAILS OF CARING FOR CAR

"Do It Yourself" Knowledge Lags Because of Stations.

How about tracing out trouble in the electrical circuits in your car, or correct the timing of the motor, or grinding the valves? Could you do these things if either were necessary in an emergency?

Most garage men, and they are in position to know, believe that you are to be congratulated on your knowledge if you are one of the old-fashioned few who can do any of these things.

The long and short of it seems to be that the substantial construction of the car and its parts and the frequency of service stations makes all this "do it yourself" knowledge superfluous. The up-to-date driver, instead of loading up his memory with a mass of details, remembers only a few items of routine care—things that he must do to keep the car running smoothly and continuously. It is this sort of information that the industry has made popular.

Hardly a day goes by in any garage or service station without their noting the effect of the educational work that has been done by the necessary manufacturers and car builders during the past few years. The storage battery in particular has received an unusual amount of attention.

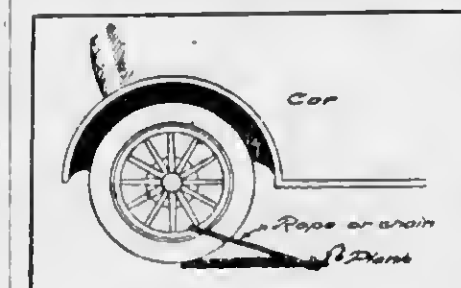

There can be little doubt that the car owner owes a good deal of his satisfaction to the efforts of the manufacturer and his representatives, who have taught him what to do to keep each part of his car in prime condition.

GETTING AUTO OUT OF MUD

Device Made of Plank Four Feet Long and One Foot Wide Is Useful in Emergency.

The Farm Journal in illustrating and describing a device to get a car out of mud hole, the invention of Robert H. Neill of Ohio, says:

"A device for getting the car out of the mud under its own power can

A chain is fastened at two corners of plank, and when laid in front of the sunken wheel the chain is passed around one of the spokes as shown in diagram. BEETS LEAD ALL MICHIGAN CROPS

GROWERS GET HIGHEST YIELD FROM SUGAR VARIETY

Average Harvest Was Eight Tons To Acre In 1923, Or $72.00 Per Acre

"Sugar beets gave the highest return of any cultivated crop in Michigan last year," said Prof. Cox, head of the farm crops department of the Michigan Agricultural College, in an address before the conference of beet growers and sugar manufacturers, which was held in East Lansing last week.

"The average yield was eight tons per acre," said Prof. Cox. "Based on last year's contracts, the average return per acre was $72. If the growers had all followed the best practices, they could have harvested 10 tons per acre, with net return correspondingly increased. The costs per acre are fixed no matter whether the crop is large or small. The men who fitted their ground thoroughly, planted in season and cultivated cleanly stood to make excellent profits."

"From the standpoint of soil and climate, Michigan can grow beets in competition with any other sugar beet section. The fertile soils of the lake bed formation of the Saginaw Bay and Thumb districts and the rich silt loams of central and southern Michigan rank among the best beet lands in America. The climate is favorable, with ample rainfall and cool temperatures."

"From an economic standpoint the industry is well favored. One fourth of the sugar used in the mill is imported and there is a tariff protecting the industry and the grower. Michigan is located near the central markets and freight rates are not excessive. The industry is one that can stand further increase. Two or three times as many beets as at present might be grown in Michigan."

How muck soils may be utilized for the growing of sugar beets was explained by Dr. P. H. Harmer, of the soils department.

"The acreage of muck soil in Michigan has been estimated by different investigators at from 2,000,000 to 4,000,000 acres in extent," he declared. "In valuation this soil ranges from land which is practically worthless to that which has the highest value of any agricultural land in the state. This latter value is due to the development of highly specialized farming, of which celery farming is the best known. However, since the total acreage of celery grown in Michigan does not exceed 4,000 acres, it is very evident that the development of the large proportion of the muck soils of the state must follow the growing of crops which are in more general demand. Crop production on muck soil is dependent on several different factors, some of the most important of which are the nature of the muck soil drainage, cultural methods, fertilization and crop adaptation."

"A large proportion of our muck soils are of the type that they may become so old at night that frosts may occur, even during the summer months. For this reason crops must be selected for such areas which are frost resistant. Sugar beets in such a crop and since it has the advantage of being a cash crop, it acreage on muck is certain to increase."

"The first step in the improvement of a muck soil is the establishment of proper drainage."

Dr. Harmer recommended shallow cultivation for beets on muck soils. Potash or a combination of potash and phosphate he said, is the best fertilizer to use.

In discussing tile drainage, O. P. Robey of the department of agricultural engineering, pointed out that drainage is of benefit in contributing to early preparation of the seed bed, in warming the seed bed and in making possible cultivation during the season.

LAKE'S CHANGES ARE IN DISPUTE

equal only 80 per cent of full efficiency, then the amount of water flowing out of the lake into the canal each second—88,200 cu. feet or 11,000 gallons, would produce 4,000 H. P. for a head or fall of 30 feet; 5,333 H. P. for a head of 40 feet; 6,000 H. P. for a head of 50 feet and 10,666 H. P. for a head of 60 feet. As it would require a flow of 44,000 gallons per second to produce 40,000 H. P. over a 60 foot head or fall and the head at the Lockport plant is only 40 feet, then it is evident that the government engineers have tremendously underestimated the loss of water from Lake Michigan into the canal, if it be true that the Lockport plant actually develops 40,000 H. P. (and we have a standard encyclopedia as authority for this statement.) In fact, it is claimed by many that the canal has been taking about double the government allowance during the past ten years and if this be a fact, then it lowers the lake about two and a half inches per year. A flow of 44,000 gal. per second would take the lake down 4 inches per year.

On the other hand, the flowage of the feeder streams has diminished about ten per cent in the last fifteen years. During much of the year you can cross Grand River at Grand Rapids by stepping from stone to stone and you only need common 16 inch rubber boots to keep your feet dry. Boyne River, to make a local application, has dropped from 3,200 cu. feet per minute to about 2,800 cu. feet for the most of the year.

DEATH COMES TO AGED RESIDENT

Mrs. Mary A. Tyler Was Invald For Several Years

Mrs. Mary A. Tyler died this morning at two-thirty o'clock at the home of her son, F. V. Tyler, 213 East Garfield avenue, Charlevoix.

Mrs. Tyler, who was not very well known to Charlevoix people on account of her having been confined by illness for the greater part of her life, was nearly 80 years of age and much weakened by an illness of some eight or nine years duration. Death came as the immediate result of a general paralysis of all her physical functions.

Mrs. Tyler was born in Shelburn, Vt. and for the greater part of her life has lived in the east. On the death of her husband in 1917, she came to Michigan to make her home with her son and her sister, Mrs. Archibald Butters of this city. Besides the relatives mentioned, she leaves a daughter, Mrs. Robert B. Kimher, now of Detroit and there are five grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Plans for the funeral are not yet definitely settled, but it will probably be held from the house at 213 East Garfield Ave., either Thursday or Friday. Rev. Clarence W. Long officiating in the presence of the immediate family and friends of the deceased. The interment is to be made at Brookside.

DIED A MARTYR TO STERN DUTY

WOODROW WILSON A VICTIM OF HIS HUGE BURDEN

History's Verdict Will Class Him With Lincoln and Washington as Statesmen

Woodrow Wilson, twenty-eighth president of the United States, died last Sunday morning at 11:15 o'clock at his Washington home.

According to a bulletin issued by Dr. Cary T. Grayson, the former president's family physician: "His heart action became feebler and feebler and the heart muscle was so fatigued that it refused to act any longer. The end came peacefully. The remote causes of death lay in his ill health, which began more than four years ago, namely arterio-sclerosis with hemiplegia. The immediate cause of death was exhaustion, following a digestive disturbance which began in the early part of last week, but did not reach an acute stage until the early morning hours of February 1st."

"Mr. Wilson had been unconscious for hours when the last spark finally flickered out," according to an account in Monday's Grand Rapids Press. "So far as his knowledge of moral things went, his life ended Saturday night, when, after a day spent mostly in fitful sleep, he slipped into a deep slumber that Dr. Grayson soon saw was not sleep at all, but the final ascendancy of death."

"The scenes enacted before the quiet, modest house where the last years of Mr. Wilson's life were lived, bore testimony, Sunday, to the affectionate bond that existed between him, reticent and invalid as he was, and great numbers of his countrymen."

"Since he became ill, the messages of sympathy have poured in endlessly. Thousands have walked past the house in the last two days, just looking for a glimpse of him."

Like Harding, Woodrow Wilson was a man of destiny. He took the helm of the ship of state in a time of greatest stress and significance to our country since the war of the Revolution. He made his mistakes, as they all do, but he finally brought the great affairs entrusted to his keeping to a successful conclusion and who are we to say that another might have done better in his place. He died truly a martyr to his intense devotion to his duty and his memory will live enshrined in the hearts of the American people as a representative American of the highest type, a great statesman and a greater man.

The funeral of the great war president will be held today and the body will go without military ceremony to its resting place in great Washington cathedral.

FOCUS DIRECTOR IN WATER SCENE

Marion Davies Disappears in Tank, Scaring Vignola

If you can't have a little joke on your director once in a while when you are making a picture, it gets to be an awful bore. Marion Davies, star of "Beauty's Worth," coming to the Palace Theatre next Wednesday, February 13th, played a joke on her director, Robert G. Vignola, that he will not soon forget.

They were "shooting" some scenes in a fine outdoor swimming pool at Del Monte, Cal. Miss Davies reluctantly said she could not swim "so very well" and so hoped that they would make it "short and snappy." It was her cue to dive. She did. The camera was grinding—grinding—grinding. The director expected to photograph Miss Davies as she emerged. But she didn't emerge. All hands to the fore! Where was the star?

Director Vignola stripped off his coat. Property men dived in. Then up came Miss Davies at the other end of the tank, all smiles at having fooled them with her proficient underwater swimming.

"Beauty's Worth," created by Cosmopolitan Production, from the story by Sophie Kerr, is a delightful picture of the transformation of a quiet and shy little Quaker girl into a dancing society favorite. The scenario was written by Luther Reed. It is a Paramount picture.

MASON DANCE WAS VOTED A HUMDINGER

Fun and Other Novel Features Were Introduced

The Masons and Eastern Stars introduced several new features at the dance given last Friday evening. The were much enjoyed by those who accepted the invitations sent out earlier in the week.

After the first few dances, the lights were extinguished and the dancers glided over the fine floor under the soft rays of a chameleon-like moon whose light changed weirdly from amber to blue and back again as the dance progressed. Favors in the form of paper snakes that leapt out with a terrifying rattle when one blew into them were distributed and no little excitement was added to the affair in this way. Later in the evening, dainty refreshments consisting of sandwiches, coffee and cake were served. With the usual excellent musical support, the evening was voted a huge success by the participants.

The underlying idea was that the best results would be attained by centering the responsibility in one body independent of the legislature and answerable only to the people.

"The policy thus consistently upheld by the court has proven so satisfactory to the people that in the constitutional convention of 1908, similar action was taken with reference to the agricultural college. The State Board of Agriculture was made a constitutional body; it was given the sole management of the affairs of the college and exclusive control of all of its funds."

Justice MacDonald declares that to delegate the control of college funds to some other state department "would be an invasion of the constitutional rights and powers of the governing board of the college."

The opinion further states that "in this the State Administrative Board is assuming to exercise authority vested by the constitution solely in the Board of Agriculture. It is not a question as to the wisdom of the method proposed by the Administrative Board. The business policy and management of all of the affairs of the college belong to the State Board of Agriculture." The opinion further holds that the Board of Agriculture may accept funds from Farm Bureaus or other sources, in its own judgment, as it is the sole authority in the administration and control of all college matters.

BANK BUILDING A SMOKING RUIN

BURNED TO GROUND EARLY FRIDAY MORNING LAST

Three Walls Still Standing But Contents a Total Loss—Defective
Flue The Cause

Friday morning, February 8th, witnessed the destruction of one of Charlevoix's oldest landmarks and largest buildings: the County Bank building at the corner of Bridge and Clinton streets.

The alarm was sounded in by B. L. Harrington at six-thirty a. m. Mr. Harrington, whose home is diagonally across Clinton street from the bank building, heard the explosion of a window bursting out and looking across the street saw the entire rear end of the building in flames, fire and smoke pouring from a broken third floor window. The fire department responded to his alarm quickly, with the auxiliary loaded on a sleigh and drawn by horses, but so great a start had the fire gotten by this time that nothing much could be done except keep the water playing onto the doomed building until the flames had licked up everything that would burn. It is thought that the flames started in a defective flue on the third floor, but as the entire three floors were involved before anyone could reach the building, this is a matter of conjecture only.

The firemen were hampered in their work by the extreme low temperature which at certain places in town had reached a point 28 degrees below the zero mark at the time the fire started. Smoke rolled in great billows from the burning building, mounting high in air and debris and burning embers were carried clear up onto the south hill and as far back as Garfield avenue. The cellar of the bank building, which contained vaults where the old records of the bank were deposited, soon filled with water, which froze quickly, forming a sheet of ice over everything. The rear wall of the building above the first floor buckled early in the morning and fell outward, crashing down in a mass of scattered debris. The remaining walls, though in perilous condition, are still standing as this article is written and the plans of the owners for demolition are not as yet decided.

Everything in the building was totally destroyed with the exception of the notes, bills and books of account which were in the bank's main vault and escaped without injury, save from water and steam which, however, left them intact and usable. The stock and fixtures of the J. L. Crane store the contents of the offices of A. L. Fitch, Lisle Shanahan and Justice Cooper on the second floor and the equipment, regalia and furnishings of the newly opened K. of P. lodge rooms on the third floor were completely wiped out. All the furniture and fixtures of the banking rooms on the first floor, including a twelve hundred dollar book-keeping machine and several other adding machines and typewriters, were destroyed.

The second and third floor tenants of the building suffered perhaps the least of all, as they had absolutely no insurance on any of their property. Prosecuting Attorney A. L. Fitch lost his furniture, what is reputed to be the largest private law library in town, and the files and records of some 24 years accumulation together with a number of abstracts and other valuable papers. His safe was recovered Monday from the ruins of the building in the cellar and the contents found intact.

Attorney Lisle Shanahan lost his library, his files of 25 years back, a number of valuable abstracts and a mass of important documentary evidence in various cases past and pending which it will be difficult if not impossible to replace. He estimates his personal loss at $10,000.00.

Justice Joseph R. Cooper, who occupied an office in the front of the second floor lost his furniture, desk and files.

The Knights of Pythias, members of which lodge have put in two solid weeks preparing their new lodge rooms for occupation, lost the results of their labors, their regalia, their furniture, including one piano and a billiard table and fine set of table glasses presented by George Chalmers and a number of other small articles.

J. L. Crane, of whose stock and fixtures a fire claim was fairly well covered by insurance and has given out that he expects to be doing business again in the same location in two or three months.

Practically nothing of the contents of the building was salvaged, due to the fact that the fire had gotten such a start at the time it was discovered that it was an extremely dangerous proposition for anyone to attempt to enter the building. The building itself could not be replaced for less than thirty-five or forty thousand dollars. The bank held policies of insurance on the building and the contents of their banking rooms.

The management of the County Bank, finding the contents of their main vault and the basement vaults intact, including the safety deposit boxes, immediately arranged for new temporary quarters and Saturday morning were open for "business as usual" in the store in the Odd Fellows building occupied last summer by Little, Wolf, the Jeweler. Much credit is due Messrs. Robert Bridge, Kaye Butters and George Beaman and Mrs. Earl Johnston, members of the bank's staff, for the prompt and efficient way they

WILKINSONS IN SMASH-UP

DR. ALLEN AND FAMILY NAR-ROWLY ESCAPE

Douglas Physician's Quick Thinking Saves Party From Death Under Train Wheels

The Douglas (Ariz.) Daily International for Monday, February 4, 1924, contains an account of a recent railroad-automobile accident in which former well-known Charlevoix people figured as principals.

It seems that an automobile driven by Dr. A. M. Wilkinson, who was on his way to his home in Douglas from Fort Huachuca, accompanied by his wife, her mother, Mrs. Blodgett, the doctor's two sons, Frank and Blodgett, Edward Evans, H. A. Wimberley and the Rev. G. E. Osborn, friends of the family, coming down the grade toward the Junction mine switch near Warren at a speed of about 20 miles an hour, struck an ore train at 11:15 p. m., a week ago
Saturday night, February 2nd.

The doctor, according to his statement, was watching carefully for trains and none of the party is said to have heard any sound of bell or whistle signalling the approach of a train nor did they see any light. The tender light on the train, the doctor stated, was so high that it threw no light on the track. They were only twenty feet away from the tracks when the headlights of the car discovered the tender of a locomotive starting over the crossing.

The doctor turned sharply to the left, throwing on the brakes. The back end of the automobile skidded around, locking the front of the right rear fender on the running board of the engine tender, carrying the car along for nearly thirty feet before the train stopped.

Mrs. Blodgett and the younger son, Frank, were thrown clear of the automobile and train and received only slight bruises. Blodgett Wilkinson suffered a cut on the right cheek from broken glass. Wimberley got off with severe bruises. Mrs.
Wilkinson, who suffered a fractured pelvic bone, will be forced to remain in bed for about a month, but the injury is not considered of a serious nature providing no complications set in.

The presence of mind of Dr. Wilkinson in making the quick swerve is said to have been the only thing that saved the lives of all of the party, who would have otherwise been crushed under the train.

According to an E. P. & S. W. official who visited Dr. Wilkinson after the accident, Saturday night was the first time in two years that a train had been over that track at that hour of the night.

The automobile was not damaged other than the right rear fender was crushed and the windshield broken.

"I am advised that one 'Owl' reported to have said that letters of others directed to them were intercepted in the mail.

"If any such letters had been

HARMONY WAS THE KEYNOTE

AT SIXTH ANNUAL STATE
FARM BUREAU MEETING

Delegates Endorsed Gas And Income Levies And Fixed Policy
For 1924

Reviewing with satisfaction the splendid progress of the past year and harmoniously electing the directors and adopting resolutions which set the policy of the Michigan State Farm Bureau for the coming year, the board of delegates met for the sixth annual meeting at East Lansing, February 7-8. High spots of the two day meeting were the annual address of President W. E.
Phillips of Decatur, the annual report of Secretary-Manager, Clark L.
Brody, and a strong plea for organization and loyal activity in Farm Bureau matters by N. P. Hall, President of the Michigan Milk Producers Ass'n, chairman of the executive committee of the Michigan State Grange and President of National Dairy Union.

The new Farm Bureau Board of Directors, which is composed of one representative of each of the five affiliated commodity exchanges and six directors chosen at large was elected as follows:

M. L. Noon, Jackson, Michigan
Milk Producers Ass'n; Herbert
Gowdy, Union Pier, Michigan Fruit Growers, Inc.; Fred Smith, Elk Rapids, Michigan Potato Growers Exchange; John O'Malley, Pittsford, Michigan Live Stock Exchange;
W. E. Phillips, Michigan Elevator
Exchange; L. Watkins, Manchester;
E. C. McCarty, Bad Axe; Mrs. Edith
M. Wagar, Carleton; George Wheeler, Mt. Pleasant; M. B. McPherson,
Lowell; and Verold F. Gormely,
Newberry. The new board organized by electing M. L. Noon, President and M. B. McPherson, Vice President.

"The farmers of Michigan are not excelled by those of any other state in the development of their co-operative marketing, transportation, pure foods and other services," Clark L.
Brody, told the delegates in presenting his annual report.

Speaking of the great commodity marketing organizations affiliated with the State Farm Bureau, Mr.
Brody said that the Michigan Milk Producers Ass'n, surpasses any organization of its kind in the country;
the Michigan Elevator Exchange serving 150 farmers' elevator associations, is a national leader in that field. The Michigan Live Stock Exchange with its own terminal marketing offices at the Detroit and Buffalo yards gives some 223 Michigan associations of farmers live stock marketing service.

The Michigan Potato Growers Exchange with about 112 associations and the Michigan Fruit Growers, Inc., with 30 associations enrolled complete the groups of Michigan farmers' co-operative marketing organizations that probably handle $40,000,000 worth of business annually for their members.

Mr. Brody pointed out to the delegates how the commodity marketing exchanges and the State Farm Bureau have become pillars of strength for their farmer members, uniting their efforts in such matters of common interest as transportation, pure food, legislation of interest to farmers, organization, education and general marketing policies. The type of organization, said Mr. Brody, is the result of a long Bureau organization work for the past three years and places Michigan agriculture in the strongest position that it has ever known.

Summarizing the work of the State Farm Bureau for 1923, Mr.
Brody said that the outstanding accomplishment was the Michigan State Farm Bureau's part in the successful Michigan Traffic League Zone Case victory, recently handed down by the Interstate Commerce Commission. In this opinion, one Michigan freight rate zone is abolished and two others modified, effective March 21, 1924, with a resulting savings in freight rates to Michigan shippers of $1,500,000 annually. $500,000 of which will be to farmers. It is estimated that farmer shippers will save from $2 to $10 per car on shipments of products and supplies in any outlet of the state.

The Bureau reported four successful commercial departments doing business in the interests of Farm Bureau members — Produce Exchange poultry market at Detroit, seed department, wool pool and supplies department at Lansing.

MAYOR URGING AID TO LEGION

CAMPAIGN FOR NEW MEMBERS
STARTS TODAY

Drive of Local Post Part of Larger State-wide Movement to Swell Ranks

Ten days of intensive campaigning for a larger American Legion in this city is announced by E. J. Edwards, commander of Leslie T. Shapton Post.
The dates are set from Lincoln's Birthday, February 12th, to Washington's Birthday, February 22nd.

This drive of the local Post is a part of a campaign which is being staged in every city of Michigan, and which is expected by Legion leaders to double the organization's strength over the figures of 1923.

"The work of the American Legion in Michigan," said Commander Edwards, "is to see that the men and women who suffered most from the war are given more of a square deal.
We know that the people as a whole want everything possible done for the disabled or those broken in health. But there are some minor government employees who seem to delight in delaying justice just as long as they are able. The American Legion's job is to see that the will of the whole people prevails, and that justice is done.

"We ask every veteran in this city who believes in the work we are doing to come into the Legion and to help us.

"Besides this organized effort in behalf of unfortunate veterans, the American Legion affords a wonderful opportunity for a man to become better acquainted—to learn to work with others.

"It is now just five years since the great mass of American troops started back from Europe. More and more the memories and associations of those great days impress themselves upon every man. That is why the Legion membership must definitely be on the upgrade."

Recognizing the good work which the Legion is doing and their just claim on the assistance and support of the citizens of this community, Mayor Arthur Bergeon has issued the following proclamation:

"Whereas, Certain young men and women of this city served in the World War as members of the armed forces of the United States government, offering their all to the country in time of need, and

Whereas, These who have returned home have taken their place in the community's life in such manner as to win the admiration of all, and

Whereas, The American Legion has been organized as the one fraternal society which welcomes to its ranks every man or woman who served honorably with the colors, and

Whereas, Further, the American Legion is a notable force for patriotic service and sentiment, and of the Red and White displayed.

In the previous debates this year our team has been somewhat weak on rebuttals, but on this occasion they showed their ability to overcome this defect. Margery Brown upon this occasion was able to think independently and consecutively on her feet. Albert Widdfield would be rated as our outstanding speaker, the both girls deserve credit for their efforts.

The debate was held in the assembly room at three o'clock, most of the high school students remaining. The turnout from the townspeople could have been better and it is hoped that in the future they may be able to back with their presence and money this important part of school work. Charlevoix's usual good sportsmanship was accorded the Cheboygan people while it was evidenced by the hearty "hand" given each speaker whether Cheboygan or Charlevoix, as well as the way Charlevoix people opened their homes to the visitors so that no member of the team or those accompanying them had to be asked to be entertained at the hotel.

The school people appreciate this spirit of co-operation and wish the public to know that while perhaps their thanks is not often publicly expressed they actually do feel grateful for these courtesies shown from time to time.

The judges for the occasion were:
Rev. Albert, Judge Holstead and
Supt. Spiller, all of Potoskey.

MONTHLY MEETING
Memorial Services Conducted for Late Ex-President.

The Woman's Relief Corps held its regular monthly meeting at the I. O.
O. F. hall last Thursday, February 7th.

All officers and a number of members were present and two new members were initiated. Mrs. Saltonstall gave a very interesting paper on "Patriotism" and memorial services were held for the late ex-president, Woodrow Wilson, with draping of the charter.

Mrs. Ward drew the lucky number
(81) on the pillow raffle. Refreshments of ice cream and cake were served and all expressed themselves as having enjoyed a good meeting.

We regret very deeply that Traverse City carried away the honor last week, but C. H. S. kept a bull-dog hold on it right up to the last whistle but our men were good losers, and we are proud of them.

County Normal Notes

Our Principal, Miss Mayer, was called to her home in Ann Arbor, February 7th, we are having school with Mr. Hamilton taking charge of Agriculture and School Law classes.

Eighth Grade

An enthusiastic effort was put forth by the Athletic Manager to secure a big crowd for the Charlevoix-Traverse game.

A new plan of recitation has been worked out in the Eighth grade history class.

A number of students are absent from school this week on account of the compulsory vaccination act.

The Athletic Manager and a number of assistants made some improvements at the rink on Friday p. m.

The Freshman class elected Vincent Madison as their representative to the Student Council, and in the course of the meeting their sponsor, Mr. Roe, gave to the class a whole the necessary qualifications of such a representative. He also gave a little talk on wholesome sportsmanship, suggested policies for the future, and appointed a committee to contribute to the subject matter of the Chanticleer.

At a teachers meeting last Wednesday Mrs. Rose, Mrs. Roe, Miss Reid and Miss Crowley were appointed to act as a committee to draw up the plans of editing and the rules and regulations which govern an Honor System of the C. H. S. students.

Training Room

Mrs. John Roen and little Hilda visited our room Wednesday 30th.

Earl Young was a visitor in the Training Room, Wednesday afternoon.

The notebooks of the fifth grade history class are very interesting. Ask to see them.

Mr. Belding called at the Normal Wednesday, February 6th.

Posters of Good Citizenship are being made by the 5th grade language class.

Clare Staley is absent from school due to an injured ankle.

Little June Kibbe, of the Kindergarten, hit the nail on the head when she said, "No need to go to Crane's any more, because all you can get now is air and ashes."

The Sixth grade drew names, and will have a Valentine Box this week.

Commercial Dept.

On Monday, February 4, the second meeting of the R. G. Shorthand Club was held. It was both inspirational and instructive. The meeting was called to order by the President Thelma Ranney and a short business discussion was held during which the constitution and by-laws were read and approved. Following this Mrs. Roe gave an interesting talk on Shakespeare's life and works. After which like questions were asked:

"Do we find much trace of anything that looks like an initiation of the ancients in Shakespeare's work? Why?"

"What caused Shakespeare to write his first ballad? Which of Shakespeare's plays did he write first? How old was he at the time?"

The study of Hamlet was begun. The story is written in shorthand and the work of the members of the Club is to transcribe it into long-hand.

Did you know that the first double entry Bkg. made its appearance in Venice in 1490?

That the seed of the Burroughs was sown in 1890?

That in 63 B. C. Cicero, the greatest Roman orator, rang for his Steno, who, by the way, was not a dainty maid with a notebook and pencil, but a man, scholarly and sanded and tuniced, with a waxen tablet and stylus.

That the founders of the Methodist church, John and Charles Wesley, were shorthand writers?

That the Remington Typewriter appeared in 1873?

That in 1884 only 10 high schools, 225 private schools, ten Catholic schools reported offering business courses. Now we have 4800 high school, 700 Universities, 2600 Catholic schools and about 1,200,000 students pursuing business subjects of all types. Commercial Education is coming into its own.

Sophomores

On Saturday, February 9th, the Sophomores gave the Varsity a Banquet. They believe that if anyone deserves anything (nice, or pleasing to the taste) it's the Varsity.

The Sophs sold candy at the debate and candy and pop corn at the game Friday night, making quite a success of it.

The Senior class has very graciously pledged one hundred dollars toward this publication which will be high class in every respect. Did You Ever Stop to Think--

THAT every time a man allows prejudice to influence him, he is cheating himself. His mental vision is clouded. He doesn't see straight. He should SEE HIS OPPORTUNITY! BOOST HIS CITY!

THAT it requires great mental and physical effort of every citizen to make your city climb the ladder of fame.

THAT the time will come when all knockers will be forced to leave your city and their places will be filled by men who will be CITY BOOSTERS and CITY BUILDERS.

THAT conventions bring more than money to your city, because your city will be immeasurably benefited by the goodwill you generate as genial hosts.

THAT your city is now upon the threshold of its greatest opportunities for trade cultivation.

THAT Farming is a business and it is always possible to make a business grow.

THAT you should determine to make your business grow and return you profits on your investment and labor.

THAT your agricultural section needs and welcomes more home owners. The family seeking a small homestead for poultry, dairying and a small acreage for general farming can find desirable openings near your city.

THAT every community has its civic slackers, men who turn an indifferent eye to the needs of their city.

OUR WORLD AND THE MOVIES

Consider two parallel instances of remarkable heroism.

Out in Idaho, with the cold increase and the snow deep, a woman fought off freezing and exhaustion to rush her stricken husband 25 miles across treacherous ice and snow on a dog sled. The woman was Mrs. Shannon, a motion picture net-tress. As a result of the heroic experience her health is endangered, but her husband is saved.

Right here in Michigan a man and his wife were caught in a subzero blast on the ice of Lake St. Clair.
Their automobile was frozen. Their boating shanty was helpless. The firm hand of cold death fastened its grip on the husband, Carl Brucher of Detroit. But the wife by sheer will dragged him to his feet and across the ice. Finally an inhabited cottage was found and the two were saved, but with faces and feet frozen.

The two other parallel instances:

Out in Los Angeles a wealthy oil man was shot by a moving picture star's chauffeur. The chauffeur's employer and another film star were in the wounded man's rooms at the time. There had been, it is reported, drinking before the shooting affair.
The chauffeur is on trial, but witnesses tell fuzzy stories.

Right here in Grand Rapids a factory girl was fatally shot by the man who claimed to love her. He was in her room at the time. There had been drinking, according to court records. The killers has been sent to prison for life.

Sure enough, the two parallels prove just one thing that the movie and the real world have; that there are good, brave, devoted human beings in the film world just as in the world of common persons.
Also there are drinking, criminal killing men in the world just as in Hollywood.

And in this hard-working, grim, business-socking, real world of ours to punish the man who kill and who attempt to kill. In the movie world of accident, invincible effort is made to cover up the trails of the movie addicts and the killers. That is the thing that seems aside the real cases set up by the magistrates for the benefits of the general. Of course, there are good, brave, devoted human beings in Hollywood and Los Angeles. Of course there are devoted, heroic wives and husbands. But the reputation of all is hurt by the escapades of the few.

Instead of defending the Arbucks and the Normands and the rest of the evening members of the movie actress profession, the thing for the decent people of the picture colonies to do is to join forces with the law enforcement officers and the public in purging the cinema of all its un-moral and lawless elements. Man is still known by the company he keeps, and so long as the law-abiding, moral actors, actresses and directors of the films lend aid in covering up the evilness of their disreputable company, the whole picture making industry is going to be judged by the

TIMBER WOLF SHOT AT CANBY

Northern Fox Hunter Gets One But His Mate Escapes

The first timber wolf shot in Em-met county in many years, was slain Monday by John Budek, farmer and fox hunter, near the Alex. Lark farm in Center township. The ferocious game slayer was first sighted near Canby, west of Leaning, and was later seen in other sections.

The slain animal, one of a pair believed to have crossed on the ice from the northern shore of Lake Michigan to hunt near the Emmet county game preserve, measured more than five feet in length. The mate is reported nearly as large.
The second wolf escaped but is believed to have been slightly wounded.

Timber wolves have not been seen in Emmet county in a great many years. Some of the animals are found in the forests on the east side of the state and many more are found on the northern peninsula.
Hunters report they kill much game and destroy sheep and calves of the northern farmers.

JOHN NICHOLLS HOME

To Be Made Into Modern Dwelling for Summer Rental.

The old John Nicholls residence at 108 Dixon avenue, is being entirely remodeled inside this winter by its present owners, the Nicholls estate.
This is with a view of making it over into a modern dwelling, capable of being rented this coming summer to resorters.

The partitions between several of the rooms are being cut out in order to increase the size of the rooms, and the main stairway is being changed so as to face the street and lead up from the front door.

The inside woodwork will be done in white enamel and the walls attractively paneled. It is probable that the house will receive a coat of paint or two on the outside and possibly be changed exteriorly in some degree.

of the engineering company for general atlas reference purposes, though copies of it may be obtained, mounted on rollers, by persons interested, or who are in need of such a map.

The dimensions of this map are 54 inches x 80 inches and its scale is 2 inches to the mile. It is authentic to the close of the year 1923 and shows the ownership at that time of every 40 acres or larger parcel of land in the county. It is not claimed, of course, that the various divisions and lines will disclose the exact acreage belonging to each owner, but the map in this respect is as accurate as is possible. The map also shows the location and character of all roads in the county; the location of streams and lakes, together with their depths. For instance, the depths at any points on Pine Lake are shown, both in mid-channel and along shore—a big help to the fisherman. Fractional eighths, as per the government survey, along the north and west boundaries of each township are also shown. The Beaver group and adjacent islands, belonging to Charlevoix are included as well as the mainland.

Mr. Sloan is now working on a map for the county register of deeds office, showing the old, original county lines as they were years ago, before the county of Charlevoix ceded a good share of its territory on the north to Emmet county along with a large chunk of Walloon Lake. It would pain you, gentle reader, to see what we parted with at that time.

HARMONY WAS THE KEYNOTE

ena reported itself in a strong position. It is conducting a state-wide membership campaign in which hundreds of its members are taking an active part in lining up their neighbors as members of the Farm Bureau organization. The "sponsoring" influences of the past three years were reported as having developed the Farm Bureau organization to the strongest position in its history.

The resolution adopted by the Farm Bureau Board of Delegates constitute probably the most comprehensive program of co-operative marketing and agricultural and general legislation which was ever laid down by any Michigan farm organization. Outstanding in popular interest were resolutions advocating a 2 cent gasoline tax, a State income tax supporting the State Board of Agriculture in the discharge of its full constitutional duties in the management of the Michigan Agricultural College and its extension activities.

The delegates expressed satisfaction with the present management of the State Farm Bureau and its affiliated commodity exchanges, urged the production of better quality products, favored the teaching of co-operative marketing and farm cost accounting in the public schools and colleges, endorsed County Agent and Boys' and Girls' Club work, favored greater participation by women in Farm Bureau affairs, opposed Pittsburgh plus and commended the management of Michigan fairs for efforts now being made to present cleaner and more educational exhibitions.

With reference to national legislation, the Farm Bureau delegates adopted resolutions opposing tax-exempt securities, consumption or sales taxes, government price fixing and governmental guarantees, any form of federal ship subsidy and a lowering of the present tax on oleo. They advocated the construction of the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence Waterway, strict enforcement of the 18th amendment and Volstead Act, national truth-in-fabric and truth-in-fruit-juice legislation, a law requiring treating all imported seed with Eosin dye, continued support for T. B. work, a national standard container bill, a quarantine on the oriental peach moth, and a resolution which has as its aim securing a more desirable class of immigrants.

The resolution adopted on "Muzzle Shot" while not mentioning the Ford tender specifically, still carries with it a nearly every resolution which it lays down and contains a provision in opposition to government operation.

The State legislation program is set down for the Farm Bureau by its Board of Delegates. It includes in addition to the state gasoline tax and the state income tax, a resolution favoring the motor vehicle policy, another urging that the counties' share of the automobile license money should be collected by the counties wherein the autos are owned and that each county's portion be returned to the county treasurer and the balance turned over to the state. The Farm Bureau program favors legislation transportation facilities, an extension of the restriction on the work of a person from anyone county and insists upon full observance of the motor vehicle, advocates educational institutions for citizenship, urges prize contests, factory or blower twice a year, other farm supplies, favors the payment of state counties on wolves and opposes the present system of game state trappers.

guardians for mentally incompetent persons, six adult persons and five afflicted children sent to the University hospital at Ann Arbor for medical and surgical treatment, one committed to the Michigan Home for the Feeble Minded at Lapeer, and one to Wahjamega as an epileptic, but the order was revoked before being carried out because obtained by misrepresentation.

In the Juvenile Division fourteen investigations have been had for delinquency and twenty-three children have been committed to the state hospital at Lansing and one child to the industrial home at Adrian. Six delinquents placed on probation and required to report to the court at stated intervals. All children placed on probation are reported to the court and meeting the requirements of the court except one.

Thirty-nine children are receiving aid through the probate court under what is called the "Mother's Pension."

The amount paid weekly to mothers for the support of dependent children on January 1st, A. D. 1924, was $85.50, or the annual sum of $4,446.00.

Other allowances have been granted since January 1st and not included in this computation.

The volume of work has increased greatly. In the probate court proper, and by that I mean exclusive of the juvenile division, eighty-eight cases is the most in any previous year. Now it has reached one hundred and one. The juvenile work has increased proportionately.

LIEURANCE AND KREISLER NEXT

FORMER HAS SPECIALIZED IN INDIAN MUSIC

Kreisler Has Won Undying Fame
With His Violin—A Man of Broad Culture

The seventh and eighth numbers on the program of the Music Memory contest are, "By The Waters Of Marquette Or By The Weeping Waters," by Thurlow Lieurance, and "The Old Refrain," by Fritz Kreisler.

Lieurance

Thurlow Lieurance was born in 1880 in Oskaloosa, Iowa, and is living at present in Lincoln, Nebraska.

When a boy, he lived near Pewaukee, Rock, where Kit Carson fought his many battles with the Indians. His earliest game was playing Indian.

He became a cornetist in the town band and was bandmaster of the 22nd Kansas Regiment in the Spanish-American war. He saved $400.00 and went to the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music to study; then joined an opera company, afterwards becoming a teacher of music in Kansas. He visited his brother, who was practicing medicine in the Crow reservation in Montana, became interested in songs and ceremonies of the red men and made phonographic records of the melodies of the Indians. Several hundred of these records are in Washington and Europe.

He has a long list of compositions, and in 1917 married a talented singer and together they give recitals of Indian music. "By the Weeping Waters" is a genuine Sioux Indian love song, recorded in 1912. Lake Marquette is in Southern Minnesota. A brave of the sun branch fell in love with a maiden of the moon branch, a union that was prohibited by death. So they waded into the water and died together. Every night, the legend says, the waters of the lake sing the story of the tragedy.

This piece has been recognized by the world's greatest singers. You can hear the rippling of the waters, the phantom canoe, the sighing of the winds and the call of the night birds. It is in wait time.

Kreisler

Fritz Kreisler, born in Vienna in 1875, began studying music at seven and won a gold medal at ten years of age. He is a man of many talents and broad education and has an extremely sympathetic nature. He married an American and spends most of his time in this country. He served as an Austrian officer in the world war. He is one of the greatest masters of music interpretation on the violin.

"The Old Refrain" is an old Viennese popular song that he has arranged with little melodies as accompanying the original melody.

GEIKEN HONORED AT FERRIS INST.

Made President of Higher Accounting Class.

The Courier is in receipt of a letter from Harold Geiken of this city who is attending Ferris Institute at Big Rapids. Mr. Geiken has received signal honors at the hands of his class and it may be of interest and a source of pleasure to Charlevoix people to learn of the success and high standing that one of our home boys has attained. Of course, as we know, Charlevoix's young men and women have been "getting there" with distinction in many walks of life, but this in no way lessens the interest we have in knowing that another representative of the town has brought credit to himself and his home town. We quote from the letter:

"It may be of interest to you to know that I was elected president of the professional accountants' class of Ferris Institute. This class is composed of Semester E. Pace & Pence students, studying higher accounting. This class has for many years been termed the 'brains' of the school," because of the fact that their lectures cover the stiffest problems of the business world."

Mr. Geiken mentions having seen an account of the County Bank fire in the press and suggests that "a new building be erected with a large community hall on one of the floors where various social functions of the town could be held. This hall could also be used for a gymnasium by the school, which is certainly needed."

REVENUE COLLECTOR HERE ON FEB. 14th

W. S. Darling To Assist Us In Making Returns

Those liable to the income tax for 1923 will do well to note the following:

Charles Holden, collector for the Internal Revenue department at Grand Rapids, has issued through his chief field deputy, Fred M. Cook, the following notice for publication in the newspapers of his district:

"Deputy collector of Internal Revenue, W. S. Darling, will be in Charlevoix on February 14-15, 1924, with headquarters at the Charlevoix State Savings bank, to assist taxpayers in filing 1923 income tax returns.

Deputy collector Darling is the accredited representative of the government in executing and receiving such returns. This will be the only opportunity afforded the taxpayer to have his return prepared by a deputy collector here, as on account of the large amount of work to be performed, a deputy collector will visit each town in his zone but once."

Deputy collector Darling has visited Charlevoix in previous years and has been of much assistance to local taxpayers in preparing their returns. He is a courteous, efficient and helpful official and we are glad to hear that he is again to be with us for a time, despite the painful nature of his business.

TRAVERSE HAD TO FIGHT HARD

THEIR VICTORY OVER C. H. S. QUINT WAS NO SNAP

Local Tossers Had It All Their Own Way Until Traverse Rung a Free Throw

Basketball fans got a big mouth full of the real unflavored dope Friday night, February 8th, when the victorious Traverse City quintet clashed with the local tossers. A faster, more furious or exciting battle never shook the old "Rink" than this scrappy onslaught. From the moment the ball first tipped center until the final whistle the game was "fight!" Wild eyed hands were hung everywhere over the railing and though the thermometer was going down the excitement was going up and people didn't discover it was cold until after the game.

The odds were in favor of the red and whites until the last minute of play when Fitch, of Traverse rung a free-throw that put the down-staters in the lead by a 1-point margin.

The game opened with a bang, both teams playing a brand of basketball that promised a furious fight for the bacon. The teams were evenly matched in size and weight, both speedy, both strong on defense and "dead-eye Dicks on offense. Both teams were getting "through" and raining shots on the rim of the basket, Charlevoix being the first to ring one. Hallett put two scores on the book for the locals and the down-staters were in to even things up. Cooper, of Traverse, was fouled and made his free-throw. Dagwell followed this by another field goal and Norris closed the half with another for Traverse leaving the local tossers in the lead by a 3 and 4 score.

In the third quarter things "loosened up" and Traverse made two free throws and a field basket to a neat pair from the mits of Hallett and Dagwell. A free-throw tied the score 8 and 8.

During the first moments of the fourth quarter, the local forwards had just rung two neat field goals which was discovered that Bacot, who replaced Brown, had failed to report to referee waiting those two goals. The score went back to the eight and eight tie.

This last quarter was a determined fight. Glasgow and Todd the local guards tightened up like knots and the Traverse forwards failed to break their invincible bulwark. Traverse had undergone the same change and though the local forwards worked the ball down to several close-in shots the ball seemed froze to the rim. With a minute and three seconds to go Fitch of Traverse was fouled and made his free throw ending the struggle by a score of 8 and 9.

This game was the second in a series of two played by Traverse in a northern tour over the week end. Thursday, she met and defeated Petoskey in a very similar game by a score of 7 and 9.

But the boys played real basketball, fast, scrappy and full of fight and that's all we ask of them. The fans wanted excitement and that's

Sec. 14-a. The boards of the several townships, and the common councils or commissions of the various cities and villages shall, at the expense of their respective townships, cities and villages, procure for each polling place therein a flag of the United States made of "class A" hunting, together with a staff and necessary appliances for displaying the same, and shall deliver them in proper time to the several boards of election inspectors whose duty it shall be to cause the flag to be displayed at or in each polling place during the progress of election. Immediately thereafter the election inspectors shall return the flag, which shall be used only for the purpose herein mentioned; to the respective clerks who are charged with the proper care and custody thereof.

Will Rebuild Bank Shortly

MODERN BUILDING TO ARISE LIKE PHOENIX.

Business Now Carried on in Temporary Quarters Will Soon Be Adequately Housed.

Now that the County Bank fire is comparatively ancient history, the leading question on everyone's lips is "What is the bank going to do about rebuilding?"

With idea of getting some light on this matter, the Courier representative recently made inquiry.

"No time will be lost in rebuilding the bank. From the ruins of the structure destroyed by the early morning fire on February 8th, we plan to raise a building that all of Charlevoix may be proud of."

This was a statement of Robert Bridge, assistant cashier of the Charlevoix County Bank, made yesterday as we found him studying plans for the new home for the bank.

"We are deeply grateful to the friends of the bank who have borne with so much patience the inconvenience which of necessity followed our disastrous fire," continued Mr. Bridge. "Naturally, it was impossible to reach the vault on Friday, for a pile of coal next to the fire-proof room burned for several hours. But we were satisfied that the specie we had on hand, and the bank's securities and our customer's valuables in the safe deposit boxes, were safe. Investigation, even before the vault cooled, proved we were right."

"While we have received many compliments upon our achievement in opening our temporary quarters on Saturday morning, we feel that more credit is due to our customers for their expressions of confidence. That confidence, I can tell you, means greater service than ever before to Charlevoix—for every man and woman connected with the bank feels that the whole community is back of it."

"When we resumed business the morning after the fire, we were ready to pay any who might apply for their money."

"Without even a typewriter, we set about straightening things out. The safe deposit boxes were brought to the temporary quarters, and a watchman is on guard all day and all night to protect them."

"Great interest has been shown in our plans for the future, and we are confident that our new banking home and the facilities which will be incorporated in the new building will be a revelation to most of our friends."

ICE-CUTTING IS ABOUT FINISHED

ONLY EIGHT OR TEN CARLOADS TO GET OUT

This Year's Cut Up To Average and Quality is Fair—Runs 15 Inches Thick

The ice cutting on Pine Lake, which has been progressing steadily without serious interruption due to storms since February 5th, is now about finished, says O. D. Hammond, who is in charge of operations.

For the past two weeks Mr. Hammond has been keeping about sixteen teams and thirty men on the job filling the ice chests of the city's leading institutions who use that frigid commodity in large quantity throughout the summer months. He states that the harvest this year is fully up to average and that while the drift ice near shore is apt to run a little heavy to snow ice, that farther out is of a good quality and has a thickness of about 15 inches. He says he has never encountered so much snow on the ice in past seasons as there is this year, but the fact that there is little or no water on the surface of the ice has made its removal easy.

Mr. Hammond estimates that his total cut so far approximates 14,000 tons. His teams and crew are now busy filling the Widdfield ice-house on East Lincoln avenue, a job that would have been finished Tuesday had the high cold wind not rendered working on the lake a painful procedure. About eight or ten carloads of ice consigned to Petoskey buyers are still to be gotten out and that will complete the cut for this season. The local concerns supplied, in the order in which their storage space was filled are Chicago Club, The Inn, Belvedere, Booth Fisheries, Charlevoix Fish Co., Hallett House, Hallett Inn and Harry Widdfield.

Heise & Yettaw, as in past years, have been doing their own cutting. They employ twenty men and seven teams in the work of filling storage bins on the shore of Pine Lake, cutting about one quarter mile off shore opposite the sugar factory. Mr. Yettaw states that the firm has considerable ice left over from last year, their loss during the summer being inconsiderable.

No accidents are reported, so far, by either Mr. Hammond or Messrs. Heise & Yettaw, if we except the mishap to "Pat" Whitley, working for the latter firm, who stepped back wards through a hole in the ice on the morning the bank building burned (when, as everybody knows, the mercury was trying hard to crawl out of the bottom of the tube.) Those who witnessed the affair said "Pat" didn't stay in the water long enough to be rescued. We don't wonder at this. He was escorted to the Co-op's, where a place near the fire and a dry suit of clothes were available, and seemed none the worse for his rather trying experience.

Johncheck-Voelker Miss Ina Johncheck and George William Voelker, both of Bay Shore, were married at 4:00 p. m., Monday, February 18th, at the Congregational parsonage in this city by Rev. C. W. Long.

COSTS U. S. BIG SUM ANNUALLY

POOR ADDRESSING OF LETTERS INCREASING

$1,740,000 Represent What People of Country Lose By Poorly Addressed Mail

Since the days of Benjamin Franklin every Postmaster General has found occasion to inveigh against a condition which has been the bane of the postal service since its foundation. Periodic and systematic campaigns have been waged against it but the evil grows as fast as the rapidly increasing business of the postal service itself.

The Post Office Department, in the final analysis, the tax payer, pays an annual toll for the support of this malignant growth amounting, in round numbers, to $1,740,000.

Of late years, however, it has become more and more apparent that the department and the tax payer are not the only sufferers from the evil. Private business and private industry every year lose millions of dollars from the same cause, which strange to relate is in most part preventable.

This economic waste—this strange disease—is nothing more or less than the careless addressing of mail matter; the depositing of letters and packages with incomplete, inadequate or incorrect addresses, an ever-widening majority of which comes from large patrons of the mails.

In an effort to stem the tide of this waste; to save money for the taxpayer and to return back into constructive business channels the millions now lost through mistakes, Postmaster General New has designated the week of February 18 to 25 as Better Mailing Week.

During the week he will seek the cooperation of chambers of commerce, boards of trade, large business and industrial enterprises and the press of the country, with a view of having antiquated mailing lists brought up to date and every check placed against the possibility of letters reaching the postal system without accurate addresses.

The Post Office has gone a long way toward assisting business men in solving the problem. Postmasters have interviewed heads of firms who, due to the fact that their mail is handled by subordinates often are not aware of their own mail difficulties. The department has even offered to furnish its own clerks to correct and bring mailing lists up to date at the nominal charge of 60 cents per hour.

At one time the proposal was made to Congress to place a one-cent charge upon each letter requiring directory service, thus attacking the problem through the pocket book of the mailer as the only means of solution.

It is believed, however, that if the individual, firm or corporation, depending to any extent on the mails for its business, can be brought to realize that delay, and often non-delivery of mail, results in loss of business and profits, the most important step will have been taken to correct evil.

It is estimated that 200,000,000 pieces of mail are yearly given "directory service," which means that postal employees must take time from the regular handling and dispatching of mail in the endeavor to provide correct addresses for this huge volume of misdirected matter. In New York City alone the cost of this service approximates $500 daily.

There is every evidence that the mailers of incompletely addressed matter believe that to the postal service nothing is impossible. The implied compliment is appreciated but it must be remembered that this no longer is the age of the town pump and that our cities have grown so that no longer can a mail distributor be expected to know "everybody in town."

Mail inadequately addressed and requiring directory service, of course, means delay. Often it must be returned to the sender for a new address. For the lack of a return address nearly 20,000,000 of these are sent annually to the Dead Letter Office.

No matter which course these letters take it means loss of money. Directory service and the Dead Letter Office are costly to the Postal service. Delay and non-delivery are, more often than not, costly to the mailer.

Solicitations for orders cannot produce results if the customer does not receive the solicitation. If he receives it a few hours late a competitor may get the order which otherwise would have gone to "you."

MADE PETOSKEY QUINT SCRAMBLE

FRIDAY NIGHT'S GAME WAS A REAL SCRAP

Charlevoix Players Showed Science But Lost to Opponents By Score of 17-13

After what has seemed to have been an impossible match this year between the Charlevoix quint and those of Petoskey, the local team went into action on the foreign court last Friday night. From the moment the whistle blew the fine team work of the local outfit was outstanding, but the fatiguing heat of the Petoskey gymnasium and the tireless fight and drive of the opponents tipped the tide of victory the other way.

The teams, generally speaking, were evenly matched, the local boys playing a careful, scientific game while the Petoskey quint were there with fight and a reckless, lucky offensive.

The first half of the game was close with Petoskey leading by two baskets at the close, 6 and 10. The game during the second period was somewhat faster, and the red and whites creeping up on their opponents until at one time the score was tied.

At the opening of the last quarter Petoskey led by one field goal. Then commenced a very visible period of "stalling" on the part of the Petoskeyites. For several minutes they passed it back and forth in a well drilled manner. During this period, George, center, slipped down and netted another basket, placing them four points ahead.

When our team finally succeeded in wresting the ball from their stalling opponents, it was too late to even things up. Dagwell had been taken out and, though the boys fought furiously for a few minutes, the game ended 13 and 17 in favor of Petoskey.

Those who journeyed over to see this game witnessed a very exciting battle, and we are confident the boys will square things up very satisfactorily when they meet Petoskey here on our own court Friday, March 5th.

Charlevoix men participating in this game were: Capt. Todd, Charles Dagwell, Floyd Brown, Murray Glasgow, Harold Jones, Pete Hallett and Pete Bneot. Hallett played a fine, consistent game as did his team mates.—Official Chanticleer report.

Michigan License No Good According to a new ruling in Florida, Michigan automobile licensees are not good in that state, and must be replaced by local states. The license of Michigan tourists to spend money in the Florida hotels, however, will be recognized for the present, it is intimated.

HE'S A FIGHTING FISH, TOO

SALMO GIBBSII IS HIS OFFICIAL NAME

New Species of Silver Trout to Be Planted in Northern Lakes a Washington Native

Here's good news for the fisherman! The record catches made in local waters last summer have awakened greater interest in the sport hereabouts than ever before and now comes the word that in a few years a new species of trout, the fightin' silver, so they say, will raise to the lure of a spoon hook in the waters of Pine Lake.

But read the article which we are reprinting from the sportsman's page of the Detroit News, for Sunday, February 17th.

"Michigan anglers who have caught steel-head trout in Pine Lake, Charlevoix county, will have an opportunity before many years have passed to take another lake-inhabiting member of the brook trout family from home waters. The new fish is the Washington silver trout (salmo gibbsii), a native of the larger tributaries of the Columbia river and nearby lakes. He is a big trout and a fighter with a penchant for deep water. His menu is known to include the spoon hook.

Last fall, the State Department of Conservation gave the Washington State Fish Commission 400,000 rainbow trout eggs in exchange for an equal number of eggs from this silver-sided scrapper of the mountains. The Washington eggs were divided among the Watersmeet, Oden and Wolverine hatcheries and are now in the process of becoming fry. Reports from all three of the hatcheries indicate that the baby "silvers" are lusty youngsters, as big for their age as lake trout, and that the State may expect to release a large percentage of them during the coming summer.

It is planned to plant them in some of the larger northern lakes where the temperature of the water is relatively low throughout the hotter months, probably in Pine Lake, Crooked Lake, Emmett county, and Mullett, Burt and Douglas lakes in Cheboygan county. It will be the first introduction of this western species to Michigan casting grounds, but if it prospers, the Conservation Department plans to extend its range.

The new trout has a dark green upper body flecked with semi-circular spots. His sides are washed with rose color and his lower body is glittering silver. In shape he is not unlike the native Michigan brook trout but is a larger fish, it is reported, and is quite as aggressive and powerful pound for pound. Mr. David-Starr Jordan, the well-known California ichthyologist, writes that the average length of the silver trout taken by him in the vicinity of Shoshone Falls, was 15 inches.

Go north for the newcomer along about June 1928, and remember to take a spoon with a huss-size hook!"

BOY SMOKERS DO NOT STAND HIGH IN SCHOOL

Statistics compiled by school authorities of Detroit are being quoted by Supt. J. W. Weston of the Lansing public schools in a campaign being made to break up smoking among high school boys. Smokers contribute far more lightly to honor groups and far more heavily to failure groups than non-smokers, the figures show.

In the general group of boys, 9 per cent received excellent standings, 21 per cent good and 36.4 per cent average. Among the smokers, however, the percentages were 5.1 per cent, 17.4 good and 34.4 average.

Contributions to lower classifications in the general group were 27.1 per cent poor and 6.5 per cent failures. Smokers ranked 31.2 per cent poor and 11.9 per cent failures.

LIVE STOCK

Proper Ventilation Is Big Boon to Live Stock

If your stable has a front, stalling odor in the morning and if there is frost on the side walls and ceiling, then your building needs ventilation, says E. A. Stewart of the agricultural engineering division at University farm. It is not always possible to keep out all frost, but there should be very little if any, except during the bitter cold days of winter.

Barns should have walls that are built to keep in the warmth of the stock," says Mr. Stewart. "There should not be cracks around doors and windows, where the snow and icy blasts can blow in. It is best to use storm windows on all openings into the stable. Do not have a large stable with only a few head of stock in it. If you do not need all of the room, partition off a part of it. Even a canvas can be used for this purpose. A cow should not be required to heat more than 700 cubic feet of space; about 550 cubic feet is an average value. A horse may be expected to heat about 1,000 cubic feet of space, but 700 or 800 cubic feet is a fair value.

"Make sure that the air intakes are provided with shutters or dampers, so that you can control the amount of air coming in. Likewise, a shutter is needed on the foul air flues to control the amount of air removed. It is a good investment to buy a thermometer for your stable. Hang it in front of the stanchions, about level with your head. The temperature of the barn should be about 32 to 40 degrees when outside temperatures are around zero or 10 below. With the proper number of cattle or horses in it, and with the ventilators working properly, a well-built barn will not be colder inside than 35 degrees, even at outside temperatures of 30 degrees below zero."

Prof. E. A. Stewart, University farm, St. Paul, will give further information on ventilation if you will write to him.

Silage in Ewe's Ration Proves Very Profitable

A preliminary experiment at the Colorado experiment station in feeding silage to ewes along with alfalfa hay showed four pounds more gain for silage-fed ewes than those fed alfalfa alone. Lambs from silage-fed ewes weighed one-quarter pound more at birth and averaged four pounds heavier one month after lambing ended. Neither lot received grain till the end of the lambing period. Allowing 8 cents per pound for gains on lambs and ewes and valuing hay at $14, the silage was worth $6.80 per ton for wintering ewes.

At the Purdue station, in three years' trial, ewes gained more when fed silage with hay, compared with hay alone and their lambs weighed slightly more. Valuing the hay fed at $8 per ton, the silage was worth $3.20 per ton. At the Iowa experiment station ewes fed a ration of corn silage with a small amount of oats and bran produced lambs weighing 8.02 pounds at birth and all strong and healthy. Ewes fed clover hay alone for roughage with some corn, oats and bran produced lambs weighing 8.19 pounds, but cost 1.37 cents per day as compared to .78 cents per day for the silage lot. Ewes fed corn silage with clover hay and a little oats and bran produced lambs weighing 8.63 pounds, and the feed cost 1.02 cents per day.

These figures should be sufficient to show the high value of corn silage for breeding ewes. Moldy silage should not be fed.

Causes for Abortion in Brood Sows Are Traced

It is now known that abortion in sows is caused by a germ practically identical with the one that causes contagious abortion in cows. The germ has been found in the aborted pigs, afterbirth, discharges from the sow, and even in her first milk. A sow that has once aborted may remain infected but carry pigs full time and yet spread infection in her vaginal discharges. Her blood and that of any sow or gilt affected with the disease, whether abortion has occurred or not, will be likely to respond to the laboratory tests by which the infection is detected.

The infection is contracted by healthy gilts and sows eating feed contaminated by vaginal discharges of an affected sow, or devouring afterbirths or aborted pigs. The herd boar may become infected but may throw the disease off in about two months. A sow becomes infected in about twenty-four days after eating infected feed. The average period of pregnancy at which abortion occurs is 65 days. It may occur as early as 24 days and as late as 90 days.

Abundant Exercise Most Important for the Jack

Many rules in the care of stallions apply to Jacks as well. Abundant exercise is, if possible, more important for the Jack because of his sluggish nature. In addition to the exercise possible in a roomy box stall and a large paddock, some road work is almost necessary. Kindness and firmness in handling the young Jack determine his disposition and to a large extent his future usefulness.

More and more, in recent years, we are seeing the erection of homes which measure up to the best American traditions. It is not that they are growing larger, for modern living conditions seem to favor the smaller house; but there is no denying the fact that there has arisen a more critical standard of what constitutes good taste.

No one could accuse the owner of this handsome dwelling of anything approaching extravagance in building and living in it. Could they? It seems a simple, unobtrusive place, such as you might find occupied by the town bank.

Floor Plan.

er or business man. Yet the average workman need not find it beyond his means, either.

No, it simply has been well designed and built; that is all. We look at its well-balanced exterior, at the symmetrical gabling of the porch, the distinctive touch of the little pergola decoration above the middle window, the pergola at the side, extending from the terrace over the driveway—all have been so well thought out that they add their attractiveness to the whole, making it complete and pleasing to the eye.

There are seven rooms. The recessed porch leads directly into the living room, which extends the whole width of the house, with a fireplace at the end, and the windows set at proper distances, so that there is excellent wall backgrounding for the proper display of pictures and furniture. Separating it from the dining room is a colonnaded double doorway, making the whole interior view here extremely pleasing with the French windows and doors of the dining room opening onto the outer pergola terrace.

By a very good hall arrangement we have convenient access to every bedroom, and yet they are isolated from the rest of the house. The kitchen is reached across this same hall, and one can safely assume that the cooking odors will never be too obvious in the dining room of this house. While it is small, the kitchen is very efficiently arranged. The sink is by a double window, with cabinet shelving at one end; immediately behind is the range, and the pantry has the ice box so placed as to enable outside lading from the rear hallway.

Throughout the house there is ample provision made for closet space. A good housewife knows that she can never have too many of these. There are six, all told, the one in the dining room especially being very handy.

This house is in such simple good taste exteriorly that it would be a shame to have its interior cluttered with nondescript, ill-chosen furnishings. Bear in mind that, if it is an inexpensive house to build, it is as less expensive to furnish well and pleasingly. The simple Colonial patrician furniture now so much in vogue do not cost much, and would fit in well here; spindle and splat-backed chairs, maybe a longish table for the long living room, and a cozy upholstered chair to flank the fireplace on either side. The wall paper should not be too obvious; by staying close to neutral grays, tans, gray-browns and creams, one would not go far wrong. The woodwork could be white enamel, or the wood could be stained lightly and then varnished or waxed.

Increase Egg Production by Efficient Henhouses

The raising of poultry is one important factor in the solution of the farm meat problem not only to furnish a change from pork and beef in the winter but to take the place of the smoked or cured meats which are ordinarily used during the warm weather. Eggs also form an important part of the diet.

Every poultry raiser should endeavor to maintain egg production throughout the year. Under natural conditions hens lay most in the spring as they get out in the open air and sunlight. Keeping hens in the dark, cold poultry houses practically stops egg production from November to February.

However, through the use of a concrete poultry house, W. H. Gardner, an Illinois poultry raiser was able to maintain spring rating output in his poultry flock throughout the winter. The increased egg production has many times repaid him the amount invested. His house shown in the illustration is 16 feet wide and 80 feet long. The front wall is five feet high and the rear wall five feet six inches. The low walls help conserve the heat given off by the fowls. This house has a south exposure with practically all windows and other openings on the south side. Plenty of sunlight leads death to disease germs. Concrete construction permits the most complete sanitation because the house can vary easily be cleaned and kept clean. It goes without saying that rats cannot gnaw through nor find nesting place in the concrete house. The smooth dry, concrete floor, walls and foundation provide no cracks nor crevices to harbor lice, mites or other parasites, which cause the poultryman so much worry and loss.

Mr. Gardner's experience with his poultry house shows that increased egg production from a flock of 400 fowls amounts to sufficient to pay for the house in four months.

Scaly Leg of Chickens Is Very Common Ailment

Scaly leg of chickens is a very common condition in the farm flock and one that causes considerable loss in the egg basket. It is caused by the boring of a small mite into the flesh of the feet and legs, causing a secretion which hardens on the legs, forming scales.

The mites are embedded in the flesh of the legs and feet and in order to kill them they must be treated with a penetrating oil.

The best treatment is the constant application of an ointment made of 1 part of oil of caraway to 5 parts of petroleum jelly. Use until the legs are clean. Another method is to take a quart can full of kerosene and dip the legs to within an inch of the knees in the oil. Great care should be exercised in preventing any of the oil from getting on the feathers as it will blister the skin underneath.

The mite that gives the most trouble is found where fowls are confined on dry barren runs, or on soils filled with ashes or cinders.

Selecting Varieties to Start New Chicken Flock

In selecting varieties to start a new flock, fancy breeds are usually let alone by any one who does not make a business or a pastime of poultry-keeping. It is pleasant for a person who keeps but a dozen or twenty hens to have them of some choice breed, and to take great pains with them; studying into their habits, their "points", and all that. But few persons have either the taste or inclination to be successful breeders; so, as a rule, it is best to keep common or mixed breeds, but a full-blooded cock of one of the best breeds.

Often the solicitation does not contain the street addresses of the advertising firm and then the customer's order is subjected to the same directory service and resultant delay which befall that of the advertiser. Any business or commercial house knows that the delay to an order means cancellation, as well as the loss of future business. Moral: Put your street address plainly, not only on all letter-heads and envelopes, but on newspaper and magazine advertising.

The reaction of a customer to the return for a better address of an important order can easily be imagined. If he knows another firm handling the same commodity he does not attempt to locate the one to which he first sent the order.

Many of the largest and most progressive firms in the country have long since realized that while at one time, to appear street-addressless may have given an air of importance, this condition no longer exists. Accordingly their exact locations now are registered on order blanks, letter heads envelopes and on all advertising.

Recently a list was selected at random disclosing that 281 business houses were using stationery upon which no address was to be found other than the city in which they functioned, and in some cases even this was missing. These firms represented the entire category of business, their products ranging from "accelerators" to zithers.

It is felt that a great public service can be rendered in reducing the enormous extent of this careless and expensive practice. The cooperation of chambers of commerce, boards of trade and civic organizations, and publicity by the press, can go a long way toward relieving the postal service of this unnecessary drain and the result will be the saving of countless sums to American business.

BEFORE AND AFTER ELECTION.

Says the Ishpeming Iron Ore: During the campaign, some of the men who are seeking votes, and who very much want the job they are seeking, are pronounced in their claims as to what they are doing to do when they take their seats as representatives. You will recall how Mr. Ferris, the good gray governor, (due to the mistake of republicans) when he was campaigning about Michigan told what he was going to do if elected. He was going to make his voice heard in the halls of congress, to tell the world his ideas as to the handling of the government. He was not going to hide his talk under a bushel, but was to unleash it and let it be heard in the correcting of the many evils that were stalking through the land. He believed in talk when it was well directed and when the need was not so great as at present.

Mr. Ferris was elected some time ago, elected as we say, through the mistake of republicans of Michigan. Has anyone heard his voice in or out of congress since he took his seat in the senate? He has been as dumb as an oyster, and if there are things stalking through the country and needing reform he isn't putting in any time complaining about them. He appears to be content in keeping glued tightly to his chair and drawing his salary. He votes against the republicans who elected him every time the roll is called and when questions are decided on party majorities, he comes under the crack of the whip of the democratic leader just like all the other democrats, and if he has a mind of his own he keeps it under lock and key. Mr. Ferris works along the lines of least resistance, which means no resistance to the democratic body. He is just occupying space and is making no history. He may be a crackerjack as a school man but as a United States senator he is merely a tombstone. He did all his talking in the campaign.

And then there is our old friend Magnus Johnson of Minnesota, elected by his many friends to turn the world upside down and to let congress know where the mainspring of the nation was located. Magnus wound it up and let it run down in the political campaign that selected him. He boasted that when he got into the White House he was going to change the color of its paint, with suggestions that it might be made vermilion. "Just wait until I get there, and the country will hear from me," said Magnus. He made a few talks to small gatherings in some of the cities, his speeches being written for him, but congress has not heard him. His springs have dried up. He can vote with LaFollette, and that's about all. He hasn't brought an idea of the millions he had in his hand when he went there. The only act he has committed to get his name in print was when he engaged in a milking contest with the secretary of labor and was benten to a frazzle. So Magnus isn't even a good milker, and milkers are very prominent in congress. So he has lost caste there. He had his picture taken in all landscapes before he took his seat. On the farm he was shown as a great pitcher of hay and a snwyer of wood, and a milker of cows, and a soil heater that was as Samson in his power, but that was all for political purposes. Magnus has been proved a dub as a milker and he has very likely been much over-estimated in the other things for which much was claimed for him. In congress he has been dumb, merely siding in with a little handful of insurgents who seek to block all manner of legislation the republicans are trying to enact for the public good. Minnesota, like Michigan, will soon learn the mistake of electing opponents of progress to office and will select men from their own ranks for the doing of work that is much needed. These fellows who were elected by people who thought they were superior to the nominees on their own tickets, now have a chance to take a look and learn their mistake. Electing a democrat on a republican ticket weather changes for the better.

is just blowing the fuse connecting the country with prosperity.

INTERESTING BITS OF INFORMATION CLIPPED FROM OUR EXCHANGES

A Houghton man has been fined $85 for hitting a college president, but at other places in the state last month cut rates were in effect.

A car reported missing at Lansing was found by the police in 50 minutes, but the owner enjoyed the thought of getting the insurance that long, anyway.

"I have no idea that the legislature would accomplish much if it was enrolled back," declares Governor Groesbeck. How do people get these strange ideas?

A student at Ann Arbor owns 1,100 phonograph records, and claims this is the best private collection of records in the state. Everyone will probably admit his claim, if only he will promise not to try to prove it.

A science club in the Kalamazoo Normal has decided to expel from membership any student who is caught cribbing. No such student should expect to remain in the club anyway, as cribbing is an art, not a science.

An Ionia inventor is said to have patented a device to prevent catching the fingers in the doors of automobiles. A motto reading, "Let your wife close the door," has been the only device we have needed to protect our fingers thus far.

The skull and hide of "The Black Wolf of Ontonagon," which was believed to be half dog has been sent to the U. of M. for examination, and sound opinion seems to favor the idea that the animal was really half dog, and that the other half was too.

A 90-year-old Leslie man has retired from gainful labor but spends his time cultivating tobacco for his own use, and rolling his own cigars. Probably those who smell the cigars attribute his long life to the fact that he hasn't been doing this very long.

Farmers in Western Michigan report that now the snow is so deep, many flocks of quails are living in their barns and being well fed. And, should the farmers become short of food, we feel sure no honorable quail would refuse to do as much for them.

The children of today, according to a Bay City lecturer, would be much better off "if they followed in the footsteps of their fathers." Well, we know of some who have been trying hard enough, feeling that they really must find and bring the old man home.

A Jackson man who is accused of entering many homes in the absence of the owners and taking one or two dollars from each will be given a sanity test. If it is found he was trying to get enough varieties to make an old-fashioned front parlor, however, a criminal charge may be brought.

A bridge tender has been employed at Grand Haven for 10 years, and in all that time the bridge has been swung only once, and then not to allow a boat to pass, but to see whether the bridge would work. Is there an opportunity here for some honest, hard-working young man to secure a place as assistant?

An Ypsilanti man who is spending the winter in Florida sends home a picture of the 10-foot alligator which he captured. Only the alligator was shown, as it seems there wasn't room on the film for the tarpon which was trying to swallow it at the time.

A Grand Ledge woman, 74 years old, danced last week at the fiftieth anniversary of her own wedding. We understand that women of that age often insist on danceling, saying scornfully that they have quite outgrown ring-around-the-rosie and drop-the-handkerchief.

A citizen of Genesee county denounces the plan to erect a $1,000,000 court house, declaring it will take the bread and butter out of the mouths of women and children. And then, a beauty expert tells us, they would fatten terribly by confining themselves to cake and pie.

More than 100 cars were stuck in snow drifts within half a mile of work that is much needed. These fellows who were elected by people who thought they were superior to the nominees on their own tickets, now have a chance to take a look and learn their mistake. Electing a democrat on a republican ticket weather changes for the better.

HOSPITAL AUXILIARY NOTES

Mrs. Roger Spreyer of Ellsworth, was operated on Monday for removal of her appendix. She is getting along nicely.

Mrs. Elmer Ingalls, who was admitted to the hospital in a serious condition Tuesday, was operated on this morning for appendicitis and is now doing as well as can be expected.

George Glados who was operated on last week for appendicitis is getting along in good shape.

We hasten to correct an error in last week's notes. We stated that Thomas Covey had submitted to five operations for goitre all on the same day. The item should have read that Mr. Covey's operation was one of five operations taking place at the hospital on that day. Our sincere apologies to the doctor.

Miss Myrtle Newman of the hospital nursing staff accompanied Miss Bertha Larsen to Grand Rapids last Monday.

Powder Recommended to Kill Vermin in Winter

When animals are troubled with vermin, dip them in a bath of commercial coal-tar dip made and used according to directions given by the manufacturer. In winter dust infested parts of skin with powdered pyrethrum, flowers of sulphur and tobacco. Powdered sabindilla is effective for lice of cattle, but is poisonous if licked off. Blinnet animals after applying above powders. Use fluoride of sodium on poultry.

Making Most Rapid and Economical Pork Gains

Too many people think that all that is necessary to fatten a hog is to give him all the corn he wants. This system requires more time and greater cost than when fed a balanced ration. Experiments and practical experience have shown that the most rapid and economical gains are made when corn is supplemented with some feed rich in animal protein.

DAIRY FACTS

Give Strict Attention to Feeding Dairy Cows

"In order to get economical production, farmers must pay strict attention to the feeding of their dairy cattle during the winter months, for feeding comprises more than one-half the cost of producing milk," says the dairy specialist at the New Jersey State College of Agriculture. "Home-grown feeds are the cheapest feeds the dairyman can get, and roughages, even at the high price of hay, are the cheapest of home-grown feeds. Alfalfa, clover and corn silage are the best milk producers; yet mixed hay and stalks can be fed to advantage if they are present on the farm.

"Those who have a supply of corn ears are fortunate. Corn and cob meal should furnish the basis of the ration. By the purchase of bran or oats and a few high protein concentrates a good milk-making ration can be compounded according to the following recommended proportions: Ten pounds of alfalfa or clover hay, 30 pounds of corn silage with all the bright stalks the cow will clean up daily, together with 600 pounds of corn and cob meal, 300 pounds of bran or oats, 200 pounds of gluten, 100 pounds of cottonseed meal, and 100 pounds of oil meal. The cost of this mixture will vary, depending upon local prices.

"If neither alfalfa nor clover hay is available it will be necessary to double the amount of linseed or cottonseed meal. If no silage or succulent feed is being fed, linseed meal should be substituted for the cottonseed meal. It is advisable also to feed beet pulp at the rate of three pounds per cow if silage is not available. The beet pulp should be fed when in a soaked condition.

"There is a distinction between cottonseed meal and cottonseed feed. Cottonseed feed contains a large proportion of hulls and has a very inferior feeding value, and should not be purchased if cottonseed meal can be bought.

"It is always poor economy to underfeed dairy stock; feed them enough to keep them in a good, thrifty condition. Cows in milk should be fed all the roughage they will eat, and, in addition, one pound of grain daily for each three and one-half pounds of milk they give each day."

Supply of Oyster Shell Is Essential to Fowls

A constant supply of oyster shells or limestone grit is essential to the most profitable egg production. Recent tests in Ohio show that when the hens were denied oyster shells egg production was greatly reduced and the eggs averaged two ounces per dozen smaller.

The experiments showed that minerals in the feed are essential for growing birds and for the bodily functions of mature birds, while laying hens require additional lime supplied in the form of shells or grit.

Eggs in Severe Weather.

With the first hard cold spell, hens may drop down in egg production. After they have become hardened to weather conditions, however, one may expect satisfactory results from them even in the severest months if they are made comfortable.

Bulky Feed for Ducks.

Ducks require more bulky food than chickens and for that reason should be fed hulled vegetable, steamed green clover or alfalfa and other such vegetable foods in their rations.

MANY CHANGES TAKE PLACE

NO. ANTRIM ASSN. COMPLETES FIRST SIX MONTHS.

Addition of Registered Stock Clearly Shows Gain in Butterfat Production.

The North Antrim Cow-Testing Association finished its first six months of service February 9th. Many changes have taken place during this short time and several achievements worthy of mention have been noticed.

Probably the most important was the recent importation of 12 head of registered Jerseys last December. These few cows cannot be expected to completely alter the dairy situation from a production standpoint this year or next year, but their presence is certainly felt and they are slowly but surely arousing the dairyman's attitude, attention and interest towards the great possibilities of maintaining better cows and incidentally securing larger returns.

Again, in this period 24 cows have been disposed of for beef or as unprofitable cows to keep. These same cows, if it had not been for the cow-testing association, would probably still be fed, housed and cared for at their owner's expense and their offspring raised in the same manner. Strange as it may seem, however, flowers, words of sympathy and sorrow did not attend these funerals, and the card of thanks was quite unnecessary. In addition there are many more cows at present spotted and tagged for the block.

During these six months four registered sires have been purchased and placed at the head of herds. The sire is half the herd—then why isn't it good, sound logical reasoning to invest in a worthy individual, one having known production back of him, and one able to improve your herd?

Also over a dozen and a half milk scales have been purchased recently by the dairymen in and around Ellsworth alone.

At present the different breeds of cows in the association are as follows: Fifty-one Jerseys, 31 Guernseys, 129 Holsteins, 62 Durhams and 36 whose breed affiliation cannot be ascertained. Included in this list are 29 registered cows and in addition 10 registered sires.

On an average there have been 298 cows on test each month and each cow producing 433 pounds of milk and 17.98 pounds of butterfat at an average test of 4.16 per cent monthly. With this average, out of some 75 cow-testing associations in the state, our association has come as close to successfully holding down the cellar position as any could and not do it. The two biggest reasons for this state of affairs are:

First—There are too many Durham cows in this association and as a dairy animal they make a much better choice of beef steak generally speaking, although as in everything else there are exceptions to the rule. It takes a good Durham herd to average 200 pounds of fat per cow for the year, while with the dairy herds we expect 300 pounds in the same length of time and on same coat of feed. Then, too, there are too many cows that are a mixture of several different breeds. Where there is one cow of one distinct breed, there are five that carry two or more different blood lines.

Second—The bulk of the dry cows come during January, February and March, when for highest production and greatest returns they should come during the months of August, September and October. The records for this association show 29 dry cows during August, September and October, while during November, December and January there were 175, nearly twice as many. Also during the first three months the average price of cream was approximately 44 cents per pound, while during the second three months it was 51 cents. Again when does the dairyman have the most time to spend in caring for his stock? What are your conclusions?

Each cow returned a net profit of $3.76. This multiplied by six months shows that each cow in the highest herd has made $22.56 more money than each cow in the low herds. Yet there are those who positively know a good cow when they see one, without having her tested and recorded. Ernest Loch leads the association at its half-way mark on a 4-4 average. His six pure bred and grade Jerseys have averaged 31.01 pounds of butterfat per cow per month.

Earl Burns is second with his nine grade Guernseys, making 23.91 pounds of fat. George Drenth is third with eight Holsteins at 23.08. Next in order are J. W. Drenth, John Hennep, Hitchcock Stock Farm, John Tornga, S. B. Anway, Chas. Snyder and Russell Burns.

The high cows in net profits for the six months are as follows: Ernest Loch, 1st with cow making $79.33; John Hennep next at $48.75; Leonard Bush 3rd at $48.20; next comes Earl Burns, Herman Heeres, Hitchcock Stock Farm and Russell Burns.

The high cows in butterfat production for same length of time are as follows: Ernest Loch 1st with a cow producing 301.8 pounds of fat, D. H. Brat 2nd at 198.1. John Hennep 3rd at 194.8, and next in order appear D. H. Brat again, F. H. Hemstreet, Hitchcock Stock Farm (two cows), and Ernest Loch with another cow.

During the month of January 309 cows were on test, of which 76 were dry. Each cow produced 434 pounds of milk, 17.6 pounds of butterfat, at an average test of 4.06 per cent, and $1.80 net profit. This is a slight increase over the previous month.

Twenty-five cows produced over 1000 pounds of milk, 12 over 1250 pounds of milk, 24 over 40 pounds of butterfat, five over 50 pounds of fat. Fifteen members keep daily milk records and all members are feeding grain.

F. H. Hemstreet had the highest cow, a pure bred Holstein, making 64.6 pounds of butterfat. Next Tony Shooks with a mixture at 64.1 pounds of butterfat. Next George Drenth with a grade Holstein at 53.7 pounds. 4th, Herman Heeres with a grade Holstein at 51.3 pounds. 5th, Henry Vanderslik with a Jersey mixture at 50.8 pounds. Next in order are John Doctor, D. H. Brat, John Doctor and D. H. Brat—last two men each having two high cows.

The high herd average are as follows: D. H. Brat, 1st, with his nine Holsteins, each cow producing 29.93 pounds of fat, 999 pounds of milk, test 3.00 per cent and $4.51 net profit. Earl Burns next with nine Guernseys making 28.17 pounds of fat, 592 pounds of milk, test 4.76 per cent and $6.94 net profit. Edward Tillotson 3rd, with five cows producing 26.84 pounds of fat, 737 pounds of milk, at test of 3.68 per cent and net profits $6.67. Next in order are S. B. Anway, John Doctor, George Drenth, Chas. Snyder, Peter Wieland, Ernest Loch and F. H. Hemstreet, Burton C. Mellencamp, Cow-Tester.

The KITCHEN CABINET

(© 1923, Western Newspaper Union)

How many things, both just and unjust, are sanctioned by custom.

LAUNDRY DISCOVERIES

When ironing lace, embroidered garments or bedding or any kind of initials or hand work, have a piece of an old Turkish towel fastened to one end of the ironing board to lay these pieces on.

Heavy, well-made laundry baskets are expensive, but bushel baskets may be bought for a few cents and two or three of them kept just for the clothing. They are light, easy to carry and one may have as many as convenient.

When recovering your ironing board use two thicknesses of cotton batting. If you haven't an old blanket to pad it. When sending handkerchiefs to the laundry fasten them to a strip of tape and they will always come back together. The ironing is but a few moments' work.

With a small line on the piazza for hanging small things and baby clothes, the doll clothespins are just the size to hang them firmly on the cord.

When drying a washed sweater in winter lay it on a cloth on a window screen; place on two chairs over a hot air register. Lay the sweater so that it will dry in its original form (flat in the back and the fullness in front) pulling out the sleeves to make them roomy.

In cold weather when hanging out clothes mittens are unhandy and the fingers get numb so quickly. Try heat-lag the clothespins in the oven until good and hot—this will keep the hands warm and hurry the hanging process. Sprinkle clothes with hot water and they may be ironed within a few minutes.

Net curtains may be washed, slipped onto a rod top and bottom and hung to dry. They will dry perfectly straight and even. Pull the heading with the fingers when nearly dry and they will look as if they had been carefully stretched.

Add a bit of paraffin to the boiled starch when making it. This will keep it from sticking to the iron. Always save all bits of broken paraffin from jelly glasses, a piece the size of a small bean is sufficient for two quarts of starch.

"THE DANCE OF THE SPIRITS" AN EXQUISITE AIR

Gluck's Masterpiece Is "Orpheus and Eurydice"—Homer is Hus. Band of Diva

The Music Memory Contest numbers for this week, nine and ten, are "Dance of the Spirits," by Gluck and "Banjo Song" by Homer.

Gluck

Christopher Gluck (1714-1787)

was born in Bavaria, but was a cosmopolitan in life and character. He wrote many operas, all on classical subjects, but Orpheus and Eurydice is his masterpiece. It may be called the grandfather of grand opera, being the oldest piece of its kind now used. It was played for the first time over one hundred and fifty years ago.

The story concerns the Greek poet who grieves over the death of his wife and finally decides to enter Pluto's realms and search for her among the departed spirits. You may read this interesting story in the Victor opera book at the high school.

"The Dance of the Spirits," sometimes called "Happy Spirits," is a ballet number and the music is exquisite in its delicacy and grace.

Homer

Sidney Homer, one of the foremost of American song writers, was born in Boston in 1864. He was a teacher there for some time and one of his pupils was his wife, the now well-known and much admired opera contralto, Louise Homer. They live in New York and have a daughter who has inherited a wonderful voice and musical talent. Homer is a composer of songs of an unusual type. He sometimes plays the accompaniments for Mrs. Homer and for his daughter.

The "Banjo Song" is one of a group of five songs, "Bandanna Balads," dedicated to Mrs. Homer. In this song an old colored man says that he lets the strings down into his heart and they draw up tunes that he plays for the one he loves. Superstition is present and weird charm.

Standard Varieties of Our American Chickens

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture)

The standard varieties of chickens belonging to the American class are described in detail in a recent revision of one of the series of bulletins by the United States Department of Agriculture under the general title, Standard Varieties of Chickens. The breeds now classed as American are the Plymouth Rock, Wyandotte, Java, Dorking, Rhode Island Red, Rhode Island White, Buckeye, Jersey Black Giant, and Chantecler.

The chickens of these several breeds are commonly called general purpose fowls as they are usually good egg producers and yield carcasses well suited to the table. They are especially well suited for farm flocks and include some of the most popular varieties in the country. Birds of this type are in great favor with poultry packers. They lay brown-shelled eggs and have yellow skins.

In size most of these breeds are intermediate between the smaller egg breeds, such as the Leghorns, and the larger meat breeds, such as the Brahmas. The Jersey Black Giants, however, are about as large as the meat breeds. Most of these American breeds are less active than the strictly egg breeds, but they are more active than the heavy klasses and are good foragers.

The Chantecler, which is a recent addition to the Standard, is well adapted to extremely cold regions because of its small comb and wattles and its heavy, closely feathered plumage.

Copies of this Farmers' Bulletin 1347 may be obtained without charge as long as the supply lasts, by addressing the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Trace Poultry Diseases to Dampness in Houses

As winter approaches more trouble will be experienced in the health of the fowls than during the summer months. It is true that the young chicks are often overcome with bowel trouble and diarrhea, by cold, dampness and poor feeding. Scaly legs, which are a scourge in many poultry yards, can be traced absolutely to filth, damp quarters and neglect. Roup, caaker, consumption and sore eyes may all be traced to dampness, cold draughts blowing through the houses and unnatural exposure to inclement weather. Nothing causes the ailment as quickly as damp, unhealthy poultry houses in which the fowls are compelled to stay.

Diphtheria, canker and roup are all kindred diseases, which can directly be blamed upon those having charge of the fowls. If the birds have comfortable, dry houses, properly ventilated, with sanitary conditions, there is little danger of these ailments, unless they are caught by coming in contact with other ailing birds. Rheumatism, gout and leg weakness are usually blameable upon hereditary conditions, inbreeding or unhealthy, damp quarters.

Poor Ventilation Will Weaken Poultry Flock

Give the layers the same air they would get if they were roosting out in the trees, but protect them from the wet and wind.

Too low houses or restricted roosting closets are liable to limit the amount of pure air as well as cause the breathing and rebreathing of foul air. It is well to consider this in the use of cloth curtains for the roosting quarters.

Disease and weakness follow in the wake of impure air. That means the vitality of the laying stock will be lowered, which, in turn, diminishes the normal egg yield.

PASSED AWAY AT HER SON'S FLORIDA HOME

Mrs. John F. Smith Dies Very Suddenly In The South

Mrs. John F. Smith, an old resident of this city, passed away Sunday, February 10th, at the home of her son, George W. Smith at Holly Hill, Fla.

Mrs. Smith accompanied her husband and son, George W. and family to Florida, leaving Charlevoix a few weeks ago. They traveled by automobile over the entire distance. At the time she left, Mrs. Smith was apparently in good health and for some time after reaching her destination.

The deceased was seventy years of age. She was born in Maumee, Ohio, and was married to John F. Smith in January, 1872, in Detroit, where they lived for five years, moving to Traverse, which was their home from 1877 to 1883. In 1883 they came to Charlevoix and had resided here continuously for the past forty years.

Besides her husband and son, George W. Smith at whose winter home in Florida she breathed her last, Mrs. Smith left no other surviving relatives. Definite information regarding the funeral has not as yet reached us.

EVELINE RESIDENT DIED SUNDAY NOON

John Lyngklip Victim of Bright's Disease at 35

John Lyngklip, a well-known Eveline township resident and son of Mr. and Mrs. Ole J. Lyngklip, died very suddenly at his home, at 11:45 a. m., Sunday, February 17th. He was sitting up in a chair at the time and the doctor, F. F. McMillan of Charlevoix, was present.

Mr. Lyngklip had been for about ten or eleven years a sufferer from Bright's disease and was about thirty-five years old at the time of his death.

Besides his father and mother, the deceased leaves two brothers, Emil of Chicago and Ole of Detroit, both of whom are now here and will be present at the funeral which takes place at one o'clock today at the Ole Lyngklip home, Rev. LEGION PRESENTS GOOD ARGUMENT

ADJUSTED COMPENSATION ACT VS. LOWER TAXES

Mellon's Own Figures Disprove His Statement That The Above Are In Conflict

For years, the American Legion advocated the enactment of a law to adjust the compensation of the men who served in the armed forces of the United States during the World War. In its stand in favor of adjusted compensation, the Legion has often been denied the same privileges of expression that have been granted the opponents of the measure. The following, from data collected by the National Legislative Committee of the Legion, presents briefly and accurately the underlying principle of the bill, the effect the bill will have when enacted into law, the nature of the bill and the character and fallacies of the opposition to the bill.

The base pay of the enlisted man in the military service in the World War was $30 a month. From this, in the majority of cases, was deducted $15.00 for allotment to dependents and $6.50 for insurance, leaving a balance of $8.50 of actual monthly remuneration for the most hazardous work on earth. Out of this small sum, more than eighty per cent of the men in uniform bought Liberty bonds on the installment plan. At the same time, ordinary unskilled workers were drawing from $5 to $10 a day; skilled workers drew $7 to $25 a day. The soldier had to pay for his own workmen's compensation insurance—a payment which is made obligatory on the employer and not the employee in early every state of America.

The soldier came home and found.

—Congress paying manufacturers three billion dollars for profits they might have made on war contracts terminated by the armistice.

—Congress paying a bonus of $240 a year to each of 150,000 civil employees of the government because of the increased cost of living during the war. These bonuses are still being paid.

—Congress paying the railroads $1,696,000,000 in compensation for loss of profits in war.

—Congress giving the soldier himself just sixty dollars.

From this the veteran was expected to—

1. Buy himself a new outfit of civilian clothes.

2. Pay off the load of war debts accumulated by his family.

3. Pay his rent and food bills while hunting a job.

Congress, after consulting with the American Legion, decided upon an adjusted compensation bill providing a service credit of $1 day for home service and $1.25 a day for overseas service. From this credit is deducted the $60 "bonus" paid each man on discharge. The maximum credit is $500 for home service and $625 for home and foreign service.

1. The Adjusted Service Pay. Men who served 110 days or less and therefore would receive $50 or less are to be paid in cash. They are the only veterans to be paid in cash. The total cost of compensation is this group will be $16,000,000. This provision was inserted purely as a measure of administrative economy.

2. The Adjusted Service Certificate.

OFFICIAL CALL FOR G. O. P. CO. CONVENTION

To the Republican Voters of Charlevoix County:

The Republican County Committee directs that a County Convention of the delegated representatives of the Republican Party of Charlevoix County be held in the City of Boyne City, County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan, on Wednesday, the 23rd day of April, 1924 at ten o'clock, central standard time, in the forenoon, for the purpose of electing six delegates and six alternates to the Republican State Convention to be held in Grand Rapids, Michigan on Wednesday, May 7th, 1924 and for the transaction of such other business as may properly come before the convention.

cate. The majority of veterans will accept this insurance compensation. It offers the veteran a paid up endowment policy maturing in 20 years. The face value of the policy is equal to the service credit plus 25 per cent plus interest at 4 1-2 per cent compounded annually. This makes the value in 20 years, or in the event of death 3.015 times the service credit. The policy cannot be transferred to any other person. During the first three years, the policy may be used as collateral for a bank loan in case of necessity. The decision whether or not to make the loan rests solely with the banker. After three years, the Government will loan a percentage of the certificate's value.

3. Vocational Training Aid. This feature offers Government aid in education that was interrupted by the war. The veteran will get $1.75 for every day of service credit.

4. Farm or Home Aid. This offers aid in building, buying, improving or paying debts on a farm or home. The veteran will receive the amount of his service credit, plus 25 per cent.

There is now a surplus of $213,000,000 in the Treasury of the United States.

TWO GRENADIERS IS AN ART SONG

SCHUMANN, ITS AUTHOR, FATHER OF TECHNIQUE

Grainger, Australian and Veteran of the A. E. F., Called "Play-boy of Music"

"The Two Grenadiers," by Schumann and "Shepherd's Hey," by Grainger are numbers eleven and twelve of the Music Memory contest.

Schumann Robert Schumann, who lived from 1810 to 1856, was born in Saxony. By the time he was eight years old, he composed dances for his little friends. He studied law to please his mother, but preferred music.

He was the founder of piano technique, showing the possibilities of the piano. "The Two Grenadiers" is a remarkable and stirring song for, besides being a perfect example of the art-song, it has a national expression because of the Marseillaise Hymn used in it by the two soldiers returning to France after their release from captivity in Russia. Popular today as ever.

Grainger Percy Grainger, composer and concert pianist, was born in Melbourne, Australia, in 1892.

During the world war, he enlisted in the U. S. Army and played in an army band, afterwards becoming an American citizen. He conducted his composition, "Mock Morris," in London when he was twenty-four years old and spent one summer with Greig. He is called "the play-boy of music" because of his joyous and buoyant vitality which appears in his compositions and his playing. "Shepherd's Hey" is rich in the tradition of the old time morris dance and is truly English. "Hey" signifies a particular figure of the morris dance—a dance pageant that has flourished in England from the Tudor times until now. It is gay and festive and we can imagine that we hear the shuffling feet of the merry-makers dancing on the green.

COMMUNITY HAS SUFFERED LOSS

MRS. INGALLS WAS A WOMAN OF EXCEPTIONAL CHARACTER

Her Sudden Passing Last Sunday Has Left Many Sorrow Hearts to Mourn Her

Mrs. Josephine Ingalls, wife of Elmer Ingalls of Rural Route No. 1, Charlevoix, died at the Charlevoix Hospital last Sunday evening from the effects of peritonitis, following an operation for the removal of a ruptured appendix. She was in her sixtieth year.

Mrs. Ingalls, who had been illing for some time, was finally brought to the hospital on Tuesday of last week and was operated on the following day. Little hopes were entertained of her recovery and the fears of relatives and friends were confirmed when she died Sunday, at 5:45 p. m.

Josephine Peterson was born in Zealand, near Copenhagen, Denmark, October 3, 1863. She came to this country with her parents when about six years of age, first residing in Racine, Wis., later removing to Ypsilanti, Mich. She was married to Elmer Ingalls twenty-six years ago last September. To this union was born but one child, Nellie, who is now a teacher in the Boyne City schools. The mother instinct was, however, strong in Mrs. Ingalls and she found time throughout a long and busy life as a farm housewife to extend a tender, maternal care to six motherless children, whom, in the (Continued on page 8.)

Smoldering Flams Threaten Their

The fire whistle blew at 11:30 last night for the first ward. The fire department responding with the chemical engine, found the trouble to be in the apartments occupied by P. D. Campbell and family over the Charlevoix Abstract & Engineering Company's offices in the R. N. Faulkner building.

It seems that Mr. and Mrs. Campbell, forced to be up and around at a late hour with the care of their child who is suffering with pneumonia, smelled smoke at about eleven o'clock but were unable to locate the source. Finally, at about half past eleven, Mr. Campbell convinced that the smoke was issuing from some point in the building called up the fire department.

The firemen got there promptly but were preceded by Charles Marshall, assistant chief, who had been summoned from a social gathering on the north side. Mr. Marshall, making a rapid investigation, discovered that the fire was in the partition near the outside wall on the second floor close to the ceiling where a metal stove pipe enters an outside chimney. A few moments use of the axe disclosed the fact that the blaze which had been smoldering for an hour or more was creeping towards the up (Continued on page 8.)

Beaver Island Doctor's Report to Lansing Shows This

That the efforts of various persons, both inhabitants of the Beavers and others, to secure regular resident medical service for the island colony were not without justification is evidenced by the following item taken from the editorial columns of one of Michigan's larger dailies, in an issue published some time ago.

"The first report of Dr. R. E. Palmer, the interne on Beaver Island, is on file at Lansing and is ample justification for the slight expense to which the state has been put in serving the tax-payers who are isolated over there. The doctor in the first fortnight has seen about thirty patients, some of whom are acutely ill. There are several streptococcal infections and cases of influenza. Navigation to the Beaver group is now closed and mail is forwarded more or less regularly from Cross Village by Indian runners. This occupation is full of risk because of the intense cold, shifting ice-floes and blinding snowstorms."

WEALTH OF MICH- IGAN INCREASES

GAIN OF 116.7 PER CENT SINCE
YEAR 1912

As Shown By Figures of Dec. 31, 1922—Everything Increased
But Live-Stock

The Department of Commerce announces, for the State of Michigan, its preliminary estimate of the value, December 31, 1922, of the principal forms of wealth, the total amounting to $1,340,150,000, as compared with $5,233,760,000 in 1912, an increase of 116.7 per cent. Per capita values increased from $1,806 to $2,883, or 59.6 per cent.

All classes of property increased in value from 1912 to 1922, except live stock, which decreased from $184,783,000 to $167,484,000, or 9.4 per cent. The estimated value of taxed real property and improvements increased from $2,809,378,000 to $5,275,505,000, or 87.8 per cent; exempt real property from $258,000,000 to $450,263,000 or 74.5 per cent; farm implements and machinery from $54,140,000 to $84,200,000, or 55.5 per cent; manufacturing machinery, tools, and implements from $199,266,000 to $331,778,000, or 31.7 per cent; and railroads and their equipment from $455,281,000 to $571,827,000 or 25.6 per cent. Privately owned transportation and transmission enterprises, other than railroads, increased in value from $268,202,000 to $412,679,000, or 65.1 per cent; and stocks of goods, vehicles other than motor, furniture, and clothing from $1,000,471,000 to $3,299,922,000, or 228.4 per cent. No comparison is possible for the value of motor vehicles, which was estimated in 1922 at $216,492,000, because no separate estimate was made in 1912.

In making these estimates the Department followed in general the methods employed in making the estimates for 1912, though it is believed that in some respects the work in 1922 has been more thorough. It should be borne in mind that the increases in money value are to a large extent due to the rise in prices which has taken place in recent years, and so far as that is the case they do not represent corresponding increases in the quantity of wealth. The estimated values of gold and silver coin and bullion, the vessels of the Navy, and privately owned waterworks will appear only in totals for the United States.

SPANIAROS TOOK SEED INTO PERU

ALFALFA FIRST APPEARED IN
U. S. IN 1854

Adapted to Wide Range of Conditions—An Almost Naturally Balanced Ration

County Agricultural Agent B. O. Hagerman has handed us a copy of the following open letter to the farmers of this county relative to a projected alfalfa campaign, which we are reproducing at his request:

"To The Farmers of Charlevoix County:

Preparatory to a campaign for more alfalfa, which will go hand in hand with the campaign for better dairy cows, I believe the following information regarding alfalfa, will be very interesting as well as instructive.

1—Introduced into the Americas by Pizarro and Almagro at the time of the Spanish invasion in Peru, spreading from thence to Chili and from there to what is now Argentina. Seed was brought from Chili to California in 1854.

2—Alfalfa is a Spanish word having its origin in the Arabic "Alfalfa," meaning "the best feed".

3—Alfalfa is adapted to a wide range of conditions being grown from sea level to altitudes reaching 7500 ft. in dry regions as well as those of copious rainfall and in tropical climates and those with very cold winters.

4—As a soiling crop it is unequalled among the legumes, conserves moisture, fixes free nitrogen from the air, and furnishes a large quantity of organic matter.

5—As a dairy ration it is almost naturally balanced. It contains the protein and minerals necessary for a large milk flow and the health of the dairy cow. From a dairy feeding standpoint when timothy hay is worth $7 per ton, clover hay would be worth about $20 and alfalfa hay about $30.

6—When combined with corn, barley, or speltz it will put the quickest and cheapest gain on hogs besides cutting the cost of concentrates in half. Horses, swine, dairy stock, and beef cattle thrive on it well, and well preserved alfalfa will furnish green feed for poultry in winter, enlarging the profits of egg production.

7—Alfalfa seed must be adapted to this climate if it is to be profitable in Charlevoix county. Northern grown certified Grim Hardigan, Montana Common (when it has a history of 10 or 15 years behind it) and the Lebeau (Michigan grown) furnish the best gets for Charlevoix growers. Do not take southern grown seed as a gift. Make your dealer show where your seed comes from and see that a proper guaranty accompanies it.

8—Alfalfa needs a FIRM seed bed. Fall plowing helps a lot to get it. The cultipacker is a very desirable tool. The spring tooth drag if put over the ground enough times will do the trick. One of our most successful growers says, "I drag my ground until I can always see my horses' shoes."

9—With a sweet fertile soil, a firm seed bed and adapted seed of high germination and purity, failure with alfalfa is practically unknown. Under these conditions it can be seeded along or with oats or barley any time from spring until the middle of August, when weather conditions are favorable with assurance of success.

10—The cultural practices herein suggested, and the feeding and soiling values apply to sweet clover as well as alfalfa. Sweet clover will stand under and furnish more pasture than alfalfa.

11—Upon the successful cultivation and use of alfalfa and sweet clover depends the building of any successful agricultural program in Charlevoix county. Our dairying, potato raising, corn and grain crops returns all depend on proper rotation with legumes and these are the two legumes which stand the best show for successful performances.

Therefore it behooves every farmer to make a close study of these plants, their life history, habits and requirements; also to strain every nerve to do things right because slipshod methods will not bring home the bacon.

The average production of all cows in the association (245) is 463 lbs. of milk and 17.5 lbs. of butter fat. This is the lowest average for the month in the history of the association. The low average is due to

Rat Trap and Dry Mash Feeder in Combination

A combination rat trap and dry-mash feeder is a rather novel addition to the poultry house. The feeder is a long box, 1 ft. 4 in. high and 1 foot wide, with a sloped and slatted top, through which the hens put their heads to eat during the day. To convert this into a rat trap, a 4-inch hole was bored in the end of the hopper, a short length of 4-inch stovepipe fastened in the hole, and a big tied over the other end of the pipe and spread out on the ground. A heavy board cover was hinged to the feed box; this was kept open by means of a hook during the day, but the hook was released, and a small prop with a string attached to it used at night. The string led away to a distant window so that the poultryman could pull it without entering the poultry house and disturbing the rats. A yank at the string let the cover drop and trapped the rats inside. Then, by bending on the cover with a stick, the rats were made to run through the hole, down the pipe, and into the bag, where a few blows killed them. As long as the hens ate from the feeder the rats never seemed suspicious.—L. Harris Hiscok, Skaneateles, N. Y., in Popular Mechanics Monthly.

Pay More Attention to Feeding Poultry Flock

With the coming of cool weather and higher prices for eggs, careful poultrymen pay more attention than ever to the feeding of their flocks, so egg production may start early and be maintained as long as possible. To help meet the demand for information on feeding, the college of agriculture at Ithaca has published a bulletin containing the ration it has found by experiment to be the most efficient. Directions for the use of these feeds and for the management of flocks are also discussed, two things which, in the words of the bulletin, are "as important as the mixtures themselves."

The amount of feed depends upon the appetites of the birds, and no definite rule for feeding will apply to all conditions. Scant feeding in the morning and at noon, followed by a heavy feeding of grain in the litter of the hen house early enough so the birds will find it before dark, has given best results. Green feed, oyster shell, and clean, fresh, pure water are also essential.

Equal parts by weight of mash and grain are fed; the former is made as follows for laying hens: 100 pounds each of wheat bran, wheat middlings, cornmeal, ground oats or ground barley, and meat scrap, and three pounds of salt. The grain mixture consists of 500 pounds of cracked corn, 200 pounds each of barley and wheat, and 100 pounds of heavy oats.

A copy of the bulletin will be sent to those who write to the college at Ithaca for E 45.

Important to Note Size and Shape of All Eggs

For those who are shipping eggs to special markets, it is important to watch the size and shape of the eggs as well as to see how many the hens are laying and what color they are. Too long an egg crushes from the top in shipping, and cuts down the receipts over a period of months; too wide an egg crushes from the side. Customers demand a fair amount of uniformity in size and shape, because it makes more attractive selling. They are willing to pay more for such quality.

The new breeder of today can make more money by breeding for egg quality than for more eggs," says an eastern authority. "Many who go in for producing more eggs overlook so many things. I recently saw a poultryman who had a number of hens with records up to 300 eggs per year each, and he had a flock of 200 average, but of nearly 100 eggs I saw, from as many different hens, not over 20 would pass for fancy eggs on the market and bring top price. Some would simply have gone as miscellaneous eggs; they were too small and tinted."

Day of Definite Methods.

The day for haphazard methods in breeding poultry has passed into the pages of history. This is the day of definite, accurate methods. The modern poultryman must know definitely the sire and dam of the birds he raises if he is to have their exact pedigree.

Pullets Lay in Winter.

Young stock that begins to lay in the fall of the year will usually lay throughout the winter, the period when eggs are highest in price.

COLONIAL STYLE BUNGALOW NICE

Five-Room Dwelling That Appeals on the Score of Utility and Attractiveness.

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 1827 Prairie avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only inclose two-cent stamp for reply.

Here is a simply designed bungalow which creates a most favorable impression in the beholder, principally because intelligent use has been made of simple structural elements. It is simple as to floor plan, being practically square, with the extension of a bedroom at the rear which could be eliminated if the bungalow were to serve a smaller family. The portico is one such as was a favorite with early American colonial builders, and no one can deny that it "dresses up" the entire bungalow in a satisfying way. Then, too, the small terrace below it is equipped with quaint side seats, and there are the long-janed windows with flower boxes below, which add yet another decorative touch to the exterior. The whole structure is finished in white, adding greatly to its pleasing appearance.

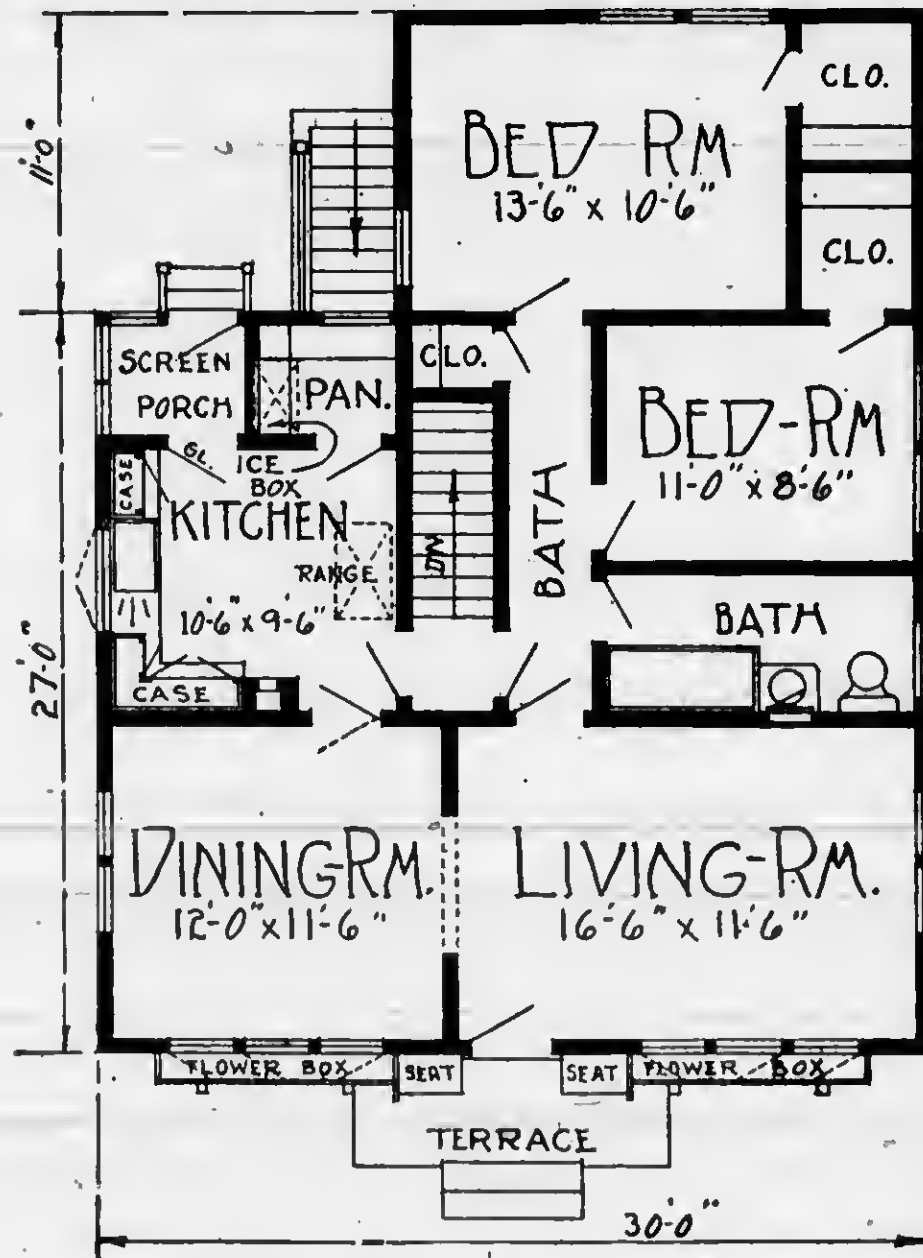

Inside we are directly in the living room. This is very well proportioned local carpenter to follow. In fact, a carpenter should feel stimulated by the well-balanced portico; it is so nicely balanced and proportioned that it would be a pleasure for him to do the simple joining and wood-working necessary to make it. Many of the better class of building material dealers are probably able to supply one so like it as to satisfy every requirement. The siding is laid a bit narrower than is common, to create the proper effect. The eaves are not enclosed or corbelled, and in their present places it might be well to have them boxed in. The roof could be laid with cedar or composition shingles, and a dark green or maroon color, or a variegated tone, would be very pleasing. Observe that the garage, if any, should match the general design of the bungalow to make the whole more pleasing.

The interior finishing of this house ought to carry out the simplicity and good taste of the exterior. We might reasonably expect a plain neutral wall finish in living room, dining room or kitchen, using the plain textured plastered effects now so much in vogue, tinting with paint and calcimine, or using wall paper. The woodwork could very well be finished in white or cream enamel, and the bedrooms could use some of those cheerful cretonne-looking wall paper patterns that go so well with a Colonial type of bedroom. Splay-backed chairs in the Windsor pattern and mahogany four-poster beds would go well here. As the house is small, over-stuffed furniture would not be suitable, except in one or two places, like a chair oravenport.

11 STATES IN NETHERLANDS
Where Rivers Are Above the People's Heads and Cities Below Sea Level.

The United Netherlands, familiarly known as Holland, the name of two of its 11 states, says a bulletin of the National Geographic society, "is a country where the rivers run, so to speak, over the heads of the inhabitants."

Populous cities rest below the level of the sea, which persistently clamors for admission. Cultivated fields are buried under unproductive sand and marshes are drained to become fertile gardens. Islands have been attached to the continent by ropes of sand.

"Holland, without quarries, has constructed stately buildings and substantial cities and faced miles of seacoast with protecting pavement; almost without timber, she has built navies which have dispirited the sea with the most powerful fleets."

Too Slow.

The young Londoner was taking his slow country cousin out to dinner at a French restaurant in Soho. "These," he said, as a dish was brought, "are snails."

"Oh," said the countryman, "we never get them in Sussex."

"No," said the Londoner, "of course not. You couldn't catch them."

LIVE STOCK NEWS

Most Economical to Keep
All Young Stock Growing

The colt or calf that is not allowed to stop growing during its first winter has a big advantage over the one that gets poor and loses weight. For this reason the horse in which size is such an important factor in determining its market value, or the calf to be sold or used for feeding purposes must be well wintered and kept growing all the time. The calf used for beef making is also probably the most profitable which is not allowed to lose its calf fat, but is made into baby beef by good feeding during the first winter and into the following spring and summer.

The feeding of baby beef, however, is too nearly the job of an expert for the average farmer. But if the calves are to be wintered and grazed the next summer and then fed during the second winter, it is still probably most economical to keep them growing the first winter on the right sort of home-grown feeds. Such stock should also have a fair allowance of silage and all the legume hay they will consume. If they have no silage, then the legume hay is all the more necessary. With a fair allowance of silage and all the legume hay they will eat a small grain ration will keep their frames growing and prevent their losing weight. That is, the amount of gain desired will determine the amount of concentrates to be given, but as a rule, if they are to go on good pasture the next summer to be finished the following winter, only enough concentrates to keep them gaining just a little may be found most economical.

It is well to allow all young stock to exercise on fine days during the winter in a sheltered yard or shed.

The important matter in young growing animals is that they receive feeds rich in protein, like the legumes and oil meals, and that they be well supplied with mineral matter or ash.

The protein is best supplied by legumes grown on the place, the mineral matter from ashes, acid phosphate or air-slaked lime or by a mixture of equal parts of all these and common salt, kept in boxes under shelter where the stock can go to it at will.

In Cattle Feeding Make Full Use of All Feed

With corn and cattle selling anywhere near present prices the man who expects to pull any profit out of cattle feeding operations must reckon with every factor of cost, and make the fullest use possible of all feed grown on his own farm. This means he must economize on corn, and that straw and other roughage must replace to a greater extent other stuff, which is usually purchased. This does not mean, of course, that one can fatten cattle upon half of the usual ration of corn, but it does mean that much more straw and other roughage should be made to help out the corn. Many feeders do not use straw at all, except for bedding purposes. Formerly the custom was to carefully stack all straw and during the winter feeding season keep racks well filled with it; in fact straw was the sole roughage in many feed yards. Straw has its limitations as a dry roughage, but fattening cattle will make good use of an astonishing amount of nice, sweet straw, and this will save more expensive hay and enable one to make the fullest use of legume hays in replacing costly concentrates.

It costs something to produce straw, and on many farms it is not given a very high value. In rations for any kind of stock, stacks are left to rot down, entailing a loss of fully one-half of its organic value. It makes good "filling." We are not only wasting too much, but many are selling too much straw. Those who intend to carry over stockers will find good use for every load of straw, and every other ton of roughage on the farm should be used to reduce the amount of corn fed. Let's make the corn stalk fields and the straw stacks help carry other than fat stock through the early winter.

Comfortable Place for Sow Is Quite Essential

At least a week before the sow is due to farrow, she should be placed in the quarters where she is to farrow her litter. This is important for the number of pigs which a sow will save depends very largely upon her being quiet when she farrows. If she is not given a chance to become accustomed to her quarters before she is due to farrow, she may be very restless and discontented, constantly getting up and down and, as often happens when sows are placed in new quarters just before farrowing, she may break out and go back to the place she has been quartered to make her bed and farrow her litter.

Dressing Percentage of Swine Shows Variation

In breeding studies carried on by the United States Department of Agriculture it was found that the dressing percentage of swine ranges from 75 to 85.3 per cent. A variation of this kind brings out clearly the importance of good breeding. It is clear cut evidence that the type of animals approved by the present live stock judge are always superior to poorly bred stock from the production standpoint alone.

This is due to a combination of several important improvements—a roomier front compartment; a readier clutch response; a new steering wheel that offers a trim, firm grip; and control levers that are ideally accessible, yet conveniently out of the way of robes and luggage.

U. OF M. SELECTS MADDOCK FOR COACH

Former East Jordanite Honored By Western College

A former East Jordan boy has been picked as football coach for the University of Oregon, according to a clipping from a recent issue of The Oregon Daily Journal of Portland, received here by Hon. Rollie L. Lewis and by him turned over to the Courier for mention.

The clipping is dated at Baker, Oregon, February 12th and states that "Joseph Maddock, recently appointed football mentor of the University of Oregon, came to this state for the first time today. He is on his way to the University from his home in Twin Falls, Idaho. Stops will be in LaGrande and Pendleton this evening and Portland will tender the new coach a luncheon Wednesday, his itinerary calling for his arrival in Eugene tomorrow night." * * * * * Joe Maddock, with his 200 lbs., his six feet of length, a jovial face and sparsely cropped head, with a quiet voice almost instantly won the admiration of all. "We're enthusiastic over Joe and we know Oregon has made no mistake in her choice," was the unanimous opinion of the alumni. Maddock appears just as enthusiastic over his new position and when he said that "Oregon will have winning teams or I'll know the reason why," one could sense that Oregon football stock is now ready for an above par quotation.

POULTRY*Efficiency of Flocks Is*Increased by Standard

Poultry keepers are finding that the efficiency of their flocks is increased by having a standard to guide the monthly egg production. A high production in early winter may result in a heavy mortality and a long rest period during the last of winter, and a very low production will produce a low yearly average, resulting in small profit.

An average of 160 eggs per bird per year for the flock makes a good standard. This is the yearly production most egg-laying contests in the country have averaged during the past ten years, and records from successful New Jersey poultry farms indicate it to be an average attainable where good stock is kept and good practices followed.

The average number of birds kept each month should be known and a record kept of the daily egg production. By dividing the number of eggs laid during the month by the number of birds kept, the number of eggs that the flock averaged per bird for the month will be obtained. If this is done for each month the yearly average can be determined. Comparing the production of the flock with the standard will help in managing the flock to prevent a winter molt, thus inducing better production.

The standard of eggs per month given by the State College of Agriculture is: November, 8; December, 10; January, 10; February, 10; March, 12; April, 21; May, 20; June, 18; July, 16; August, 13; September, 7; October, 6. Total, 160.

Different Meat Breeds and Winter Egg-Layers

After repeated trials with different breeds a poultryman has become convinced that where a person wishes to cater almost exclusively to a meat market, as well as a winter egg trade, he will make no mistake in keeping three varieties: Light Brahmas for large-sized, roasting fowls; Plymouth Rocks for medium sized roasting fowls and spring chickens; and White Wyandottes for small sized roasting fowls and broilers. Should a summer egg trade also be desired, then the Leghorns could be used principally on account of their non-broody traits. They will be laying when the American and Asiatic classes are thinking of raising families. In case where the market does not call for large-sized roasting fowls, it is advisable to cut out the Brahmas and keep the two others mentioned. If the market is not a good one for broilers, then either the Plymouth Rocks or the Wyandottes should fill the bill, and in that case it would be best to keep only one breed. In mentioning these particular breeds it is not done to convey the idea that they are the only ones fitted for that class but rather to show what class of fowl is needed. The Rhode Islands Reds or the Orpingtons, for instance, might suit the fancier better.

Meat-Scrap Ration Safe for Egg-Hatching Feed

Tests conducted at the Ohio experiment station show that the amount of meat-scrap fed in rations to laying hens does not materially influence the hatchability of eggs.

In separate rations which contained approximately 2, 13 and 24 per cent of meat-scrap, the hatchability of eggs averaged almost 70 per cent.

Even in the rations which contain much more meat-scrap than was necessary to produce the maximum number of eggs, the hatchability was higher on the average than from hens receiving minimum amount of meat-scrap.

Some poultrymen have held that the eggs from hens fed heavily on meat-scrap would be inferior for hatching.

POULTRY NOTES

Thirteen eggs properly constitute a setting, though many poultrymen prefer fifteen.

Rather large comb and wattles for the breed are considered another characteristic of a good layer.

Expert poultrymen designate a male bird over one year old as a cock and have no place in their vocabulary for the farmyard name, "rooster." The female bird of like age, of course, is called a hen.

To have good laying capacity, a hen should have three fingers' width between the pin bones, but if the bird is in good condition she should in no event have less than two fingers' width.

A male goose is called a gander, a male duck a drake and a male turkey a tom. A turkey in its first year is a poult.

As the weather becomes warm place the drinking water in the shade as cool water seems more appetizing to the chicks.

A bird weighing two pounds or less and from six to twelve weeks old is called a broiler. When it weighs over two pounds it is called a spring chicken.

BLACK WALNUT SEEDLINGS AT COST

Annual Distribution by Central Michigan Normal

The Agricultural Department of Central Michigan Normal School of Mt. Pleasant will send out by mail at cost black walnut seedlings to schools and citizens of the state.

For fourteen years the Normal has been distributing walnut trees, a total of over 40,000 trees having been sent out. The trees have been sent to all parts of Mich. Some have been sent to the upper peninsula and do well under ordinary soil conditions in all parts of the state.

The trees are distributed about Arbor Day. The original plan was to furnish trees for the school children for spring planting. However there has been such a demand for the trees that they have been sent to all sorts of organizations and to private individuals. The supply has never been equal to the demand and orders should be placed early. Inquiries should be made to Prof. Myron A. Cobb, Central State Normal, Mt. Pleasant.

Unprofitable Producers

Should Be Fowls to Eat

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Ability to choose between the laying hen and the nonlayer is easily developed by poultry owners and should be put into practice in culling the flock if the best returns in both eggs and meat are to be had. In any flock some hens will be found which are such poor producers that they are unprofitable, and these should be the ones to eat.

All hens molt in the fall or early winter. This molting characteristic is easily observed and, when it starts to take place, means that the hen has about finished her laying season and is turning her attention to growing a new crop of feathers for a vacation before she starts her next year's work. If it is desirable to use a part of the flock for meat, says the United States Department of Agriculture, the early molters are the ones to select for eating first because they are laying very few or no eggs during this molting season which usually lasts about three months. The hens in the flock should not be killed until they begin to molt and their combs begin to lose size, color and flexibility, for if these changes have not taken place the hens will probably still be laying when eggs are especially valuable.

As a rule hens of the general-purpose breeds are not profitable layers after they are two years old, and Leghorn hens rarely lay profitably after three laying years. Many of the hens should be culled before they reach these ages and replaced by well-natured pullets in the fall.

Oyster Shell Required by Egg Producing Hens

Oyster shell should be kept constantly before laying hens. Experiments show that fowls will draw lime from the body skeleton if oyster shell is not obtainable in sufficient quantities.

That oyster shell is an essential part of the feeding ration and that it should be kept before fowls continuously is clearly shown in the following excerpt from circular 27 of the West Virginia experiment station, entitled, Feeding for Egg Production, by Prof. Horace Atwood:

"A relatively large amount of lime is required in the formation of egg shells. Wheeler found that crushed oyster shell when fed to laying hens was the principal source of the lime present in the shells, and he advised feeding oyster shell, especially during the laying season. That his conclusions were correct is indicated by the almost universal use of oyster shell for this purpose. One pound of oyster shell will furnish lime for about seven dozen eggs.

"In a recent investigation Halpjo finds that, contrary to popular belief, a lack of calcium or lime in the feed has not caused the production of soft-shelled eggs, the hen apparently drawing on her skeleton for the needed calcium. Soft-shelled eggs, therefore, appear to be due to some pathological condition rather than to a lack of calcium in the feed. A scant supply of calcium seems to decrease egg production. This result is important from the practical standpoint, since many poultry raisers, believing that soft-shelled eggs indicate a lack of calcium, do not feed oyster shells unless their hens lay soft-shelled eggs. It is thus possible that a lack of egg production during the late winter months may be due to a lack of sufficient calcium.

"Since oyster shell is relatively cheap and since fowls need lime from this or a similar source, at least when they are laying, it is good practice to keep a supply constantly available."

They play Boyne City High at Boyne City on Friday night and East Jordan High on Saturday night, both games being on the opponents floor. They won from Bellaire girls 22-15 on Wednesday night of last week being obliged to make an up hill fight after the first quarter period when the tally was 8-1 with the visitors on the long end. Ellsworth boys lost to Bellaire boys 15-8 the same night.

LIVE STOCK

Breeding Ewe's Fleece Pays for Maintenance

With fair prices for wool, a breeding ewe almost pays with her fleece for her maintenance during the year, and her one, two, or even three, lambs are a net profit to her owner, the sheep men at Cornell say. Sheep also require less labor than other farm animals, they declare, especially during the busy summer months, less outlay for shelter, and less feed to produce a pound of gain than the average for other live stock. They eat nearly all common weeds and their manure is more valuable than that of any other farm animals except poultry. Spreading the manure more evenly on pasture than by any method man has been able to devise, sheep build up and improve the land which feeds them.

A good shepherd, however, learns by experience, and his life is by no means all roses. The sheep specialist of the State College of Agriculture, in his talks with shepherds about the state, finds that farmers who keep even a few sheep welcome help in making the most of their flocks.

A new study course in sheep and wool production prepared at the college collects the experiences of successful shepherds all over the state; those who take it not only exchange experiences but also have the results of scientific study in New York and other states.

The course is free to any resident of New York state, the only requirement being that he must have animals to work with, on either his own or a nearby farm. As in the other study courses from the college, those who take this one send in written reports of their own work which are returned with suggestions and ideas gained from scientific study and from meeting and corresponding with other sheep men all over the state, yet adapted to each individual.

Stunted Colt Can Never Overcome Loss in Winter

The high price of grain is cheating many young colts which are bred right of their ability to develop. It is admitted by everyone that the growth attained in the first year of a horse's life determines his final size. Colts stunted during the first winter can never make up the loss. Most colts do well as long as they are sucking. Too often they are taken off the dam and placed in a pasture which has been picked over all summer. Colts are entitled to a chance when they first come off the dams and if the first pasture into which they are placed is not fresh, it should be supplemented with a bite of hay in the evening. Grain will bring a greater return fed to colts during their first year than fed to any other class of stock. Teach them to eat it when running with the mares, by using a colt creep, through which the youngsters will have access to a feed box, but which will keep out the mares. If salt is placed outside the creep, the mothers will be attracted thereto and the colts assured of an occasional chance to nibble at the grain in the boxes. As they grow older they will become more independent and go further from their dams to reach the creep. To produce a finished horse of the maximum weight this grain feeding must be continued the whole of the first winter and up to the time when green grass appears.

Practical Farmers Dock Lambs to Prevent Filth

A number of farmers seem to be unable to fathom the reason for docking young lambs, and quite a few questions have been asked G. P. Williams, sheep field agent for the North Carolina State college and department of agriculture, as to the need for this practice.

Mr. Williams says that most of the farmers who ask this question have never cut the tails from their lambs and can't understand why it should be done. He explains, however, that the docking of lambs was not started by any experiment station or agricultural college. "Before any agricultural college was ever established," he says, "practical farmers docked their lambs to keep them free from filth and from soiling the wool. Whenever sheep are raised now in a commercial way the lambs are always docked to prevent their accumulating this filth and becoming untidy."

Mr. Williams states that the tail of a sheep serves no practical purpose anyway, and that the wool from the tail is of an inferior quality and has a large percentage of worthless hair mixed up with the commercial fiber. When the tail is cut off at one week of age the lamb hardly notices the operation and suffers much less than he would if allowed to carry around a filthy tail for a number of years.

Barley Profitable for Feeding Herd of Swine

Hogs do well on barley. Some have thought that barley contains enough more protein than corn so that tankage or other protein feed is not necessary. While barley does contain 20 per cent more digestible protein than corn, yet it does not contain enough more so that the supplemental protein feed may be left out of the fattening hog's ration. In one experiment it required 350 pounds of corn and 34 of tankage to make 100 pounds gain. For all the news, read the Courier.

BROADCAST WEST MICH. ON RADIO

Michigan Tourist and Resort Assn. to Use Radio

The Michigan Tourist and Resort Association has announced that they will utilize the radio to help bring thousands of tourists to West Michigan.

Important and comprehensive road information on the condition of the main highways will be broadcasted to millions of prospective visitors from Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City, Louisville, Memphis, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Dallas, Birmingham and other broadcasting stations.

Last year West Michigan information was broadcasted to radio enthusiasts from stations at Chicago, St. Louis and Louisville. Although no checks can be made on the direct result of this work, it is believed that it brought many tourists to this section. And with the greatly increased number of radio fans and the greater territory being broadcasted to, it is expected that thousands to, it is expected that thousands will find the answer to annual vacation call in Western Michigan.

During 1923 the results of the campaign of the Michigan Tourist and Resort Association brought $40,000,000 additional new business into this territory. This year it is expected that the efforts of this organization will bring an added tourist expenditure into this territory of over $100,000,000.

Every business man in West Michigan is directly benefited by this and the work of the Michigan Tourist and Resort Association deserves and is entitled to the support of everyone.

FIREMEN'S BALL OF FRIDAY, BEST EVER

Hall Warm, Music Good and a Big Crowd—Nuff Sed.

The Firemen's masquerade ball, held at the Lakeside pavilion on Friday evening, February 22nd, was one of the greatest successes in the social history of the organization.

Contrary to the general prediction, the hall was comfortably warm, despite the fact that the night was more than usually cold. In fact, an electric fan had to be pressed into service. One of the best crowds in years enjoyed the music of Curtis's four-piece orchestra (piano, violin, saxophone and traps). Only about twenty-five of those in attendance were masked. Of these, Thelma Wagner took the ladies first prize and Mrs. Tuhy the second prize; Charles Tuhy took the gentlemen's first prize and John Gallagher the second.

If you have any, even one, of the symptoms of kidney diseases, act now. Don's or Bright's disease may set in and make needless dangers. Read this Charlevoix testimony.

John McCall, 110 E. Upright Ave., says: "My kidneys were weak and irregular in action and were sore as could be. Dizzy spells bothered me and I would often have to grasp something to keep from falling. I used Don's Pills and they completely and permanently cured me of the trouble."

POTATO GRADE EXHIBIT THIS MONTH

At Boyne City and East Jordan—Mark the Dates

The following is a schedule of a potato grade exhibit which is being put on in a few of the most important potato growing sections through the co-operation of the Farm Crops Department of the Michigan Agricultural College and the Bureau of Markets of the State Department of Agriculture.

The above exhibit is being staged in an effort to familiarize the grower with the new standard compulsory grades as recently adopted by the State Department of Agriculture. Also it is presumed that a portion of the time and space will be spent and used in an attempt to show that there must be a better quality of potatoes put on the market if Michigan table stock is to regain its lost prestige.

New proposed containers will be upon exhibit and the advisability of using these packs will be discussed.

Another feature will be the actual specimens of potatoes showing the various diseases prevalent in this territory, their effect upon the growing crop as well as on the table stock.

A potato specialist from the Farm Crops Dept. of the Agricultural College will accompany the exhibit and will thoroughly explain all matters in detail as well as discuss questions which may arise.

Remember the dates: Tuesday and Wednesday, February 26th and 27th, at the Boyne City Marketing Association Building.

Friday and Saturday, February 28th and March 1st, at the East Jordan Marketing Association Building.

W. S. N. GLEE CLUB WILL VISIT US SOON

Twenty Picked Musicians From Six Hundred Students

Charlevoix will hear a college glee club concert of high calibre probably the first week in April, it was assured when the Methodist church signed a contract with the Western State Normal glee club of Kalamazoo.

Prof. Harper Maybee, head of the music department of Kalamazoo Normal, and director of the club, will bring an organization of 20 students, the pick of the musical talent among the 600 men at the Normal. Prof. Glenn Henderson, assistant director and pianist, will also accompany the club.

The Kalamazoo Normal singers have an enviable reputation in southern Michigan towns where they have appeared frequently in recent years. Their tour this spring will be their first into Northern Michigan, however. They will leave Kalamazoo when spring vacation opens March 28, reaching Charlevoix probably not more than three days later.

ROAD BUILDING

Study Science of Roads in Elementary Schools

The automobile industry is showing more than ordinary interest in a bulletin just issued by the bureau of education, Department of the Interior, entitled "Main Streets of the Nation," and intended as a study of projects on highway transport for elementary schools.

Prepared by Florence C. Fox, specialist in education systems for the United States government, it will particularly appeal to the children because their lives are very close to the highway question; good roads playing an increasingly important part in every child's experience.

The bulletin shows the remarkably interesting and practical lessons which have been worked out for elementary grades. In arithmetic, for example, a question such as this is asked: "If the railroad fare from New York to San Francisco is $138.18, how much more, or less, will it cost to motor through the Lincoln highway than to go by train?" The solution involves problems in the cost of gasoline, the wear and tear of the machine, and the day's living expense en route, as compared with the cost of travel.

In the geography department interesting lessons are presented which afford imaginary journeys over the country's great highways. Important cities are located on the way, and brief essays written about the national points of interest in passing. The bulletin gives in great detail how such lessons may be prepared.

Problems in simple science are brought out by a study of road building, drainage and grading. Lessons in civics are exceptionally interesting and these include problems on financing; how to obtain a right of way; how bond issues are cured for, etc.

An important lesson deals with the safety question. Every parent is interested in this, and the work involved cannot fail to be of help and practical use to the young student in the face of the crowded streets and highways.

Wisconsin Will Renumber All Its Trunk Highways

Immediately following a conference of the special legislative committee, appointed to select 2,500 additional miles to the state trunk highways, division engineers and the state highway division commission to determine finally what roads are to be added, highway experts will begin work on the enormous task of renumbering all of Wisconsin's trunk highway system.

Almost every trunk highway in the state will have to be renumbered to conform with the additions made by the special legislative committee.

Under the new system there will be fewer short highways and more long highways, with several numbers overlapping each other on the main traveled through routes.

Wherever it is possible highway experts will plot routes direct from important centers. There will be no change, however, in the system or plan of marking the trunk highway system.

All highway maps are to be reprinted and revised following the new allocation of main highways, but this will probably not come until late in the spring. It will make main routes easier to follow, for it will not be necessary to switch off from one highway to the next on a long journey. Motorists will be able to enter the state on one highway and follow that clear through the state or to their destination.

Large Mileage Is Added to Federal-Aid Highways

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Federal-aid roads totaling 8,820 miles were completed during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1923, bringing the total of federal aid roads completed to 26,536 miles. The mileages completed during the year is classified as follows:

	Miles
Graded and drained	1,860.1
Macadam	749.5
Gravel	4,416.4
Bituminous concrete	325.6
Bituminous macadam	453.9
Concrete	74.8
Brick	1,440.8
Bridge	78.8
Total	8,820.2

This projects under construction at the close of the year amounted to 14,772 miles and were estimated at 55 per cent complete. In addition to the 26,536 miles completed and the 14,772 miles under construction there were at the close of the year a number of projects approved but not yet placed under construction, the aggregate length of which was 6,917 miles.

Scheme of Texas Farmers for Building Good Roads

A settlement of wide-awake farmers near Lindsey, Tex., have a scheme for road building. On one farmer's place is a gravel pit that furnishes good gravel in abundance. This farmer furnishes free the gravel for road-building purposes, while the other farmers grade up the roadways and do the graveling. When the work is completed it hasn't cost anything except a little time and labor, and there are no taxes to pay.

Cow Testing Increases Butterfat Production

Substantial Returns Shown by Five Years' Record.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

That cow testing pays substantial returns is shown conclusively by records for five years compiled by the United States Department of Agriculture. In three well-managed associations in Michigan, Ohio, and Pennsylvania the average butterfat production per cow has increased noticeably every year. The first year the average production of butterfat was 237 pounds; second year, 255 pounds; third year, 278; fourth year, 292; and fifth, 305 pounds. At the end of this period the average cow in these herds was yielding 68 more pounds of fat than the average at the beginning of the testing. At 40 cents a pound this increase of fat would have a value of $27.20 per cow, and a herd of 20 cows would bring in $544 more than at the beginning.

Sweet Clover Is Useful Crop for Plowing Under

Another clover which has been proved good and useful is the white blossom, biennial sweet clover. The seed crop of this clover comes on quite early, and probably ample supplies have been already harvested to take care of the spring demand. Sweet clover is being used in pasture mixtures, to some extent, but its greatest use is for plowing under for fertilizer. It also is a surer seed crop than other clovers, and because of its usefulness in replacing on many farms, other clovers which have heretofore been grown for plowing down.

In most every neighborhood there are more or less supplies of seed of all of these clovers, and it behooves buyers to keep track of buying and engage local supplies whenever it is possible. There is another decided advantage about this home-grown seed. One is able to pick seed grown on clean fields, where buckhorn, dodder or field daisies have not been introduced. This is an important matter, for as our fields grow older, mean weeds are apt to creep in menacing the value of all seed or hay or pasture ground.

Feeding to Make Meat Is Made Subject of Study

Experts of the United States Department of Agriculture have been studying the amount of food required to make a pound of meat. Their investigations so far have indicated that it takes six pounds of grain and six pounds of hay to produce one pound of lamb live weight. Ten pounds of hay and ten pounds of corn will make one pound of beef, while five and six-tenths pounds of corn will make one pound of pork.

Useful Farm Notes

The best feed for rats is white arsenic and cornmeal.

Keep hogs from stagnant hog wallows even in winter.

Alfalfa hay is 22 per cent more valuable for dairy cows than timothy hay.

When its leg is bent the fowl cannot open its foot, for which reason the fowl cannot fall off the perch.

Remember that a pig cannot make a hog of himself unless you give him a fair chance with ample feed and sufficient shelter.

Do not expect too much from slugs. It is supplement to other feeds and should never constitute the whole of the forage ration.

Turnips, spinach and eggplant are seriously attacked by the beetle. Bordeaux as a repellent is the standard spray.

The word "chicken" is commonly applied to fowls of all ages. Properly, a chicken is a young fowl six months old; it becomes a fowl after that.

One way of increasing the value of your farm is to increase its productivity by returning to it every possible pound of manure, or crop not sold or fed.

ANOTHER LETTER FROM FAR EAST

ROBERT BURNS NOW WRITES
FROM CEBU, P. I.

Tells of Visits to Chingwato, Dairen, Tsing-tao, Shanghai, Hong Kong and Cebu

Those of our readers who enjoyed the very interesting letter of Robert Burns that appeared in our issue of February 6th, relating Mr. Burns' experience in the earthquake area of Japan and describing its people, customs, etc., will be glad to note that we have another for them this week, this time written from the city of Cebu in the Philippine Islands. The letter follows:

"Dear Mr. Usher:

I wrote you before about being in Japan and seeing the earthquake district and about the beautiful mountains, but now I will try to describe to you what I have been looking at since I left Japan.

"From Kobe, Japan, I went to Chingwato, China, wny up on the northern coast of the Yellow sea. Here there were ice and snow and it was very cold; some different from warm, sunny Japan where the flowers were in blossom when I left.

Chingwato is in Mongolia and the principal commercial product is peanuts. The city itself is dirty, the streets narrow, and no street cars. This is the only city so far that I have found where there were no automobiles. Few, if any Americans have ever in Chingwato, as it is in such an out-of-the-way place.

When I would walk down the street, the people would stop and look at me and if I stopped to look at something a crowd would soon gather. Chinese beggars were thicker on the streets than people on Bridge street in Charlevoix on a winter evening. The beggars were quite bold and would come up to me and stand in my way until I would either have to walk around them or give them way to rid of them.

From Chingwato I went to Dairen, a city famous during the Russian-Japanese war, as the battle of Port Arthur was fought near the city. Now Dairen is a Japanese port but the Russian influence can be plainly noticed, as the buildings are European style and not Oriental.

Dairen is a port where lots of beans are grown and shipped to Europe and America. Some of the beans are made into bean oil, of which oleomargarine is later made.

Aside from beans and peanuts, furs are quite plentiful near Dairen and in the winter time there is quite a trade in them.

The buildings of Dairen are large and very beautiful for a city its size. There are numerous parks and, in general, it is a beautiful city.

From Dairen I went to Tsing-tao, China, a city that belonged to Germany before the World war; but that at the time of the armistice was given to China. The German influence can be plainly seen here, but still the Chinese predominate.

In Tsing-tao I saw the Chinese

CHANGE DATE RULING ON AUTO. MOBILE TITLES

Under a ruling made by Secretary of State Charles J. DeLand, the year in which motor vehicles are manufactured will no longer be stamped on certificate of title. Hereafter new cars will rank according to the date of issue on the certificate rather than the date of manufacture.

The ruling, according to Mr. DeLand, will benefit thousands of purchasers. Without it the purchaser of a car early in 1924, for instance, would undoubtedly get a car made in 1923, and his title would be stamped "1923." The trade-in value of the vehicle would be considerably reduced by the fact that the title showed it to be a 1923 car, when in reality it was never taken into a salesroom until 1924.

The practice of dating titles according to manufacture rather than the date of sale had been the subject of many complaints. One dealer, Mr. DeLand said, had 300 cars stored for sale this spring. They were 1924 models but were made in 1923, and when customers who had contracted for some of them were advised that their titles would credit them with 1923 instead of 1924 cars they refused to accept them.

coolies loading and unloading large coal ships by hand. There were two Chinks with a bamboo pole about eight feet long and in the center of the pole was a basket that would hold about two bushels of coal. The Chinks carried the pole on their shoulders and went at a slow dog-trot. They worked all day and another crew came on that worked all night. Each Chink received for his twelve hours carrying coal about 25 cents in American money and, as I watched them, I thought that they were a form of slaves, as they are paid so little that they are but slightly better than modern slaves.

From Tsing-tao I went to Shanghai, China, the famous English port in the Orient. Here the English predominate in the European district. They handle almost all the European business and control the city.

There are two parts of Shanghai, the European and the Oriental district. In the European district the streets are wide, well paved and have good sidewalks; the buildings are large and mostly made of cement and concrete, but, in the Oriental district, the streets are never more than twelve or fifteen feet wide and there are no sidewalks. The people just walk right down the center of the street.

"BEARCAT" BAKER IS NOT RED

OFFERS ONE THOU FOR PROOF TO CONTRARY

Challenges Attorney General Smith
To Produce Even a Scrap to Indicate "Redness"

Ex-Senator Herbert F. Baker, the "Cheboygon Bearcat," last night issued a statement from the Pantlind hotel Grand Rapids offering Assistant Attorney General O. L. Smith, of Lansing, $1,000 "if he will produce any written word of mine—letter or otherwise—indicating 'redness' of any shade."

Ex-Sen. Baker believes that Smith was inspired to his attack by Gov. Groesbeck and upon the chief executive also he turned his guns last night.

Ex-Sen. Baker said that in the latter part of 1922 he wrote a letter to Eugene F. Brock, of the International Association of Machinists expressing regret that he could not speak before an indignation meeting of striking machinists in Niles to protest against a federal injunction restricting the right of free speech and assemblage and that Smith deliberately misconstrued this letter as being seized in a communist raid and addressed to an officer of the Communist party, protesting against what they regarded an infringement of their rights and "I was invited by Mr. Brock to speak before them upon the question of freedom of speech."

"The letter quoted at the state convention of Supervisors at Lansing by 'O. W. L.' Smith was written to Mr. Brock to advise him of my ability to attend the meeting," Baker declared, "I offer no excuses nor apologies for the statements contained therein. The letter was addressed to Brock at Niles and it was delivered to him upon his arrival at Niles. No seizing in raids. No mail robbery. No Mare's nest. No 'Red'."

"To 'O. W. L.' Smith I repeat my former challenge and add an offer of $1,000—which added to the original consideration for pulling this stunt would probably make the incident a fairly remunerative one if he will produce any written word of mine, letter or otherwise, indicating 'Redness' of any shade."

SUGAR BEET SITUATION IS GOOD

CONTRACTED ACREAGE SHOWS HELPFUL INCREASE.

Rate Paid to Growers by the Ton is Increased by Fed Value of Tops.

The recent visit of James McLean, general manager of the Holland-St. Louis Sugar company, to this region has revived interest in the ever vital question, "To raise or not to raise sugar beets."

The conditions that brought Mr. McLean into this territory were not very promising and talk was rife for a while that the Holland-St. Louis people were going to pull out of Charlevoix altogether on account of their failure to produce the necessary acreage. Due, however, in some measure to Mr. McLean's activities when here, but mainly to the farmers' growing appreciation of the value of sugar beets as a sure-fire crop and unexcelled stock fodder as well, a very gratifying increase in the amount of acreage pledged has developed very recently and it is probable that the company will continue operations here as in the past.

Close to 150 acres have already been contracted in the vicinity of Charlevoix, but this falls far short of the maximum acres that should be devoted to sugar beets here. Ellsworth territory has doubled last year's acreage and this is only to be expected as the canny dairymen of that locality are keenly alive to the immense value of sugar beet tops as a milk and cream producing feed. Phelps district also shows a nice increase.

Hayes township and the land lying along the Boyne City road should prove a fertile field for sugar beet raising. The haul from there to town is not any further than growers out on the Norwood road have been making for years. Despite the general light character of the soil in the Hayes district, sugar beets could be grown with profit on a good many farms around there. Potato land is also good beet land and Hayes is famous for its potatoes. Turn down the sod, fertilize with manure, grow potatoes or corn and follow the next year with sugar beets. Possibly a slight use of commercial fertilizer might be necessary the first year with the beets. One with a ten per cent potash content has been found to be the best for this purpose. This is the practice approved by the sugar companies' experts, the successful growers and the agricultural college.

Last year, approximately $9.29 per ton was received for his beets by the Charlevoix county grower. According to Professor Cox of the M. A. C., sugar beets are the leading crop in the state. In 1923 the average crop throughout the state, according to the professor, was eight tons to the acre and the average return $72.00 per acre. The actual price received by the grower of $9.29 per ton would aggregate more than this by the acre, but the above is a conservative estimate.

LOCAL QUINT WON AND LOST

SMOTHERED PELLSTON BUT TRIPPED ON HARBOR.

Victory's Flush Gives Place to the Icy Chill of Defeat—History Repeats.

Once more in the speckled history of this year's basketball combats, the local quinters have followed up spectacular and brilliant victory with overwhelming defeat, and the latter to teams of equal calibre. The speed, science and marked superiority of the local tossers was outstanding to a very marked degree at the Pellston game, turning, in the Harbor Springs disaster, to an unpardonable "blow-up" in the last quarter of a game that up to that time everyone thought belonged to the Red and White.

The Charlevoix quintet seems to play in moods, optimistically spectacular now and morbidly lax then. Nevertheless, we can justly say that local fans still have confidence in the squad, for on several occasions their excellent brand of ball has stood out in bold relief against the competition of the best Class A teams, while in comparatively few instances it has gone down to ignominious defeat at the hands of Class B and C schools.

We are hoping that our fine squad will dust off this sudden depression and warm up to a trifle for the tournament. If they would forget everything but playing basketball, and winning basketball and training consistently, we know C. H. S. would have an unparalleled outfit.

But about last week's victory and defeat.

From every angle of the game the local basketweavers played rings around Pellston, Wednesday night's opponent. Our guards were invincible, our forwards and center slippery and accurate, the whole squad displaying team work that was truly admirable. Each man got into the fray and fought, each basket was well earned and the result of scientific floor play that in most cases carried the ball through the entire Pellston 5-man defense.

In the first portion of the game our boys literally ran away from their confounded opponents, keeping the ball under our basket two-thirds of the time. In the second half our team fouled a great deal and did not play the exceptional brand of ball exhibited in the first half. In the end the bacon flew at C. H. S. with a tag on it that read 28 to 12.

Game by halves:

	1h	2h	fnl
C. H. S.	23	5	28
P. H. S.	4	8	12

Now, turning to the Harbor Springs catastrophe, we cannot display such a good record. Of course, we might mention that the local five had a very grueling time before they got into action on the foreign court. It is true that a hurry-up trip such as that does not add to the stamina of any team. The ride across the ice from Petoskey was truly "leg-stiffening." Arriving in Harbor about 7:00 o'clock, they had to eat on top of the coming game and hustle in order to report on time.

The game started with a dash and as per-usual our squad soon swung into an optimistic lead. They outplayed their opponents, completely leading at the end of the quarter as well as the half. Then came the big "blow-up." In the last quarter the squad simply gave way, falling into utter abandon and collapse. From every portion of the court the Harbor boys began ringing baskets. This sudden, dazzling deluge of shots took the Charlevoix team off their feet amid the excitement and enthusiasm of the large crowd that witnessed the fray. Harbor proudly found herself carrying 27 points to our 12 at the gun. A lack of endurance and consistency is directly responsible for this disaster.

Game by halves:

	1h	2h	fnl
C. H. S.	7	5	12
H. S. H. S.	5	22	27

Everything remained to be redeemed in the Petoskey battle which took place last night. Perhaps a reputation was at stake.

JURY FIND DE JORDY GUILTY

BOYNE CITY CHIROPRACTOR'S CASE DECIDED.

Charged With Practicing Medicine
Without a License—Will Be Sentenced Saturday.

The much discussed case of the People vs. J. E. A. DeJordy, the Boyne City chiropractor, charged with practicing that school of medicine at that place without obtaining a certificate of registration, was tried in circuit court this week before Judge Gilbert and jury. A jury was speedily drawn and the taking of testimony began Monday p. m. The case was started about one year ago, but trial had been delayed by continuances and certain unavoidable circumstances.

The defendant's defense, so far as we were able to get it, was that the requirements of the state law as to the examination of chiropractors were such that the defendant could not pass the examination and obtain a certificate of registration or license.

The defendant did not go on the stand and testify in his own defense, so we were unable to get his own version of the matter. The prosecution met the argument of the defense by a clear outline of the situation as regards this so-called school of medicine, and his statement and explanation of the law should be of interest and profit to chiropractors generally.

He said at the outset that he was not concerned with the merits of the so-called drugless treatment, whether it was or was not beneficial. That it might be all that is claimed for it, but if it was of value it must be regulated the same as any other professional calling for the protection of the public and the public health. That a chiropractor must show that he is properly equipped and possess the necessary qualifications before he assume to practice. That there was but one way in which his qualifications and fitness could be determined and that was to pass an examination the same as any other professional man or woman.

He pointed out that the legislature had designated a board to conduct these examinations and had specified the subjects that he should be familiar with and satisfactorily pass before he could be admitted to practice. That under the law a chiropractor was not required to pass as rigid an examination as physicians and surgeons, but applicants would be granted a license if they passed the subjects prescribed and specified by the legislature.

Answering the argument and claim of the defendant that an applicant for a license to practice chiropractic (Continued on page 8.)

QUEER HYBRID CRAFT BLEW IN EAST JORDAN MAN HERE WITH AUTO-SLED FRIDAY

Looks Like a Cross Between Airplane and Iceboat—Will Do 60 On Smooth Ice

Russell Barnett, manager of the East Jordan branch of the Northern Auto Company, visited this city Friday morning in an auto-sled, an entirely home-built affair, with which he made the trip from East Jordan to a point on the shore of Pine Lake opposite the Belvedere depot inside of thirty minutes. J. M. Foster the manager of the local N. A. Co. garage, who had been previously advised of his coming, met him at his "landing" place accompanied by the Courier reporter.

The machine, which is a product of the joint efforts of Mr. Barnett and his associates, Louie Peterson and Leslie Miles, mechanics at the Northern's East Jordan garage, looks like a cross between an airplane without wings and on iceboat without sails.

The wooden frame work, or fuselage of the machine is V shaped and about sixteen feet long from end to end, 21 inches wide at the front end and tapering to 16 inches at the rudder. The overall length from tip of forward runners to rear of rudder is twenty feet. On this V shaped frame a platform is built flush with the frame to accommodate the driver and passengers. At the forward end, mounted on struts made from the chassis frame of an old Ford car, is the power plant—a 1916 model Ford engine with the transmission removed. This is set at about head-height from the platform of the "fuselage" and at the forward end a regular airplane propeller with a six foot blade is bolted direct to the crank shaft. Over the rear end of the engine is located the temporary feed tank, which is merely a common two-gallon gasoline can provided with a feed pipe where the spout ought to be. An ordinary Ford gasoline tank, carried for an auxiliary supply, is fastened to the platform underneath the engine; between the struts.

The front runners of the sled, which are skid type and steel shod, are six feet long and six inches wide. They are set seven feet apart from center to center and bolted at the opposite ends of a two by six bunk which supports the fuselage, crossing the two ends of the V frame. The rudder at the rear end is a short skid, five feet long by six inches wide. Its steel shoe has a rib running lengthwise to "bite" the ice. The rudder is mounted on a post which is crossbarred under the frame, the two ends of the crosspiece being connected by steel wires with the steering post under the fuselage.

The steersman sits on a packing-box seat behind a truly ingenious windshield made of galvanized iron with a sheet of ising glass set in the middle, the shield itself closing the (Continued on page two)

SCHOOLS, OR CANDY, JOY, RIDES, ETC.?

A great deal is being said about the expense of the schools in the United States, and in particular towns and districts. J. W. Crabtree, secretary of the National Educational Association says, public education in the U. S. cost $1,500,000,000 last year.

Answering charges that school expenditures have become a burden to taxpayers, he declared $1,111,000,000 is paid annually for tobacco; $1,800,000,000 for candy, soft drinks and ice creams and $3,000,000,000 for joyriding.

When we consider the cost of the movies, theatres and other amusements and luxuries, it is no exaggeration to say that our luxuries and unnecessary expenditures cost us ten times as much every year as our schools.

Shall we, then, begrudge our boys and girls the best opportunities that money will buy, or shall we take away these opportunities and furnish them more candies, joy riding and cigarettes? How do you feel about it?

COLONY LAYING HOUSE FOR HENS

Four-Unit Structure Here Described Provides for 70 Birds and Makes Good Shelter.

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building work on the farm, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 1827 Prairie avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only inclose two-cent stamp for reply.

The drawings show the floor plan and a cross section of the laying house illustrated, of a size to easily handle 65 to 70 birds. The structure is frame, on a concrete foundation. The floor is likewise of concrete.

This kind of shed roof presents no particular construction difficulties and is easily built. The shingles may be of cedar or prepared roofing and could be obtained locally without difficulty, as could also be the wooden siding used, likewise the 2 by 4 studding and the 2 by 6 plates and sills.

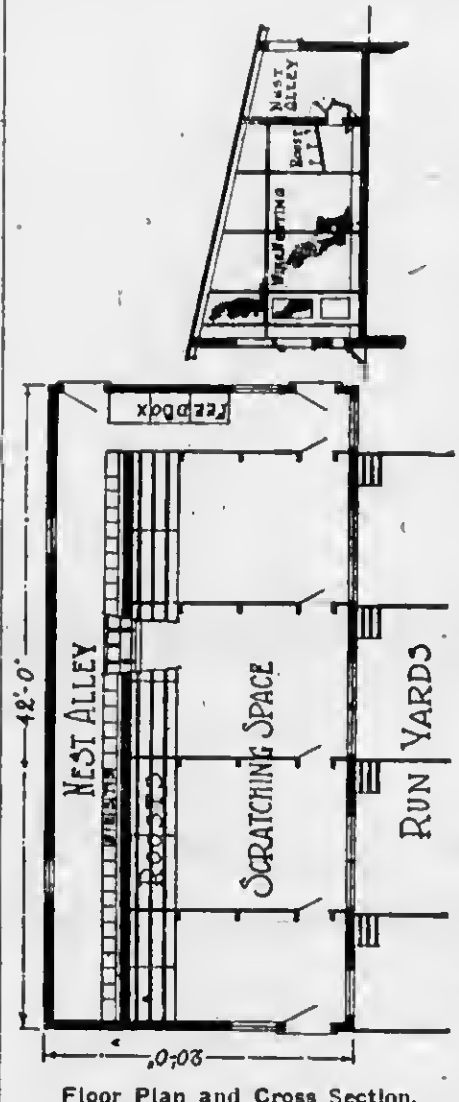

Observe that a nest alley is incorporated in the plan, giving access to every nest along the length of the four pens. At one end is the feed box, and ingress into the pens obtained by doors connecting all of the scratching pens. This makes one whole wall admit the greatest amount of light, and the person in charge is given an opportunity to mingle with the birds and observe them at feeding time, on the alert for any diseased fowl or others who may be in danger of succumbing to the natural rule of the survival of the fittest.

There is ventilation amply provided for by the four ventilators visible on the window wall, with roofing extensions protecting against wind and weather. In very cold weather muslin frames could be inserted in these, although as the ventilators are so high above the ground the danger of perishing drafts is greatly minimized. The muslin frames could be used at night, and the ventilator openings left open during the winter days. Inside, provision is made for 36 nests. The laying house is lined, and building paper, plain or treated, used for insulating. The four scratching spaces are divided from each other by wire netting nailed on two-by-fours. The connecting doors are likewise screened. This equalizes temperature and enables the whole to be quickly sprayed and disinfected on occasion.

The roosts are set on two-by-fours in notched frames which permit them to be easily raised for cleaning. There is ample roosting space for every fowl, discouraging any attempt of the lazier birds to sleep upon the floor.

Properly spread with straw or planing mill shavings, the cement scratching floor creates no danger of cold or dampness for the chickens. The floor spread also makes them scratch for their feed, for fowl, like humans, show the best results from their food when they have to work to get it.

The laying house ought to be foundationed to present the window side to the south and east, gaining the most advantage from the sunlight. In winter, particularly, this means a great deal in keeping the flock in healthy condition.

LIVE STOCK

Right Kind of Care of Stock in Winter Urged

"For the most part, the principal object in keeping live stock on a farm in winter is to have it available to utilize grass in summer," says Prof. W. A. Peters, chief of the division of animal husbandry of the University of Minnesota. "At least it may be said that the cheapest gains made by live stock of any kind on the farm are the gains made from grass. On many farms whatever profit there is in live stock comes from the cheap summer gains made from the pastures. Looking at the problem of wintering stock from this angle, it is readily seen that the principal object must be to winter the herds as cheaply as possible and yet avoid losses and keep the breeding animals and the young growing stock in a thrifty condition so that they will be in shape to go on pasture in the spring and utilize grass to the best possible advantage."

"Too high an overhead expense in buildings, labor and feed has been the cause of failure of live stock to show a profit on many farms. On the other hand, too low an expenditure and too little effort and too little attention to the stock in winter has also often resulted in failure. There is a happy medium between these two extremes."

"This happy medium is found where animals are so housed as to be kept comfortable, yet allowing of their being handled with a minimum of labor; where feeds suitable in the wintering of the stock have been grown upon the farm and are supplied to the animals with regularity and in the proper amounts required to attain the object in view. Such matters as providing bedding, keeping sleeping quarters clean and sanitary, supplying water in such a way that animals can drink without risk of falling and hurting themselves or without being chilled by drinking from an ice-covered tank, seeing that animals inclined to take too little exercise, such as brood sows, growing pigs and breeding ewes, are compelled to take the necessary exercise—all these items and many more similar in character must be studied and worked out ever with the idea of holding down wintering costs and yet avoiding shrinkage or loss of animals in so far as it is possible to accomplish this."

Lack of Exercise Cause of Weak Pigs at Birth

Baby pigs, like most other animals, are subject to numerous troubles at birth. A little knowledge of how to prevent and treat their troubles may save many who might otherwise die, according to Harry B. Rowland, of the animal husbandry department, at the New Jersey State College of Agriculture.

One of the most common causes of weak pigs at birth is lack of exercise of both the sire and dam previous to the breeding time, or of the mother before the pigs are born. Weak pigs are easily chilled and usually die if born during the month of March and exposed to the changing weather which this month usually brings. At birth, such troubles as navicular diseases or navol infection and diarrhea (scours), either non-infectious or infectious, often cause heavy losses.

The navel cord should be swabbed with tincture of iodine at birth to prevent infection later.

Diarrhea is usually treated indirectly through the mother by flushing out her system with a physic such as epsom salts, or by adding a small amount of laced oil meal to her ration.

At all times during the suckling period the mother should be fed clean, wholesome food in a clean trough, and as well should be kept in warm, clean pen. Then most of the trouble at farrowing time will be avoided, and more pigs will be saved.

Important That Ram Be Thrifty and Vigorous

I make it a point to see that the ram is thrifty, vigorous, and not over-fat at mating time. If the ram is too fat, he will be clumsy, slow, and likely to prove impotent.

The mating season is strenuous for the ram, and he must be in the best physical condition. This requires that he have plenty of exercise; a regular supply of salt and fresh water; a suitable grain feed, such as equal parts of corn, oats and wheat bran.

We often find that a ram which did excellent service one year will not always render the same quality of service the following year. Nor can one depend upon a young, strong-looking ram lamb. The good sheep breeder must have first-hand knowledge of the condition of the head of the flock through frequent examinations.—Key-holds.

Essex Is Small English

Hog and Matures Quickly

The Essex is a small black hog with short snout, slightly dished face; small, fine, erect ears; heavy jaws, short neck, broad back, well developed shoulders and legs, short legged and fine boned. It is an English breed. A great number of them were imported into this country at one time, but importations have now almost stopped. The Essex matures quickly and is easily kept fat. Its chief drawback in this country is the fact that it is too small.

space between the top of the low dashboard and the underpart of the engine to which it is fastened. He steers with a regular Ford steering wheel and has no foot control to bother with, nothing but the wheel and the throttle, which is placed at the upper left hand corner of the dash. A wooden brake handle with a steel spike in the end to check the machine down after the engine is shut off is handy at his left.

Even a steel rod bumper encircling the propeller is provided. This, we were told, is for cows, though what a self-respecting cow would be doing out on the lake at this time of year is hard to tell (possibly trying to produce ice cream—eh, what?).

Mr. Barnett claims that his sled will easily make sixty miles per on smooth ice. On the snow covered surface, with our reporter as passenger, she did a neat twenty-five or thirty. She steers with remarkable ease. Perhaps, by this time next year some enterprising soul will be running a motor-sled bus line between Charlevoix, East Jordan and Boyne City. Who knows?

AT THE MOVIES

"The Great Moment" Well Staged. "This is a most perfect English room!" exclaimed Elinor Glyn, noted British novelist, as the finishing touches were put upon a setting which had been prepared for scenes in "The Great Moment," Gloria Swanson's first Paramount starring vehicle, which will open at the Palace Theatre next Wednesday, March 12th.

The setting represents the boudoir of an English girl played by Miss Swanson, in an old ancestral home. The author, wrote the story especially for Miss Swanson.

Milton Sills plays the leading supporting role, Sam Wood directed and the story was picturized by Monte M. Katterjohn.

Three Lives Wrecked.

In every city and among all classes in villages and countryside, the subject of divorce has come to be one under common discussion. Some argue on behalf of the law which gives unhappy mortals their freedom, while others take the position that "what God hath joined together, let no man put asunder." But nearly all agree that the most general cause of the divorce evil, if evil it be, is due to misunderstanding.

Accordingly, basing their theme on misunderstanding, Henry Arthur Jones and Wilson Barrett wrote a stage play which now has been produced for the screen by William Fox. The scenes are placed in America, though the theme is universal, even among the savage tribes of southernmost Africa. Everybody misunderstands, whether he wears the proper garb for afternoon at the reception, or is satisfied with a strip of canvas salvaged from some wrecked schooner off the coast.

"Hoodman Blind" is the story of a faithful wife who was misunderstood. Subtle villainy finds a way to place her in the wrong light before her husband. He leaves her and allows himself to slip down into the slime of doubt. But understanding comes like a great, white light and they are reunited.

John Ford directed the picture, which comes to the Palace Theatre Saturday and Sunday, for two days, March 8 and 9. A cast of well known screen players portrays the various characters of the story with remarkable realism and exceptional feeling.

ATTA-BOY SENATOR!

This newspaper is not supporting democratic senators.

We don't like their party, their pedigree, or their hope of posterity. But good old Senator Ferris has been brought up among republicans in a republican state and his conscience thereby tempered.

But all joking aside, we like Senator Ferris. We always did. He is honest, able, and has the shrewdness of a down east Yankee.

He was a democratic governor with a republican legislature and a republican administration and no one has ever yet charged him with playing politics with the state business while he was governor. He was above the tricks of the politician, far and away above them.

He has been a United States senator just long enough to be disgusted with the petty peanut politics in both parties in Washington and the other day he cut loose in an interview that does him credit and added to his life-long reputation for candor and good common sense.

He said he was tired and disgusted with the petty politics on both sides in the United States senate, each side engaging in mud-slinging and innuendos for the sole purpose of making the public believe that the other party is a bunch of rascally traitors to the country and a herd of gross incompetents; and he further added that the United States hadn't done a piece of constructive work during the session. If the senate were all men like Senator Ferris, Senator Underwood and Senator Carter Glass and the republican senators of the statesmanlike cast of Senator Pepper and Senator Borah and Senator Cummins, there would be no need for such a condemnation. But the Heflins and the Reeds and the Johnsons and the Brookharts have made the United States senate the most pitifully impotent and obstructive legislative body on earth.

Senator Ferris is right. His indictments apply to Republicans the last two years.

It is a long way from the senate of Webster, and Clay and Sumner, and Thurman, and Allison, and Spooner and Bayard and Elihu Root.

Senator Ferris is right and Michigan will applaud his courage and his good common sense. It respects him and admires him greatly even if it doesn't like his party politics.—Soo Times.

BAPTIST CHURCH

Sunday Services:
E. Y. P. U. at 10:30 o'clock in charge of Group I. Subject—"Dangers of Trifling With Life, God and the Soul." Read Acts 26:28-32, Luke 12: 15-21.

"The trifter loses everything worth while."

The trifter with the sacred things of life loses the pleasure he seeks, and the finer things of life also.

There is always danger of death when we trifle with life.

There is always danger of spiritual death when we trifle with God and the Soul.

Sunday school at 11:45. Lesson theme, "The Reign of God." We are glad to see several of our members back with us who were absent during the winter.

On Wednesday, March 12, the Ladies' Aid Society will meet with Mrs. Thos. Milner. Come prepared with needles and thimbles ready to sew.

On Friday evening, February 22, a sleigh load of our young people, nineteen in number, spent a very enjoyable evening at the home of Mrs. Beauss. A potluck supper, with ice cream and everything, was served at the regular supper hour and the evening was spent in playing games.

GOOD ROADSAutomobile Highway Is Most Unusual in World

Monroe county, of which Key West, Fla., is the principal center of population has just voted a $300,000 bond issue for the construction of what will be perhaps the most unusual automobile highway in the world. The money will be spent for roads and bridges from Key West to the mainland.

The proposition had received the enthusiastic moral backing of the Atlantic Coast Highway association, which is urging the completion of a continuous route between Maine and Key West and skirting the Atlantic for the greater part of the way.

The new auto road when completed will be the longest and probably the only extensive automobile road over the sea in the world. At times the motorist will be almost if not actually out of sight of land.

He will have the Gulf of Mexico on the one hand and the Atlantic ocean on the other. The scenery is extremely picturesque. The keys have been compared to the South Sea Islands. They are masses of bright green verdure and contain many coconut groves. The shoals along the route reflect every color of the rainbow from the masses of the pink-and-white coral, the white marl and the brown and green seaweed on the bottom. There are immense numbers of sea birds—brown pelicans, herons, frigate birds and others, and many kinds of fish.

The gap between the mainland and Key West was bridged by Henry M. Flagler's Florida East Coast railroad in 1912. The distance between Homestead, in southern Florida (at which the railroad overseas extension begins) and Key West is 128 miles. Of this distance the railroad runs over deep water for 18 miles, the concrete piers in several places rising out of water 30 feet deep, though the average depth crossed by the viaducts and steel trestles is considerably less.

A large part of the distance between the various keys or islands that form a chain between Key West and the mainland of Florida consist of shoals which have been filled in with embankments along the railroad right of way. The shoals in the case of the auto route would probably be crossed by bridges, although the automobile road, not obliged to take so direct a route as the railroad, can use the keys to a greater extent.

Part of the route will lie in Dade county, of which Miami is the principal center of population. The Florida Mainland-Key West auto road will form an extension of the Dixie highway leading from Waycross, Ga., down the east coast of Florida, through Jacksonville, St. Augustine, Orlando, West Palm Beach and Miami to Royal Palm State park, a distance of 519 miles. With completion through to Key West, the distance from Waycross to Key West will be 637 miles, or 1,723 miles by auto road from New York to Key West.

Stripe Down Center to Make Paved Road Safer

If the road authorities would have a four-inch stripe painted down the center of our concrete pavements it would be of great help to motorists and probably prevent some accidents. A man driving on a twenty-foot pavement with nothing on his left to guide by, is always trying to see both sides of the road at once. He wants to keep to the right as far as possible and yet watch the other fellow and see how far the approaching car will miss him. He can't do both at the same time successfully.

If he doesn't watch the approaching car a reckless driver may hit him. If he does watch him he may be forced off the pavement, with no chance to prove who was in the wrong. With a stripe down the center of the paving there is a much better chance of tracking straight and avoiding collisions or swerving off the road to keep from getting hit.—R. A. Bradley, Mechanical Engineering department, Colorado Agricultural college.

Completion of Highway Celebrated in Virginia

The completion of the Virginia state highway between Orange and Madison, known as Route No. 16 in the state highway system, was celebrated by the people of Orange and Madison counties. Members of the Orange county chamber of commerce and a committee representing Madison county arranged an old-time basket picnic and barbecue on the farm of Mrs. Annie E. Carpenter, near Madison. Music was furnished by a brass band from Washington, and short addresses were made by residents of Orange and Madison counties.

Widen Narrow Highways to Accommodate Trucks

Motorists, slowed to less than their usual pace behind some huge truck, often fluently utter unprintable things regarding trucks in general—averring that they shouldn't be on the road and this and that.

It isn't always the driver's fault that the heavily loaded truck doesn't turn out. Sometimes it is the road—too narrow to permit a truck and two cars to go abreast. Thus wider roads become the solution of the problem.

FIRE AN UNWELCOME GUEST AT A PARTY

Farm Home of John Wells Threatened Last Thursday.

Mrs. John Wells was entertaining a few of her friends last Thursday forenoon, February 28th, at her farm home on Rural Rt. 4, in honor of her 75th birthday. The affair was progressing merrily when some one of the party, hearing an unusual noise, looked around to find that the house was on fire.

A spark from the chimney had ignited the shingles near its base and before it could be put out the blaze had eaten through into the room of the one story dwelling. Everybody present turned in and worked with a will and enthusiasm for which Mrs. Wells is truly grateful, as their efforts spared her considerable loss. As it was, quite a bit of damage was done to the plastering of the room where the fire broke through.

TOO MUCH AMBITION VS. SHORTER HOURS

Uncle Sam Don't Approve of Working Overtime

According to instructions received here by Postmaster George W. Weaver from John H. Bartlett, First Asst. Postmaster General at Washington, the local post office from now on and in future during the winter period will be closed at 6:15 p. m.

Quoting from Mr. Bartlett's instructions to Postmaster Weaver: "In view of the fact that all business houses close at 6:00 or earlier and the number of window calls after 6:00 p. m. is negligible, you are hereby authorized to observe 6:15 p. m. as the closing hour during the winter period." Of course, during the summer period, it will be necessary to keep the office open later in order to take care of the mails due to a different train schedule and the requirements of the summer resort season.

This regulation is the outcome of a recent visit of a postal inspector to Charlevoix, who found that the tour of one of the clerks was not arranged to conform with the provisions of the eight-in-ten hour law, the clerk in question having been of his own volition putting in eleven and a half hours on the job. The only alternative was to raise his pay or cut the open-for-business hours of the post office down, as the government's policy is strictly against overtime work.

Friends of the Lewis Browns Help Them Celebrate

About fifty relatives and friends of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Brown of Ironton will long remember the pleasant evening spent in their home last Saturday, where they were invited to help celebrate the 25th anniversary of their wedding. Mr. and Mrs. Brown were the recipients of some beautiful silverware and other gifts.

During the evening a bountiful lunch was served and in the early morning hours the guests departed amid a chorus of "many more happy anniversaries" to their host and hostess.

Among the guests were their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Peterson of East Jordan and family and Mrs. Brown's sister, Mrs. Everett VanDenBerg of Central Lake.

OLD PUBLISHER IS DEAD IN THE WEST

George W. Perry Was Formerly of Elk Rapids Progress.

George W. Perry, 72 years of age, died at the home of his son, Neal C. Perry, at Fresno, Calif., Tuesday morning, February 26th, according to word received at his old home at Elk Rapids.

Mr. Perry was one of the veteran and well known editors of northern Michigan, having published the Elk Rapids Progress for 18 years and, previous to that time, was publisher of the Bellevue Gazette and the Coldwater Times. He was best known, perhaps, for his fight against the liquor traffic. Long before this traffic became a political or moral issue, Mr. Perry was fighting it tooth and nail in his publications.

A little more than a year ago Mr. Perry sold the Elk Rapids Progress to Earl Loomis because of failing health. On October 23, with Mrs.

Perry, he left for the west to spend the winter with his son.

Mr. Perry was born in New York state in 1851, and came to Michigan in the pioneer days, starting his career as a publisher. For four years, under President Hayes, he was in the federal revenue service.

The remains will be brought for burial in the family lot at Elk Rapids.

E. J. WONDER TO BE KAZOO. N'S PITCHER

Gunderson to Star as Ace of State Normal Team.

John Gunderson, East Jordan's prize baseball star, is pretty likely to be a pitching ace for Kalamazoo Normal this spring. Gunderson was on the Normal nine last year, but because Coach Hyames didn't want to spoil a .400 hitter by putting him on mound duty, he was kept in the outfield.

This season the Kalamazoo teachers have fewer veteran pitchers and will rely on Gunderson for a heavy share of the hurling. The Kazoo Normals played a remarkable class of ball last year and were credited by the University of Michigan team as the strongest outfit visiting Perry Field during the season.

ANOTHER LETTER FROM FAR EAST

In the Oriental district, hand carved ornaments, such as ivory beads with faces carved on them or hand-carved cigarette holders or figures carved out of teak-wood sell for very little.

While I was in Chinatown, Shanghai, I saw a real Chinese funeral procession which looked like a circus parade, without elephants and camels. There were about five hundred men in the parade, most of whom were carrying banners of some kind. There were two brass bands, one leading the procession and another bringing up the rear and two groups of drummers in the center. Aside from the gaudily dressed men, there was a Chinese hand-carved sedan, bearing the widow of the dead man and following the widow was a large dragon. The dragon was carved out of wood, but was covered with thin cloth, painted all colors, but mostly red, as red is the favorite color for the Japanese and Chinese people. The mouth of the dragon was open, showing yellow teeth about six inches long. Altogether, the body of the dragon was about fifty feet long and added to that was a tail about twenty-five feet more. The dragon was carried by about fifty men.

After I left the funeral procession, I took a Chinese guide and a riksha and went deeper into Chinatown. Here the streets are narrower than ten feet and it is almost impossible to get around as there are so many people. There is a peculiar odor that made me think of decayed meat and I really didn't doubt the old saying that the Chinese people eat street rats.

Shanghai is the home of the canary bird, as almost every house has one or more birds. Here, good singing canary birds sell for two dollars each. That includes a good hand-made cage and enough bird seed to last for a month or so. But it is well to watch the Chinese dealer, or you will buy one kind and he will slip the good bird out of the cage and put in a bird that don't sing. Leather goods are very cheap in Shanghai, as a good hand-made solid leather travelling bag sells for four or five American dollars and a solid cow-hide leather steamer trunk only costs fifteen American dollars.

From Shanghai I went to Hong Kong, which is a little farther south and a little warmer. Hong Kong being on the edge of the tropics, there are numerous beautiful, tropical gardens and, in general, Hong Kong is a more beautiful city than Shanghai.

From Hong Kong I went to Cebu, in the Philippines islands, two hundred and fifty miles southeast of Manila. Here coconuts are thicker than maple trees in Charlevoix and banana trees are like large house ferns, as both banana and coconut trees are very numerous in Cebu. Flowers are in blossom and it is just like summer.

After being in Japan and China and then coming into the Philippine islands, it was just like coming back to America, as the people nearly all speak English and American things can be bought in the stores.

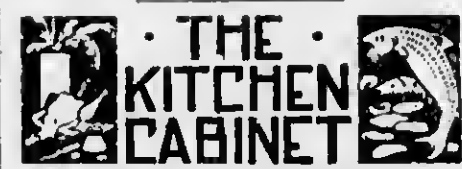

The streets of Cebu are wide and well paved and, in general, it is a beautiful city. There is a large park in the center of the city that to me was the prettiest place, as there were flowers, coconut trees, banana trees and a thousand other trees that I didn't know the names of.

I had the privilege of going into the mountains back of the city where the natives were making sugar out of sugar cane. I also took some beautiful pictures in the mountains of the sugar cane fields and the coconut groves. I talked with various Filipinos about the question as to whether the United States would give the Philippine islands their independence and every person I talked with wanted the islands to be independent, but they thought the United States would not give them their freedom.

I will write you again from the Dutch East Indies or from British East India and describe more fully the tropics and what can be seen in the hot countries.

Yours truly,
Robert Burns.

SOME GOOD BREADS

When good butter-milk is to be obtained there is no better hot biscuit, unless it is sour cream, than can be served.

Buttermilk Biscuit.—Sift four and one-half cups of flour with a tablespoonful of baking powder, one and one-half cups of salt, one teaspoonful of soda. Mix two tablespoonfuls of lard and add two cups of rich buttermilk. Knead until smooth, roll to half an inch in thickness, cut with a small cutter and bake fifteen minutes in a hot oven. Serve piping hot.

Bacon Muffins.—Cut half a pound of sliced bacon into bits and fry until crisp. Cream two tablespoonfuls of the fat with one tablespoonful of sugar, add one well-beaten egg and one and one-half cups of milk. Mix five teaspoonfuls of baking powder with three-fourths of a teaspoonful of salt and two and one-half cups of flour into the mixture and fold in the fried bacon. Pour into greased muffin pans and bake twenty-five minutes in a hot oven.

Butter Cakes.—Sift twice three cups of flour three-fourths of a teaspoonful of soda, one-half teaspoonful of baking powder, one teaspoonful of salt, then mix lightly with sour milk or buttermilk to moisten—about one and one-half cups. Turn out on a floured board and knead lightly. Roll thin and cut into large rounds. Bake on a well-greased griddle, turning frequently to insure even browning. They will cook in eight minutes. Tear them apart and drop a piece of butter into each cake. Wrap in a napkin and serve at once. Served with a dish of fresh berries these cakes are delicious.

Orange Drops.—Beat the yolks of three eggs until light, add one cupful sugar, the juice and rind of half an orange. Sift one cupful of pastry flour, one teaspoonful of baking powder, one-half teaspoonful of salt. Add to the egg mixture, beat well. Chill for half an hour on ice. Break off in pieces the size of a walnut and bake ten minutes in a hot oven on a well-greased baking sheet.

Spring Planting to Avoid Frosts

Dates Given by Weather Bureau on Which Crops Can Be Saved.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Ordinary spring crops can largely be saved from frost damage by postponing planting until the frost risk becomes small. Information as to average dates of the last killing frost in July locally may be obtained from any office of the weather bureau of the United States Department of Agriculture. Early cabbage, radishes, onions, early peas and potatoes, and turnips may be planted about two weeks before the average date of last killing frost. Beets, carrots, lettuce, spinach, cauliflower, celery and sweet corn should be planted about the last frost date. Two weeks after that date, snap beans, okra and tomato plants may be put out, but it is usually better not to plant lima beans, pepper and egg plants, cucumbers, melons and sweet potatoes until the ground is well warmed up, after another two weeks.

Frost in South.

There are some years in which killing frost does not occur at all in the southern portion of the Florida peninsula, and also along the west Gulf coast. It does not often occur after March 1 in northern Florida, southern Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana, and south of Austin, Tex. The line based on March 15, as an average for the last killing frost has receded northward to south-central Georgia, to the latitude of Montgomery, Ala. south-central Mississippi, central Louisiana and central Texas. Two weeks later it has advanced to central North Carolina, north-central Arkansas and central Oklahoma.

Average Date in North.

By the middle of April killing frost does not occur in half the years south of east-central Maryland, north-central Virginia, northern Kentucky, extreme southern Illinois, north-central Missouri and southeastern Kansas. It may be expected during about half the years as late as May 1 in central Ohio, north-central Indiana, extreme northern Illinois, central Iowa and southeastern Nebraska. The average date in the central portions of the lower peninsula of Michigan, central Wisconsin, north-central Minnesota and most of the more northern portion of South Dakota is as late as May 15, while in a few localities in extreme northern Michigan and Minnesota it may be expected in slightly more than half the years as late as June 1.

Raising Dairy Heifers Most Economical Scheme

In view of the fact that it is becoming more difficult each year to secure the right kind of dairy stock the most economical way for farmers to build up a good herd is to raise the heifers from the best cows, being careful to have the calves sired by a pure bred dairy bull, according to the Kentucky College of Agriculture. The problem of feeding may be considered from two standpoints; first, when whole milk is sold from the farm and skim milk is therefore not available; and second, when cream is sold and skim milk is available for feeding to the young animals.

Three plans may be followed by the farmer who has a market for whole milk. The first is to give the calves a good start on whole milk and at the end of two months put them on a hay and grain ration. The second plan is to give the calves whole milk for two weeks and then change to a ration of calf grain or milk substitute; the third is to give the calves the least amount of milk required to promote normal growth.

Bulletin Tells How to Grow Many Bush Fruits

F. P. Daniels of the division of horticulture, University of Minnesota, who has written a bulletin on "Modern Bush Fruit Growing," says a noticeable increase in both acreage and yield of raspberries, blackberries, currants and gooseberries has taken place the last decade in Minnesota. He predicts that under the stimulus of present improved methods of culture and of pest control, the increase will continue for some time. The bulletin gives full information concerning planting, cultivating, pruning, harvesting and insect and disease control. It is issued by the agricultural extension division of the university and can be obtained without charge by addressing the Office of Publications, University Farm, St. Paul, Minn.

POULTRY FLOCKS

POULTRY FLOCK IN EACKYARD

Will Convert Table Scraps and Kitchen Waste Into Wholesome and Nutritious Food.

In every household, no matter how economical the housewife, there is a certain amount of table scraps and kitchen waste which has feeding value, but which, if not fed, finds its way into the garbage pail.

Poultry is the only class of domestic animals suitable for converting this waste material, right where it is produced in the city, into wholesome and nutritious food in the form of eggs and poultry meat.

Each hen in her pullet year should produce 100 eggs.

Help reduce cost of living by keeping small flock of hens in back yard.

Specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture say, "The average size of the backyard flock should be at least 10 hens. Thus, each flock would produce in a year 100 dozen of eggs, which at the conservative value of 35 cents a dozen, would be worth $35."

By keeping a backyard poultry flock the family would not only help to reduce the cost of living but would have eggs of a quality and freshness often difficult to obtain.

Remember that eggs produced by the backyard flock cost very little, as the fowls are fed largely upon waste materials.

NEW VETERANS' AID BILL DRAWN

GEN. HINES IS AUTHOR OF A BROADER STATUTE.

Proposes to Extend Hospital Relief Regardless of Origin of Disability.

In conformity with his original idea of providing hospital treatment and care in government institutions for veterans of all wars without regard to the origin of their disabilities, General Frank T. Hines, director of the U. S. Veterans' Bureau, has transmitted to congress the draft of a bill which would provide such care.

In speaking of this bill recently General Hines called attention to the president's address to congress on December 6, in which the president said: "At present there were 9,500 vacant beds in government hospitals. I recommend that all hospitals be authorized at once to receive and care for, without hospital pay, the veterans of all wars needing such care, whenever there are vacant beds, and that immediate steps be taken to enlarge and build new hospitals to serve all such cases."

The director laid great stress on the need for such legislation and declared "that the existing law provides for the care in government hospitals of veterans of the World War, but only when their diseases and injuries are of an origin directly attributable to their service, a matter often somewhat difficult of proof. There are also other conditions in the law which limit the authority to hospitalize even veterans of the World War, such as that the aid may not be given if the disability to be treated is the result of the soldier's own willful misconduct."

The bill General Hines refers to was prepared in the Veterans' Bureau and is the result of protracted consideration and study of the many variant forms of expression which such measure might take. "Briefly speaking," said General Hines, "the ideas behind this plan are these:

1. To authorize granting of hospital relief to veterans at the moment that it is needed without waiting to prove the service connection, and
2. To extend the same relief to all veterans of all wars as there can be no real distinction among the men who served their country."

The text of the bill to provide the relief proposed by General Hines reads:

"The United States Veterans' Bureau is hereby authorized, in the discretion of the director, to furnish hospitalization in government hospitals and necessary traveling expenses to veterans of any war who have not been dishonorably discharged from the service and who in the judgment of the director are in need of hospitalization, without regard to the nature or origin of their disabilities."

INTERESTING BITS OF INFORMATION CLIPPED FROM OUR EXCHANGES

Mr. Noon will this year head the Michigan Farm Bureau, an organization of the farmers who get up in the morning.

Six rural mail carriers out of Holland have together covered roads totaling more than 800,000 miles since they entered the service about 20 years ago. You don't have to be very old to remember when there weren't that many miles.

In every 10 pounds of milk yielded by the average dairy cow there is 87 pounds of water, says a report of the dairy department at East Lansing. Evidently a cow can learn a good deal, if she lives with a farmer long enough.

"Are your children as important to you as bridge, mah Jongg, dancing and the movies?" Demanded a speaker at Kalamazoo. A number of parents reply that they do not know, but they will look the children up some day and see.

At a church supper to be given at a Reed City church the food will be prepared and served by cooks who learned their trade in lumber camps. All those who have the luck to get a place at the table will be expected to say nothing and snw wood.

NO FIREWORKS ON THE FOURTH

STATE BANS THEIR SALE OR USE THIS YEAR.

Except as Displayed by Licensed Operators at Public Gatherings, Picnics, Etc.

An order absolutely banning the sale or use of fireworks in Michigan, except by municipalities, fair associations or amusement parks, was issued this week by Harry H. Jackson, commissioner of public safety, and Homer Rutledge, state fire marshal.

The order, which is specifically aimed at Fourth of July celebrations, follows:

"It appears from the records of this office that the sale and use of fireworks in Michigan results in an increasingly large number of deaths and destruction of property. July 4, 1923, the promiscuous set of the fireworks caused the death of eight persons and property damage amounting to $300,000.

"Except as hereinafter provided, no person, firm or corporation shall sell, offer for sale, or place on display in the state any blank cartridge, toy pistol, toy cannon, toy cane or toy gun in which explosives are used; the type of balloon which requires fire to propel; fire crackers, torpedoes, or any fireworks containing any explosives or inflammable compound, or any tablets or other device commonly used and sold as fireworks, containing nitrates, chlorates, oxalates, sulphides of lead, barium, arsenic, mercury, nitroglycerin, phosphorus or any compounds containing any of the same or other modern explosives.

"The council of any city or village or township board may, upon application in writing, grant a permit for the public display of fireworks by municipalities, fair associations or amusement parks, when handled by competent operators.

"Whenever any of the provisions of this order are violated, the state fire marshal or the mayor, chief of police or chief of the fire department or any supervisor is given authority to confiscate and destroy all such fireworks offered for sale, on display or in use in Michigan."

"FUNERAL MARCH" A MUSICAL JOKE

GOUNOD WROTE IT AS BURLESQUE ON A CRITIC

Title Belies Its Nature, Which Is Fanciful and Lightsome Throughout

Here is the final number of the Music Memory contest—Charles François Gounod and his "Funeral March of a Marionette." Gounod was born in the year 1818 and died in 1893. His father, a painter of some note, died early in his son's life, leaving him to the care of his mother, who was a distinguished pianist and his first teacher.

Gounod is best known as the composer of "Faust," one of the world's most popular operas. His life was a constant struggle between the church and the stage, and most of his music is written for the church or for opera. He excelled in beautiful melodies.

"The Funeral March of a Marionette," his famous toy-tragedy, is a musical joke and not at all what "funeral" would suggest. A marionette is a large wooden figure or doll, operated by strings or wires and is used in the production of pantomimes. When the strings break, the mechanical actor is useless—it is dead. It is told that he wrote this in London as a burlesque on the peculiar gait of an English critic, that they begged him to write it on paper for them.

It is difficult to realize that the same man wrote the beautiful opera of "Romeo and Juliet." In the first measure one hears the string snapping—a marionette has been killed in a duel; then the moans and wails of the other actors, the friends of the dead one scamper quickly into line and the stiff-kneed serio-comic march begins. In the middle it changes to a happy and bright major key; then, after a stern reproof, the marchers hurry into line again and it grows fainter and fainter.

treatment should have the right to be examined by a Board of Chiropractors, the prosecutor explained that the determination of this question was for the legislature, and not the courts. That the legislature had decided in passing the regulating act, that the examining state board should be composed of men capable of judging the qualifications of all applicants and that its members should be versed in all branches of the science of treatment of human diseases and ailments.

One of the important subjects specified by the legislature as one which the applicant should pass, is anatomy, the human body. Another is diagnosis. It is required the chiropractic practitioner that he should be able to diagnose the disease which he assumes to treat, so as to be able to know its nature and decide whether his method of treatment would be beneficial to the patient. That until a practitioner had proved his ability and knowledge of the subjects specified, he should not assume or attempt to prescribe any kind of treatment or remedy.

It developed that no claim was made by the defendant that he had applied for examination or taken a course of study to enable him to pass the required examination, but had opened up an office and practiced in Boyne City and vicinity in defiance of the law of the state.

The jury evidently believed that the defendant should comply with the requirements of the state law, and found him guilty of the charge made against him. The charge of the court was fair and to the point, safe-guarding in every way the rights of the defendant and at the same time placing the issue clearly and fairly before the jury.

The defendant was represented by two local attorneys and by an attorney from Lacrosse, Wisconsin, specializing in the defense of chiropractors. Prosecuting Attorney A. L. Fitch handled the case without special assistance. The case attracted wide attention, the court room being well filled with interested spectators.

The trial was begun Monday and finished Tuesday afternoon. The jury deliberated about one hour before returning the verdict. Circuit Judge Gilbert will pronounce sentence on Saturday of this week.

This case was started on March 2, 1923, and has hung fire for various reasons ever since that time. Due to the prosecutor's determination to clean it up at this term and his masterly handling of the trial it has now been brought to a successful conclusion. Mr. Fitch deserves considerable credit for his work.

SUGAR BEET SITUATION IS GOOD

servative figure. Remember, too, the 15th of the month following delivery of the beets is regular payday and the money is forthcoming on the dot. That means something.

Six years ago (and after the local sugar plant was gone, at that) 3,400 tons of beets were shipped out of the Charlevoix station. The flat rate per ton at that time was only $6.00 but the local growers received $40,000.00. At the present flat rate, there is no reason whatever why the Holland-St. Louis Sugar company should not be leaving at least $50,000.00 in this region every year and this, again, is a conservative figure.

Think what $50,000.00 left in this region in the fall would do for general business. Its beneficial effects would be felt throughout the entire winter. Besides, the beet-grower's credit is always good, other things being equal.

But there is still another side of the matter and that by no means the least important—the fodder value of the beet tops.

The sugar plants do not use all of the beet. The tops are cropped off before the beets are hauled to the weigh station and with the leaves and short stalk usually goes anywhere from 1-8th to one inch of the crown of the beet. These used as feed by the grower represent an extra item of from $10.00 to $12.00 per acre return. They are wonderful milk and cream producers and many farmers grow beets solely for this purpose.

Manager Charles H. Lamphear of the Northern Creamery & Cold Storage Company's local branch, states that the difference in the way the milk tests after the farmers start feeding beet tops to their cows in the fall is remarkable. He has known cases, he states, where cows that had reached the end of their milking period and were dry freshened immediately on being fed with beet tops and went on producing milk of high quality.

Some farmers fill their silos with beet tops and in some cases the beets themselves are ground up and used as fodder. Among the farmers of this district who raise beets mainly for feed purposes may be mentioned Hiram Brock and Ernest Falting. Both of these gentlemen have had excellent success and are ready to swear by beet tops for feeding, so we are told.

WHAT IS DUTY OF A GOOD PARENT

IN 12 MONTHS 68,000 GIRLS DISAPPEARED.

How This Terrible Condition May Be Remedied—What Are the Causes Behind It.

Considerable study of conditions and a vast amount of data collected in the source of searching investigations conducted by social workers and gleaned from the records of public institutions and probate courts has revealed certain salient facts with regard to the yearly disappearance of thousands of young girls from their homes, whose whereabouts, in a great percentage of cases, it has been impossible to trace. These underlying facts are discussed in a pointed and interesting fashion by a writer in one of our exchanges and their relation to the duty and responsibility of parents established. The article in full follows:

Every year we are startled by the enormous toll of missing girls, those who vanish completely from sight in these United States of ours.

If an accident happen and 10, 20, 100 or even 500 persons lose their lives, the news is flashed from one end of the country to the other. Quite often a disaster of this character leads to the creation of public sentiment which demands safety crossings, the providing of fire escapes for buildings, regular inspection of life preservers or vessels, and many other safety measures.

But the missing girls vanish—here one and there one. We grieve when we think of the number and forget it. If it so happens that we personally know of some one who has disappeared mysteriously we talk about it for a long time and it usually ends in talk. It is stated that 68,000 girls dropped from sight or ran away from home in twelve months. This amount would make a large city. Large cities maintain an official bureau for lost and missing people. A large percentage of those reported are our "girls" and many of them are never found.

Where do all of these girls go? What becomes of our girl who starts out on a journey and never reaches her destination?

What becomes of our girl who goes for a ride in a lovely automobile and never comes back?

What becomes of our girl who is anxious to seek her fortune, goes to the city, writes back home once or twice, and then is never heard of again?

What becomes of our girl who, dissatisfied with home life, suddenly disappears and is only heard of a few times after that?

A great speaker recently stated that delinquent parents are responsible for delinquent children.

Now is this fair? Or is it unfair? What is a delinquent parent? Webster tells us that delinquent means neglect to do one's duty and failure to perform one's obligation. Do all parents do their duty? Just what are their obligations?

They have three—real important obligations:

1. To provide creature comforts, sanitary, comfortable and cheerful home improvements.
2. To set a good example, be industrious, self-respecting and honest.
3. In all things to use their own mature judgment in training of their children.

Any parent who fails in all three is plainly delinquent.

If home surroundings are not comfortable, our young girls are going to get away from them as soon as they can. They may not run away, but they will seek companionship that will lure them farther away than they ever intended to go.

If parents have done their best and still failed, there should be something that is not a disgrace open to them. To send a wayward girl to a reform school may seem the worst thing in the world, but in the interests of good citizenship and the fair name of this republic of ours there should be some fine camp or school in which such cases may be handled by wise and sympathetic leadership.

Now our girls leave home and school for the large city for one of these four reasons:

1. To see life and a good time.
2. To make more money.
3. To get away from home discipline.
4. And because of talents that could be more readily developed in the city.

The average girl who goes to the city for a good time cannot have as good a time as she could at home with the girls she has always known, and the houses that have been open to her since baby-hood.

If she could make more money in the city it would not go as far as one-half that amount at home.

And to escape home discipline, she would find she was only exchanging home discipline for that of an institution or landlady.

In regard to developing talents; if she is highly trained in her chosen field, then the city can outbid the smaller community not only with money but increased responsibility.

Now our girls should know at least one good honest way of making a living wage before going to the city.

A wage earner at 18 years is a safe age; until until that she is an infant in the eyes of the law.

And just as no immigrant is allowed to enter the United States without a certain amount of ready cash, I wish as a law, no young (Continued on page 8.)

ALUMNI CLUB REORGANIZES

TWELVE MEMBERS MEET WITH FIELD SECRETARY.

He Presents Plan of General Association to Unite Local Clubs in One Body.

At an informal dinner at the hotel Charlevoix Saturday night, twelve former University of Michigan students met with Hawley Tapping, field secretary of the General Alumni Association at Ann Arbor, for the purpose of reorganizing the Michigan Club.

After an excellent dinner and considerable time spent in discussing the University of today and yesterday—the visitor supplying the facts of today and the "old boys"—the topic on the "Good old days," plans for reorganizing were taken up. Mr. Tapping very convincingly presented the plan of the general association for uniting the local clubs into one body with uniform constitutions and by-laws. Under this plan the United States is divided into districts and under these local organizations build around a city or locality. The nearest clubs to Charlevoix are at Petoskey, Traverse City and Cadillac. The local club will become practically a county organization although covering some territory which lies without the county, between here and Traverse City.

The government of the club is vested in a board of governors acting under the uniform constitution and by-laws. The governors for this year are Robert Bridge, Frank Wilkinson, Kaye Butters and George Beeman of Charlevoix, Dr. Guy Conklo of Boyne City, John Porter of East Jordan, and Bob Williams of Elk Rapids.

The officers, elected by the governors, are President Robert Bridge, Vice-president, Frank Wilkinson, Secretary-Treasurer, Kaye Butters. At present the following are members of the club: R. B. Armstrong, George Beeman, Russell Blakelee, Kaye Butters, Robert Bridge, Thomas Dimmick, Arthur Fitch, Chas. Hamilton, Rollie Lewis, A. E. Mason, Will Mitchell, F. F. McMillan, Mason Rose, Lisle Shanahan, Frank Wilkinson, Earl Young, Bob Williams, Guy Conklo and John Porter.

MORE OF THE MUSIC CONTEST

DVORAK AND CADMAN FOLLOW
GOUNOD.

Last Week Did Not Close School Memory Contest as We Were Led to Believe.

Through a regrettable error, we stated last week in the write-up on the Music Memory Contest that the subject of Gounod and his "Funeral March" closed the program. There are, however, several more numbers coming, of which Dvorak and Cadman, whose compositions we take up this week, will be the fourteenth and fifteenth.

Dvorak. Antonin Dvorak (1841-1904) was a Bohemian composer of the late nineteenth century. He is acclaimed as the greatest Bohemian composer and one of the greatest nationalists of the modern school. Himself one of the people, Dvorak was steeped in the traditions of Bohemian folk music and he constantly employed the national idiom in all of his compositions.

Dvorak spent some years in America and when he returned to Europe gave to the world his Fifth Symphony, which is called "From the New World." It is based on negro melodies. Dvorak wrote in all forms, his operas being unknown outside of Bohemia. His greatest orchestral works are his five symphonies, overtures "Fruška," "Nature," "Othello" and "Carnival," concertos for violin, piano and cello, "Slavonic dances" and many short compositions for instruments and songs.

"Largo," from the New World symphony, an exquisite movement, is the second of the symphony, "From the New World," which Dvorak wrote while a resident of New York City. The "Largo" is said to express in tone the loneliness and homesickness of the immigrant who has settled on the vast prairies of America. It is a beautiful example of poetic thought.

Cadman. Charles Wakefield Cadman (1881—), an American composer of the present time, was born in Jamestown, Penna., and is one of the most popular living American composers. Cadman has made the music of the American Indian his life study and has done more than any other American composer to make known its exquisite beauty. He does not accentuate the barbaric character of Indian themes, but modernizes and idealizes them.

His greatest works are the Indian opera, "Shanewis," produced by the Metropolitan Opera Company in 1918 and the Cantata, "The Vision of Sir Launfal." He has written several beautiful works for orchestra and character music, but Cadman's chief popularity rests on his Indian songs, of which, "From the Land of the Sky-Blue Water" is the best known. "Little Firefly," a charming little composition, descriptive of the insect from which it takes its name, was inspired by the lines from Longfellow's famous poem, where Nokomis tells the little Hiawatha of "Wah-wah-tay-see, little firefly, little dancing, white-fire creature; light me with your little candle, ere upon my bed I lay me."

This is a bright, vivacious composition of an unusual type—an example of imitation in poetic thought.

For all the news, read the Courier.

HISTORY ONCE MORE REPEATS

BUT THIS TIME VICTORY FOLLOWED DEFEAT.

Red and White Cagers Recover Part of the Laurels Lost to Petoskey from E. J.

This is the official Chanticleer dope concerning the high school basketball games written for the Charlevoix Courier:

Determined to quench the sting of Wednesday night's humiliating defeat, the local quint journeyed to the Jordan and administered the grand old dope.

But the game in which Petoskey grabbed off the bacon was certainly an unfortunate affair in the high school basketball annals. Fans who saw the local engers in action on the northern floor earlier this season were confident that the locals would win. The dope certainly favored us. It seems that our boys had not recovered from their Harbor Springs slump and couldn't get under way until things had gone too far for redemption. Petoskey had the advantage of a big lead from the start and though Charlevoix held their opponents 8 to 9 in the last half, Petoskey seemed assured of victory throughout the entire contest. Only once did the locals spur up on the heels of the blue and whites. At the end of the third quarter the quick netting of three baskets brought us up to within three points of a tie. But once again Petoskey dropped into a safe lead which, at the whistle, had piled up to 11 to 19.

Of course we are making no bones over the defeat, although our squad could have been in much better condition physically. Todd's arches were both painfully broken down, Dagwell had only partially recovered from a sprained ankle and Hallett had to be "taped up" several times during the fray. The locals did not even as much as hint at the exceptional form and speed exhibited earlier in the season. There was no such science or endurance as nearly tripping. (Continued on page seven)

LOEB SCHOOL NOW A STANDARD SCHOOL

Awarded Standard Plate on March 7 With Appropriate Ceremony.

On March 7, District No. 5, Marion township, was awarded a standard plate. The building, which was completed in 1919, had all the requirements of a standard school at the beginning of the term.

Patron's Day combined with Standard Day, was observed with one hundred and twenty present. A hot luncheon was served at the noon hour from the school kitchen, after which followed a program.

All except the mothers assembled in the auditorium to listen to a fine speech by Rev. H. R. E. Quant Miss Mayoer, principal of the County Normal school, had a special talk for the mothers. A program was given by the school in which the County Normal Class took part by singing. The presentation of the standard plate was then given by Commissioner A. C. Belding.

YE ED SURPRISED ON HIS BIRTHDAY

Had Cake And Ever't'n Played Games Too

Last Friday night at 8:00 p. m., eighteen of the friends and neighbors (nine couples) gathered at the home of Ye Editor of the Courier, the occasion being that gentleman's birthday—never mind which one, he says he's no spring chicken anyhow.

The affair was quite a surprise to "A. J.", who of late years has fallen into the habit of forgetting his birthdays and in fact his equilibrium was not quite recovered until after the ceremony of carving the fine birthday cake had been performed, with just a faint suggestion of the editorial scissors about the way he handled the knife.

The place cards and table decorations were in keeping with the approaching anniversary of the good old Irish saint who warred against the snakes (no snake-bite remedy, however, being included in the menu which otherwise was a bountiful one.)

After the "spread", the guests and their host and hostess met at the card tables and engaged in a game of "bunco", S. M. Rose and Mrs. Elmer Johnson winning first prizes and Elmer Johnson and Mrs. H. B. Jacobs the consolation.

PLANS LAID FOR BIG TOURNAMENT

BASKETBALL TEAMS FROM 26 SCHOOLS ENTERED.

Annual Affair to Be Held at Petoskey on March 20th to 22nd Inclusive.

Plans and entries have been completed for the annual northern Michigan high school basketball tournament of Class B and Class C teams of the region's teams. Twenty-six high schools are now entered, eight in Class B and eighteen in Class C, insuring one of the largest tournaments in Michigan. The dates are Thursday, Friday and Saturday, March 20, 21 and 22. Arthur Treloar, faculty manager of athletics in the Petoskey high school, has charge of the business end of the tournament, with W. B. McClintock of the Northern State Normal, at Marquette, as head referee. W. K. Archbold, of M. A. C., will be the other referee, and Loren D. Bensley, Traverse City, will referee the consolation tourney.

Headquarters of the tournament will be at the Cushman Hotel, Petoskey, where at least 17 of the 26 teams will be housed. All meals will be served to the visiting players there. The remaining players will be housed in the homes of Petoskey fans. Those teams staying at the hotel will pay their own room charge, the local high school paying for all meals. The visiting teams will be entertained throughout the tournament.

Mounted trophy silver basketballs will be presented to the two winning schools, while loving cups go to the two schools winning runnerup positions. Loving cups will go to the winners of the consolation tournament in each class, and individual miniature silver basket balls go to the members of the championship teams of each class.

These teams are entered in Class B: Big Rapids, Cadillac, Manistee, Petoskey, Boyne City, Onaway, Cheboygan and Alpena.

In class C are St. Ignace, Mackinaw City, Rogers City, Gaylord, Grayling, Vanderhilt, Pellston, Harbor Springs, Charlevoix, Mancelona, Kalkaska, Manton, Ellsworth, Frankfort, Elk Rapids, East Jordan, Alba, and Buckley.

Petoskey is expected to be crowded with fans from the northern towns during the 3-day meet. Should roads be good, the crowd will be larger than ever before. The battle for the championships of northern Michigan will be closely fought in both classes, as the teams this year are more evenly matched than since the tournament idea was developed.

"The Third Degree" started in the Garden of Eden with Eve and the apple. Also, don't miss the "Style Show" on April 1st. Rebekah Circle. Admission 25c.—Adv. 1111.

COURT AFFAIRS MOVED SWIFTLY

FIVE IMPORTANT CASES DISPOSED OF IN A WEEK

DeJordy Two Months, Fine and Costs, Richards Out on Bond-Civil Cases Closed

Over in Judge Gilbert's court this past week things have been moving along rapidly under the new system he has instituted for the more expeditious handling of cases.

The case of the People vs. J. F. A. DeJordy, for violation of the medical registration act, which was commenced on Monday afternoon, March 3rd, went to the jury Tuesday afternoon, March 4th and resulted in a verdict of guilty. Sentence was pronounced Saturday morning, the defendant receiving a fine of $100, with costs of $100.00 attached and two months in the county jail. Defaulting in the payment of fine and costs the prisoner will remain in the county jail an additional four months. He commenced serving his jail sentence at noon on Saturday.

The case of the People vs. Earl Richards, based on the charge of neglecting wife and minor children, was heard and decided on Tuesday, March 3rd. Richards had previously entered a plea of not guilty and had been confined to the jail for two weeks. On Tuesday of last week, he appeared before Judge Gilbert and changed his plea to that of guilty. His bond was fixed at $200, and by order of the court he is ordered to pay over to his wife for the maintenance of herself and children an amount equivalent to two thirds of his income, which shall not be less than one dollar per day. If he fails in this he goes back to jail.

The civil case of Robert F. Sloan vs. Earl A. Young, Irene E. Young, ejectment, was completed Wednesday, March 5th. The case having resolved itself into a question of law rather than fact, the court instructed the jury to return a verdict of no cause of action, without leaving their seats in the courtroom. He then required the defendants to make good their tender of the balance ($3,154.55) due on the then-proven contract, the details of this transaction being completed on Friday of last week. Earl A. Young remains in occupancy of the property.

The case of James Franklin O'Brien, a minor, by Ruth O'Brien, his next friend, vs. Albert H. Loeb, Anna H. Loeb and Richard Loeb, consumed two and one-half days of the adjourned half of the February term, commencing on Thursday, March 6th, and ending Saturday afternoon, March 8th. This is an accident case and went to the jury at about three o'clock. They returned a verdict of $2,000 damages in favor of the plaintiff, costs to be paid by the defendants. We are informed that this case will be appealed to the supreme court by the defendants.

Findings in the case of Adolph F. Young vs. Ann Kenning Wood, Katherine C. Stringer and Charlevoix County Bank, were filed by Judge Gilbert on Thursday of last week. It now awaits final decree.

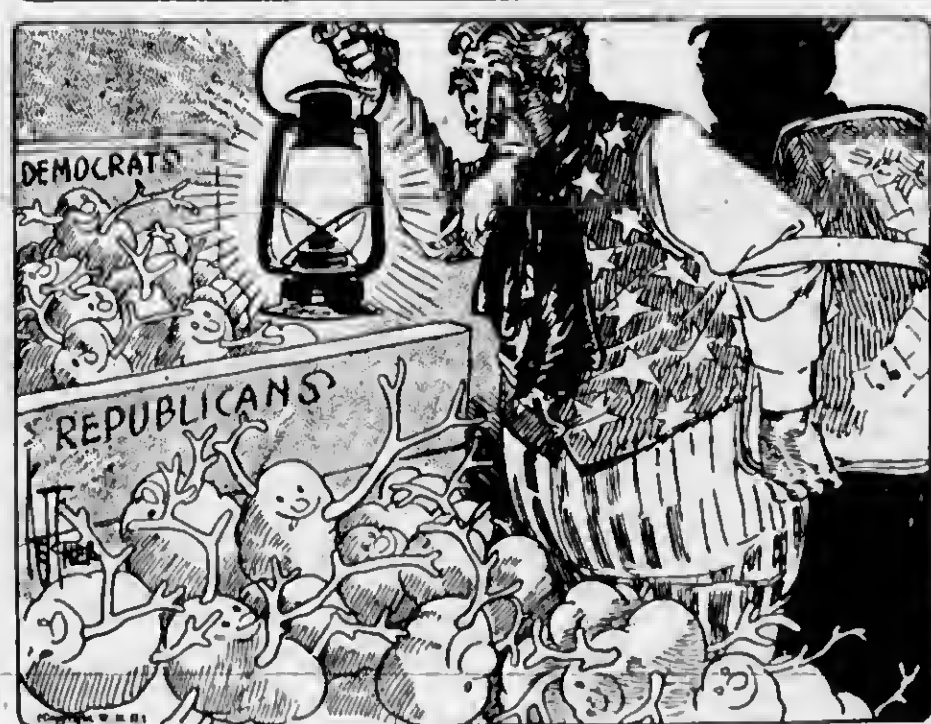

This case was originally an action in ejectment commenced by Young to recover possession of the property taken by Mrs. Wood by virtue of a deed given to her by the Charlevoix County Bank. The case came on for trial at a former term before Judge Mayne, who held that ejectment was not the proper remedy and, upon application, transferred the case to the chancery side of the court, in which it has just been heard.

It seems that in dealings between plaintiff Young and the late Harry Nicholls, Mr. Young gave Nicholls a warranty deed of the property known as the A. F. Young office building at 109 Bridge street. This deed was never acknowledged or recorded, but was placed in the Charlevoix County Bank. Young was indebted to the bank for loans made to him, considerably past due. (Continued on page 8.)

The Women's Relief Corps will hold a baked goods sale at the Charlevoix Hardware Company's store, Saturday, March 22nd. 11-11.

FOWLER TO HANDLE HUDSON AND ESSEX

Local Garageman Gets Sole Rights for Territory.

H. R. Fowler announces that he has been selected as the agent for Hudson and Essex motor cars for Charlevoix and this territory. Mr. Fowler has been investigating the Hudson-Essex proposition for some time and is particularly enthusiastic about both makes. He looks for substantial business from the first. "In my investigation," said Mr. Fowler, "I learned that the Hudson and Essex companies have always had a splendid reputation with their owners, dealers and distributors alike and throughout the automobile industry, as well. Automobile men tell me that their product has always been of high standard and that they have unusual financial strength. I went most carefully into the entire matter, including construction methods, principles and workmanship of the two cars, and am confident that no other cars offer as much for the price asked as the Hudson Super-Six or the Essex. I feel fortunate in being selected as their representative for this territory.

"While in the city of Grand Rapids I was shown a number of letters sent in by Hudson and Essex owners which certainly spoke volumes for the long life, economy, ease of handling and comfort which the construction and engineering principles of the Hudson and Essex make possible.

"I can assure users and prospective users in Charlevoix that in either a splendid, attractive Hudson or in the smaller, lighter, but no less attractive Essex, they will find a car by far the best buy that they have experienced in years."

TELLING THE WORLD ABOUT NORTH MICH.

Towns of Region Planning Extensive Advertising.

Nearby cities, towns and counties are making a determined effort this spring to advertise their tourist advantages and attractions, in this way hoping to get at least a share of the tourist trade which comes into northern Michigan.

Charlevoix has recently ordered 5,000 more booklets, and these will be delivered and ready for use within a few weeks.

Now comes Leelanau county with a new drive for recognition, and with orders out for thirty thousand booklets to be used in advertising. In reporting this effort a Leelanau news item says: Thirty thousand artistic booklets enumerating advantages and pointing out places of interest, will "tell the world" about Leelanau county, through plans perfected by the Leelanau Association of Commerce, which was organized a few weeks ago. "Leelanau, the Land of Delight," is the slogan on the cover, while on the back is a map of the county, pointing out the Michigan state trunk-lines, county main roads, resort property, resort hotels and trout streams, together with boat lines touching Leelanau points.

Petoskey's drive for funds is continuing under the direction of the chamber of commerce. The committee in charge of raising the fund hopes to have $5,000 for this purpose. Part of this will go to the tourist bureau for national advertising and the remainder used for new booklets and other methods of advertising.

POULTRY

Comfortable Fowl Must Be Free From Insects

To be comfortable, a hen must be free from mites and lice; she must have plenty of fresh air and water, a well-ventilated house without drafts, and a balanced ration. If the weather turns cold and the house is drafty, the hen will need more food for maintenance, and will draw on what would otherwise have been used for the egg supply.

Records from the sixth egg-laying contest at Mountain Grove, Mo., furnished the following data as to the amount of food required by hens for maintenance and for egg production:

"The indications are that the hen uses three-fourths of the feed to supply her body and one-fourth to make eggs, and from each one-fourth of feed above maintenance, she makes two eggs which weigh one-fourth of a pound, thus producing a pound of eggs for each pound of feed above maintenance. Data showed that the average hen weighed five pounds, consumed 75 pounds of feed and laid 150 eggs.

"The hens had feed before them at all times, and as the average hen consumed 75 pounds of feed, which is 1,200 ounces, it will be seen that the hen's digestive capacity is 100 ounces per month and that she averaged 74 ounces for her body and from the other 25 ounces she made 12½ eggs, that weighed 25 ounces.

"Although we believe the hen's digestive capacity is about the same at all times, yet she does not produce the same number of eggs each month, which is accounted for by the proportion of feed required for her body at different times. If the weather is pleasant and other conditions right, the hen may use only 50 ounces of feed for her body at different times and make 25 eggs from the other 50 ounces of feed, but if the weather turns cold and her house is not what it should be, so that 90 ounces of feed are required for her body, she can only make five eggs from the other ten ounces, and if the weather changes suddenly so that 110 ounces of feed are needed to support her body, she can and does arrest the eggs which are partly developed, turns the egg material back into her own system and uses it as food, which explains why hens stop laying on short notice following a sudden change in the weather."

Remove Down From Goose by Using Powdered Rosin

Perhaps you know of several good ways to skin a rabbit, but do you know of one good way to "down" a goose? If you have had some experience in preparing one of these birds for the table or the market and are still not in a class with the experts, doubtless you have had considerable trouble in removing the down from the skin after the feathers have been removed. Nearly everybody has the same trouble.

However, the problem of removing the persistent down can be solved with ease if you have a little powdered rosin on hand. Sprinkle the picked goose lightly and evenly with the fine rosin and then dip the bird in hot water. The heat melts the rosin which merges with the down. When the temperature has gone down it is an easy matter to rub off the rosin and the down together. This method does a clean job and the rosin has no effect on the flavor of the goose.

Question of Feeding in Winter to Produce Eggs

There is no reason why the fellow who keeps chickens should expect them to hibernate for the winter. Many farm flocks produce reasonably well during spring and summer when they have the freedom that nature affords. Handled properly, these flocks could be made to yield a profit all through the year. A flock properly cycled, comfortably housed and adequately fed will lay through the winter as well as summer.

The question of feeding hens during winter in order to get eggs becomes quite largely a matter of sensible feeding. It is the surplus feed, that not needed to keep up the bodily functions, which is used in egg production.

Sanitary Fountain Must Be Opened and Cleaned

Sanitary fountains are not sanitary because that name is printed on the side. They must be opened up and cleaned occasionally with boiling water. The fact that the sunlight and air cannot easily reach the inside of some sanitary fountains is an additional reason for giving them a thorough scrubbing.

Yards Not Necessary. It is not absolutely necessary to have yards for the backyard laying flock, if it is not convenient to do so. The birds can be put into their house and kept confined until next spring if necessary. With proper management, excellent production can be secured where this plan is followed.

Best Laying Pullets. Pullets that commence laying early are considered better layers than those that mature late, hence the statement, "Keep the early spring pullets."

PARK AND BEACHES TO BE "DOLLED" UP

Planning Ovens and Driveway For Auto Park

The auto park is also to come in for improvements. Cement stoves or ovens will be built at various convenient points and a circular driveway, wide enough for two cars to pass comfortably, will surround the present rest-room building. "OLD FASHIONED" CONCERT A SUCCESS

Net Receipts Totaled Over One Hundred Dollars

The "Old Fashioned" concert given at the high-school auditorium last Friday evening for the benefit of the Charlevoix Hospital was distinctly a success from the point of view of returns, attendance and performance.

A large and enthusiastic audience met every number with a rousing reception, the minstrel numbers, especially, seeming to be the "hit" of the evening. Everyone seems to be agreed that the music, as a whole was exceptionally fine and the costumes in keeping with the songs of the long ago, aroused considerable appreciative comment from their beholders. Special mention might be made of little Miss Gwendolyn Miller, who as the little old fashioned girl, completely captivated her audience.

A check-up of the receipts shows that $110.00 was cleared on the affair and its promoters are congratulating themselves on the good showing made. Much credit is due Mrs. Clarence N. Bridge for her able management and substantial contribution to the success of the enterprise, as well as to those who took part in the program.

Would Rather Have Two.

The house surgeon at a private hospital met one of his male patients in an irascible mood.

"What's the matter with you this morning, my man?" he asked.

"I want to get married, doctor," was the reply.

"Get married?" repeated the doctor. "How old are you?"

"Fifty-seven," replied the lunatic.

"Then I suppose you would like a wife of about fifty?"

"Well, sir, if it's the same to you," muttered the would-be bridegroom, "I'd rather have two at twenty-five."

Germany is said to be in danger of breaking up, but this can be avoided by coughing up.

A Lenten Message

He said, "But God said Luke xli. 18, 20.

If we hearken to our own conscience and our own hearts only, we will get into thick, black darkness where it is impossible to believe that God is. I say unto my soul, "Thou art cast off," but God says, "The blood of Jesus his son cleanseth us from all sin"; but God says, "If we confess our sin, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness"; God says, "My grace is sufficient for thee." My paralyzing fear has taken such a hold upon me that I hesitate to put my feet again in the pathway of his will, "Lo, I am with you always," and in Christ expresses His purpose of perpetual companionship and comradeship. Ah, beloved, Christ is God's great contradiction to my fears, my self-condemnation, — J. Stuart Holden.

Geese can be raised in small numbers successfully and at a profit on many farms where there is low, rough pasture land containing a natural supply of water. They need a house only during cold or stormy weather, when an open shed should be provided.

ped Traverse City, yet, we understand that at East Jordan the boys went like race-horses, completely shutting out the Jordanites during the first half and outplaying them with subs in the last half.

If old Dame Luck plants her number twelve on our beezers when the tournament unlocks its doors, Charlevoix may stage a radical comeback and redeem itself a hundredfold. The team has got the stuff, we know that; all it's got to do is to cough it up when the platter is passed.

Coach Altenburg has given out strict training rules which must be carried out under penalty between now and those three days of mortal reckoning—the 20th, 21st and 22nd.

Frank Hoffman, star guard on the Petoskey string, was their highpoint man; netting 14 of their points and practically winning the game for the northeners. Dagwell was the local high-pointer, winning six of our scores. Hallett at forward, played a whiz of a game as did Todd and their other team mates, although none of them came up to the standard set earlier in the season.

Score by halves:

1h 2h fml

C. H. S. 3 8 11

Petoskey 10 9 19

The East Jordan game was a complete and undisputed victory for the locals. Each man swung into the old time form and played an unrecognizable brand of ball in comparison with that displayed the Wednesday before.

Score by halves:

1h 2h fml

C. H. S. 12 8 20

Jordanites 0 6 6

The official Chanticleer report concerning the two Traverse City games which were reported forfeitures is:

Orva Travis, Secretary of the M. I. A. A., in direct correspondence with Frank Austin, local principal, announces that all athletic contests in which Traverse City participated in the first semester of school are forfeited to the opponents, due directly to the ineligibility of Copeland, star Football end and Basketball guard.

This forfeits the Football North-state Champion to Petoskey and blots from our records our defeat at Traverse. Charlevoix's basket-ball contests missed this period of ineligibility by three days; thus those two games still remain victories for the down-staters.

C. H. S. TEAM WINS A PLACE IN PRELIMS.

Local Trio Defeats Elk Rapids in State Contest

Competing in its first State Inter-scholastic Preliminary debate, the local trio decisively defeated their down state opponent, Elk Rapids. Charlevoix is indeed honored to be one out of three remaining from a group of twenty-four teams in northern Michigan. Having secured the necessary twelve points which enabled them to enter the State Elimination contests, they were assigned Elk Rapids as an opponent. This team had an exceptionally good record, having won, we understand, their four debates by unanimous decision.

The local team was forced during the last week before the debate to change sides of the usual "Ship's Subsidy" question. In spite of this handicap they conquered their opponents by a 3 and 1 decision of the Traverse City judges. The Elk Rapids team consisted of three boys, all of whom had had considerable experience in debate work and were anxious to continue their career in the state contests. The local team with the regular line up; Margery Brown, Vern Belding and Albert Widdfield, met their opponents with strong arguments and won their first prelim.

The contest took place in the town hall in the presence of the largest crowd before which the local team has ever appeared. Miss Ried, local coach, has not yet been informed who the next opponent will be. It will probably be either Alba or Manistee.

CHARLEVOIX PUBLIC SCHOOL NOTES.

Now is the high tide of the year. And whatever of life hath ebbed away Comes flooding back, with a rippling cheer, Into every bare inlet and creek and bay.

First Grade.

Annabelle Vosburg and Lewis Greenman entered the first grade this week.

Jean Graves, James Driggett and Marjory Ashdon are out of school on account of illness.

The first grade is studying the life of the Dutch children.

Training Room.

The second grade are doing very well in dramatization.

The fifth grade have finished their cotton projects. Their work will be saved for the exhibit.

County Normal Notes.

Charlevoix County Normal had a class meeting last week and decided on a class motto which is, "Not evening, yet, but dawn," also that they would have the regular State County Normal Class Pin. The order has been sent out.

The class visited the Loeb School Patron's Day meeting, Friday, March 7, took part in the entertainment and enjoyed the rest of the program very much. A very fine lunch was served by the patrons.

The first six-week period of teaching is finished and we have begun our new classes which hold new interests for us and continue in our preparation for next year's work.

High School.

The class in American history is in hot arguments, trying to prophesy what would have happened to the Civil War, if Andrew Jackson was the president-elect of the Republican party in 1860 instead of Lincoln. The reason for argument arose through the doubt of a few class members as to the nobility of Jackson.

The C. H. S. debate team were very successful last Wednesday night in their debate with Elk Rapids, the score being 3 to 1 in our favor.

WHAT IS DUTY OF A GOOD PARENT

girls were permitted to leave home and go alone to the cities without at least $50 and enough more besides to pay her way back home.

She should be allowed two weeks for finding a job and must live in the meantime and pay for her room in advance.

She could not get along with less than $18 a week. Fifty dollars would be about the right provision for safety.

I think it would be hard to give our girls who go to the city a machine-made formula for success.

But among the qualities that will help her most are courage, intelligence, common sense, good manners, trustworthiness, and ambition. It happens that they are also the qualities which will make her successful if she stays in her own home town.

A bit of verse comes to my mind, by Robert Louis Stevenson: "Youth now flies on feathered foot, faint and fainter sounds the flute, Rarer songs of gods; and still Somewhere on the sunny hill, Or along the winding stream, Through the willows flits a dream, Flits but shows a smiling face, Flees but with so quaint a grace, None can choose to stay at home, All must follow, all must roam."

SIX NAMES ARE FILED IN STATE

No Further Presidential Candidates Have Appeared

Six names have been certified by the secretary of state for the Michigan presidential preference primary, April 7. With the lists closing March 1, there is no indication that additional names will be offered.

Four candidates in the Republican column are President Coolidge, Senators Robert La Follette and Hiram Johnson and William G. Simpson of Detroit.

Petitions for Senator Johnson were filed last week. He received the state's endorsement in the 1920 primaries.

Henry Ford and Senator Woodbridge N. Ferris of Michigan have been certified for the Democratic ticket. Despite Ford's assertion that he would not run against President Coolidge, there has been no effort to have his name withdrawn.

No petition for William G. McAdoo or other avowed candidates for the Democratic nomination have yet appeared.

Under the Michigan law, delegates to the national conventions are not bound to support the primary choices. The custom has been to cast their votes on the first ballot for the primary winner and consider their obligations fulfilled, unless there appears a chance to nominate the preference winner.

ROAD BUILDING

Asphaltic Concrete Base

Type of Road Pavement

On the Pacific coast there has been widely developed over a period of twenty-five years a type of pavement and foundation which is the acme of resiliency and flexibility and the ability to resist the encroachments of water. This pavement is known as the asphaltic concrete base type. Its more common name is that of "black base." This type is not patented or controlled by any company or individual and is laid at a moderate cost.

It is simply a foundation of three or four inches of mixed stone and asphalt on which is placed a wearing course of the recognized sheet asphalt or asphaltic concrete that is laid in the East. This gives a total thickness of five or six inches of pavement and foundation, which has been found ample to meet the heaviest and most varied traffic known to California highways. In Visalia, Cal., is a "black base" pavement that was laid in 1896 and which is today in excellent condition. The Visalia pavement is officially reported by the city engineer to have cost nothing for maintenance.

Where the subgrade is unstable it is good practice to lay a thin insulating course of four inches of broken stone. Engineers familiar with this type of construction claim that it is the only type which will successfully resist the bombardment of heavy traffic and is, therefore, destined to become standard in eastern paving practice within a comparatively few years. In the borough of Manhattan, New York city, the practice has been adopted of replacing foundation cuts in Fifth avenue with this type of asphaltic base wherever an opening in the pavement becomes necessary.

The feature of prime importance in this question of design of new pavements is that the field is a very wide one, that there are very many types of pavement, that the engineer and the taxpayer can conserve the interests of good engineering and wise tax outlay by taking fully into account the possibilities of these various types of paving and avoiding any policy that involves placing all the eggs in one basket.

Big Loads on Highways

Is Scored by Auto Club

Should one-third of one per cent of the motor vehicles of a city be allowed to carry loads heavy enough to ruin the highways for the remaining 99.23 per cent?

This question was answered in the negative by the voters of Los Angeles through a referendum initiated by the Automobile Club of Southern California. The city council passed an ordinance increasing the load limits for trucks to 20,000 pounds, which is 4,000 pounds more than allowed under the state law. The exhaustive engineering investigation recently conducted by the automobile club demonstrated clearly that excessive loading contributed largely to the breaking down of roads.

Arguments presented against the 20,000-pound load declared that in Los Angeles only 36 vehicles out of every 10,000 could benefit by excessive loading. There are 250,000 motor vehicle owners in the city of Los Angeles alone paying a tax of two cents per gallon to insure the highways being maintained.

Inquiries from all parts of the country indicate that the action of the Automobile Club of Southern California to protect the roads is being watched with keen interest throughout the United States.

Good Roads Soon Pay for Themselves, Says Expert

Tests recently conducted by A. B. Cutter, city engineer of Everett, Wash., to determine the effect of different road types upon gasoline consumption showed that on modern concrete and bitulithic asphalt roads there is no difference in gasoline consumption. On gravel or waterbound macadam roads in good condition gasoline consumption is from 10 to 35 per cent greater.

"Under modern volume of traffic," says Mr. Cutter, "good roads rapidly pay for themselves in economy of gasoline consumption and the same holds true in economy of tire and other automobile wear and tear."

The tests were made on roads in Washington, Oregon and California. They provide a distance in each test of 100 miles of continuous operation in order accurately to record the gasoline consumption and produce a fair average. It was required that the tests be made on road surfaces in good condition after three years' practical use and that a uniform speed of not less than 20 nor more than 30 miles per hour be maintained.

One Car, Ten Persons.

How directly the highway touches the lives of all the people is shown by the fact that there is now more than one motor vehicle for each ten people. By just a little crowding the whole population could be taken for a ride at one time.

To Distribute Sodastol. The United States bureau of public roads is to distribute 18,000,000 pounds of sodastol (a surplus war explosive) for road building and land clearing purposes.

For all the news, read the Courier.

SEND IN OLD TITLE TO GET NEW PLATES

Also, Mr. Car-Owner Make Your Application Early

The County Clerk's office would warn all automobile owners that for any titles assigned during the year 1923, or previous to that year, plates cannot be issued until the old title has been sent in the Secretary of State and a new title procured in the name of the last owner.

Titles that have been transferred this year may be presented to the county clerk who will accept them and send them in with his report to the secretary of State's office, issuing plates thereon at the same time.

Those who wish to get their cars out early in the spring should make an effort to secure their licenses at once, in order to avoid the rush that will take place later on and enable the clerk's office to dispose of its work without undue congestion resulting.

The licensing fee for this year will be the same as in 1923, with the exception of a few changes in weights. There are very few of these, however, so that the rate will remain practically unchanged.

If it's a Ford car that you want, we have it. Benj. Brown.—Adv.10t1

LOEB FARMS' COWS HANG UP NEW RECORD

Their Seven Day Performance Was Remarkable

Extraordinary records for the production of butter were made recently by two purebred Holstein cows in the herd of the Loeb Farms at Charlevoix. According to the advanced registry department of the Holstein-Friesian Association of America on these cows, Charlevoix Ormsby Ada Finnerne, a junior two-year-old, produced in seven days 386.4 pounds milk and 17.982 pounds butterfat—equal to 22.47 pounds butter. This cow made a thirty day record with 1,792.4 pounds milk and 89.95 pounds butter. The other cow, Charlevoix Vassar DeKol, a junior 3-year-old, produced in seven days, 489 pounds milk and 18.921 pounds butterfat, equivalent to 23.65 pounds butter.

COURT AFFAIRS MOVE SWIFTLY

Recently, the bank treated the deed as an absolute conveyance of title and, when Young failed to pay, sold the property to Mrs. Wood and delivered a deed.

Young claimed that the deed he gave to Nicholls was as security only and that, under the arrangement, he was entitled to a return of the deed upon payment of what he owed Mr. Nicholls. This claim was upheld by the court, in view of the testimony in the case, and the court also held that Young's possession of the property was notice to all persons of whatever title or interest he claimed in the property and that Mrs. Wood was not, therefore, a bona-fide purchaser without notice. The court evidently was convinced that the repeated demands of the bank made to Young for payment of what he owed sustained Young's claim as to what the real transaction was.

daring and abandon. The big high-

This avalanche, vigorous in its conception and thrilling in its execution, buries the cabin in which Charles Jones, as Tod Musgrave, holds his treacherous friend and the girl he loves captive.

The picture commences with one of those characteristic Jones exhibitions—a free-for-all fight, feverish, primi-

Director Emmett J. Flynn has handled the details of the story effectively. The story is an original from George Scarborough's pen adapted by Bernard McConville.

Records of Twelve Members of Local High-School Class of '23 Remarkable

Superintendent Charles Hamilton of the Charlevoix schools has turned over to us this week for publication an interesting open letter to the public, in which he gives the standings of members of the C. H. S. class of '23 who are now in attendance at the various universities and in the local county normal. This, he sets forth in an endeavor to show that the groundwork on which the records of these promising students are based has been sound and warrants a greater interest in school matters on the part of the parent and closer cooperation between parents and the teaching force. But, we will let Mr. Hamilton's letter speak for itself:

"The public pays considerable sums each year for the support of its schools and I believe is entitled to know just what type of training the high school gives which will prepare its students for college or for life.

Charlevoix is represented in a number of our state institutions and in some outside the state. The list of Charlevoix students now in college would be rather too long to report in a single article, so I have chosen the class of 1923 and secured what data I could on that group.

Last June 21 young people received diplomas from the local high school. Of that number the following entered college as below indicated:

Edward Shanahan, Naval Academy, Annapolis.
Raymond Faulkner, Olivet College, Olivet, Mich.
Richard Saltonstall, Olivet College, Olivet, Mich.
Marguerite Brown, Alma College, Alma, Michigan.
Thelma Crandall, Hillsdale College, Hillsdale, Mich.
Margie Swinton, U. of Michigan, Ann Arbor, Mich.
Edith Struthers, U. of Michigan, Ann Arbor, Mich.
William Paddock M. A. College, East Lansing, Mich.
Clayton Saunders, Chx. County Normal, Charlevoix, Mich.
Joyce Mayne, Chx. Co. Normal, Charlevoix, Mich.
Ruby Hull, Chx. Co. Normal, Charlevoix, Mich.

Elenore Kelderhouse, Anthony Wayne Institute, Fort Wayne, Ind.
Taking the group alphabetically, Marguerite Brown is attending Alma College. Miss Brown's marks are as follows:

English, A: (This is practically a B average which means according to the scale of marking that Miss Brown is in the upper third of her classes); French, B; History, B; Biology, C; Bible, C.
Raymond Faulkner, Olivet College:

Chemistry, A: (This shows that Raymond's marks are between A and B or about the upper fifth of his class. That also speaks for itself); French, B; Religious Ed., B; English, B; Math, A.

Ruby Hull, attending County Normal here, 1A, 2B, 1C. At the end of this article we give our candid opinion of this home institution.

Joyce Mayne, attending County Normal here, 1A, 2B, 1C.
Eva Ostrum, attending County Normal here, 1A, 2B, 1C.
Wm. Paddock, M. A. C.

Animal Husbandry, A: (This shows that William has a cross between A and B marks and like Raymond Faulkner belongs in the upper fifth); Botany, B; Chemistry, A; Dairy Husbandry, B.
Edward Shanahan, U. S. Naval Academy:

Marine Engineering and Naval Construction, 3.55; Mathematics, 3.37; English, 2.73; Modern Language, 2.99; Aptitude for service (executive ability) 3.52.

These marks, like many things pertaining to army and navy life, need explanation.

The following key will help: Distinction (4—3.4) with credit (3.39—3.00), (passing 2.99—2.50), failing (2.49—0). Applying this test to the above marks we find that on marine engineering Edward achieved a mark of distinction. On mathematics he is within .03 of being in the distinguished group. On English and Modern Language he is passing and with respect to value to the service he is rated as distinguished. This is an institution where young America of the best blood is found, and a boy coming directly from high school is to be congratulated on making such good marks in view of the fact that so many who go to the Naval Academy take special training after leaving high school.

The marks of the others mentioned have not yet been received, but it is only fair to them to say that we believe their marks will run much along the same line as the ones quoted.

Now, Mr. Taxpayer and others interested. You realize that in building a house the worth of the superstructure is determined by the solidity of the foundation upon which it rests.

So it is with education—the training received in the grades and high school is the foundation and, according to the results above it, has been well laid. Let us keep that in mind when we pay our taxes. No one objects to paying taxes when he can see results. That is, the results we are getting and aim to get. Why not stand squarely back of such an institution, not only with your money (Continued on page 3.)

HARRY A. DODGE A T. B. VICTIM

DIED AT COLORADO SPRINGS
AFTER LONG STRUGGLE.

Remains Accompanied Here by His Friend and Co-Worker—Funeral Last Sunday.

The train that arrived from the south last Saturday afternoon bore to this city the mortal remains of a young man formerly well known and liked by the older generation of Charlevoix people who have followed his long struggle for health in the west with mingled feelings of admiration and regret.

Harry A. Dodge, only son of Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Dodge of this city, was born in Bay City on New Year's day, 1888. In early childhood he moved to East Jordan with his parents and came to Charlevoix thirty years ago this spring. He was educated in our public schools and for several years after completing his studies assisted his father in the latter's tailoring business. After his father closed his business about seventeen years ago, Harry went to Detroit and entered the automobile industry as a salesman and demonstrator for several automobile concerns.

Ten years ago, his health began to fail and he spent one winter in Chattanooga, Tenn., and the following winter in Daytona, Fla. He returned to Detroit and became associated with the Dodge Motor company. His health again failing, he was sent by his firm to Denver, Colorado, but shortly after his arrival there he was transferred to Colorado Springs, where he remained in the employ of the Marksheffel Motor company, which has the agency for the Dodge and Cadillac cars, in charge of the contract and insurance department, until last December when a decided turn for the worse made it necessary for him to enter the Glickner Sanitarium in Colorado Springs, where he passed away on Tuesday, March 11, 1924. The immediate cause of death was heart trouble, resulting from chronic tuberculosis of the lungs.

The remains were accompanied to this city by Loren Chapin, a fellow-employee of Mr. Dodge in the Marksheffel Company and a close friend of the deceased since his arrival in Colorado Springs.

The funeral was held last Sunday, March 16th, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Merrett B. Miller, brother-in-law and sister of the deceased, 109 West Upright avenue, at one o'clock in the afternoon. Rev. Clarence W. Long conducted the services at the house and the Knights of Pythias lodge, of which Mr. Dodge was a member, performed the last rituals of their order at the Brookside cemetery, where the body was placed in the vault.

UNCLE GEORGE ON "G. C. R."

VETERAN GOOD ROADS PLUG-GER AGAIN HEARD FROM

Tell Taxpayer if He Don't Got Concrete Fever Now, He'll Catch Germ Later

Here's a letter from "Uncle" George H. VanPelt, the concrete roads booster. We haven't had a communication from "Uncle" George in some time, so let's see what he has to say:

Port Orange, Fla.

"Dear Editor:
I do not hesitate in saying the Chicago Association of Commerce is the most important and accomplished greater results than any other association of its kind in the world. Its members were among the original promoters of the United States Chamber of Commerce, and have helped guide the affairs of that body ever since.

For twenty-five years I have been a member of that body, and for fifteen years an active member of its special committee on Good Roads. In that committee work some truths were brought home to me that were amazing. The most amazing thing about those truths is that not everyone has come to realize them. As an ardent booster for and advocate of C. C. R. (Good Concrete Roads) I'm telling the world, from Canada to the Gulf and from Boston to Los Angeles.

My committee work showed me assistance to wear and the least upkeep expense—and then delivered. I followed the examples closely; Charlevoix county, Michigan, my summer home, built a concrete road, and in thirteen years now the maximum wear is 3-32 of an inch, mostly caused by iron horseshoes and steel tires while horses and wagons were still being used.

And now the results of the Bates Road Test at Springfield, Illinois, are available. Sixty-five types and designs of pavement were built and destroyed by traffic, a day and night for months. Concrete proved itself superior to all others.

Heavy traffic on the streets of Chicago has made some of the old pavements worse than none at all. The officials have tried concrete and are using more every year, Western Avenue, Sheridan Road, North Water Street—all placed under contract in 1923.

In my own county, Charlevoix, where I paid heavy taxes, I soon learned that C. C. R. (Good Concrete Roads) are an asset while gravel or C. and S. S. (gravel and soft stuff) are a liability—may even become a mortgage. Eight years ago I sold my business and have spent every day, every hour, every minute, since, working for the taxpayers' interests in C. C. R.

It's dead sure if the taxpayer doesn't learn it from me he'll learn it from some other enthusiast. So they'll save themselves a lot of grief if they take it from me now.

"Uncle" George H. VanPelt. Concrete roads are our one best bet. They're like a suit of clothes. It's better to pay a good price and get a good suit that will look good at the end of five years' wear than a cheap one that will ravel in six months. Just so with the roads. Never mind the first cost—look at the upkeep saved. That's the way to figure.

LOCAL CAGERS REGAIN STRIDE

ROMP ALL OVER FORMER HAR-BOR SPRINGS VICTORS.

Red and White Squad in Fine Fettle for Tournament Struggles
This Week.

Hopes for grabbing off the pink posies at the North-State tournament which begins tonight at Petoskey, returned to the fans Friday night when they saw the local quinters romp all over their strongest class competitor, Harbor Springs.

Two weeks ago the high school squad were badly beaten by a score of 12 to 27 by this same team, yet in Friday night's magnificent comeback there was no comparison between the two aggregations. Not once was the outcome of the scrap in question. All through the game the locals kept up their consistent fusillade of shots which in most instances was exceptionally accurate.

The team seems to have recovered fully from its former lameness, being full of the old drive and with lots of endurance. Captain Todd's arches have strengthened considerably and though Dagwell swapped his "game" ankle for a "rose-tinted optic," he claims he prefers the latter "decoration" to the former.

Charlevoix began its scoring attack the moment the whistle blew, Todd, in the most spectacular game he has ever played at guard, netted alone six points for the locals during the first quarter of the game. This is the last game he will ever play on the local court as he graduates in June.

Jones at guard played an excellent defensive game holding the Harbor team down to one field basket. The other three scores were made by free-throws.

This is the way the game went by quarters:

	1q	2q	3q	4q	fnl
C. H. S.	8	9	2	2	21
Harbor	3	1	0	1	5

Harbor's team defeated Petoskey on their court by a score of 15 and 16, at Petoskey the score was 12 and 4 in favor of P. H. S. Thus a fair conception of the strength of the opposition can be determined.

On the Harbor squad Woodruff, If, and Cornell, rf, were the only scoring men, the former making one field goal in the first quarter with a foul in the second, and the latter (Continued on page 8.)

Mr. Mears was born in Ontario, on June 8, 1842. He went to Kalamazoo county in 1854, residing there until his marriage in 1865, when he moved to Sherman, then the county seat of Wexford county. He was elected and served that county as its first probate judge.

In 1879 he moved to Boyne Falls, and in that village and the village of Boyne, became active in commercial and political life. He at one time owned a grist mill, a lumber camp, store, and the first permanent newspaper to be published in Boyne City. He was a member of the Boyne City Masonic lodge and in 1922-23 he served as the head of the State C. A. R. Eight years later he moved to Mantion.

Mr. Mears had been in failing health for the past two years. The funeral was held under the auspices of the Manton F. and A. M. lodge.

Bach's Works Show Wide Range—Could Recreate Modern Music
if Destroyed.

The 16th and 17th numbers of the Music Memory contest are on the composers Bach and Creig.

Johann Sebastian Bach (1685-1750) was founder of the German classic school. It is said that if all modern music were destroyed, it could be recreated from Bach's manuscript. "The Well-Tempered Clavichord" is the foundation of pianoforte technique. On Bach's fugue and fantasies rest all of modern organ composition. Bach's violin works constitute one half the necessary equipment of modern violin playing. Bach's music is all in strict contrapuntal form, but is composed with deep poetic feeling.

His greatest works are the oratorios, "Passion Music" (four settings according to the four apostles), "B-Minor Mass" and "Christmas Oratorio" and for the orchestra, Suites in D-Major and B-Minor, and double concerto for two violins and innumerable short composition for all instruments. The gavotte, which is the third movement in Bach's D-Major Suite, is followed by a secondary gavotte in place of the customary trio. It is a perfect example of dance form. The gavotte was a popular dance of the French court, which took its name from the region in southern France where it originated.

Edward Crieg, greatest composer of Norway (1843-1904) was sixty-four years old when he died. His father was Scotch and consul to Norway and his mother was a talented musician. His music has great individuality, a charm all its own and can always be recognized. He devoted his life to making a national art from peasant folk songs and dances.

In "The Hall of The Mountain King" is the last number in the Peer Gynt Suite No. 1 (Op. 46). The other numbers are "Morning", "Asa's Death" and "Anitra's Dance". Henrik Ibsen, the famous Norwegian play-wright, asked Edward Crieg, the Norwegian musician to write music for his drama, "Peer Gynt." (Continued on page 5.)

BEETS NEED A FIRM SEED BED

BUT DON'T ROLL THE GROUND
AFTER DRAGGING

Fairly Deep Plowing and Frequent Cultivations Are Also Important Factors

In raising sugar beets, one of the prime factors making for success or indifferent returns—we will not say failure, as it is hard to fail with a beet crop, even when the best methods are not used—is the preparation of the soil.

This should be made firm by disking, rolling and dragging. The soil must be rolled flat. Otherwise, the air works around the seed and it will not germinate until it has rained enough to pack the soil. The surface of the soil should be left as the drag leaves it, roughened and porous. This will enable it the more readily to absorb moisture and has the further advantage of preventing windrows of pebbles and sand from encroaching on the stand. A good percentage of a beet crop may be ruined in this manner when the prevailing winds are from one direction. Another reason for making a solid seed-bed is to prevent the seed when sown from falling too deep, as might be the case on soft land where the wheels of the planter sink into the ground. The seed should not go into the soil over an inch in depth and a half inch is better. Then again, a firm bed retains the moisture longer.

As to the depth to which the land should be plowed, it will be found that the percentage of yield per acre increases in exact ratio with the depth of plowing. This is because the sugar beet, unlike its relative, the potato, is a "critter" that digs. Beets grow down into the ground and the deeper the plowing the bigger the beet. This, of course, is within reasonable limits. It does not follow that if you plow deep enough for a well—you can raise them as long as telephone poles. Sears R. McLean, local manager of the Holland-St. Louis Company's plant at Holland, has prepared some comparative figures on this point that might be worth while to observe. The first column represents plowing depths in inches and the second column the respective yields in tons per acre.

Plowing Depth	Yield (tons per acre)
6 inches deep	3.46 tons
9 inches deep	8.29 tons
11 inches deep	11.81 tons

It is recommended by the best authorities that beets be planted with a space of 20 in. to 22 in. between rows and from 10 in. to 12 in. between plants in the same row. These spaces make for closer cultivation, as the minimum adjustment of a cultivator is 18 inches. And a long about August, when the sun's rays are doing their best to dry up the earth, the spreading tops of the beets will meet over the rows, shade them and hold the dew and whatever rain may fall for the use of the plants.

Too much cultivation of a beet crop is impossible. Frequent cultivations will increase the tonnage. This may be left to the discretion of the grower, however.

The time for seeding depends very largely on local conditions and the character of the land. Just before corn planting time is the usual period, or after, depending on whether the land is clean or heavily infested with weeds. In all probability, beets will be planted here this season about the 10th of May, but this is presupposing that the land is clean. If weedy, the planting will necessarily be delayed.

Sixteen factories, now doing business in the state of Michigan, cannot produce enough sugar, working at full capacity—so we are told—to satisfy the consumption of this state alone. So you see it looks pretty good for the sugar beet growers and the factories that furnish them their market.

DAIRY HINTSDevice to Prevent Cow*From Sucking Herself

It is annoying to say the least when a cow contracts the habit of robbing her own dairy and how best to stop the vice is a problem. In some instances where a cow shows a marked shrink in milk and is not seen to suck herself we have found that the robbing was being done by a calf, or even a yearling, on pasture. The usual treatment in such a case is to put a spiked halter on the robber calf, says a writer in the Successful Farming. Such a contrivance is objectionable in that injuries to the udder may result. The better plan is to prevent the robbing calf from getting at the cow. In another instance campers on the lake, at the far side of the farm were doing the robbing, so investigation is necessary in all such cases.

When a cow sucks herself there are various methods of prevention, each of which has its advocates. We have often had good results from simply putting an old horse collar up the down on the cow's neck. A "necklace" of pointed 1st or small pickets as shown in the illustration proves effective. It is made as follows: Take six pieces of round, light wood about twelve inches long and one and one-half inches in diameter, or pieces of strong lath of similar length, and with small cord passed through holes bored "Necklace" Prevents Cow From Sucking Herself.

In the round sticks, or tied around the lath, weave them to form an open fence-like necklace to be placed around the cow's neck and secured there by tying together the free ends of the cords. When the cow turns to suck herself the sticks will prevent. Another good plan is to place a strong halter on the neck and a surcingle around the body just behind the elbows. Then put a snap-hook in one end of a piece of fork or broom handle and a ring in the other. Now snap the hook into the lanking ring of the halter, pass the stick between the forelegs and attach the ring in its end to the surcingle, or pass the rope or strap of the surcingle through the ring of the stick. This will stop self-sucking but not prevent eating.

A simpler plan is to put a bull ring in the cow's nose and hang another ring from the first one. That usually works well. If not, then put a common straight bridle bit in the mouth and hold it loosely in place by means of a halter. One man suggests greasing the teats with lard and then sprinkling freely with red pepper. That discourages the cow from sucking herself or being sucked by a calf. A somewhat cruel preventive measure is to put some hog rings in the cow's lips and the latest suggestion, which we do not care to recommend, is to put the rings in the tip of the cow's tongue.

The old-fashioned plan of splitting the cow's tongue for a distance of one and one-half to two inches from its tip has of recent years been improved upon by trained veterinarians who perform the operation according to modern methods of surgery and in such a way as to prevent undue suffering and insure against infection.

Superior Formula Givento Treat Garget in Cow

Garget often causes considerable loss in the herd. When an animal is found to be suffering from this trouble she should be milked after the remainder of the herd, as the disease may be carried on the hands. After milking, the hands should be washed with a good disinfectant. Milk from the diseased quarters should not be milked on the floor, but into a pail and disposed of, cows suffering from it may be treated with the following mixture, recommended by the Purdue university dairy department.

Mix eight ounces of vaseline, eight ounces of wool fat, two fluid ounces belladonna, two fluid ounces extract poka root; warm and mix. Massage udder thoroughly. Feed one tablespoonful of powdered poka root and one tablespoonful of saltpeter three feeds, stop three feeds and continue again if necessary. Diseased cows should be isolated from the rest of the herd.

Cause of Silmy Milk.

Silmy orropy milk is caused by germs that get into the milk after it has been drawn from the cow. It is especially prevalent where cows have access to low, wet pasture, also where cows have access to muddy water.

Sugar Beets for Milk.

Sugar beets are somewhat more valuable for milk production than are mangels. That is, a hundred pounds of sugar beets contain more digestible nutrients than do 100 pounds of mangels.

in the form of taxes, but with your good will and moral support?

Teachers are perhaps keener to sense this spirit of good fellowship or criticism, as the case may be, than others. Mr. School Patron, how about it? Have you ever taken the trouble to go out of your way to meet John's teacher and express your appreciation for what she is doing for him? Do you ever think that she is away from home sometimes for the first time, and would appreciate an invitation to your home?

Do you ever meet your superintendent, principal and other men teachers, slap them on the back and say, "fine work, old man, keep on!" or are you inclined to listen more to the president of the Whittier's Club, who doesn't do anything himself and is against any who will?

What we need is more school spirit in our city; more co-operation, more of the spirit of brotherly love.

Coming back to the subject of the records of our students, I am pleased to quote from the following letter received with the standings of our two Olivet sons:

My Dear Mr. Hamilton:

I am glad to receive your letter of February 29th. It is a pleasure for me to enclose the records of Mr. Faulkner and Mr. Saltonstall. Both of these boys have done exceedingly fine work. A 'B' at Olivet is no easy record to make. An 'A' is a splendid record, and therefore I think you have every reason to be proud of these two boys. If you have any more like them next year, we shall be glad to give them consideration at Olivet. These are the type of students that we are looking for.

Very truly yours,

James King, Dean.

On the subject of County Normal, Did you ever stop to think that here in Charlevoix we have an institution which students may attend for one year and not only receive, after the successful completion of a year's work, a diploma which will allow them to teach for three years in the rural schools of the county without further examination, but which will be honored at the state teachers training institutions at five-sixths face value—in other words ten credits toward a life certificate.

The state pays part of the upkeep of this institution and only recently, realizing its value to the various communities in which they are located, made a bigger appropriation than ever, thus making lighter the load borne locally.

Our present class numbers 14 young people; which while they may not receive all the advantages which a larger institution gives, does give a peculiar type of training, partly inspirational, partly academic, which enables them to do good work in rural schools and which nearly always fits them to go on with their normal course later. Nearly all city school superintendents prefer a teacher who has had county normal training, plus the necessary year at Normal which gives a life certificate, over the person who has had two years straight normal work.

If the burden of sending your boy or girl directly to college is going to be too great, there is an institution at your door which offers the solution to the matter satisfactorily. Ask questions about the County Normal.

Again, people of Charlevoix, give your schools your hearty support.

FARM STOCK

Potatoes Are Good Feed for Horses and Cattle

Potatoes may be fed to live stock in limited quantities in connection with other feeds. While they may be sliced and fed raw with dry feeds, it is best to cook them before feeding, as heavy feeding of raw potatoes will cause scouring. Under ordinary farm conditions, boiling or steaming is the most economical method of cooking potatoes for live stock. Feeding investigations indicate that when potatoes are fed with other feeds to balance the protein requirements, from 350 to 450 pounds of cooked potatoes have a feeding value equal to about 100 pounds of corn, while from 500 to 800 pounds of raw potatoes are required to equal 100 pounds of corn.

Swine feeding experiments of the Oregon agricultural experiment station, in 1913, showed that steaming the potatoes increases their feeding value about 60 per cent.

Vermont experiment station bulletin 152 shows that the average analysis of potatoes is 78.9 per cent water, 1 per cent ash, 2.1 per cent protein, 0.8 per cent fiber, 17.3 per cent nitrogen-free extract and 0.1 per cent fat. The low protein content of potatoes makes it advisable to feed them in connection with feeds that are relatively high in protein content.

Unripe potatoes and sprouts of stored potatoes contain considerable splanin, a poisonous compound, and should not be fed.

Potatoes are palatable and well suited to horse feed. It is safe to feed as high as 15 pounds a day to work-horses. They are equivalent to about one-third of their weight in hay. When potatoes are fed, a legume hay is a desirable supplement. If a grass hay, such as timothy, is fed, the ration should contain feeds rich in protein, such as concentrates, legume hay, etc. It is advisable to chop the potatoes to lessen the danger of choking.

Cooked potatoes may be fed to cattle at the rate of from 25 to 30 pounds per day per 1,000 pounds live weight. The allowance should be lessened somewhat if they are fed raw, on account of their tendency to produce scouring. A heavy allowance of potatoes, however, produces milk and butter of poor flavor.

Hog-Raising Now Exact
Science, Says an Expert

Hog-raising is no longer a business to be undertaken without a good deal of careful study—such study as goes into the efficient management of any other industry. And hog-raising is becoming so important a feature on many farms in the West that attention to the little economies and small leaks often means the difference between success and failure.

One of the differences between success and failure often lies in the attention given to providing a mineral mixture for hogs, says E. F. Ferrin in a bulletin on "Care and Feeding of Swine" just issued by the extension division of the Minnesota College of Agriculture. A mineral mixture recommended by Mr. Ferrin consists of 20 per cent of common salt, 40 per cent of bone meal, and 40 per cent of air-slaked lime or ground limestone. One ounce of potassium iodide to 100 pounds of such mixture should be given to prevent hairless pigs.

It is attention to details like the foregoing that brings success. Science, as studied at agricultural colleges, has solved these problems, and has helped to bring hog-raising to something of the standing of a science.

Copies of Mr. Ferrin's bulletin may be had without charge by applying to the Office of Publications, University Farm, St. Paul, Minn.

Worm Remedies for Hogs
Are Given in Bulletin

In a bulletin on minerals for live stock, scientists at the Wisconsin experiment station suggest the use of oil of chenopodium (American worm-seed) and castor oil as a substitute for santonin in treating pigs for worms. Santonin has lately become so scarce and high in price as to be practically unavailable for use as a worm remedy. As a substitute remedy for a 50-pound pig, the Wisconsin people suggest a dose of two cubic centimeters of oil of chenopodium thoroughly mixed with fifteen cubic centimeters of castor oil. Proportionate amounts should be used for larger or smaller pigs. This remedy is best given as a drench after withholding feed for 18 or 20 hours. Repeat the dose after a week or ten days.

If santonin can be secured, the Wisconsin experts recommend a mixture of 2½ grains santonin, 2½ grains calomel, 1 dram anise nut and 1 dram sodium bicarbonate. This dose is for a 50-pound pig and should be increased for larger animals. It may be given with a thin slop or in gelatin capsules.

Sound Case Against Buck
Lambs Made by Canadians

A strong case against the buck lamb is being made by Canadian meat packers. Seventy per cent of the mals lambs that come to the Toronto market are bucks, say the packers. After the first of August buck lambs develop an odor and a strong taste. When the consumer gets this meat served up it greatly discourages the consumption of lamb. Farmers are urged to castrate all male lambs in order to improve this market.

Increasing the Value of Telephone Service

The Michigan Bell Telephone Company always is building—always expanding its service in order to efficiently serve the growing needs of Michigan.

Last year the Michigan Bell Telephone Company's expansion was one of the greatest in Michigan's telephone history—and that program is being continued.

108,984 miles of new telephone wires were installed during 1923; 98,501 miles to give additional local service; 10,483 miles of toll and long distance wires.

1,110,369 miles of wire now connect the telephones of this Company's subscribers.

96,805 new telephones were connected with the switchboards of this Company, for a net gain of 36,117, during 1923; 49,686 were added through the purchase of another company, both factors greatly increasing the value of the service to every telephone user in Michigan.

More than 437,000 telephones are served by this Company over its own switchboards; its connecting companies in Michigan serve 112,049 more; 14,000,000 others can be reached elsewhere in the country. $10,320,380 represents the total increase of telephone plant made by this Company in Michigan last year.

And an organization of 10,279 loyal telephone workers now serves Michigan. It is their unanimous desire to give the people of our state the highest possible grade of telephone service.

JOHN BAIRD—JOKESMITH.

Mr. John Baird, the political woodsman who presides over the destinies of Mr. Alex Groesbeck's department of conservation with such singular success and such delightful results, has, we greatly fear, pulled what is vulgarly designated as a "boner."

The upper peninsula, no doubt, will be deeply interested in this latest manifestation of Mr. Baird's peculiar fitness for the position to which he brings such a plethora of intellectual force and political acumen.

The upper peninsula owes Mr. Baird much. It can never sufficiently repay him for ridding this northern country of the predatory and howling wolf. His trapper system was a marvel of efficiency. However, that is beside the point. Mr. Baird's latest bid for enduring fame was in filing the name of "Hiram Johnson," of Saginaw county, as a presidential candidate, he says, to show up the weakness of the primary law. Mr. Baird is plumb not against weaknesses. He doesn't like 'em. Why, you take and turn loose a full-grown, mature weakness in the same room with Mr. Baird, and he just naturally looks it square in the eye, concentrates the full force of his marvelous energy on it, and almost immediately it begins to curl up at the edges, withers and dies right there on the spot, even as the dew disappeareth before the morning sun.

So he starts to show up the weakness of the law.

It finally develops that Mr. Baird's "Hiram Johnson," when sought, is extremely elsewhere. Mr. Baird says he's living in his little cabin back in the wilds of some swampy retreat where the sweetest music is made by the bellows of the ubiquitous coon dog and Kidney disease often advances so rapidly that many a person is firmly in its grasp before aware of its progress. Prompt attention should be given the slight symptom of kidney disorder. If there is a dull pain in the back, headaches, dizzy spells or a tired, worn-out feeling, or if the kidney secretions are offensive, irregular and attended by pain, procure a good kidney remedy at once.

Your townspeople recommend Doan's Pills. Read the statement of this Charlevoix citizen.

Daniel Himebaugh, 107 W. Upright Ave., says: "I had a lame back and felt bad a good many times with backache. I was bothered by the weak and irregular action of my kidneys and had to get up four times at night to pass the secretions, which were highly colored and contained sediment. A few boxes of Doan's Pills, bought at Metcalf's Drug Store, fixed me up in a fine way."

Price 60c at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Pills—the same that Himebaugh had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

Then some long-nosed, rattle-brained newspaper men volunteer to follow the intrepid Mr. Baird into this dense tangle. They want to talk to Hiram. Whereupon Mr. Baird, with his well known quickness of wit, just happens to remember that Hiram has gone south. Gone to Florida, or Buenos Aires—or Carleton or Shields—some place down in that locality nnd, Hiram, being an outdoors man like Mr. Baird, is going to pilot the wild geese north.

Now, by all the signs and portents, Governor Groesbeck holds a very high regard for one Calvin Coolidge. The presumption is that this is mutual. So much so, in fact, that Mr. Groesbeck has been down in Washington, holding some conferences with Mr. Coolidge. There has been some talk that Mr. Coolidge might commandeer, draft or shanghai Mr. Groesbeck aboard the ship of state. Many persons think this is true.

John Baird owes his political life to Mr. Groesbeck. The governor recently stood upon the burning deck whence all but he had fled—stood there in awe-inspiring grandeur and with his bare hands beat off the tribe of Woodsmen who were intent upon Mr. Baird's political annihilation. He saved Mr. Baird that time.

It required a petition signed by 50 names to get Hiram Johnson's name filed at Lansing. Baird had that many. When pressed with inquiries regarding these names, Mr. Baird slaps his leg with a horny gnarled hand of the practical woodsman and gleefully blurbs: "Well, look at 'em; nearly all of 'em are Coolidge men."

The real Hiram Johnson says this was an offense against the party, Alex Groesbeck is reported to have been "highly incensed," which we presume means that he is giving off fumes like burning fertilizer. Meantime comes from Washington, word that Coolidge had no campaign managers in Saginaw county; that no Coolidge man had anything to do with it.

And there you have John Baird. He puts his chief in a hole by his ill-considered action. He injures the party which has honored his chief and made his own appointment possible and he comes to bat with the woody explanation that is so utterly and so absurdly lacking in the most elemental intelligence, that it hasn't sufficient body to fill the inside of a hutton hole.

Looks like John is due for the skids.

And that's too bad, because if we ever lose him from the conservation department and the wolves ever hear about it, this country is just naturally bound to be plumb canis lupus-ed.—Escanaba Press.

NEIGHBORS SURPRISE MRS. HOWE

Brought the "Eats" Right Along With Them, Too

A very pleasant surprise was given Mrs. J. J. Howe of Route No. 4, Charlevoix by some of her neighbors on March 11th last.

A sleigh-load of folks arrived at her home about ten A. M. with a big basket of good things to eat and with what their hostess was able to supply in the way of eatables on her part a delicious dinner soon awaited the guests.

Mrs. Howe received a present from each one of her friends and many from her own children.

PIONEER MICHIGAN RESIDENT PASSES

Mrs. Anna Girvan Shaw Was Seventy-seven at Death.

"Another Michigan pioneer has left us with the passing of Mrs. Anna Shaw of this city, who departed this life, Tuesday, March 18th, at the close of an illness of some nine weeks duration.

Anna Girvan, who was seventy-seven years old, was born in Waubesa Township, Ontario, Canada, on December 25, 1847. She came to the United States with her parents when about the age of ten and settled near Minden City in Sanilac county, Michigan. She was married at the age of fifteen to Campbell Shaw of Parisville Township, Huron county, where they made their home on a farm until 1888, when they removed to Bingham Township in the same county, again locating on a farm.

Mr. Shaw died twenty-seven years ago. Five years later, Mrs. Shaw came to Charlevoix to live with her son, Campbell, and has made her home in this city since then.

Seven children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Shaw, three of whom are now living: Campbell Shaw, of this city, John Shaw and Mrs. Mary Hunt of Detroit. There are fifteen grandchildren and twenty-three great-grandchildren. She is also survived by two sisters—Mrs. Grace Haynes of Manistique and Mrs. Rachel Greenman of Detroit and a brother, Samuel Girvan of Rudyard, Mich. Mrs. Hunt was the only out-of-town relative able to be present at the funeral.

The funeral will be held Thursday, March 20th, at 1:30 p. m. at the Shaw home, Rev. H. R. E. Quant officiating. Interment will be made in the vault at Brookside.

COMMUNICATION

March 18, 1924.

Editor, The Courier,

Dear Sir: In the case of the People vs. DeJordy, charged with practicing medicine without a license, I would take exception to the articles heretofore published in your paper with regard to the case as having been somewhat misleading. I fear that the people of this community have been led to believe that I practiced medicine.

Such is not the case. I have practiced chiropractic only, but have been charged by the prosecution with the practice of medicine, based on the only evidence offered by them, which was to the effect that I had advertised in the Boyne City paper and on the screen of a movie house. The jury that sat in the case was instructed by Judge Gilbert to bring in a verdict of guilty, if satisfied that these advertisements were run.

The verdict was guilty. Judge Gilbert pronounced sentence, which was a fine of $100.00, costs of $100.00 and, in addition, two months in the county jail, or, as an alternative, six months in the jail. I chose the jail sentence, as it is against the principles of all good chiropractors to pay the fine in such cases.

Anyone who is familiar with the two professions of medicine and chiropractic knows that they employ altogether different methods. Physicians do not adjust the spine and chiropractors do nothing else.

The medical colleges do not teach chiropractic, neither do the chiropractic colleges teach medicine. As yet, there is no chiropractic examining board in Michigan, although 28 other states have these boards. There has never been a chiropractic examination (on theory and practice) in Michigan.

The only license issued chiropractors in this state is issued by the medical state board. In order to obtain such a license, it is not necessary that the person examined show that he or she has ever attended a chiropractic school. Still anyone who can pass this examination is permitted to practice chiropractic or any other drugless method. Is this the kind of chiropractors we want in Michigan?

The medical state board is prejudiced against chiropractors, which is shown by the fact that over a period of eight to ten years only two chiropractors were issued licenses in this state.

Respectfully yours,
J. F. A. DeJordy.

Seventy-fourth Birthday.

Nineteen ladies, friends and neighbors of Mrs. Mary Blissett, surprised the latter with a pot luck supper, last Saturday evening, at her home on May street, it being the occasion of Mrs. Blissett's 74th birthday. The fortunate hostess received a number of nice presents from her guests who departed at a late hour, wishing her many happy returns of the anniversary.

FOUNDATION OF NEW BANK HOME STARTED

Masons Commenced Work Last Monday Morning.

Work started in earnest Monday morning on the foundations for the new county bank building, under the supervision of John E. Campbell, superintendent for the Russell G. Finn Construction Company of Detroit, who have the contract for the erection of the building.

The cellar of the building having been pretty well cleared by the busy gang that have been engaged in this work since the fire, the actual work of laying the base of the big vault has been commenced.

This vault will surpass any now in use in this part of the state. The walls of the vault are to be constructed of steel-reinforced concrete and brick and will be twelve inches in thickness. The interior vault space will be 8 feet by 21 feet—more than twice as large as the one in the old bank building. This will contain the burglar-proof safe for money and securities, the safety-deposit boxes and shelves for books of account and other valuable records.

Everything possible is being done to rush the building through to completion so that it may be occupied by June 15, 1924.

BAPTIST CHURCH

10:30 a. m. B. Y. P. U. in charge of Group I. Topic, "The Personal Touch in Winning Others to Christ."

Books and sermons on the Christian life are good. They have a ministry. They create an influence, but the best evidence for Christianity is a Christian. One cannot get a real personal touch with souls until one first has this touch with God. We must speak to God for our friends before we can speak to our friends for God. Some of the greatest forces of the universe are silent—heat and frost for instance—and a Christian man or woman does not have to say very much to let others know he or she is a Christian. Read John 1:40-51; James 5:20.

11:45 a. m. Sunday school. Lesson theme, "The Reign of Solomon."

The Ladies' Aid Society will meet next Wednesday, March 26, as usual. The afternoon will be spent in sewing, after which a tea will be served. All the ladies of the church are invited and are urged to come. Announcement of the place of meeting will be made next Sunday morning.

PEER GYNT A WILD PEASANT

He wrote twenty orchestral numbers and two songs for the play. Later, he took the eight most popular and arranged in Peer Gynt Suite No. 1 and No. 2.

Peer Gynt was a wild, lawless peasant of Norwegian folk-lore, with awful experiences with goblins who live underground. This piece is the most thoroughly Norwegian of all the music, bringing to mind the somber wild, native Norway of jagged mountains and deep fjords—a land of only two seasons with severe winter. This composition is built upon one short, uncouth theme of four measures, which begins very low, giving a ludicrous picture of the awkward goblins. One after another, each instrument plays the same humorous theme with increasing speed and loudness—the excitement growing intense—faster and faster, ending with a shriek of the elves as the hall crashes down. This piece is called "a musical hornet's nest."

The Senior girls entertained the basket ball team and the Senior boys after the game Friday evening. A delicious lunch was served after which a radio concert was enjoyed. Two dishes of jello were missing, but we understand that the parties are to repay the girls by entertaining them in the near future.

Miss Ludington of the State Health Department from Lansing spoke to the High School girls Monday noon concerning a prospective six weeks course of one lesson per week to be given by a nurse who will be sent to this county. The principal subjects to be discussed will be the care and feeding of children. This work is made possible by Michigan's appropriation as a result of the Shepherd-Tawner Maternity Bill. Miss Ludington spoke for about 15 minutes on the advantages of the course and aroused sufficient interest to warrant such a course for the girls. The course will begin about April 1st and will be arranged for during regular school hour available to all.

In the "Game of the Latin Noun" played in the Eighth Grade Latin class this week, Paul Sloan, Harold Newman and Dorothy Ikeas were winners. Marvel Smith, LaRue Higman, Earl Crandall and Dorothy Fairchild received favorable mention for high scores.

Arrangements are being made to present a Latin film of either the "Life of Julius Caesar" or "The Last Days of Pompeii" at the Palace theatre in the near future. This project will be sponsored by the "Laeti Latini." Watch for announcement of exact date.

The R. G. Shorthand club gave before the assembly Monday morning, a very delightful one act play, "Saturday Morning in an Office." The cast were:

METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

They were all filled with the Holy Ghost. Acts iv. 31.

But let us remember that it is not necessary for the place to be shaken, or for the air to be filled with the outward phenomena of Pentecost as the necessary condition of this heavenly gift. When we are looking for the hurricane, He comes as the zephyr. When we are expecting the torrent to pour into and fill the well, He fills it by single drops.

But the results will always be the same—great boldness in witness-bearing, much liberty in prayer and praise; great grace and beauty of character; self-denying love for those in need; great power through union with the risen Lord.

In no other way could we have accounted for the marvelous change which passed over the followers of Jesus, delivering them from the cowardice, wrangling, and prejudices of former days. Oh, for a similar transforming experience for us all!—F. B. Meyer.

My cup runneth over. Ps. xciii. 5.
There is a certain magnificence about God's providing! There is nothing skimpy or niggardly about it. He never confines Himself to bare necessities. When He made a world, He made it gay with flowers, glorious with the crimson of sunsets and dawns, musical with the whispers of the winds and the croaking of the birds. He made it full of splendor and of joy, beauty and light. "His paths," says the Psalmist, "drop fatness." There is a certain lavishness, a certain extravagance, a certain overflow in the goodness of God.—J. D. Jones.

GOOD THINGS FOR THE TABLE

For occasions when a nice salad is needed the following will be enjoyed:

Frozen Fruit Mayonnaise.—Cover a teaspoonful of granulated gelatin with two tablespoonfuls of cold water and set over steam to melt. When the gelatin is dissolved, stir it into one cupful of mayonnaise. With three cupfuls of thick cream, add one teaspoonful of powdered sugar, stir in two and one-half cupfuls of mixed fruits—cherries, pineapple, oranges, sliced peaches or any combination desired—pour into a mold which has been rinsed in cold water. Seal with a strip of cloth dipped into melted fat to keep the salt water from seeping through the mold. Bury in equal parts of ice and salt for four hours. Serve garnished with lettuce hearts and parsley.

Orange Jelly Salad.—Make one quart of orange jelly with the prepared gelatin or with the following: Two tablespoonfuls of gelatin softened in one cupful of cold water, then add two cupfuls of cold water, one-half cupful of orange juice, the juice of one lemon, one-half cupful of sugar. When all of the ingredients are well mixed till a wet ring mold with half of the jelly and let stand in the refrigerator until it begins to thicken. Meanwhile, soften one small cream cheese with a teaspoonful of top milk or cream and form into small balls. Arrange these balls at regular intervals in the mold. Add the rest of the gelatin mixture and set on ice until perfectly stiff. Unmold on a bed of lettuce and fill the center with stoned white cherries filled with filberts. Serve with mayonnaise and browned crackers.

A small pie, using filling not too juicy, may be made from small pieces of pastry. These are called turnovers and the children will like them. Place a spoonful or two of the filling on the small circle, fold over, flute the edges and prick a little opening on top for the steam to escape.

Uniform Laws Urged to Stop Spread of Disease

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

At the recent World's Dairy congress, held at Washington, D. C., Dr. John H. Mohler, chief of the bureau of animal industry, United States Department of Agriculture, suggested to the delegates that efforts should be made to obtain some uniformity in the laws of the various countries regulating international trade in live stock. Some move of this sort is needed now, said Doctor Mohler, because of the great extent of international trade in live stock, and because of prevalence of destructive animal diseases in many parts of the world.

Certain fundamental features which probably would be desirable for all countries were brought out in the statement made to the delegates. It was suggested that each country engaged in domestic and foreign commerce in live stock and its products should establish a competent veterinary service, and failing to do this should have no right to export its animals to be received in other countries; provisions should be made to prevent the spread of contagious diseases in the country, the introduction of infection from abroad, or the transmission of diseases to other countries; and there should be an international co-operative system of exchange of information in regard to animal health in the various countries.

All Insanitary Dairy Practices Unprofitable

Below are listed a few practices which are insanitary, injurious and unprofitable for the dairy farmer:

To milk cows that have dirty flanks and udders, so that at every movement of the milker, dirt falls into the milk pail.

To milk with wet hands, so that the milk, saturated with filth, falls into the milk pail.

To use separators and utensils which have not been thoroughly sterilized and aired.

Pouring freshly separated cream into previous skimmings before cooling.

Keeping cream in root cellars, pantries, kitchens, stables, back porches or in any room where bad air exists.—A. K. Crowe, Animal Husbandry Department, Colorado Agricultural College.

Rapidity Is One of Big Essentials in Milking

Tests have shown that rapidity is one of the essentials in milking a cow. Massaging the cow's udder with the hand excites nervous action which in turn stimulates action of the milk glands. The more rapid the massage movements, the greater is the nervous stimulation of gland action, and a greater amount of milk will be yielded. Not only is the quantity of milk increased, but the faster the milk is drawn the richer it is in butterfat.

Absent Minded.

A notoriously absent-minded man was observed walking down the street with one foot continually in the gutter, the other on the pavement. A friend meeting him said: "Good evening. How are you?"

"Well," replied the absent-minded one, "I thought I was very well when I left home, but now I don't know what's the matter with me. I've been limping for the last half-hour."

HEART FAILURE CAUSE OF DEATH

Had Been a Resident of Ellsworth for 29 Years

Lee R. Seism was born in Chynoweth county, N. Y., September 12, 1879, and passed away at the home of his uncle, John Cole, on March 12th, death being due to heart trouble.

He came to Ellsworth, Michigan, at the age 16 years with his parents, and made a home for his mother after his father's death on January 21, 1898, until December 6th, 1918, when she passed to the great beyond. He then went to Cortland, N. Y., coming back in a few months and making his home with his uncle since.

He was in the employ of E. R. Harris for a period of 23 years and proved himself a true friend and valuable citizen.

He leaves to mourn their loss four aunts and four uncles, besides, numerous friends.

"Nobody To Play With"

Folks are naturally companionable. When your heart overflows with happiness you like some one to rejoice with you. Even "misery loves company." The most forlorn urehin in the world is the one who has nobody to play with. He can't be happy.

All of us are continually surrounded by better thoughts and things. When we consistently overlook them we are as badly off as the youngster who has to play alone.

The business of bringing these thoughts and things to you is the service of advertising. It is the voice of the loom, the shop, the foundry, the laboratory—all the places where minds turn pleasant thoughts into worthwhile things for you.

WHEAT STOCKS SHOW INCREASE

WHILE CORN AND OATS HAVE FALLEN OFF

This Applies to Michigan, Only as U. S. Figures Are in Exact Reverse

The stocks of corn and oats on farms of Michigan are less than one year ago but the supply of wheat held is more according to the crop report issued today by L. Whitney Watkins, Commissioner of Agriculture, and Owen L. Dawson, Agricultural statistician, U. S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics. Stocks of hay held are considerably below those of last year. The stocks of corn and oats for the United States are more and the stocks of wheat less than one year ago.

Wheat: The supplies of wheat on Michigan farms on March 1 this year are estimated at 24 per cent of the total crop, which is a higher percentage than was shown last year and the ten-year average. This is equivalent to 3,949,000 bushels compared with 2,865,000 bushels last year and 3,413,000 bushels in 1922. It is estimated that 49 per cent is shipped out of the county where grown. The United States as a whole reports a reserve of 133,871,000 bushels against 155,474,000 last year.

Corn: While the official figures show that Michigan has 19,195,000 bu. of corn on farms Mar. 1, if allowance is made for one-third of the crop which goes into silos the actual grain holdings are reduced to 12,797,000 bushels which is a lower reserve than the amount shown for the preceding two years figured on the same basis. Only a few sections produce surplus above their needs. It is estimated that five per cent is shipped out of the county where produced. The quality of Michigan's 1923 corn crop is only 70 compared with 83 a year ago. Much of the corn was not fully matured and held a high per cent of moisture. The United States' reserves of corn are estimated at 1,153,175,000 bushels compared with 1,093,306,000 bushels one year ago.

Oats: The amount of oats remaining on Michigan farms March 1 this year was 1,200,000 bushels less than last year, but the production in 1923 was about 2,000,000 less than in 1922. The percentage of the crop held on farms is below the ten-year average. The reserves of oats in the United States are estimated at 444,810,000 bushels against 421,118,000 bushels on farms one year ago. Nineteen per cent of the Michigan crop will be shipped out of the counties where grown. This is a less percentage than last year or the ten-year average.

Barley: The stocks of barley are estimated at 684,000 bushels which is more than last year, but less than the amount shown in 1922. Very little is sold off the farms and it is estimated that only ten per cent is shipped out of the counties where grown. Stocks of barley in the United States are higher than for the two previous years.

Hay: Hay reserves on Michigan farms on March 1, are reported at 30 per cent of last year's production which is equivalent to 1,174,000 tons compared with the heavy reserve of 1,694,000 tons shown on last March. Production last year fell considerably below that of 1922 and continued heavy feeding demands have resulted in lighter stocks on farms than one year ago. The amount estimated shipped out of county is only 20 per cent compared with 25 per cent last year.

making two fouls, one in the first and one in the last quarter.

Aldred of Boyne City acted as referee; Butters, timekeeper and R. C. Miles as scorer.

Save for the collision of Woodruff and Dagwell which resulted in the latter's "discolored optic", the game was without mishap. Both teams played clean and square. The refereeing was good.

Tourney Begins Tonight

Tonight at Petoskey the gates of the Fifth Annual Basketball Tournament open. Charlevoix is entered in Class C. Her strongest opponents, as far as "dope" goes, will be Harbor Springs and Manton, the latter having won fourteen consecutive games. In Class B the fans tell us Manistee will probably knock off the honors. They decisively defeated Traverse City twice and held Muskegon State champions, to a 5 and 9 score. Petoskey stands second in the line for Class B. honors.

It will be remembered that Charlevoix won the Tournament Class C, Championship in 1921. We believe our name will be tacked on for 1924. This is the official report of the Chanticleer editor.

EIGHTEEN PRESENT ON HER BIRTHDAY

Mrs. Louis Gravelin Passed Her 52nd Milestone.

The 52nd birthday of Mrs. Louis Gravelin of this city was pleasantly remembered on its date—March the first, by 18 of her friends and neighbors, including her sister, Mrs. Oliver Schaffer of Eveline township and her daughter, Mrs. Amos O'Neill of Charlevoix.

A delicious supper was served and the occasion enjoyed in a manner long to be remembered by those in attendance.

A Mason county farmer charges that some one put poison in his chewing tobacco. Of course this almost ruins the stuff, if a fellow likes it pretty strong.

A farmer in Genesee county says he has lived 60 years and never seen a ball game. He had better not boast. A man at that age is liable to slip almost any day and find himself a golfer.

The Three Rivers hunter who claims to have captured a fox with his bare hands offers a valuable suggestion to the thousands of hunters who can never get close enough to shoot.

A famous Manistee inn, known to tourists all over the country, has been closed and padlocked for the next 12 months. That simplifies the matter a little. We now know of at least one place that we aren't going to this summer.

The statement is made that Hiram Johnson, Michigan's candidate for the presidency, has been dead eight months. This is a hot tip to certain candidates from other states, who have been dead even longer than that, and don't know it.

A bottle thrown into the ocean during the war by a Grand Rapids man floated 930 days and covered a distance of 7,000 miles before it was picked up. The fact that the bottle contained nothing but the man's name partly explains this.

Officers at Hancock are on the trail of a man who is accused of striking a lumberjack over the head with a section of gaspipe. People who used to be acquainted with old-time lumberjacks say they suppose the charge will be that he bent the gaspipe.

Fifty people became ill in a Michigan town after partaking of a church supper. An investigation will be started to learn what portions of the oyster they ate.

One hundred and sixty four Michigan people, we are assured, will not try to beat trains to the crossings this year. They are the ones who didn't beat them last year.

The flight of a large flock of wild ducks over Ironwood is looked upon as a sure sign of an early spring. Meanwhile, until spring comes, we can use it as a sure sign of an early duck flight in the other direction.

A jury in municipal court at Kalamazoo returned a verdict of "guilty" against a prisoner, but volunteered to pay his fine. We don't like that. Such things happen only in the movies, and they are highly improbable.

A Menominee man who was found clinging desperately to a telephone pole was arraigned on a charge of intoxication, but protested his innocence. He will never forgive that reeling telephone post for getting him into this.

A burglar spent a good part of the night jimmying his way into two Grand Rapids stores, and got only 25 cents. He finished his stint just in time to go out with the money and buy a ham and eggs breakfast without the ham or eggs.

An up-state man visiting Detroit complains that it costs at least $1.50 to get a good seat in a theatre, and then as likely as not the show will turn out bad. Why doesn't he try the movies? He could see half a dozen bad movie shows for that sum.

Editors of several Michigan newspapers are said to be basking in the sunshine of the Porto Rico region this winter, while their staffs are struggling through the snow at home. However, we can imagine the cold chills that must run up and down their spines whenever they receive the papers and begin to count the typographical errors.

GLEE CLUB ONE OF BEST IN THE WEST

Coming Here, March 31, at the M. E. Church.

Charlevoix may expect a well rounded evening of entertainment when the Kalamazoo Normal Glee club, considered one of the finest organizations of its kind in the middle-west, appears at the Methodist church, Monday, March 31.

Twenty-five men will contribute to a program of chorus, quartet, and solo numbers. The Kalamazoo Normal organization is the largest small college glee club in the state and there are those who declare it the best. At any rate it is booked to provide Charlevoix with its annual glee club entertainment and all reports say that it is amply able to fill the bill.

The glee club includes an instrumental quartet which is rated as a sure-hit attraction. This outfit, called the Brown and Gold Four, makes two appearances on the program. If it is as well received here as it has been whenever it has played downstate, the evening will go on record with local entertainment lovers as a huge success. The Brown and Gold Four was highly praised in an article in the Kalamazoo Gazette. Its music is made with saxophone, banjo, piano and drums.

It is almost enough to know that the Kazoo Normal singers are directed by Prof. Harper Maybee, who is widely prominent in Michigan music circles.

HOSPITAL NOTES.

William Shields of this city was admitted to the hospital last Friday for medical treatment.

Mrs. George Hofmes of this city was admitted to the hospital Sunday for medical treatment.

Tom Covey was discharged from the hospital in very fine condition last Monday. He will stay in town for a short time before returning to East Jordan.

LaVergne McGhan, manager of the Ingalls stock and dairy farm, who has been in the hospital for eleven days, recovering from an operation for pericarditis performed by Dr. W. H. Parks, has returned to his duties on the farm.

Sherman White returned to his home in East Jordan, Monday, after spending eleven days in the hospital recovering from an operation for appendicitis.

Dan McSauba, who was taken to the hospital a week ago last Saturday evening, in a critical condition with pneumonia, is now up and dressed and expects to leave the hospital before the end of the week.

Alfred Stanek, who had an operation performed on his leg last week, has completely recovered and returned to his home in East Jordan.

FOCHTMAN ANNEX DAMAGED BY FLAMES

Main Loss Caused by Large Volume of Water Used.

The old Clifton hotel building, now known as the Fochtmann annex in Petoskey, was considerably damaged by fire last Thursday evening.

The flames wrought most of their havoc on the third and fourth floors of the annex, but the Fochtmann meat market, the bakery, the Greenwell barber shop and the Murphy cigar factory in that building and the McCabe hardware store in the building adjoining suffered heavily from the water.

It is believed that the fire started from a defective chimney. It had considerable headway when discovered early in the evening, but was soon smothered by streams of water poured on it from above and below. The amount of the damage is as yet undetermined.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

The March meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union was held in the parlors of the M. E. church last Friday afternoon. The president, Mrs. James Simmons, presided during the business session.

Mrs. B. Saltonstall had charge of the program, the topic of which was "The Voter, the Garcia of 1924."

Law enforcement and loyalty to the constitution of the United States were the main thoughts. Much of the material was found in the book, "Save America," which is published by the National Committee of Women, including club members and church societies all over the nation. This committee will coordinate their activities, looking toward a thorough campaign of education of law enforcement and loyalty to the constitution, helping to furnish the sinews of peace, which are decent homes, good food, cleanliness, comfort, education, sobriety and righteousness.

COURIER, CHARLEVOIX, MICH., WEDNESDAY, MARCH 26, 1924

PRICE $2.00 PER YEAR

PIONEER OF THE PIONEERS GONE

CAPTAIN A. G. ALDRICH DIES AT EIGHTY-EIGHT.

Was Master of Many Craft on Lakes of This Region—An Enthusiastic Sportsman.

A pioneer of the pioneers passed from among us to his well and long earned rest on Friday of last week in the person of Captain Alanson G. Aldrich, one of the first white settlers in this community.

Captain Aldrich, who was in his 88th year, had been in poor health since a year ago last February and had only just the week before his death returned with his daughter, Miss Elizabeth Aldrich, from Dowagiac where he had been visiting. The infirmities of his extreme age and a resultant heart weakness hastened the end, which came at about twenty minutes to eleven Friday morning.

For an interesting account of the captain's early life in this region, permit us to quote from his biography in "The Traverse Region," a volume published in 1884 and containing the history of the sterling and sturdy characters that first laid firm but loving hand upon the trackless wilderness that once was Northern Michigan and prepared it for the use and enjoyment of the generations to come:

"Captain Alanson G. Aldrich of Charlevoix was born in Wayne county, Michigan, April 27, 1836. At the age of twelve years, he engaged in sailing and has made it almost his exclusive employment.

"On August 4, 1855, he was married to Miss Anna Griffith of St. James, Beaver Island. She was born in Montreal, Canada, September 17, 1838. Their children are Evardo, Henry E., Sarah T., Lizzie A., Ella, Willie A., Eva, Ernest and Anna L.

"From 1856 to 1858, they resided in Grand Rapids. From there they removed to the thriving town of Charlevoix. They have a pleasant residence on Main street with a fine view of the surrounding town. The captain has served seven years as supervisor of Charlevoix and two terms as sheriff of that county. He was also four years assistant assessor and deputy collector of internal revenue. He identified the grayling fish in the Jordan and Boyne rivers in the spring of 1859."

So runs the old-time chronicle. It mentions the fact that Captain Aldrich was a sailor, but does not go into details on this point. It does not state that the captain piloted the tug, Commodore Nutt, on the first trip ever made up into Pine-River by any steam vessel and with her dredged out the first channel into Round Lake. They had to shore the tug up to get her into the river bed and then work her back and forth to widen out the channel. Captain Aldrich first started his career as a master of steam vessels on Elk and Torch lakes, running a tug (thought to have been the Elk, though the records on this point are not available) for the Dexter-Noble Co., who were lumbering that region. His next boat was the Jennie Sutton, a passenger boat plying on Grand Traverse Bay. Later he ran the Clara Belle for the Hannah & Lay Co., and was transferred to the T. S. Faxton, owned by the same concern, of which he was master for seven years, continuing as her captain after she was sold to the D. S. S. & A., to make the run across the straits between Traverse City and Mackinac City. During the years that followed he ran the Ossafage for the Graham & Morton line between Benton Harbor and Chicago.

Captain Aldrich, during his long and eventful life in this region, saw many hardships that will happily never fall to the lot of his descendants or their contemporaries. He often used to tell of packing flour and pork on his back over the 55 mile trail through the woods between Charlevoix and Traverse City, when pork was worth $50.00 a barrel and flour $25.00 a barrel. It was the fifth white family in this community and we may be sure that the difficulties they encountered and courageously met as a matter of daily course were of a nature completely unknown and unrelieved by its younger generation today. The captain was an ardent trapper, huntsman and fisherman and last winter was the first that he has failed to pursue his favorite avocations, as last summer was the first season that he had not worked his place on South State street, where his later years were passed and where he died.

Of the nine children born to Captain Aldrich and his wife (who died some nine years ago), only five are now living—Lizzie, of Charlevoix, who was with him in his last days; Henry E. Aldrich, of Manistee; Will and Ernest of Chicago and Ella (Mrs. E. Ball) also of the latter city. One sister survives him—Mrs. Rachel Bailey of Philadelphia, 82 years of age and a lecturer and club woman widely known in the east and still an active participant in public affairs despite her age. During the Great War she appeared on the platforms of the country in ardent advocacy of volunteer enlistment to crush the power of the Hun. Her son, Edward, came up from Detroit to attend the funeral of his uncle.

The funeral was held from the home of the deceased on South State street Monday afternoon, March 24, Rev. Clarence W. Long officiating. The local Masonic lodge, of which Captain Aldrich was an honorary or life member (having been made a Master Mason in 1870) performed their last rites over the remains of their deceased brother, which were carried after the service to the Brookside cemetery for interment in the vault. Of the surviving relatives, those present at the captain's funeral were Miss Lizzie Aldrich, his sons, Henry, Willie and Ernest, and his nephew, Edward Bailey, mentioned above.

SACRED CONCERT WELL RECEIVED

FOURTH MUSICAL TREAT DREW BIG CROWD.

Next Program Under Mr. and Mrs. Oldham's Direction Will Be on Easter Sunday.

A splendid and responsive audience filled the auditorium of the Congregational church on the occasion of the fourth Sacred Concert given under the direction of Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Oldham, the proceeds of the free will offering on this occasion being devoted to the needs of the Mary Brewster Circle.

The programme was opened by Mrs. Oldham at the organ in prelude, "Oriental," rendered in her usual skillful manner; followed by a chorus of thirty voices in processional, "Crown Him With Many Crowns." In the four anthems rendered, the ensemble was perfect, as the director had inspired each member with the composer's thought and the purpose of his work. Special mention should be made of the soloists, Miss Irene Finucan, Rev. Henry M. Allburt of the Petoskey Presbyterian church, Ney Smith, Mrs. Archie Livingston and Mrs. Kay Butters, for their excellent work in their respective solos.

The duet, "Children Pray Thy Love to Cherish," sung by Mrs. Constance Gaskin and Miss Finucan, displayed a most pleasing clearness and sweetness, also interpretive ability in the fine number rendered.

The anthem, "Nearer, My God, to Thee," was full of mood and power, brought out gloriously by the soloists, chorus and organ.

Mr. Allburt distinguished himself in the two solos, "The Publican" and "Love Never Fails." His voice is a fine, evenly balanced baritone and his diction so clear that it is a real pleasure to listen to his singing.

The recessional, "In the Light of God," was especially appealing. This with the postlude closed this fine musical treat.

Mr. Allburt in his address expressed the sentiments of the community when he complimented Mr. and Mrs. Oldham in their faithful efforts in successfully presenting this high grade of music.

Mr. and Mrs. Oldham have most generously given of their time and talent during this series of concerts. The next and last concert under their direction will be given Easter Sunday.

FIRST JERSEY TO BE TOP COW

GEORGE MEGGISON'S IRENE STANDS HIGHEST

Cow Testing Association Awards High Herd for February to Shepard's Bossies

The high cow for the month of February in the cow testing association of this county is "Irene," a seven year old Jersey owned by George Meggison of Charlevoix. She produced 62.08 lbs. of butterfat for the 29 days of February which is almost 5 lbs. of butterfat more than her nearest competitor, "Mulie," produced. "Mulie" is the 7 year old grade Holstein owned by Art Shepard of East Jordan, and was high cow last month. Irene is the first Jersey in the county to become a high cow in the association.

The high herd goes to the nine grade Holsteins owned by Art Shepard of East Jordan. The nine cows averaged 42.2 pounds of butterfat for the 29 days. Their average for January was 49 pounds for 31 days. This is the first herd to hold the position of high herd for two months in the association and no other herd has come up to their one month average.

MAYOR ACTS AS CITY MANAGER

COUNCIL VOTES HIM SALARY AND FULL POWERS.

First Step Towards Better Management of All Departments of City's Business.

The City Council at its last meeting took a step forward in the matter of a better system for taking care of the public interests. It is the nearest approach to centralizing official responsibility that our present charter will permit. The Mayor was voted a salary of seven hundred fifty dollars per year and was given charge of the whole business of the city, a sort of city manager, but without a city manager's usual salary.

The action of the Council is the result of many opinions expressed by taxpayers that some one should have charge of the city business and look after the loose ends. The experience of the past two years of Mayor Bergeon's administration has shown what can be accomplished by a man who is willing to sacrifice his time and business in looking after things. The main trouble with the aldermanic form of city government is that aldermen who get only a nominal salary cannot be expected to devote their business time to looking after the city business. The business of the city cannot be properly attended to at a session of the Council held in the evening once each week. Personally, we would like the city manager system if the city was sure of getting a good man for the job at a reasonable salary. These two "ifs" tell the whole story. Of course, our city charter does not permit the employment of a city manager, but we see no good reason why some official could not be given pretty much the same authority with the same good results. The new plan will be tried out for one year. The Mayor's office will not be made a plum for political office seekers in the future on account of the salary.

We are looking for good results. We expect that some loose ends will be gathered in and tied. If Mayor Bergeon will find the compensation sufficient to enable him to give even more time to the city during the coming year than he did in the past two years, we are certain that he will save for the city his insignificant salary several times. There are several things we would mention that must have close attention. The auto park should be made a respectable and popular one, or it should be abandoned. These parks will not run themselves. We think it brings considerable business to the city and that it is an asset. Another thing is the old electric light and water works property. It seems to us that the old buildings are of no further use and should be wrecked and the property put to some good use. Its upkeep is a tax burden. Also, we should improve our bathing beaches. They are assets and bring many visitors. Some one must look after them and they must be made popular. Our methods of advertising are not scientific. We should have a well-thought-out plan to extend over a period of years, instead of the spasmodic efforts we have had in the past.

We are going to enjoy seeing some one with authority going about, thru and under the several branches of the city business during the coming year. Let's all of us get behind the mayor and push. If he does something we don't like, let's say that he is using his best judgment for the city's interests, and give him credit for his good intentions. If he does a good thing let's praise him. The only thing we regret is that the Council made the salary so small. Go to it, "Bergy!"

Tourists Return

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Munyon returned to Michigan on March 13th from Long Beach, California, where they have been spending the winter months. They arrived in Charlevoix last Friday, after a week spent visiting in Grand Rapids. They report their winter in Long Beach as a most delightful one. Mr. and Mrs. Munyon took the southern route driving home, passing through Phoenix and stopping at Douglas, Ariz., a while to visit the Wilkinsons. They left their car at Grand Rapids.

MICHIGANDERS MEET IN CALIF

MRS. HAZEL PEARL PHILLIPS WRITES OF PICNIC

Charlevoixians at Annual Affair in Sycamore Grove Near "Los" Now Number Forty

The Michigan Society of Southern California has just held its annual spring picnic and its Courier correspondent, Mrs. Hazel Pearl Phillips, has given us a sketch of the "doings" in the following interesting letter:

"Editor, Courier, Dear Sir:

Sunday, March 9th, was the date of the annual spring picnic of the Michigan Society of Southern California.

If the "stay-at-homes" back in the snow-drifts of Michigan could have peeped in at the picnic and had seen the thousands of enthusiastic Michiganders, greeting each other and enjoying themselves in regular picnic fashion in beautiful Sycamore Grove, they would have been enthused too.

It is impossible to describe the feelings occasioned by the experience of these picnics and all the thrills of a lifetime can't compare with the thrill of meeting that old Charlevoix gang. Southern California has the most wonderful climate in the world (barring a Charlevoix summer) and is also the happiest place in the world when among friends, and what a joyful feeling when we meet those from our old home town.

Three years ago, when I attended my first picnic, there were only fifteen of us from Charlevoix but this year there were over forty present, which does not include about the same number who could not attend for various reasons. Mr. Hines and Mr. Saunders are regular "sleuths" when it comes to finding Charlevoix people in a crowd. They collected most of the bunch on the lawn to enjoy their eats together. It looked like a regular family reunion.

The grass was used for the table and newspaper for lunch cloths, but the dinner was real and plenty of it and how they did stow it away.

Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Jim Saunders, King Saunders, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hines, Karl F. Hines, Mr. and Mrs. Otto Ericks, Mrs. Minnie Scroggie, Bertha Guyer, Mrs. Frank Lenosky, Sarah Hopkins, D. E. Bartlett, Neuman Schroeder, Mrs. Studebaker, Mrs. Newman, Ivan V. Newman, Mrs. Emma Lenosky Doyle, W. E. Newman, Mrs. Carolyn Ball Kleinfeld, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Ball, Phyllis Ball, Oscar Upright, Francis Pearl, Mrs. Hazel (Continued on Page 8).

VACATION WITH EXPENSES PAID

A MONTH IN CAMP AT CUSTER FOR YOUNG MEN

Between Ages of 17 and 24—Drawn From Michigan, Wisconsin and Illinois

When—Month of August, 1924. Who—Any boy or young man aged 17 to 24 of good character and good health.

How—All at the expense of the United States Government, including railroad fare, the best of board, ideal camp life of both work and play; medical supervision; expert instruction and drill.

Why—For the building of resolute upstanding, healthy, capable manhood, better fitted for civil life and prepared if need be to defend their country.

Where—Camp Custer.

An Outline of What the Training Camp at Custer Is and Does.

There is abundant proof in the annual training camp at Camp Custer that Uncle Sam certainly is good to his folks.

The proof is in the provisions made for the boys and young men of Michigan, Wisconsin and Illinois.

How much does it cost to send a boy to a summer camp for a month, to live in the outdoors under the most sanitary surroundings, to be watched over and directed and taught by the most expert men whom Uncle Sam has at his command; to have enough time devoted to body-building drill and exercise, and plenty of time for play; to learn self-control, to practice in the command of others; to have lectures and movies and ball games and daily swims as well as "setting-up exercises" and military drills; to have the most wholesome food, the most expert medical attention, and the constant oversight of kindly men who know and understand boys—how much does it cost?

The answer is, nothing. Nothing for board, nothing for lodging, nothing for uniform, nothing for instruction, nothing for medical attention—nothing even for the fare to get there.

That's the amazing underlying fact about the government's plan for the summer training camp in the Sixth corps area.

Nor, is there, even, an obligation to military service. The guests of Uncle Sam—and they are guests, as the plans for their reception and entertainment prove—who come for their first or second year's course are under no obligation, by reason, of their coming and taking the course, for later service. The purpose of the camp is clearly stated in the official prospectus. "The aim of this and similar camps is to promote good citizenship and an interest in national defense. The war department plans to bring together young men of all occupations on a basis of equality under the most favorable conditions of outdoor life."

And the conditions are favorable. Camp Custer lies high and dry on rolling hills which stretch away into almost countless acres of the government's domain. Street upon street of immaculate tents, each with comfortable cots and adequate bedding will await the coming of the guests. Wise men of the great army organization whose wide experience in organization and command has heightened the smile with which they consider the American boy, will be on duty, ready to take up service as friend and counselor and father of the boys who are to come to the camp.

Brigadier General George Van Horn Moseley will for the third time be camp commandant. He has a remarkable faculty for mixing human kindness and understanding with military command. During one of the preceding camps he had a social engagement of some importance when news came to him that a boy in camp had developed appendicitis. General Moseley canceled his engagement, called the surgeons into consultation, got the facts, and then went to the boy. "I'm here to do what your father would do," he told the boy, "and we'll sit this out together." They did sit it out together to a happy conclusion.

UNCEASING MISERY

Some Charlevoix Kidney Sufferers Get Little Rest or Comfort

There is little sleep, little rest, little peace for many a sufferer from kidney trouble. Life is one continual round of pain. You can't rest at night when there's kidney backache. You suffer twinges and "stabs" of pain, annoying urinary disorders, lameless and nervousness. You can't be comfortable at work with darting pains and blinding dizzy spells. Neglect these ailments and serious troubles may follow. Begin using Doan's Pills at the first sign of disorder. Thousands have testified to their merit.

Proof in Charlevoix testimony: Mrs. Dan Barot, 105 Lincoln St., Charlevoix, says: "My back was stiff and sore just over my kidneys. My kidneys were weak and acted irregularly, so I decided to try Doan's Pills and got a few boxes. They did me of the trouble in a very satisfactory manner." Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Pills—the same that Mrs. Barot had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

CHARLEVOIX PUBLIC SCHOOL NOTES.

"Leave all thy pedant lore apart, God hid the whole world in thy heart."—Emerson.

The tournament at Petoskey resulted in Charlevoix getting a loving cup for third place in Class C. Of the four games that Charlevoix played three were won. Captain Todd was picked as guard for the all-tournament team, Dagwell as center on the second all tournament team, and Hallett given honorable mention for Class C.

The next debate will occur on April 10th with Cheboygan at Charlevoix. We won from this team once. It promises to be our most interesting contest. This will be the third debate in the elimination series.

We, the students of the Charlevoix High School, hereby extend our most hearty thanks to the business men of Charlevoix for their wonderful support which they have shown by donating money to send the basket ball team to M. A. C., but it becomes necessary for us to return this money for it is impossible for us to enter that tournament because they allow only two teams to enter from each district. Harbor Springs and Rogers City are both going from this district, so it puts us out as third place.

The interclass basketball series resulted in a tie between the Juniors and Sophomores. A series of three games is to be played to decide the championship. One game has already been played; the Juniors winning, 8 to 6.

The school work lost during the tournament is being made up after school.

Because of conflicting dates, it has been necessary to postpone the showing of the films of "The Last Days of Pompeii," until the latter part of April. Further particulars as to date and admission will be published in a short time. Watch for them. It will be a picture you can't afford to miss.

General Moseley has insisted that all the officers assembled as instructors and leaders in the training of boys at the camp shall be worthy to lead and to train. The camp has no place for rough and "hard-boiled" bosses.

At the beginning of camp last summer Col. E. H. Yates, of the Sixth Infantry, in command of the Citizens' Military Training Camp, was pointed out the arrangements for the camp's operation. "Over there," he said, "is where we receive the boys in camp, Day or Night, any hour, we will have sandwiches and coffee and lemonade ready—we won't let them pass into the camp hungry even though at the end of a long ride they arrive here between meals. And we've made another rule that I'm going to see to," said Colonel Yates. "In addition to the other play time which we provide each afternoon and evening, the program this year is for complete absence of work on Wednesday and Saturday afternoons, as well as Sundays. Of course every boy during his establishment in camp takes inoculation against contagion such as typhoid and smallpox. I'm going to see to it that the boys don't have their sore arms on their "off" days—so that they can enjoy the full privileges of their rest and play spells."

This is the way the camp feels about its boys. As to play, there are numerous base ball diamonds; hand ball courts on every company street; and tennis courts. There is a fine lake, ideal for swimming, in the camp and every boy will have transportation there and back every afternoon. The best instructors in swimming and in every line of athletic sport will be on hand. There is a theatre which seats 4,000 where the best of moving picture releases are shown nightly. There are splendid bands with the regular military organizations to give daily concerts, and there is a spacious hostess house with experienced hostess in charge, where receptions are held and where supervised dances will occur weekly. Tents where books and papers may be read and letters written are located at convenient intervals on the grounds, and every facility is provided for the reception of parents and friends who will be welcomed as visitors during the camp.

Camp Custer assembled the most expert cooks available in the army organization and visitors to the camp last summer found the meals served a joy to appetites generated in outdoor living and outdoor work. The menu varies, but this was typical of the mess for the summer camp—roast beef, mashed potatoes, gravy, string beans, good bread, good butter, pudding for dessert, an abundance of everything. Last year, in all the camps, there was an average increase of weight of six pounds per man for the month, and this takes no account of hardened muscles, squared shoulders—and self-reliance. A student-officer at the noon mess, who came direct to the camp from his college, remarked that he had gained ten pounds in weight at the close of the officers' reserve camp last summer.

Boys aged from 17 to 24 years may enter the Citizens' Military Training camp, which opens August 1 and closes August 31. In each county in the three states of Michigan, Wisconsin and Illinois, there is a citizen in charge of recruiting who can give particulars and who will have application blanks. The headquarters of the Citizen's Military Training Camps association is at 210 Millers building, Chicago. The Michigan headquarters, with Mr. C. S. Mott of the General Motors company as volunteer chairman for Michigan, is at Room 151, General Motors building, Detroit.

The applicant must have a certificate from his family physician showing that he is in good health. He must also have a certificate of moral character from a minister, schoolmaster, priest or rabbi. Uncle Sam wants character in his guests. The applicant being accepted pays his own fare to camp and on arrival is reimbursed at the rate of five cents per mile. The candidate brings the usual toilet articles: for suits of underwear, two pair of pajamas, six face towels and two bath towels. Athletic suits, bathing suits, musical instruments may be added. Uniforms will be supplied at camp. Post exchanges are located throughout the camp, where refreshments may be bought. A dollar a week will constitute ample luxury money for the student. Laundry is done at the camp without charge.

Voluntary religious services for all faiths will be held at suitable intervals during the week.

Men and equipment drawn from every branch of the regular army are present for the instruction and training of the student guests at the summer camp. More important than this, however, is that there are present the officers and men from the nation's great military organization carefully chosen for their understanding of, and their interest in, and their sympathy with boys—and with great purpose of the government to promote robust, rugged, self-reliant Americanism.

And it's all offered free!

At the close of the camp last year the student guests sent an enthusiastic delegation to General Moseley and said: "We certainly do want to come back again."

The sooner the enlistments are taken the surer of getting in under the quota for each state and county.

Little South African Girl Protects Her New Umbrella From the Rain.

A South African six-year-old's birthday came during the rainy season and one of the gifts she received was a neat little umbrella. The next morning she threatened a downpour when she left for school and her mother saw her properly equipped before she started.

At lunch time the expected tot arrived, and what a sight! Her coat was soaked and her hat absolutely ruined.

"Why, Kathleen," gasped her mother, "where's your umbrella?" Kathleen opened her long coat and there carefully held up against her was her dear little umbrella. "I kept it nice and dry," proudly said Kathleen.—Boston Transcript.

In a Tent.
A kindly but somewhat patronizing landlady inquired of the young bride how she and her husband planned to spend their holiday.
"Our plans thus far," replied the bride, a little distantly, "are only tentative."
"How delightful!" exclaimed the landlady. "I'm sure you will enjoy camping out more than anything else you could do."

Fix Up Wire Fences and Avoid Trouble From Cows

How are the fences? There is plenty of time to tighten the wires, restaple them where necessary, replace posts that have rotted off, and get the fences in good shape. The cows always find the hole in the fence when every one is busy putting up hay or cutting wheat. Fix the fence now and avoid trouble of this kind next summer.

SCHUBERT AND TSCHAIKOWSKY

NUMBERS EIGHTEEN AND NINETEEN IN CONTEST.

Russia and Austria Represented in This Week's Discussion of Great Music.

The eighteenth and nineteenth numbers of the Music Memory Contest are sketches of the lives and works of Schubert and Tchaikowsky.

Schubert.
Franz Peter Schubert, (1797-1828), an Austrian by birth, was the son of a parish schoolmaster in Vienna. He was taught music early in life and joined the Imperial Choir at eleven years of age. At sixteen years he had composed his first symphony.

He was the least schooled of all the great German musicians, but he was unsurpassed for the beauty of his melody. He wrote an enormous quantity of music during his 31 years of life and composed more than six hundred songs, some of them marvelous music. His wonderful gifts and personality, coupled with his shyness, won him many friends.

"Ave Maria" is an ideal example of the perfect setting for the words and shows his sympathy and reverence.

Tchaikowsky.
Peter Ilich Tchaikowsky (1840-1893) (Chi-kawf-ski) was Russia's greatest musical genius. He has written all forms of music and eight operas, but it is as a master of orchestral expression that he deserves most admiration. He had a melancholy temperament and much of his music gives a feeling of sorrow and tragedy.

In 1891 he visited the United States and conducted his own compositions, adding greatly to his popularity here.

"Marche Slave" means Slavonic March, or march of the Russian Poles, Serbs, etc. It was written in 1876 to be played at a benefit concert for Slavic soldiers wounded in the war between Serbia and Turkey. It pictures three periods in Russian history. The first doleful, dirgelike theme represents the unorganized peoples wandering over the vast grass lands; next, a merry folk song pictures the happier life in the little villages; third, the Russian national hymn declares the dignity of a nation and the establishment of an empire. It is an admirable example of national music and displays Tchaikowsky's power to use many groups of instruments in all their possibilities of splendor.

Music Memory Contest.
In the Indianapolis music memory contest held recently, twenty-five phonograph records were played each for five seconds. Three points were counted for name of the selection, two points for the name of the composer and two points for his nationality and time of his life. A total of 175 points were possible for each pupil.

LIVE STOCK

Problem Sheets to Aid Feeders of Live Stock

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

In connection with a plan for the better feeding of live stock, conducted by various states and the United States Department of Agriculture, the department is now distributing to county agents and extension workers of co-operating states copies of the new feeding problem sheets which is the basis of the work. This sheet, attractively printed in red and black, has been designed for the convenience of live stock feeders who desire expert assistance in feeding problems. It provides for a brief outline of the problem and other information related to it, including what the farmer has already done to solve this problem. There is a space for comments and recommendations of the county agent. The information desired is then furnished by the state agricultural college, to which the blank is sent, or, at the option of the state extension director, by the United States Department of Agriculture. The state will in most cases answer questions relating to conditions in the state, while the department will give information on problems of a more general character or those on which the department is conducting special investigations.

The better feeding of live stock service has been developed in response to a popular demand, and it is believed, will not only facilitate correspondence on feeding questions, but will make possible more explicit replies by state and federal experts because of the information contained on the feeding problem sheets.

With each reply to feeding problems answered by the department there goes a return post card on which a person given information is asked to report the results obtained. Replies received thus far have all indicated either entire success or improvement. The follow-up system thus leaves nothing to chance and places the future development of the service on a substantial basis.

The department is already analyzing the various problems submitted and will issue from time to time statements on results.

Heavy Corn Ration May Cause Death of Lambs

There are large numbers of lambs in the cornfields of northern Colorado. Most of these lambs have been on the corn for three or four weeks. They have stripped the plants of leaves and husks and are eating the corn grain in some instances with very little forage available to lighten the ration. Unless the lambs are supplied with plenty of forage and arrangements made so they will consume it, there is danger from now on of heavy death losses, due to a too heavy corn feed.

Lambs are being held in the pens and fed alfalfa until noon, then turned on the corn until evening with good success. They are herded in the pens over night and bled there until the following noon on hay. This causes them to take on a good fill of alfalfa before going on the corn and so far death losses on these lambs have been negligible.

The lambs need alfalfa or other protein forage for protection against too much grain and should be made to take it in sufficient quantities to regulate the grain they consume. If a protein hay is not available and it is necessary to feed them on protein hay or straw about 1-10 of a pound of linseed meal or cottonseed meal should make a good substitute.

In experiments with lambs in the cornfields salt has been used satisfactorily as a mineral supplement.—E. J. Marynard, Colorado State Experiment Station.

Many Stock Owners Get Better-Sires Diplomas

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Wide distribution of sign "Pure Bred Sires Exclusively Used on This Farm" is now being made by the United States Department of Agriculture in co-operating states in connection with their "Better Sires—Better Stock" activities. Many of the signs are being distributed to persons who already have enrolled in the organized plan for live stock improvement through better sires, but requests are also being received from persons who have seen the sign and wish to qualify for it.

According to department records, more than 12,000 live stock owners in the country are now known to be using pure bred sires for all classes of live stock kept. These persons have agreed also to follow methods leading to further improvement.

Commercial Life of Ewe.
The commercial life of a breeding ewe is six to eight years, depending on type of sheep, range, feed, care, etc. The first lamb is dropped when the ewe is about two years of age. From six to six more are gotten before the animal is discarded.

Mules From Native Mares.
Mules may be raised from native mares, provided the mares can be worked at the same time. It does not pay, however, to keep the mare solely for the purpose of raising a mule.

For all the news, read the Courier.

"Wearin' O' Th' Green" was observed as well as sung at St. Mary's Hall, Monday evening, March 17th, at the program and banquet, honoring Ireland's patron saint and given by the St. Mary's Altar Society for the entire congregation.

FIRES GETTING TOO FREQUENT

THERE HAVE BEEN THREE IN ELEVEN DAYS.

Two Caused by Flying Sparks—One Doubtful—Total Loss Nearly $1,000.00.

Fires have occurred during the past two weeks with alarming frequency, proceeding from causes that cannot be laid to any conditions peculiar to this time of the year, however. They just happened to come close together.

A week ago last Saturday, the residence of L. J. McCann at 102 East Huron avenue caught fire at about 8:30 o'clock in the morning, presumably from a spark from the chimney, which alighted on the shingles of the roof. A couple of holes were burned in the roof, each about ten or twelve feet in circumference, the flames having acquired quite a start before the firemen reached the scene. The chemical sufficed to finish the job and no inside damage was done except in the hallway leading to the skylight.

Friday morning, March 21st, at about eight o'clock, the fire department was called to the home of H. L. Oldham on Park avenue, where the roof on the rear portion of the structure was found to be in flames. No interior damage was done, but about ten square feet of the shingles were destroyed, the fire causing a loss of about $200.00. The chemical was found to be sufficient. It is supposed that the blaze started, as usual, from a chimney spark.

Last Sunday at about eight o'clock the M. J. Staley place on Grant street was discovered to be on fire. The origin of the blaze, which caused about $500.00 damage, is not definitely known, but it is thought it may have been due to defective wiring. No one had been in the building, as far as is known, since eight o'clock on the previous morning. The fire, when discovered, had eaten holes through both the first and second floors and had worked into one of the back bedrooms on the second floor. It was just about to break through into the garret above when the firemen reached the scene. It gave the fire lads about an hour's hard work.

At this meeting two ladies were initiated into the mysteries of the camp. After the close of the business session, the ladies were invited into the diningroom where the table revealed what must have been in the package that each lady was carrying when she entered the house earlier in the evening.

At a late hour, all expressed themselves as having enjoyed a pleasure evening and departed for their respective homes.

LOCALS TO MEET CHEBOYGAN TRIO

Will Be Season's Biggest Oratorical Contest.

Word has been received from Gail Densmore of the Michigan Inter-scholastic Debating League that the Charlevoix high school debaters will meet the trio from Cheboygan here April 4th. This will be the season's biggest oratorical contest as it decides whether or not Charlevoix meets the competition of the down state teams.

The high school team met Cheboygan earlier this season and at that time defeated them by a two and one decision. Cheboygan however is in possession of a much stronger team at this time, we understand. Their trio now consists of two boys and one girl. They have won four debates, Charlevoix having been the only team to down their arguments.

ISINGLASS IS FISH BLADDER

Is Form of Pure Commercial Gelatin Made From the Sounds of Sturgeon and Cod.

The little windows in the hard cool burning stove are commonly thought to be isinglass, but they are made of mica, and are not isinglass at all. Isinglass is a form of pure commercial gelatin, made from the sounds of air-bladders of certain fish, especially sturgeon and cod. After being cleaned and slit open the air-bladders undergo no other preparation than being dried and put into rolls about the size of the finger. Before the war Russia produced a large portion of the world's isinglass.

Bolled in milk, isinglass forms a mildly nutritious jelly, and is thus sometimes used medicinally. Its principal purpose, however, is for clarifying liquors. It is also used in making courtplaster, cement, jellies, soups, ladia lak and sizing fabrics.

Had Part of One.

Two men had saved the price of a good dinner and were sitting in the lounge afterwards smoking long cigars and generally trying to look as if this was exactly what they were accustomed to.

"I'll tell you," said one of them, after a while, "there's a delicious sense of luxury when one is lying on one's bed and ringing one's bell for one's valet."

"Have you a valet?" asked his friend, in surprise.

"No," said the other, "but I have a bell."

Few Helens.

"There are many pretty girls in this country," remarked Bluebell, herself listed as no bad looker by competent judges.

"I own up to it," responded her chum Aradne.

"The musical shows team with them. The movies require them. You see them in stores, in offices, everywhere. Yes, this country is full of beautiful girls. But—"

"But what?"

"It would take Helen of Troy to get a seat on a street car now."

FEBRUARY RECORD SHOWS INCREASE

MORE DAIRYMEN GETTING IN TO THE GAME

Cows Freshening During Past Month Raises General Average—Feed and Care Count.

During the month of February 307 cows were on test, of which 81 were dry, as compared with 76 dry the month previous. Notwithstanding the records were a little better than the month of January, due to many cows freshening during that time.

One decided improvement noted during the month is the increasing number of dairymen, constructing separator rooms in their barns, in which the milk is recorded daily as well as the milk separated. This eliminates carrying the countless number of full milk pails to the house and the separated milk back to the barn, a great saving of time, labor and shoe leather. A little investment many times means large dividends. George Drenth, J. W. Drenth, John Hennep, Louis Osterbann, Highcoke stock farm and F. H. Hemstreet think the cows seem more contented when they can listen to the humdrumming of the separator.

A dairyman once said that a phonograph installed in the stable makes more milk, possibly a separator will act likewise anyway. J. W. Drenth says as soon as the pigs hear the bell on the separator they begin to squeal.

The average cow in the association produced 486 pounds of milk at a 3.89 per cent test, 18.9 pounds of butterfat of $2.30 per cow for February, as compared with 434 pounds of milk at a 4.06 per cent test, 17.7 pounds of fat and a net profit of $1.80 for January. The increase was made under a handicap as there were two less days in the month than in January.

During February 28 cows produced over 1000 pounds of milk, 8 cows made over 1250 pounds, 20 cows produced over 40 pounds of fat. 4 over 50, 16 men weighed their milk daily, all members fed grain, 7 separators were tested, 4 cows sold for beef, 6 new cows entered one of which was a P. B. Holstein.

D. H. Brat had the highest producer of milk, a P. B. Holstein, giving 1080 pounds in 29 days. This cow seems to transmit her producing ability on to her offspring, as her daughter owned by Peter Wieland is giving 40 pounds of milk with her first calf.

D. H. Brat had the highest herd for the month. His nine P. B. and grade Holsteins produced 36.99 pounds of butterfat, 1247 pounds of milk at a test of 5.99 per cent and a net profit of $7.86 per cow. Robert Watson was second with his eight Jerseys and Guernseys, making 35.55 pounds of fat, 799 pounds of milk at a test of 4.45 per cent and $1.16 net profit. Ernest Loehme third, his 6 P. B. grade Jerseys producing 33.57 pounds of fat, 682 pounds of milk at a test of 4.29 per cent, and net profit of $2.26. Next in order are Earl Burns, Edward Tillotson, Peter Wieland, F. H. Hemstreet, Tony Shooks, John Jansen and S. B. Anway. F.

"Nobody To Play With"

Folks are naturally companionable. When your heart overflows with happiness you like some one to rejoice with you. Even "misery loves company." The most forlorn urchin in the world is the one who has nobody to play with. He can't be happy.

All of us are continually surrounded by better thoughts and things. When we consistently overlook them we are as badly off as the youngster who has to play alone.

The business of bringing these thoughts and things to you is the service of advertising. It is the voice of the loom, the shop, the foundry, the laboratory—all the places where minds turn pleasant thoughts into worthwhile things for you.

Do you read the advertisement in the paper.

Lenten Messages.
The earth is the Lord's, and the fulness thereof; the world, and they that dwell therein. Ps. xxiv. 1.

The whole world was His by creation and He never transferred it to man. What have we that is ours? Money? "The silver is mine, and the gold is mine, saith the Lord." Lands? "The land shall not be sold in perpetuity; for the land is mine, for ye are strangers and sojourners with me." Possession? "Whatsoever is under the whole heaven is mine." But did we not earn the wealth? "It is He that giveth thee power to get wealth." But my life? "All souls are mine."—Yea, "the earth is mine and the fulness thereof."—G. Sherwood Ed. dy.

In thy presence is fullness of joy. Ps. xvi. 11.

Of all people we Christians ought to be the sunniest and the cheerfulness. What a difference it would make to the world if our religion made us all a singing folk, and if it helped us to comfort and establish other people. And that is what it ought to do. The Christian ought to be a great encourager. Whoever may be dull and doleful, he ought to be happy and cheerful, for he is sure of God, and of His love, and of His redeeming grace in Christ.—J. D. Jones.

Next Monday night the Kalamazoo Glee Club will appear in our church for one of the best concert entertainments of the season. Twenty-five men will sing and read, the Brown and Gold instrumental quartette will make a real hit. See special advertisements for other information.

The banks have given us their advertising spaces in both papers this week. We greatly appreciate this kindness and hope to be able some time in the future to reciprocate. Read the advertisements and get your tickets early for the concert.

DAME HORSESHOE WAS NOT THERE

AT LEAST, LOCAL QUINT DIDN'T SEE HER.

However, We Took Third Place in Class C at the Tournament, and That Helps.

As is the usual case, the dope of the ardent prophets as to the outcome of the North-state event at Petoskey was unceremoniously side-tracked. In fact it was completely upset and dumped all over the heads of the 2,000 fans who jammed the big gym Saturday night. First of all we should mention the bomb shell that dropped in at the last moment and blew all the wind out of Petoskey's sails. Her dazzling, spectacular swoop through the preliminaries and semi-finals, her overwhelming victory over the famous Manistee quintet fell into a sudden pit of gloom at the last second when the cocky little Cheboygan upstarts rose out of the mist and in a two-minute comeback piled up 10 points and nosed out the confident Petoskeyites into the cold by a 1-point margin. It was one of the most unexpected and exciting twists that have ever culminated in a North-state tournament.

Harbor Springs Wins Class C.
Then in Class C fate played its little joke by wedging apart the supposedly invincible Manton-Charlevoix pair with the scrappy little Rogers City aggregation. Harbor Springs had been spreading terror on the other wing and at the finals it remained between these two to fight it out for the trophy. Harbor, playing a commendable brand of basketball, outclassed Rogers and won for herself the predominant Class C position.

Thus Cheboygan and Harbor Springs were duly anointed dukes of the basketball dynasty. Both teams were well deserving of their positions, although of course a true Charlevoixan can not help but feel that our boys could have won the title had Dame Horse-shoe been with them.

Charlevoix Wins Three Out of Four.
As to the career of the locals, it is nothing to be sneezed at. She won three out of four games, completely outclassing Gaylord, Alba and the fast Grayling outfit. But here is her career in a nutshell.

Friday morning, 9:55 to 10:55, first preliminary.

	1st h.	2nd h.	Final
Charlevoix	5	6	11
Gaylord	3	3	6

In this game Gaylord made but one field goal. In the last portion of the scrap Brown was substituted for Bacot, Jones for Todd and Glasgow for Jones. The game was not at all difficult.

Friday night, 8:00 to 8:50, preliminary.

	1st h.	2nd h.	Final
Charlevoix	6	17	23
Alba	3	7	10

Brown was substituted for Dagwell and Herrington for Hallett. This game was not difficult. Alba made only three field baskets to our nine.

Saturday afternoon, 1:50 to 2:40, semi-final.

	1st h.	2nd h.	Final
Charlevoix	8	5	13
Rogers City	10	11	21

At the end of the third quarter the score was tied. During the second half the local squad took 37 shots at the basket to Rogers' 17. The ball rolled in and out and all over the goal but failed to do the desired trick. The ball was in our hands almost three-fourths of the time, but Rogers continued to drop in lucky long ones from the middle of the floor and defeated us fairly and squarely. If we had won this game we would have played Harbor Springs that night for the championship. Saturday night at 7:30 we were scheduled to play Grayling, a team which had beaten both Elk Rapids and Kalaska, for third place.

	1st h.	2nd h.	Final
Charlevoix	4	12	16
Grayling	7	1	8

The locals swung back into fine form during the second half of this game, playing Grayling completely off their feet and winning for C. H. S. a fine silver loving cup. Grayling lacked the commendable endurance which our quint exhibited.

Pere Marquette Ran Saturday Night Special.

Through the efforts of Superintendent Hamilton, a special train was procured for Saturday night. The 150 (approximately) local fans who journeyed over to see the finals got home Saturday night. This is the first time that the town has succeeded in getting special train service.

Local radio stations picked up many of the games which were broadcasted from Petoskey over an 800-mile circuit.

The honors fell to the following: Championship of Class B, Cheboygan High School; Championship of Class C, Harbor Springs High School; Runners-up of Class B, Petoskey High School; Runners-up of Class C, Rogers City High School; Third place Class C, Charlevoix High School; Third place Class B, Manistee High School; Consolation Tournament Champs Class C, East Jordan High School; Consolation Tournament Champs Class B, Boyne City.

This is the official side line report of the Chanticleer editor.

CONVENTION COMING TO CHARLEVOIX INN

Two Hundred Members of Alpha Epsilon Phi Sorority.

A letter recently received by Charles H. Emery, secretary-treasurer of the Charlevoix Association of Commerce, from A. I. Creamer, manager of the Highland Pines Inn, at Weymouth Heights, Southern Pines, N. C., who will manage the Charlevoix Inn this summer, announces a sorority convention to be held at the Inn this coming season. The letter, which is dated March 17th, reads as follows:

"Dear Mr. Emery:
We have booked the Alpha Epsilon Phi Sorority convention at the Inn, beginning on the date of June 30th until the Fourth of July.

"The convention will consist of an especially nice party of ladies and there will be approximately 200 in attendance.

"If you will be kind enough to advise The Sentinel and The Courier, they might be glad to use this information as a little encouragement, as it will start off the season well.

Yours very truly,

"The Coming of the First Scandinavians to America, though little noted at the time, was an event of incalculable importance to the nation yet to be.
